For Goodyear quality has attracted a group of unusual dealers—dealers whom experience has taught that the Goodyear line is all-sufficient for their communities, that it meets the needs—in quality or in price, as the case may be—of every car owner.

It is not strange that the Goodyear policy of choosing a limited number of dealers (only one in four can sell Goodyears) has been vastly simplified, then, by the eagerness of the more experienced, progressive tire dealers to sell the Goodyear line and to rely on it for the satisfaction and goodwill of their customers.

This great organization of service dealers is planned to distribute Goodyear products, as, indeed, it does, at the lowest cost. The savings so effected are passed on to you in better quality as exemplified in The World's Greatest Tire.

Back of all Goodyear Tires is the service of this dealer organization which is pledged to give Goodyear users skilled assistance in getting the last mile from every Goodyear Tire. By their service you will know that the Goodyear creed is their creed and that their every effort is directed to the end that they may "Protect Our Good Name".

If you do not already know the Goodyear Selected Dealer in your community, you will recognize him by the sign which stamps him as a carefully "Selected Dealer".

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Where's your book satchel?" Bob sang out gaily when Cherry entered the dining room on Monday morning.

"My book satchel!" she knit her golden-brown brows. Then her vivid little face glowed and dimpled; she spread the full, short skirt of her yellow-and-brown gingham-check taffeta and made a school-girl curtsy. "Like it, Mr. Boss? This is my 'business' costume, in which I intend to perform as the city's most efficient private secretary. Two eggs, scrambled with cream, please, Mrs. Lundy. I'm going to need all my strength today. Going to be a slavedriver, Bob?"

"You're mighty right I am," Bob chuckled. "One darn good thing—you can't alibi to me about being late to work. I'll see that you get there on time every morning, for I'll drive you down."

Faith, still subdued by the memory of her disappointment of the day before, when she had unsuccessfully tried to turn her husband into an ardent sweetheart, looked from one laughing face to the other, and a dull wonder gnawed at her heart. Why couldn't he look at her as he looked at Cherry—interested, alert, humorously indulgent? But—she wasn't Cherry! No one could look at Cherry with bored eyes, or even with tolerant eyes.

Faith managed to smile with maternal fondness upon both of them as they kissed her good-bye, first Cherry, then Bob—Bob's kiss no more lingering than Cherry's—but when they had gone, Cherry tripping down the flower-bordered path to the car, her small body very close to Bob's tall, striding figure, she had to grope for the door, for her eyes were blind with tears.

"Well!" It was Mrs. Lundy's sharp, staccato exclamation that jerked Faith's head up, made her swallow the hard lump in her throat. "So you've went and let her get away with it! Lawsy me, Mis' Hathaway! I thought you had better sense! A-shuttin' the prettiest girl in town up in the same office with the best-looking young man—"

But Faith, unable to bear more, rushed from the living room into her bedroom, slamming the door behind her. But like most slammed doors, it punished the slammer, for the noise awakened Cherry's baby, which had been sleeping sweetly since Faith had given her her six o'clock bottle. As she bathed and dressed the infant, still nameless except for Cherry's affectionate epithet, "Midget," Faith tortured herself with picturing the scenes that were being enacted at Bob's office, Cherry fluttering about, dressed like a chorus girl in the "School Days" number, taking possession of Bob's offices and his business, offering him criticism and advice in her high, musical, laughter-tipped voice; Bob dictating, with Cherry's chair drawn very close, one of her dimpled knees touching Bob's under the drawn-out leaf of the desk; Cherry's lovely face glowing and smiling or frowning over some unfamiliar word; the intervals between letters, during which the two of them would talk, bright, friendly talk, such as husbands and wives did not seem to be able to indulge in—

At eleven o'clock she made an excuse to telephone her husband, so that she could interrupt, for a moment at least, the scenes which her tortured imagination was picturing. And Bob was annoyed, abrupt.

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TIN TOOTER.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"That is pretty music!" said Uncle Wiggily one day as he was hopping along by the brook and heard a jolly tune being played. "It isn't a song sparrow or a robin," the rabbit gentleman added. "But still it is fine music. I wonder who is making it?"

Raising himself on his tiptoes in order to peer over the tall grass, Uncle Wiggily saw Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow Shuffling along. Jackie had his paws up to his mouth and the music seemed to come from there.

"Let me play your mouth organ a bit!" barked Peetie.

"All right, in a minute, when I finish this tune," answered Jackie. So he played a jolly piece about an old bone that went to a dogs' picnic and never was seen again. Oh, dear!

"Oh, ho!" chuckled Mr. Longears as Peetie handed the mouth organ to his brother. "So that's what made the music I must get me one of those to play when I go adventuring, which I am going to do very soon."

The two puppies with their mouth organ passed on out of sight, and Uncle Wiggily was just going to hop along when, down in the tall, hollow reeds near the bank of the brook, the rabbit heard a sad voice saying:

"Oh, dear, I wish I had one! Oh, how I want one."

Uncle Wiggily jumped back and hid behind a big rock.

"That may be the Bob Cat wishing for one of my ears!" whispered the rabbit gentleman. "I must be careful!" But when he looked again, with just the tip of his nose showing, all he saw was a poor little mouse boy, a sort of forty-second cousin to Jollie Longtail.

"What's the matter, little mouse boy?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, I so much want a mouth organ!" sighed Nibbler, which was the name of the little mouse. "I heard Jackie and Peetie playing their mouth organ, and I want one."

"Well, why don't you buy yourself one at the seven and eight cent store?" asked the rabbit.

"Because," answered Nibbler, "I haven't eight cents, or even seven. That's why, if you please."

"Ah, I see!" said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose. Now it would have been very easy for Mr. Longears to put his paw in his pocket and pull out seven cents, or even eight cents, and give them to Nibbler to buy a mouth organ. But Mr. Longears thought it would be better to help Nibbler make a music thing for himself. So the rabbit said:

"How would you like a tin tooter?"

"Oh, I should love one!" squeaked Nibbler. "I'd like anything that would play. But don't tin tooters cost as much as mouth organs?"

"No, not half as much!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "In fact you and I can make a tin tooter right here and now."

"I don't see how," sighed Nibbler.

Now Uncle Wiggily had been looking around and, on the bank of the brook, he saw a long, round tin can that once had held chocolate cookies. Now there were only a few chocolate crumbs in it. Also on the bank of the brook grew hollow reeds, like tin bean blowers.

Uncle Wiggily took the tin can and, with an old rusty nail and a stone for a hammer, he punched a row of holes in the tin can. As he did this the chocolate cookie crumbs rattled out and Nibbler picked them up and ate them.

Then Uncle Wiggily fastened a hollow reed in a hole at one end of the tin can and blew into it. As he did so he twiddled his paws on the row of holes he had punched. When the rabbit blew there was a queer, tooting sound inside the tin can and as he twiddled his paws on and off the holes, a sort of music came out. You know: "Tweet! Twoot! Woot!"

"Oh, what is it?" cried Nibbler.

"I call it a tin tooter," explained Uncle Wiggily. "It is something like a fife with a saxophone effect. Of course, it isn't quite as refined as a mouth organ, but——"

"Oh, it's wonderful!" squeaked Nibbler. "May I have it?"

Uncle Wiggily gave it to him and Nibbler played a funny tune about a piece of cheese.

And when the other animal boys saw Nibbler's tin tooter each lad made one like it for himself. And they gave a concert and serenaded Uncle Wiggily. The rabbit gentleman liked it. But Mrs. Longears said it sounded too much like a radio with the toothache, so she went to the movies. But this teaches us that if we can't get what we want the next best thing to do is to make it.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Navy blue all over embroidery on white linen was used to develop this useful summer frock, finished with navy-blue tie and buckle and worn with a navy-blue hat.

Hand embroidery and fine machine embroidery were never more highly prized than they are at the present time. A number of prominent French dressmakers have been making frocks with more or less elaborate decorations embroidered on the sleeves, somewhere on the bodice, on front, sides or back of the skirt or along the hem. Then there are frocks cut from all-over embroidery—and for the woman who wants to make a frock of this sort the stores are showing interesting cotton and linen materials by the yard.

The embroidery which is often of the open-work sort is sometimes done in white or to match the color of the linen or cotton material, and sometimes in color on white back-ground. White linen of medium weight showing an all-over open-work design in navy blue might be made up into an attractive summer frock to be worn with navy-blue accessories.

"It is now permitted to wear almost low heels for morning," observes a French fashion reporter. But for afternoon and evening the really high heel is the only sort to consider. There is no longer any question about heels for evening. The short-skirted frock really demands the very high heel.

For evening wear the slipper of satin to match the color of the frock, ornamented with some sort of brilliant buckle or strap and worn with pinky flesh-colored stockings, is chosen by a large number of well-dressed women here and abroad.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1927

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Although a benefic aspect dominates this day, adverse influences are strong, according to astrology.

It is worth while to seek employment, or even to solicit business under this rule, which indicates, however, the existence of obstacles.

Women should benefit in certain ways today, but they must not trust their judgment even where husbands or sons are concerned.

This is an unlucky day for starting a new business or for any sort of initiative involving financial outlay.

Weather conditions may be unfavorable to agriculture in certain parts of the country, but farmers have the forecast of ultimate profit.

All the signs appear to presage a return to the soil among Americans who will conduct immense tracts of land.

Weakness and depression may be experienced by the aged who should be carefully tended while this configuration prevails.

There is promise of increased interest in athletic and this should be a fairly lucky day for amateur events.

Swimming is to be of widest interest, especially in the west, where many experts will develop.

The seers foretell for Americans beauty of face and body far outrivalling that of the Greeks, whom they will emulate more and more.

The same authority foretells a terrific hurricane of the north Atlantic early in the autumn.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a quiet and successful year.

Children born on this day may be independent and hard to manage. Many pioneers were born under this sign.

COMING TO TORONTO.

Also, you discard Kotex as easily as tissue. No laundry, no embarrassing disposal. Also—it deodorizes thoroughly.

More than a mere "pad," Kotex offers scientific protection.

Get at stores. But be sure box is marked "Kotex." If it isn't, it is not genuine Kotex.

2. Can one send regrets on her visiting card?

3. What kinds of invitations can be given over the telephone?

The Answers.

2. No. Written invitations call for a written note.

3. Everything but formal invitations are telephoned now.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

PAINT SPOTS

BRIGHTIEN ED CARPETS

A dingy carpet can be brightened immeasureably by sponging with warm water that has a fair amount of ammonia in it.

FLOOR COVERING

If covering rough floors with linoleum, a layer of river sand or old newspapers under the linoleum will lengthen the life of the covering.

TIGHTENED SCREWS

UNIRONED BATH TOWELS

Bath towels dried outdoors are fresher and sweeter when not ironed. Fold evenly when taking from line and stack as if ironed.

SHINE REMOVER

For the blue suit that gets shiny, nothing is better than a sponge with strong indigo bluing water and a press with a black woolen cloth.

LUNCHEON DISH

Creamed macaroni, baked with layers of crushed peanuts and a sprinkling of parsley, makes a luncheon dish that is different.

CLEAN ENSEMBLES

Sports ensembles of fancy leather shoes, purse and hatband should be cleaned simultaneously. Having shoes shined separately will darken them so they no longer match.

The Living-Room Model shown here is designed to meet the demand for a really good, small, upright piano.

The Prince of Wales will turn "ranch boss" again soon. He will take personal charge for a short time of his 4,000-acre "E-P Ranch" at High River, Alberta, in the Canadian Rockies. Here are splendid photos of the ranch house, some of the Prince's fine sheep, and the Prince himself attired for "roughing it."

OTTAWA, July 28.—The world's most-sought-after young man is about to be granted a short time to be himself—the Prince of Wales is coming to his 4,000-acre ranch near High River, Alberta, to "rough it."

Here is the one place where he can forget speech making and cornerstone laying, matchmaking mothers and precedents.

Here he can go over the business of his estate just as any farmer, look after the welfare of his blooded stock, talk with the hired man and be a regular fellow.

Briefly, he can do as he pleases. If he likes he can go out and look up his neighbors, such as Guy Waddick, organizer of the Calgary Stampede.

He probably will give much time to the actual business of his ranch, for he raises blooded stock and as a business that is intricate. The Prince's ranch is seeking to improve the strain of Canadian sheep, horses, and cattle. Some of his particularly fine chickens are now being exhibited at the World's Poultry Congress in Ottawa.

Of course the Prince does not get all this freedom without some string being attached to it. Officially he is coming to Ottawa to attend the ceremonies of the Diamond Jubilee of the Canadian Confederation.

Premier and Lady Baldwin will visit his ranch for a short time, then they will continue through Canada on their own. The Prince will stay as long as England can spare him.

He doesn't get such a vacation very often, and he's going to make the most of it.

The utmost privacy will be given him while he is on his ranch. There will be no ceremoniousness, no formality. The Prince will forget that he is in training to become the British Empire's king. He will be just a ranch boss for the time being.

CONSULS EXCUSED FROM LIQUOR LINE-U P

When Cuban and Mexican consuls in Ontario's capital protested against lining up with hundreds of others at government liquor vendors for their supply of wet goods, Ontario's liquor control board had to make special arrangements for them. The manager of one special downtown store was ordered to serve them himself. The consuls from left to right are: Cesar Barranco, Cuba; Gen. Luis Medina Barron Mexico; and Emil Sauer, United States. While the concession was granted to Mr. Sauer, he was not concerned in the application.

Increased Resistance Fails To Stop Stock Rise

NEW YORK, July 28 (Canadian Press). — Major speculative activity in to-day's stock market was again on the upside, although there were indications that the "bull" movement was meeting increased resistance. A sharp selling attack carried prices down one to three points in the late trading, but a brisk recovery followed. Other selling squalls swept through the market at intervals, but the offerings were fairly well absorbed.

United States Steel Common was bit up more than four points to a new high record above 133 for the present stock. Crucible and Colorado fuel recorded good gains.

Despite the publication of a favourable semi-annual earnings statement, Chrysler lost ground, especially in the reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to declare an extra dividend. General Motors was in rather free supply around its recent high levels. Rubber stocks received better support, Goodrich crossing 66 to a new peak. Case Threshing Machine and Timken Roller Bearing also reached new high ground.

Unlisted Shares Lead; Distillery Stocks Weak

TORONTO, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Several stocks in the unlisted section of the market were the chief centres of interest on Toronto Stock Exchange today, although International Nickel was active and firm in the listed department. Nickel, with trading in 1,000 shares, advanced ¼ to 60.

Hiram Walker, which yesterday declared the yearly dividend, had heavy trading with the total volume exceeding 4,000 shares. The noon close at 47½ showed a decline of 1¾. In sympathy with Walker other liquor stocks weakened. G. and W. dropped 1½ points to 48½, while Seagram was down ½ to 22. Industrial Alcohol remained firm, selling at 34 in active trading, for a gain of ¼.

McKinnon Trusts continued to show strength, moving up ¾ to 35. C.P.R. eased one point to 167, while Dominion Stores eased ¾ to 82. Amulet was exceptionally active and gained 15 points to 3.65.

Amulet Mine Leader; Other Stocks Weaker

TORONTO, July 28. Canadian Press — Amulet was the strong feature of an active but weak market on the Standard mining exchange to-day, with transactions totalling some 49,000 shares. It advanced 8c to 3.70 after selling as low as 3.49. Area, with a volume of more than 100,000 shares was the leader in activity. It was also a weak feature, declining 4¼ points to 43¾. Potter Doal continued active and eased one point to 18.

The dividend paying gold stocks were weaker, McIntyre declined 15c to 25.75; Lake Shore 5 to 20.25; Hollinger 5 to 18.45; Teck Hughes 5 to 8.40; and Wright-Hargreaves 3c to 6.05. ome Mines held firm at 7.40, and Towagmac jumped twenty points to 3.55, while Central Manitoba gold showed strength at 1.50, a gain of 2c.

Profit Taking Causes July Wheat To Fall

WINNIPEG, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Heavy profit-taking attributed to a large seaboard house brought about sharp declines in the price of July wheat on the Winnipeg market to-day. Under a flood of offerings, the cash month tumbled four and a half cents from the high point of $1.65 7-8 and 3 3-8c below Wednesday's closing quotations. Cool weather in the Canadian West also tended to offset fears of black rust damage and deferred futures also dipped from one-half to one cent.

Fear Of Rust Decreases And Wheat Prices Drop

CHICAGO, July 28. — (Canadian Press).—With cooler weather northwest, dispelling anxiety about black rust, wheat prices averaged lower early to-day. It was admitted, nevertheless, that a return to unfavorable conditions within a day or two might bring about serious damage. Opening unchanged to 5-8c lower, wheat kept near to the initial range. Corn and oats were relatively strong, corn starting unchanged to 5-8c up and subsequently showing an all around advance. Provisions held about steady.

Opening prices were: Wheat, July 1.40½; September 1.38 5-8. Corn, July 1.09 3-8; September 1.07. Oats, July 44, September 44 3-8.

WEAK HITTING

Peterborough Outfit Are Held in Check by Motors' Twirlers.

(By F.D.C.).

Herb. Wolfe's Oshawa General Motors Juniors outhit, outfielded and outscored the Peterborough Kiwanis youngsters in last evening's exhibition game at James Stevenson Park, and the visiting crew won by 6 to 1 in an eight innings affair.

The Kiwanis team had little punch to their attack, and were only able to break through the service of the last of the trio of right-handers sent into action by Manager Wolfe. Petrie, the first choice, blanked them for four innings, allowing but three hits. O'Neill wielded the whitewash brush during the next three frames with but one hit marked against him, and the only counter was scored off May, the third baseman, who pitched the final inning for the visitors.

Lefty Guiry went the whole route for the losers, and although he fanned ten men and was not hit hard at any stage, his wildness was costly, four of his six passes blossoming into runs, while his teammates were shaky defensively.

At that most of the outstanding fielding plays were made by the Peterborough youngsters. Westbrook and Hollingsworth both turned catches into double-plays with great throws that cut off runners trying to advance, and the former also made a fine shoe-string catch of a drive from Boucher, while Terry Hall went out into centre field to pull off a great grab. May, Leveque and Shullankoff fielded smartly for the visitors.

There was no score until the third inning, although Oshawa came very close in the first frame when the first two runners got on on Sturgeon's muff and Shullankoff's safe bunt. Guiry, however, struck out Boucher, and Westbrook took Elliott's fly and doubled Leveque at the plate with a fine throw to Baker.

Guiry walked Hare and Evans, the first two batters to face him in the third inning. Leveque singled through short to score Hare, and Boucher cracked a single to left, sending Evans in. Further trouble was averted when Hollingsworth camped under Elliott's lofter to right, and then cut down Shullankoff when he tried to go to third after the catch.

In the fourth the visitors got a cheap run when May walked, stole second, went to third when Baker threw to centre field, and scored when Baker dropped the third strike on Petrie, and had to throw the batter out at first.

The Kiwanis crew made their first serious threat in their half of the same frame when with one gone Lebarr lined a single to left and Baker cut a fast one past May for a single. Graham's infield out moved the runners up a peg, and it was up to Hall, whose best was an easy tap to the pitcher.

Two lusty clouts added to the Oshawa score in the sixth. Elliott opened with a long double to right centre and May followed with a beautiful smash to the same territory, scoring Elliott. The batter made third on the hit, but was called out for not touching second.

The Petes had a chance in their half when Westbrook got a life when the third strike got away from Elliott. He stole second, but was out at third when Sturgeon hit to O'Neill, Lebarr hit to May, who fumbled and then made a wild throw to second. O'Neill got out of trouble by striking out Baker and Graham.

The visitors did their last scoring in the seventh. With one down, Evans walked and Leveque singled past third. Shullankoff's infield out to Lebarr moved up the runners, and they both scored when Boucher's roller got away from Sturgeon.

With May, who played third base during the first seven innings, on the rubber in the eighth the Kiwanis crew averted a shutout. Westbrook drew a walk and stole second and third. Sturgeon and Lebarr died on strikes, but Baker walked and stole second. Graham cracked a single to right, scoring Westbrook, but Baker was out at the plate when he also tried to score on the play.

WASHINGTON LOSES

NEW YORK, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Yankees drubbed the Browns, 4 to 1 yesterday marking the 14th setback of the St. Louis Club at the hands of the New Yorkers this season. Lou Gehrig broke up a mound struggle between Ballou and Pennock by connecting for his 33rd. home run in the sixth inning with Ruth on base. The blow put Gehrig in a tie with Ruth for home run honors. During the same inning, Tony Lazzeri drove out his 15th. homer. Pennock yielded only three hits.

ROCHESTER YACHT CLUB WINS TROPHY

KATHEA SECOND

Toronto and Kingston Boats Take Third and Fourth Positions.

COBOURG, July 28—Vitesse of the Rochester Yacht Club, the new boat of the four contenders, won the first race for the George International cup yesterday. Kathea of the Crescent Yacht Club of Rochester was second, beaten 200 yards. Eleanor of the R.C.Y.C., Toronto, was third two hundred yards behind Kathea. Diana of Kingston, last.

All morning out in the lake, a strong southwesterly wind prevailed and it kicked up a nice roll of a sea, but just before the start the wind fanned out and left the racing boats rolling and tossing like wash-tubs in a spring freshet. There was plenty of wind in sight and every prospect of plenty for the boats before the day was over, but when the starting gun was fired, the racing crafts were rolling and tossing until they threatened to whip their long timber Marconi spars overboard.

When the starting gun was fired Diana, the Kingston boat, was closest to the line. She bobbed her way across about two minutes later. Windeyer had the R.C.Y.C. challenger up to weather of the line and he sagged down and crossed about a minute behind the leader. The other pair, pathea and Vitesse, were caught two hundred yards below the line and looked to have all the worst of it until Diana and Eleanor commenced to do a crab act. They backed down over the line and at 11.30 all four boats were in a heap rolling and tossing but going back two feet to every one they went forward.

Yesterday's course was twice over a nine mile triangle with the first leg laid to windward, if any.

At the end of the first round of nine miles of the first George Cup race, Vitesse of Rochester, led by a 150 yards with Eleanor of the R.C.Y.C. of Toronto, second, three hundred yards in front of Kathea of Watertown with Diana of Kingston, fourth, a mile back.

The tale of the first round is interesting. After drifting and rolling around the starting line for half an hour, the wind which threatened from the southwest came in and the boats commenced to do some sailing. Diana and Eleanor were out in front battling when Diana was notified that she had not crossed the starting line properly. She turned back and lost ten minutes. Meanwhile Eleanor, superbly handled, went to the front and beat Kathea and Vitesse to the windward mark three miles away. Eleanor had almost a mile in distance and 23 seconds in time on Kathea at this mark. Kathea was, 125 seconds in front of Vitesse.

On the broad reach to the second mark Eleanor held her own but stood far too high on the mark and her advantage was reduced to 150 yards when skipper Barrows of the Vitesse, which had meanwhile passed Kathea found the flag and headed straight for it. This was a fatal mistake. It just cut Eleanor, her well won lead.

Five minutes after they had rounded the second mark and headed for home on the finish of the first round Vitesse passed to windward of Eleanor and went to the front. This leg was a broad reach. The wind is now about eight miles strong and there is still a nice lump of a sea.

Vitesse which was in front at the end of the first round of nine miles, won the contest by a good quarter of a mile.

On the first leg of the second round which was a windward battle of three miles, Vitesse not only held her own, but increased her lead while Eleanor the Toronto boat was replaced in second place by Kathea, second of the Crescent Yacht club of Watertown.

On the second leg, a reach there, there was no change except that Vitesse had increased her lead. The third leg home was also a reach and neither Eleanor or Kathea threatened her lead. Vitesse won by over a quarter of a mile over Kathea, with the Watertown boat a hundred yards in front of Eleanor. The Diana, which had been recalled for a false start, was, of course, never dangerous, though it did seem as if she had gained on the leaders. As it stands now, it is a certainty that Skipper Windeyer of the Toronto entry Eleanor threw away his chances on the second leg of the first round, when he overstood the second mark.

PETES TO MEET COLUMBIAS IN SATURDAY GAME

Leaders of Toronto Stadium League Booked for Battle.

PLAY FINE BALL

But Either Heckman or Hardill is Expected to Stop Them.

There has been a dearth of good ball games at James Stevenson Park this season, but local fans should see one on Saturday afternoon when the Columbias of the Toronto Stadium League will fight it out with Max Swanston's Seniors here. The Columbias are leading their league and have been playing great ball. They will have the edges on the Petes in work, but the local gang have been practising faithfully and are confident they can take the visitors into camp. The Petes played fine ball against Oshawa and Deloro in the last two fixtures here, and the game with Deloro was one of the best in years. Saturday's battle should be of much the same calibre. Either Al. Heckman or Jeff Hardill will be assigned the task of holding the Toronto gang in check, and both are in good shape. The teams will get away at 3 o'clock sharp, and a big crowd should be on hand when "Play ball" is sounded.

MARMORA WINS SOFTBALL GAME

Defeats Deloro by the Big Score of 35 Runs to Sixteen.

MARMORA, July 28.—The replay of the tie between Marmora and Deloro men's softball teams took place at Deloro on Tuesday evening, honors going to the visitors on a 35-16 score. Both teams have undergone changes this past week. Deloro lacked their regular left fielder Brooks, but their chief weakness lay in their pitching, no less than three players filling this position in the seven-inning game. Marmora tried a new recruit in the person of Moore, who pitched through out in fine form. This player also shared in the general good hitting of his team, getting one of the four home runs secured by Marmora. B. Wright crossed the plate twice on his own hits, and E. Brady did the trick once. Murray, who pitched the major portion of the game for the losers, connected for a good homer. His teammate Reynolds effected four brilliant catches. The last two innings were played in semi-darkness, when scoring was easy. Over a hundred watched the game, which was humorous at times on account of the slippery field.

The teams:

Marmora—J. Clairmont c; G. Moore p; H. Auger 1b; E. Brady 2b; T. Cousins 3b; J. Prentice ss; O. Trumble rf; B. Wright cf; H. McGarvey lf.

Deloro—R. Reynolds cf; F. Gray ss; W. Mumby rf, p; J. Hemphill 1b; W. Simmons lf; J. Ethier 2b; A. Robertson p, c; R. Murray c, p; C. McInroy 3b; G. O'Neill rf; R. A. Elliott lf.

By innings:

PIRATES WIN CLOSE GAME FROM ROBINS

Pittsburg Resumes Undisputed Leadership of National League.

CUBS DEFEATED

Ninth Inning Spurt Wins Game for Giants in Chicago.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(Canadian Press).—Pittsburgh resumed undisputed leadership in the National League by defeating Brooklyn by 2 to 1 at Pittsburgh yesterday while the Cubs were losing to the Giants Vic Aldridge hooked up in a pitching duel with Dazzy Vance, the former allowing the Robins only five hits. After Brooklyn levelled the score in the eighth, the Pirates came back in their half of the inning and tallied on Paul Waner's double followed by two sacrifices.

Giants Win.

New York made an auspicious start on its western trip by making a dramatic ninth inning spurt to down Chicago by 6 to 4, relegating the Cubs to second place. The Giants went into the ninth trailing by two runs and began their coming after two were out. Bill Terry came through by whacking a double with the bases full, all the runners scoring. That finished Charlie Root and Percy Jones finished the game for the Cubs.

Break Even.

The Reds divided a twin bill with the Boston Braves at Cincinnati but climbed into fifth place in the National League when they won the second game 5 to 2. The Braves won the first game 7 to 2.

Both games were won on one inning rallies. In the opening game the Braves hit Nefh and May for seven hits and seven runs in the fourth inning, and in the last game the Reds hit Smith and Wertz for three hits to gain their five run victory score.

Goes 11 Innings.

The St. Louis Cardinals celebrated their return home from a lengthy road trip by nosing out Philadelphia 9 to 8 in a hectic 11 inning series opener. With the score tied, the bases full and two down, Blades singled, scoring Douthit for the winning run. Frisch tied the score in the ninth with a home run and Lester Bell came back in the tenth with a circuit clout to tie the count again, after the Phillies had scored a run in their half of the tenth.

MENIE CAPTURES SOFTBALL TITLE

BURNBRAE, July 28. — In no uncertain manner, Menie earned the right to represent the Southern League in the softball finals when on Tuesday evening at Stirling, they defeated the Glen Ross team 21 to 12 before a howling mob of the supporters of both teams. It was apparent at the outset that both squads were impressed with the importance of the game, and some errors resulted from nervousness, the first inning resembling a cricket score.

The Glen boys were only able to connect with Eagleson's delivery with any degree of success in two innings, the first and fourth, while Menie pounded Smith's fast ones all through the game, batting right through the order in three innings. Eagleson was the star batter of the team with six safe hits in as many trips to the plate and five runs. L. Little and S. Little each had five hits in six times up, the former scoring four. Shillinglaw and Walker also had .800 batting averages for the game. L. Little pulled the prize play of the game, an unassisted double play in the third inning. He grabbed Conley's hot liner and doubled Benedict, who had begun running to third.

Carlisle was the only member of the Glen team to secure a perfect average, with three hits and a walk in four trips. Eagleson struck out three batters and also walked three, while Smith walked two, F. Little both times, and failed to strike out any. S. Little, catching for Menie, gave his pitcher great support.

The umpires gave general satisfaction, and no disputes of any consequence arose.

Menie now meets Bethel in home-and-home games to decide the championship of the league. The first game will be played on Tuesday evening, August 2, at Stirling, with the return at Menie on Friday, August 5. If a third game is necessary, it will be played at Glen Ross the following week. Menie also meet Glen Ross at Burnbrae social on Thursday, August 4, in an exhibition encounter; so they have a hard week ahead of them.

The Line-up.

Menie — Eagleson, p; S. Little, c; Shillinglaw, 1b L. Little, 2;b; Rannie, 3b Linn, ss; Petherick, lf; Walker, cf; F. Little, rf.

Glen Ross — Smith, p; Mills, c; M. Fraser, 1b; G. Fraser, 2b Farrell, 3b; Brown, ss; Carlisle, lf; Benedict, cf; Conley, rf.

Score by innings:

Menie ..... 451443—21

Glen Ross ..... 600501—12

Umpires—Pierce, Jeffs, and Johnson.

BIG REGATTA OPENS TODAY

RECORD MADE

ST. CATHARINES, July 28. — Canadian Press. — Three added entries have been accepted by the committe in charge of the C.A.A.O. regatta, which will open here on the Royal Canadian Henley course this afternoon. A belated entry from W. Kelly of Brockville, for the junior singles, will make three starters in that event on Friday. Ronald Ingraham of St. John and guest of the Toronto Argonauts, are the other competitors.

Winnipeg Rowing Club has entertered its 140 pound eight in the 150 pound special eight oared race, in place of Buffalo Westsides who were obliged to scratch their entry through inability to get their shell over from the Bison City. J. McNee of Ottawa having since entered the 140 pound singles, heats have been found necessary for this event. They will be rowed to-day, making a card of ten events for the first day, instead of eight, according to the original draw made in Toronto. The first heat of the tackweight singles will be rowed at 5.10 p.m., with E. English, Argonauts, G. Johnson Lachine, and Finterman, of Detroit, the first two to qualify. McNee and W. Reid of Argonauts will be the only competitors in second heat, one qualify.

Ottawa Dons and McGill University will fight out the first heat of the 140 pound maiden fours, two to qualify, Lachine and Westside Buffalo meeting in the second heat.

McGill Dons and Ottawa provide the first heat of Junior fours with Westsides and Dons fighting out the second heat.

There are three crews in each of the heats the 140 pound junior eights. Lachine, Hamilton Leanders and St. Catharines, are drawn together in the first, and Argonauts, McGill and Detroit in the second heat, two to qualify in each heat for the finals. Six crews are entered for the junior eights. Making two heats with two to qualify in each case. St. Catharines, a new Wyandotte crew and Toronto University meet ein the first, the second to be decided among Ottawa, Argonauts and Detroit.

Rowing fans are still talking of the remarkable performance made Tuesday night by Joe Wright, Jr., who rowed the course in record time with his left arm tightly bandaged from the wrist to the elbow. The weather conditions were perfect for a steller performance last evening. The Diamond sculls performer was out in the heat in the afternoon but made no effort at time. Joe, Senior, keeping a careful eye on him.

His arm is said to be sore but it is not going to keep him out of the race for the championship singles, the first heats of which will be rowed on Friday.

LEAFS DIVIDE DOUBLEHEADER WITH BUFFALO

Lose First Game 10-8 and Shut Bisons Out in Second 3 to 0.

ORIOLES WIN TWO

Skeeters and Newark Divide a Doubleheader at Jersey City.

TORONTO, July 28.—Lamotte's high throw to Styles on Braniards hit in the ninth inning cost Toronto the first game of the double header yesterday afternoon, by the score of 10-8. Buffalo scored two runs on the miscue, enough to give them the lead and the victory.

It was a tough day on the rival hurlers, Buffalo used five pitchers and three catchers and the Leafs two hurlers. Brice getting credit for the victory and Faulkner being charged with the defeat.

Red Hargrave was the big man with the bat for the Leafs, he had a great day, with the willow, getting three blows in five trips to the plate including a double and a triple.

"Lena" Styles performed at first and played smartly. Bissonette and Malone featured the fielding for the Herd. Buffalo outhit the locals 14 to 9 and played better baseball in the pinches. In the second game Toronto shut the Bisons out to the tune of 3 to 0.

The Tribe stopped the Stars at Rochester winning the third game of the series by 7 to 5. Joe Manger, hard hitting Rochester first baseman, featured in the first inning with a home run that scored two men ahead of him.

Orioles Win Two.

The Orioles romped away with both games of yesterday's doubleheader with Reading at Baltimore 18 to 1 and 10 to 3. The first contest was featured by the locals' hard hitting and Chambers' four hit pitching. Poole hit two home runs while Brower, Freitag and Quellich got one each. Porter slammed out his 21st home run in the third inning of the night-cap.

Break Even.

The Skeeters and Newark divided a double-header at Jersey City yesterday afternoon, the Skeeters winning the first game, an eleven inning affair, 2 to 1 and the Bears the 7 inning second game 3 to 2. Joe Zubris allowed only three hits until the tenth inning of the opener. In the eleventh Gaudette singled, went to third when Carlyle muffled Whitman's fly and scored with the winning run on Monohan's hit. Hard hitting at Parks' expense in the first and third innings, chiefly by Kelly, Conroy, and Conlon gave the Bears their runs in the second game.

COGS DEFEAT BETHANY 13-3

Regain League Leadership By One-Sided Victory Here.

PITCHING IS GOOD.

Last night the Cogs beat Bethany in an E. P. League game, the score reading, after all the dust had cleared, 13 to 3 for the Cogs. The Cogs, after dropping two games in a row, came out of their slump in fine style, putting up a brand of ball that was hard to beat.

Vannest, on the rubber, pitched great ball, allowing the hard-hitting Bethany team only four hits. His team mates behind his fine pitching gave him wonderful support, having two double plays to their credit, which cut off some nice rallies on the part of Bethany.

R. Staples, pitching for Bethany, turned in a nice game, striking out ten of the Cogs, but the poor support he received was responsible for a lot of runs.

W. Graham, for the Cogs, had a perfect day at bat. In four trips to the plate he got two hits and two sacrifice hits. The Cogs are now at the top of the league, leading the Crescents by half a game. Box score:

INK SLINGERS LOSE TO BELMONTS

The Belmonts, by virtue of a 9-5 victory over The Examiner, took undisputed possesion of first place in the pose season series. Last night's fixture was not productive of good ball, both teams playing a ragged game. Neither team was at full strength for last night's game.

McLean did the twirling for the Belmonts and was hit hard. His teammates gave him poor support, the infield going to pieces. More runs would have been scored on McLean but for poor baserunning by the Newsboys. There were men on bases every inning and in three different innings the bases were loaded, and no runs resulted. Scates started for The Examiner and was relieved by Dormer in the fourth inning after he had developed a wild streak. Dormer held the Belmonts in check and if given good support would not have been scored on.

Dugan supplied the fielding feature with a hone-handed stab of Stuart's drive. He leaped high in the air to spear the drive. Board, at first, also turned in a good game for the Newsboys. Green was the fielding star for the Club, making several nice catches while Fanning also had a nice catch.

The teams:

TRAVEL TO AND FROM THE WEST BY LAKE AND RAIL

Palatial steamships flying Canadian Pacific house flag provide triweekly service between Twin Cities and Bay terminals. Contrary to what one might expect it is no more expensive to travel by steamship to Fort William than by rail. It is cheaper in fact, as ten dollars covers the whole of ones meals as well as the berth on either the Keewatin, Assiniboia or the Manitoba which are the finest ocean steamships on the Great Lakes.

By leaving Toronto shortly after noon on a Saturday or Wednesday it is possible in less than three hours to connect with a Steamer at Port McNicholl and enjoy two days and nights afloat. A similar connection may be made at Owen Sound on Mondays. Sault Ste. Marie is the only port of call en route, but it is a voyage replete with interest and charm, a restful and refreshing break in the westward journey and the service is irreproachable. Ask any Canadian Pacific Agent. 14-21-28-6-13

DETROIT, July 28. Canadian Press. — Receipt of word from Dr. Etchegeon of France, that because of an accident, he would be unable to enter his two twelve litre racing boats, Sadi Third and Fourth, in the annual regatta on the Detroit river, has robbed the Gold Cup Committee here of one race of international flavor. The regatta is to be held the first part of September.

The race was to be a contest between three nations with Commodore Harry Greening, Hamilton, Ontario, and Comodore Gar Wood, of Detroit, adding competition. The committee has decided to drop the event from the programme.

NO SOCCER GAME NEXT SATURDAY

A Number of Players Have Been Instructed to Work.

Under the auspices of the local Soccer Association, the Quaker Oats and the Masseys were to meet in the final game of the league, but the secretary has received the following note from the Quaker Oats team that speask for itself:

"Owing to a number of our players going away over the week-end, and having to work all day in the plant on Saturday, we find it necessary to request the P. and D. F. A. to postpone the game on Saturday with the Masseys.

"Trusting this note is sufficient time to call the game off and that in future we will be able to carry out our games as scheduled."

If the board decides that the game must be played then the Quakers will have to default. They have signed on F. Montgomery as custodian.

When The Examiner interviewed the president of the Association he stated as follows: "We have to accept the situation as stated and I trust that the Masseys will accept the letter in the same view as I do." There will be no game Saturday, then.

BLIND SWIMMER TRAINS FOR BIG RACE

Here is Mike Hambourg, blind Canadian swimmer, in his training for the Canadian National Exhibition $50,000 marathon. His course is guided by a bell on the boat which accompanies him.

Since Dave broke into the American League years ago with the Philadelphia Athletics, he has been a thorn in the side of opposing clubs, regardless of the leagues in which he has played.

As a member of the Chicago White Sox and the St. Louis Browns, his selection as one of the pitchers, immediately started plenty of arguments. The rival players instead of trying to hit the ball as Danforth pitched attempted to learn what trickery he resorted to in throwing a fast ball past them.

It is impossible to convince any batter, either in the majors or minors, that Danforth didn't get the break on his fast ball through doctoring it. They all insist he is a magician, not a pitcher. Yet, no one ever authentically exposed his methods of alleged trickery, although scores of solutions have been offered.

Danforth achieved his greatest success as a pitcher solely through the use of a fast ball that elusively dodged the swing of the batsmen. It was said he loaded the seams, loosened the cover, because of his abnormal grip, roughened the ball with the nail on the thumb of his pitching hand, which he kept sawedged, also that he pickled his pitching hand with a solution that enable him better to grip the ball.

None of the things were ever proved and today Danforth, who has slipped some, is still pitching winning ball in the Southern Association.

I once used 66 new balls in a game he pitched against New York to prevent alleged doctoring. He lost that game 3-1 but allowed only three hits. A triple by Bob Meusel of the Yankees followed three bases on balls.

AT THE REGENT.

JOHNNY HINES IN "ALL ABOARD."

Excellent fare for hot weather evenings is the programme at the Regent Theatre for the middle three days of this week. "All Aboard" is packed full of laughs, with the likeable Johnny Hines in the role of the hero, an absent-minded youth who studied "memory" books while he forgets the electric current that burns up his toast. He is a clerk in a shoe store, but his lack of memory irritates his employer to such an extent that he discharges him forthwith, and he is obliged to seek other employment. His fondness for travel, through the media of books alone, brings him a certain amount of knowledge that lands him finally as guide of a "Brooks Tour" to the Old Land, with the desert as an objective. Falling madly in love with his employer's daughter, he rescues her from a desert sheik who abducts her, and the affair ends happily for all concerned. The various episodes that occur through the absent-minded and forgetful hero's fault, lend plenty of comedy to the picture, which was received by uproarious laughter from last night's audience.

An interesting session with the serial, "The Silent Flyer," and a Mack Sennett comedy that is also a very funny affair, complete a good programme. —Jeanette.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A CAMPING TRIP

The good which might be received from most camping trips is generally spoiled by the careless use of unwholesome foods. Even those who are careful about their diet at home will poison their bodies during an outing by living on fried foods, flapjacks, strong coffee, etc., and thus lose the benefit they might have received from the time spent in the open.

If the trip is made in an automobile, it is a simple matter to carry along enough good provisions to last for several weeks. The machine should be liberally stocked with such canned green vegetables as string beans, asparagus and spinach. One or two of these canned greens should be used each day. The average camper will not get enough "greens" unless he does take along canned goods, which are ready cooked and which require so little preparation before being served. It is well also to secure fresh vegetables as often as possible, but as these require more or less time and work in preparing, and the camping party, no matter how good its intentions, will seldom use them. If enough canned greens are taken along the tendency will be to use them up before returning home.

Fresh fruits and melons can be purchased every few miles on almost any kind of a camping trip. Fresh eggs can be secured from almost any farm house, and steaks for broiling can be purchased in any small town or camp. The greatest problem is to get enough of the green vegetables, and this question is settled satisfactorily if my suggestions are followed and enough of these foods are taken along to last for the entire trip. All of the other necessary foods can be purchased on the way.

Even though the trip is to last only a few days, it is a good plan to take along a first-aid kit containing bandages, adhesive plaster, Carron oil, mercurochrome, permanganate of potash, etc. The Carron oil may be used for any kind of burns, including sunburn. Two per cent solution of mercurochrome makes an excellent antiseptic, and can be liberally used on cuts and abrasions. A permanganate of potash solution should be in every emergency kit, with an extra bottle of the crystals, out of which you can make your own solution by simply mixing the crystals with water. At the first sign of the itch of poison ivy or poison oak, paint the affected parts with a potassium permanganate solution which will immediately counteract the irritation and keep the poison from spreading. The best treatment for snake bites is to put some of the permanganate of potash crystals directly into the wound after sucking out as much as the snake venom as possible.

Save these suggestions and read them over again before starting on your next campting trip.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Jerry B. writes: "I know people look on pork as poison, especially in the summertime. I like it very much, and it has always agreed with me. In your estimation, what about it as a good meat?"

ANSWER: There is nothing poisonous about pork, but some people have difficulty in digesting it because of the large amount of fat which it contains. Be sure to cook pork thoroughly by roasting, and do not use gravy or any starchy foods at the same meal.

QUESTION: Parent writes: "I wrote you several weeks ago, asking if I should have my two-year old child's tonsils removed. I have not seen an answer in the paper."

ANSWER: Only a limited space can be given each day to answering questions through this column, so it is sometimes several weeks before an answer can appear. Correspondents who wish answers within a few days must send a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. If such address is not given I cannot answer your question direct. Now for your answer: It is never necessary to remove a child's tonsils, providing you keep him on a perfect diet. Send for my special article called "Save the Tonsils." It contains about five hundred words, and is too lengthy to publish in this column.

QUESTION: A. B. D. writes: "Will you please tell me what to do to take off the fat from around my hips? I do not seem fat any other place."

ANSWER: Walk four or five miles each day. This will soon bring your hips down to normal. No other exercise will prove so effective in reducing the thighs, hips, and buttocks.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

MA WILL TELL HIM.

You'd think a man who had to fix
A clock that stutters when it ticks,
Or build a trellis for a vine,
Or set a post and string a line,
Or clean a furnace in the fall,
Would wonder how to do it all,
And do it right; but ma will tell him
Do thus and so—for ma will tell him.

You'd think a man would really need
A half a hundred books to read
And plant a garden so it grows.
Yet no encyclopedias
He ever needs to buy, because,
Although no books folks ever sell him,
He doesn't need them—ma will tell him.

A man will try to figure out
What wires and pulleys are about,
And, when a motor stops and jerks,
Will try to figure how it works.
He wonders what will make it turn,
But don't you worry—pa will learn.
As engineers few men excel him,
But all the samey, ma will tell him.
And then what makes him want to fight
Is finding out that ma was right.

COGS DEFEAT BETHANY 13-3

Regain League Leadership By One-Sided Victory Here.

PITCHING IS GOOD.

Last night the Cogs beat Bethany in an E. P. League game, the score reading, after all the dust had cleared, 13 to 3 for the Cogs. The Cogs, after dropping two games in a row, came out of their slump in fine style, putting up a brand of ball that was hard to beat.

Vannest, on the rubber, pitched great ball, allowing the hard-hitting Bethany team only four hits. His team mates behind his fine pitching gave him wonderful support, having two double plays to their credit, which cut off some nice rallies on the part of Bethany.

R. Staples, pitching for Bethany, turned in a nice game, striking out ten of the Cogs, but the poor support he received was responsible for a lot of runs.

W. Graham, for the Cogs, had a perfect day at bat. In four trips to the plate he got two hits and two sacrifice hits. The Cogs are now at the top of the league, leading the Crescents by half a game. Box score:

INK SLINGERS LOSE TO BELMONTS

The Belmonts, by virtue of a 9-5 victory over The Examiner, took undisputed possesion of first place in the pose season series. Last night's fixture was not productive of good ball, both teams playing a ragged game. Neither team was at full strength for last night's game.

McLean did the twirling for the Belmonts and was hit hard. His teammates gave him poor support, the infield going to pieces. More runs would have been scored on McLean but for poor baserunning by the Newsboys. There were men on bases every inning and in three different innings the bases were loaded, and no runs resulted. Scates started for The Examiner and was relieved by Dormer in the fourth inning after he had developed a wild streak. Dormer held the Belmonts in check and if given good support would not have been scored on.

Dugan supplied the fielding feature with a hone-handed stab of Stuart's drive. He leaped high in the air to spear the drive. Board, at first, also turned in a good game for the Newsboys. Green was the fielding star for the Club, making several nice catches while Fanning also had a nice catch.

The teams:

Belmonts—Green, cf; Holyman, ss; Haskill, c; Frick, 1b; Batten, 3b; Ash, lf; Stuart, 2b; Fanning, rf; McLean, p.

TRAVEL TO AND FROM THE WEST BY LAKE AND RAIL

Palatial steamships flying Canadian Pacific house flag provide triweekly service between Twin Cities and Bay terminals. Contrary to what one might expect it is no more expensive to travel by steamship to Fort William than by rail. It is cheaper in fact, as ten dollars covers the whole of ones meals as well as the berth on either the Keewatin, Assiniboia or the Manitoba which are the finest ocean steamships on the Great Lakes.

By leaving Toronto shortly after noon on a Saturday or Wednesday it is possible in less than three hours to connect with a Steamer at Port McNicholl and enjoy two days and nights afloat. A similar connection may be made at Owen Sound on Mondays. Sault Ste. Marie is the only port of call en route, but it is a voyage replete with interest and charm, a restful and refreshing break in the westward journey and the service is irreproachable. NO SOCCER GAME NEXT SATURDAY

A Number of Players Have Been Instructed to Work.

Under the auspices of the local Soccer Association, the Quaker Oats and the Masseys were to meet in the final game of the league, but the secretary has received the following note from the Quaker Oats team that speask for itself:

"Owing to a number of our players going away over the week-end, and having to work all day in the plant on Saturday, we find it necessary to request the P. and D. F. A. to postpone the game on Saturday with the Masseys.

"Trusting this note is sufficient time to call the game off and that in future we will be able to carry out our games as scheduled."

If the board decides that the game must be played then the Quakers will have to default. They have signed on F. Montgomery as custodian.

When The Examiner interviewed the president of the Association he stated as follows: "We have to accept the situation as stated and I trust that the Masseys will accept the letter in the same view as I do." There will be no game Saturday, then.

You'd Be SURPRISED!

BY BILLY EVANS

Pitcher Dave Danforth, now with New Orleans, continues to be the mystery man of baseball.

Since Dave broke into the American League years ago with the Philadelphia Athletics, he has been a thorn in the side of opposing clubs, regardless of the leagues in which he has played.

As a member of the Chicago White Sox and the St. Louis Browns, his selection as one of the pitchers, immediately started plenty of arguments. The rival players instead of trying to hit the ball as Danforth pitched attempted to learn what trickery he resorted to in throwing a fast ball past them.

It is impossible to convince any batter, either in the majors or minors, that Danforth didn't get the break on his fast ball through doctoring it. They all insist he is a magician, not a pitcher. Yet, no one ever authentically exposed his methods of alleged trickery, although scores of solutions have been offered.

Danforth achieved his greatest success as a pitcher solely through the use of a fast ball that elusively dodged the swing of the batsmen. It was said he loaded the seams, loosened the cover, because of his abnormal grip, roughened the ball with the nail on the thumb of his pitching hand, which he kept sawedged, also that he pickled his pitching hand with a solution that enable him better to grip the ball.

None of the things were ever proved and today Danforth, who has slipped some, is still pitching winning ball in the Southern Association.

I once used 65 new balls in a game he pitched against New York to prevent alleged doctoring. He lost that game 3-1 but allowed only three hits. A triple by Bob Meusel of the Yankees followed three bases on balls.

AT THE REGENT.

JOHNNY HINES IN "ALL ABOARD."

Excellent fare for hot weather evenings is the programme at the Regent Theatre for the middle three days of this week. "All Aboard" is packed full of laughs, with the likeable Johnny Hines in the role of the hero, an absent-minded youth who studied "memory" books while he forgets the electric current that burns up his toast. He is a clerk in a shoe store, but his lack of memory irritates his employer to such an extent that he discharges him forthwith, and he is obliged to seek other employment. His fondness for travel, through the media of books alone, brings him a certain amount of knowledge that lands him finally as guide of a "Brooks Tour" to the Old Land, with the desert as an objective. Falling madly in love with his employer's daughter, he rescues her from a desert sheik who abducts her, and the affair ends happily for all concerned. The various episodes that occur through the absent-minded and forgetful hero's fault, lend plenty of comedy to the picture, which was received by uproarious laughter from last night's audience.

An interesting session with the serial, "The Sident Flyer," and a Mack Sennett comedy that is also a very funny affair, complete a good programme. —Jeanette.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A CAMPING TRIP

The good which might be received from most camping trips is generally spoiled by the careless use of unwholesome foods. Even those who are careful about their diet at home will poison their bodies during an outing by living on fried foods, flapjacks, strong coffee, etc., and thus lose the benefit they might have received from the time spent in the open.

If the trip is made in an automobile, it is a simple matter to carry along enough good provisions to last for several weeks. The machine should be liberally stocked with such canned green vegetables as string beans, asparagus and spinach. One or two of these canned greens should be used each day. The average camper will not get enough "greens" unless he does take along canned goods, which are ready cooked and which require so little preparation before being served. It is well also to secure fresh vegetables as often as possible, but as these require more or less time and work in preparing, and the camping party, no matter how good its intentions, will seldom use them. If enough canned greens are taken along the tendency will be to use them up before returning home.

Fresh fruits and melons can be purchased every few miles on almost any kind of a camping trip. Fresh eggs can be secured from almost any farm house, and steaks for broiling can be purchased in any small town or camp. The greatest problem is to get enough of the green vegetables, and this question is settled satisfactorily if my suggestions are followed and enough of these foods are taken along to last for the entire trip. All of the other necessary foods can be purchased on the way.

Even though the trip is to last only a few days, it is a good plan to take along a first-aid kit containing bandages, adhesive plaster, Carron oil, mercurochrome, permanganate of potash, etc. The Carron oil may be used for any kind of burns, including sunburn. Two per cent solution of mercurochrome makes an excellent antiseptic, and can be liberally used on cuts and abrasions. A permanganate of potash solution should be in every emergency kit, with an extra bottle of the crystals, out of which you can make your own solution by simply mixing the crystals with water. At the first sign of the itch of poison ivy or poison oak, paint the affected parts with a potassium permanganate solution which will immediately counteract the irritation and keep the poison from spreading. The best treatment for snake bites is to put some of the permanganate of potash crystals directly into the wound after sucking out as much as the snake venom as possible.

Save these suggestions and read them over again before starting on your next camping trip.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Jerry B. writes: "I know people look on pork as poison, especially in the summertime. I like it very much, and it has always agreed with me. In your estimation, what about it as a good meat?"

ANSWER: There is nothing poisonous about pork, but some people have difficulty in digesting it because of the large amount of fat which it contains. Be sure to cook pork thoroughly by roasting, and do not use gravy or any starchy foods at the same meal.

QUESTION: Parent writes: "I wrote you several weeks ago, asking if I should have my two-year-old child's tonsils removed. I have not seen an answer in the paper."

ANSWER: Only a limited space can be given each day to answering questions through this column, so it is sometimes several weeks before an answer can appear. Correspondents who wish answers within a few days must send a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. If such address is not given I cannot answer your question direct. Now for your answer: It is never necessary to remove a child's tonsils, providing you keep him on a perfect diet. Send for my special article called "Save the Tonsils." It contains about five hundred words, and is too lengthy to publish in this column.

QUESTION: A. B. D. writes: "Will you please tell me what to do to take off the fat from around my hips? I do not seem fat any other place."

ANSWER: Walk four or five miles each day. This will soon bring your hips down to normal. No other exercise will prove so effective in reducing the thighs, hips, and buttocks.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

MA WILL TELL HIM.

You'd think a man who had to fix
A clock that stutters when it ticks,
Or build a trellis for a vine,
Or set a post and string a line,
Or clean a furnace in the fall,
Would wonder how to do it all,
And do it right: but ma will tell him
Do thus and so—for ma will tell him.

You'd think a man would really need
A half a hundred books to read
And plant a garden so it grows.
Yet no encyclopaedias
He ever needs to buy, because,
Although no books folks ever sell him,
He doesn't need them—ma will tell him.

A man will try to figure out
What wires and pulleys are about,
And, when a motor stops and jerks,
Will try to figure how it works.
He wonders what will make it turn,
But don't you worry—pa will learn.
As engineers few men excel him,
But all the samey, ma will tell him.
And then what makes him want to fight
Is finding out that ma was right.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

Irish Hearts

By MOLLIE MALONE

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of the novel.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough, a gay, reckless youth of Killanmaul, a village on the West Coast of Ireland, near Knockbotherum, decides to go to America. He is in love with Sheila, daughter of Old Tom Kildare, and asks her to wait until he can send for her. Sheila doubts his stability for he has flirted dangerously with the girls of the countryside, including Annie Finnegan, daughter of Denis Finnegan, a hard man, but she gives her promise.

Other guests entered the inn and gathered at the bar for a bit of appetizer. Emmett did not arrive until just time for them to sit down at the tables. He was dressed in his best, and the black hair shone in the yellow light of the ceiling lamps above the banquet board. Good natured gibes greeted him.

"'Tis a long swim back home!" "A longer walk than from here to Knockbotherum!" "An' no pleasant stops on the way!"

But the Murtough was unaffected by these quips. Here was the farewell supper prepared and arranged in his honor, and everyone of importance in the village was there. What mattered it to him if a few of the jealous and envious tried to tease him? They would be glad it only they had a chance to play the part.

It was a merry supper. The Squire himself came down from his his home on the Hill and with superlatives that were sweet to the Murtough praised the adventurous spirit of one of Killanmaul's lads and predicted in flowery language prosperity beyond words for the adventurer in the new world. Father O'Keefe, too, spoke in laudatory rhetoric of the boy who was about to leave the old home-side for an unknown country across the Atlantic. Good ale and whisky had warmed the hearts even of the envious, and through it all Emmett Murtough boasted and bragged of what the future would bring to him and what he would do in America. In their merriment the diners did not see a bent figure enter and walk swiftly around to behind the Murtough's place of honor. Suddenly Murtaugh was swung out of his chair and to his feet to face Denis Finnegan.

Emmett Murtough threw his arm up defensively as Denis swung his riding crop. A livid welt rose on the cheek of Murtough. Again and again the rod descended across the head and shoulders of the younger man. Emmett folded his arms about his head to protect himself, but Finnegan continued to rain blow after blow upon him.

The guests, astonished at the suddenness of the onslaught, sat in amazement. The Squire and Father O'Keefe were the first to reach the infuriated Finnegan. They dragged him away.

"What's the meaning of this?" demanded the Squire.

"Ask the lying scut, he knows," replied Finnegan sourly. "I'll teach him to leave decent men's daughters alone, damn him!" He broke from the grasp of the Squire and with one hand flung Emmett Murtough's face upward into his. "Get out of here! If ye are in Killanmaul an hour from now, God help ye!" he cried and flung the boy from him. Turning on his heel, Denis Finnegan walked from the room, and hardly had he reached the bar and called for his drink when Emmett Murtough fled through the door of the inn and into the night.

Sheila was reading while waiting for the return of Old Tom from the supper to Emmett. The going of Emmett would be for the best, she had reasoned as she dreamed alone. She knew he was a wild one, but over there hard work would bring him to his own. She disliked leaving Killanmaul. The village and the countryside and the sea were all dear to her. All of the Kildares and the Owenes, her mother's people, had lived there save for those sons who had gone away to the wars which had visited every generation and to which both families had contributed of their men. Sheila never had loved anyone. Emmett was the only boy who had ever wooed her, and when once she had put him in his place she had found much to love in his carelessness and the very youth of him.

Sheila started. "Who could that be?" she murmured to herself as she crossed to the door. "Who's there?" she called.

"'Tis me—Emmett! Open the door—hurry!"

"Emmett! Why, what is it? An' ye're hurt! There's blood upon yer face! What's happened?"

"Quick! I can't tell you now." He dropped a carpet bag at his feet. "I've got to borrow yer pony an' ride to Knockbotherum the night. Hurry! Get the lantern an' let me saddle him."

"But, tell me, what has happened—what has happened, Emmett, darling?"

"'Tis old Finnegan. The man's crazy. He just attacked me at the inn! I couldn't fight back; I couldn't hurt the old man. An' he's after me now! I've got to get to Knockbotherum!"

Sheila hurried to the kitchen and lighted the lantern with Emmett at her heels. Soon they had caught the pony and Emmett quickly saddled him. He tied his carpet bag to the saddle and made ready to be off.

"Oh, Emmett, an' what have ye done that Denis Finnegan should be down on ye?"

"Nothing, I tell ye. The old man's just crazy. I did nothing, nothing!"

"An' ye're going away now an' this is to be goodby?"

"I've got to, Sheila, darling; I've got to."

"Oh, Emmett, an' suppose I never see ye again! An' such a leave taking! Emmett, Emmett!"

"There, there, Sheila; don't take on. Sure an' I'll write to ye soon an' it'll be sooner that I'll be sending for ye to come to America to me."

Sheila flung herself into the Murtough's arms and lifted her lips for his kiss. Surely it was not the sweet farewell of which she had been dreaming there in the cottage such a short time ago. Murtough hugged her to him, then flung himself into the saddle. Sheila ran after him to the roadside and waved to the disappearing rider, who never so much as turned his head, but spurred on toward Knockbotherum until swallowed in the darkness of the night.

CHAPTER III

New York City

The scandal at O'Farrell's Inn was a nine days' wonder from Killanmaul to Knockbotherum, and the gossips, their tongues let loose upon a juicy morsel, painted Emmett Murtough in black, black colors. There were no defenders for the emigrant now on board ship for America. Even Old Tom Kildare, who, it is true, did defend him to Sheila in the privacy of their own home, was silent among his neighbors. All the sympathy was for poor Annie Finnegan, who had been promised the ring; and Denis was commended highly for his lacing of the impudent philanderer.

"He should have kilt the scut," was the general opinion of the countryside, and fathers whose daughters had entertained the gay Murtough questioned them pointedly.

The gossip ceased and the scandal passed into village history several weeks later when the banns were published for the marriage of Annie Finnegan and John Gormley, the blacksmith, whose shop was situated on the other side of Knockbotherum. The wedding was held at the earliest possible day thereafter and Annie Finnegan that was, was congratulated, and, so, too, was John Gormley, for all of Killanmaul knew that Annie was a good girl in spite of the slip.

Sheila suffered deeply. She had known that Emmett was a playful fellow, but never did she believe that he would be guilty of such an offense. The night of his running away in all its detail passed through her mind every day as the weeks rolled on. Sheila remembered the welts on his face and the blood and his hurry to be off and the lack of love and affection in his farewell. That hurt most of all. Now she never could go to him over there in America. That she knew. Even her father seemed less enthusiastic about the match, although Old Tom dreamed of the land across the sea and frequently mumbled his regret that he himself in his younger days had not undertaken the voyage. But he did not press the wish to join Emmett upon Sheila.

POULTRY CONGRESS DISCUSSIONS BEGIN

Origins of Various Breeds Considered—Other Subjects Taken Up.

OTTAWA, July 28. — (Canadian Press.)— The world's poultry congress, opening its business proceedings to-day, was featured with discussion of the origin of the Canadian "Chantecler" fowl and the feasibility of an international standard for breeding and exhibition poultry. The origins of various other breeds of fowl were also discussed.

Research in poultry nutrition, prevention of disease, extension of the industry, and marketing of fowl were under discussion by other branches.

DECORATION DAY IS POSTPONED

Ceremonies at Little Lake Cemetery To Be Held Aug. 7.

Decoration Day at Little Lake Cemetery of the Canadian Legion and returned service men has been postponed to Sunday, August 7. It had been intended to hold this annual ceremony on Sunday next, but the decision to defer it was prompted by the fact that Civic Holiday this year falls on Monday, August 1.

With the exception of minor changes, the programme will be on similar lines to that of last Sunday, when Decoration Day was observed by ex-service men at St. Peter's Cemetery.

$34,000,000 LOST IN BIG OIL COMPANY

Auditor Able To Trace Only Part of Hundred Million Handled.

LOS ANGELES, July 28 (Canadian Press).—Grand Jury testimony that $34,000,000 vanished during the frenzied financing which revolved around the Julian Petroleum Corporation and resulted in its collapse, today shed further light on the magnitude of the stock over-issue and pool loan bubble ending in the indictment of scores of wealthy men of Southern California.

F. F. Hahn, auditor employed by the Grand Jury to check Julian stock sales alleged to have exceeded $100,000,000, testified yesterday that $34,000,000 could not be accounted for.

Hahn said that only $66,000,000 of the $100,000,000 had been traced through check book stubs of Jack Bennett, market manipulator for the corporation and aide to S. C. Lewis. Bennett is now sought as the central figure in the crash.

QUEEN MARIE POOR WOMAN

Will Have About $30,000 a Year To Keep Up Palaces Left Her.

MAY SELL JEWELS.

BUCHAREST, July 28 (Canadian Press). — King Ferdinand's death has left Queen Marie a relatively poor woman. Unless the state comes forward with help for the now Dowager-Queen, she may be obliged to convert some of her jewels and other possessions into cash.

As already announced, Ferdinand's 300,000,000 lei fortune (about $2,000,000) will be apportioned equally among the king's five children, including Prince Carol, who will receive about $400,000. The Queen, however, receives nothing but the use for life of certain of the king's properties and palaces.

The Government now proposes to split up the 30,000,000 lei civil list which Ferdinand received (about $200,000) among Queen Marie, King Michael, the Princess-Mother, Helen, Prince Nicolas, and the members of the regency. This would allow the Queen only about $30,000 annually for the upkeep of her palaces, the salaries of her staff, entertainment purposes, and other expenditure. This sum is very small compared with the salaries and allowances of other royal figures, King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, Marie's son-in-law, for instance, receiving more than a million dollars annually, and King George of Great Britain commanding in the neighbourhood of $10,000,000.

Queen Marie is said to feel keen distress over the financial situation, and efforts were started to-day by friends to induce the Cabinet to recommend to Parliament a liberal allowance in order to enable her, as Dowager-Queen, to maintain former dignity and liberality of her court.

It is true, friends said, that the Queen will receive a fraction of the income from Ferdinand's property, but as the total annual revenue from the king's holdings is less than $200,000, Marie's share is almost negligible.

SARNIA MAN DIES OF LUNG INJURIES

David C. Howard Succumbs Two Weeks After Accident.

SARNIA, Ont., July 28. — David C. Howard, popular young man of this city and a member of the intermediate football team in its championship winning days, died last night from lung injuries sustained two weeks ago when a car driven by Gordon B. Storey, and in which he (Howard) was a passenger, overturned in gravel on the Beach Road.

Mr. Howard was 28 years of age. He was in the law office of LeSeuer, McKinley, LeSeuer & Orton.

Warning

Sub-section 18 of Section 10 of the Highway Traffic Act requires that on and after the 1st of October next ALL HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES must carry in a conspicuous place on the left side thereof a lighted lamp showing white to the front and red to the rear.

Any lamps so used shall be clearly visible at a distance of at least 200 feet.

These Lamps are now on the market and can be had from

KARL SIMPSON
460 GEORGE STREET
Phone 574W. Peterboro, Ont.

This Lamp has been submitted to the Department of Public Highways, Toronto, and meets all requirements.

It is windproof, vibration proof, and burns ordinary coal oil 15 hours in one filling, which permits one to travel 90 miles if necessary without attention.

Don't confuse this with a toy electric lamp whose battery would be useless on one two-hour continuous drive, to say nothing of the rest of it.

I respectfully wish to advise, especially, that if you travel behind a horse in the evening, your life is in danger even from the most careful motorist if you haven't a light, and there will be a lot of people unnecessarily injured before October 1st, to say nothing of property loss, if they neglect this matter until that date.

I will be glad to show these lamps to anyone from 8.00 a.m. to 6.15 p.m. and in the evenings from 7.30 to 9 p.m. at the above address.

Those who have already ordered from me can get their lamps anytime now, and those I have promised delivery in North Monaghan and Smith will go out in the next few days.

Get your order in now while the price is low. It may have to advance.

RE-UNITE CHURCH.

Rt. Rev. William T. Manning bishop of New York, who declared at the thirteenth centenary celebration of the founding of York Minster at York, England, that the question on which the future of the world depends is the re-union of the Christian Church.

Well, Wasn't It Built For Two Anyway?

It is seldom nowadays that one sees cyclists riding a tandem through the streets of the city. More seldom does one see the riders clad in bathing costumes as they proceed along George Street. Still more seldom are such to be seen riding through a heavy rain. Yet George Street citizens had a full view of this phenomenon this afternoon. And one of the bather-cyclists was wearing a queer concoction in yellow and black—which possibly makes the "offence" all the more heinous.

IRISH FREE STATE IMPORTS INCREASE

Exports Show Decrease From Figures For May, 1926.

Imports into the Irish Free State during May were valued at £4874,900, as compared with a valuation of £3,635,900 in May 1926. Exports in May of this year were valued at £3,203,800, as against £2,231,000 for the same month of 1926. These figures result in a reduction of £327,600 in the import balance for the month of May, according to advices just received by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service.

The bulk of the imports, £3,298,700 were supplied by Great Britain. Included in the balance were Northern Ireland with £545,300; the United States £300,200; Argentina £146,700; Canada £130,500, and Germany £127,900. As well as the chief source of supply Great Britain is also the best customer of the Irish Free State taking goods valued at £2,524,500, while following in order were Northern Ireland £455,200, Germany £78,500, the United States £38,800, New Zealand £31,800, and France £12,600.

Silk Smuggling Pays Along English Coast

LONDON, July 28 (United Press). — Silk Stocking Row has been established along the southeast coast of England by smugglers emulating the rum-runners of the Western Atlantic.

A high tariff on silk stockings makes it profitable for smugglers in fast motor boats to land shipments of silks—stockings, lingerie, and Paris frocks—at coves along the English coast, whence they are rushed by automobile to London.

Rum and tobacco are smuggled incidentally to avoid revenue charges, but the profit is in silk—about $1,000 an auto load on the average stuff. The authorities know of the smuggling, but seem unable to halt it because the smugglers are declared in many cases to be otherwise responsible citizens who mix fun, fishing, and finance by spending week-ends at coast resorts, and smuggling on the side.

PLEASURE TRIP ENDS IN TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY DOES NOT EXPECT FAILURE AT GENEVA TO LEAD TO QUARREL

Laborite Attacks the Policy of the Government in the House of Commons.

PATIENCE NEEDED.

No Unfriendly Word Spoken or Hostile Thought Expressed By British Delegates.

LONDON, July 29 (Canadian Press).—With perhaps a prophetic eye to what was passing yesterday at Geneva, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, took advantage of the general debate on foreign affairs in the House of Commons to renew his protestations of abhorrence at the mere idea of any quarrel between United States and Great Britain.

Charles Trevelyan, Laborite, has opened the debate with advocacy of all-round arbitration to precede disarmament, declaring that the Government was beginning at the wrong end. The conference the world wanted, he said, was one between Lord Cecil, M. Briand, and Ambassador Houghton, representing respectively Great Britain, France and the United States, and Britain should make a great gesture of disarmament by boldly offering to abolish all capital ships if the other nations were ready to follow.

Commander Kenworthy, Liberal, was of the opinion that the nation had not learned the lesson of the Great War.

Need of Patience

"We may be at the beginning of a situation with the United States similar to that begun with Germany in 1903," he said. "It took twelve years for the seed then sown to germinate. Seed may be in the process of sowing at this moment in Switzerland. I hope not, but there is need for great patience on all sides."

The Foreign Secretary, in the course of his reply, which ranged over many topics, including China and Russia, dealt chiefly with disarmament, with particular reference to the relations between Great Britain and the United States.

The last thing I am willing to contemplate is that failure (at Geneva) should lead to anything like a quarrel,' he said'. "Let us agree as friends if we can; let us differ as friends if agreement be impossible. The friendliest attitude throughout has been preserved."

Proceeding, Sir Austen deprecated Mr. Trevelyan's impatience with the slow progress of disarmament. He feared that such a challenging dramatic offer as Mr. Trevelyan suggested was more likely to bring refusal than acceptance.

"For my part," he added, "I think the less there is of the dramatic about international offers, the more likely they are to serve the cause of peace."

Small Step Forward

Declaring that he himself and Lord Cecil shared the view that the most it was wise to hope for or reasonable to expect from the naval conference was some small step forward. "What we must anticipate," he remarked, "is a series of such conferences, gradually carrying forward at each meeting the task begun at earlier conferences, not a sudden dramatic decision."

Begging the House to consider the program which Great Britain has submitted at Geneva as no hurried affair, but one carefully thought out months before President Coolidge's invitation was received, Sir Austen emphasized that the program would restrict the growth of fleets without endangering the security of any of the powers who might become a party to it. The Government cherished the earnest hope that the conference might attain the objects President Coolidge had in view.

"We need not tell Commander Kenworthy," Sir Austen said, "that we share his abhorence to the full. Be there agreement or be there not on a practical immediate scheme for the further limitation of naval armaments at Geneva, the last thing I am willing to contemplate is that failure should lead to anything like a quarrel. "Let us agree as friends if we can; let us differ as friends if agreement be impossible.

No Unfriendly Word Spoken

"After all, no unfriendly word has been spoken and no hostile thought has been expressed by any British representative at home or at Geneva. On the contrary, the friendliest attitude throughout has been preserved."

"Take the very statement that I made here yesterday, it is all that I shall say about matters being discussed at Geneva.

"Was there anything unfriendly, novel or alien to Americans themselves or to American thought in the view I then expressed on behalf of His Majesty's Government?

Fishermen Have Extraordinary Luck

MARMORA, July 29. — A novel experience befell two local men while fishing up Crowe River on Wednesday morning. They were using two troll lines, one ahead of the other. When near the Marmora Stave Mill, they landed a seven-pound maskinonge which, in its attempt to escape the foremost line, got hooked between the caudal and anal fins by the other line, and so was drawn in, tail first.

NEWS OF 'QUAKE KILLING 100,000 LONG DELAYED

First Stories Reach Shanghai Two Months After Occurrence.

HAPPENED AT KANSU.

Destruction of All the Wires Causes Delay — Four Cities Wiped Out.

LONDON, July 29. — What is described as without doubt one of the world's greatest catastrophes, occurred on May 23 last in the remote Province of Kansu, China, when towns and cities were levelled by a great earthquake, with the casualties placed as high as 100,000.

The Westminster Gazette's Shanghai correspondent sends the first detailed news of the earthquake, which came in the form of a letter from Monsignor Buddenbrock, Vicar-Apostaline of the Steyl Mission, at Lanchow, Kansu. No report of the catastrophe had previously reached Shanghai, owing to the total destruction of telegraphic and postal services.

Mgs. Buddenbrock describes how the cities of Sisiang, Liang-chow, and Kulang were wiped out in the twinkling of an eye. At Liang-chow alone he says, at least 10,000 were killed. The city of Tumentse was completely wrecked and buried beneath a moving mountain.

Missionaries' estimates place the casualties as high as 100,000, and the suffering of the survivors is declared to have been indescribable.

Monsignor Buddenbrock tells a stirring story of how the 'quake at Sisiang occurred during the celebration of Mass. Immediately after the consecration, terrible subterranean rumblings were heard. Dozens of worshippers were buried when the church suddenly collapsed.

In the town arose one long wail of fright and grief as the magnitude of the disaster was realised. Not one building was left intact, and there was not a single house which did not contain dead and dying. In places the earth opened, emitting bluish-black water.

UNION SERVICES ARE ARRANGED

Ministers Will Conduct Meetings in Chemong Pavilion Weekly.

ON SUNDAY EVENINGS.

For some time past a number of local churches and ministers have had under consideration the question of holding religious services in Chemong Park on Sunday evenings. On Sunday morning a number of cottagers invariably find their way to the United Church at Bridgenorth or the Gilmour Memorial Church in Smith, but it has been felt that a united service on Sunday evenings in the park would fill a real need, and a number of summer outdoor meetings have been arranged. The services will be evangelistic and interdenominational. The proprietors of the Chemong Pavilion, Messrs. Porter and Kimmel have granted the use of their premises.

The first service, on Sunday, July 31st, will be addressed by Rev. W. S. Edgar of Gilmour Memorial Church. The combined choir of George Street United and Murray Street Baptist Churches will also take part under the leadership of Dr. Graham.

The Philippine Islands include 7,083 islands, with a total area of 114,400 square miles.

HELPFULNESS TALK SUBJECT

Using Title "Wise and Otherwise," H. G. Walker Gives Inspiring Address.

TO KIWANIS CLUB.

"Wise and otherwise," was the theme of an inspiring address delivered to the Kiwanians at their regular weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel to-day, by H. G. Walker.

"I know," remarked Mr. Walker, "that the Kiwanis Clubs of Peterborough, and of other cities, stands for almost one word, and that is 'helpfulness.' Being a helper to all mankind, regardless of religion or nationality, and to be like a brother to all persons."

"The real aim in a person's life," continued the speaker, "should be to be a friend to man." To illustrate this Mr. Walker recited a beautiful poem on "Be a Friend to Man," that told of a man sitting on the side of the road, despondent and weary, while another came down the same road who could help him. The verse called on the spirit of the latter individual to come to the aid of his brother and be a friend, who would help in all times of trouble.

Another inspiring verse, entitled "Work, Love and Hope," was recited by Mr. Walker, explaining that the daily work of man should be done with a light heart and with an undisguised love.

"Opportunity," stated the speaker "is a great asset to the young men of to-day who have everything that could be desired at their very feet, and the door is always open to the young man of to-day or to-morrow that can stand up with a clean heart and soul and shout to all the world —"I Can."

Ivan Lillico was booster for the day and prizes were won by Dr. Wood, J. Doran and J. R. Heron.

A vote of thanks was moved by J. John to Mr. Walker and Vernon Morphet for such a splendid luncheon programme.

THE PRIZE-WINNING POEM

The Five Dollar Prize offered by the Women's Music Club for the best poem on "Canada" has been awarded to Ruth Budd, Form 2B of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. This was the only poem worthy of award that came within the regulations which confined the competition to Peterborough. The following is the prize poem:

When Kipling called you "Lady of the Snows"
I fancy that he thought the name would suit.
I wonder if he ever felt the warmth,
That ripens all your different kinds of fruit?

I wonder had he heard your waterfalls
That make the power and light for many a town,
Or did he know your gold and silver mines
Or where the iron makes the earth all brown?

And did he view your fields of waving grain,
Could he have seen your forests vast and dark,
Your shining lakes beneath the summer's sun,
Or purple vineyards ,think you, did he mark?

Or was it from your mountains tall and grim
With snow-clad tops, that reach up to the sky,
Or creak of runners gliding over snow
Or jolly ski-ing parties flitting by?

Perhaps he heard of famous hockey teams
And thought you only knew a winter game?
Do you think our golf and tennis are unknown?
And that our baseball games are played in vain?

O Canada; what can they say you lack?
With summer's heat and winter's chilling breath.
Timber, grain, fruit, minerals,all are here,
And every need of man, from birth to death.

Another poem, which was not eligible for a prize because the composer resides in Lakefield, will be printed tomorrow.

SUGGESTION OF MORE SMALL SHIPS FOR U. S. IS ADVANCED

Comes From British Circles, Although No Official Proposal Made.

CABINET MEETING.

Emergency Meeting Called By Chamberlain—Japan May Act as Mediator at Geneva.

GENEVA, July 29 (Canadian Press) — A suggestion which the British claim might solve the difficulty over eight-inch gun cruisers and by the same token might solve the Tri-partite naval difficulty emanated today from British circles. This suggestion was that the United States delegates ask for the right to build more eight-inch gun secondary cruisers than is provided for under the British plan submitted yesterday and that the British would look favorably upon such a proposal provided the British total tonnage in cruisers was raised in proportion.

TWENTY-SEVEN ARE DROWNED WHEN EXCURSION BOAT UPSETS IN LAKE MICHIGAN OFF CHICAGO

100 ON BOARD.

Favorite Is Reported To Have Had Only One Small Lifeboat on Deck.

CHICAGO, July 29. — Canadian Press. — A sudden off shore squall that passed in a few seconds, to leave the lake as smooth as a mill-pond, capsized a small pleasure steamer, late yesterday, carrying at least 27 of the passengers mostly women and children to death.

The tragedy came almost 12 years to the day from the date of Chicago's greatest water disaster, the sinking of the steamer Eastland, with a loss of 812 lives.

This, too resulted from the same cause—a rush of passengers to the port side of the ship.

Sixteen of yesterday's victims were children—ten boys and six girls—ten were women and one was a man. Seventy five women and children and half a dozen men were thrown into the water when the vessel, the 'Favorite,' toppled over, but 70 or more, were saved, some in a thrilling rescue by William Hoffauer, the millionaire yachtsman, who chanced to be cruising by in his large yacht, the 'Doris,' when the storm broke.

While divers searched the lake bottom, near the scene for more victims' derricks lifted the craft late last night as flood lights were played on the tragic picture.

The last five bodies were found as the boat came to the surface, seven hours after the 'Favorite' foundered.

To-day a triple enquiry into the accident was under way. One was the inquest, the others investigations by Michael Hughes, chief of police, and states' attorney Robert M. Crowe.

Captain Olson and his crew were arrested shortly after the tragedy.

Terrified by the storm, which came up in 15 minutes, and passed in a few seconds, the 75 or 80 passengers rushed to one side of the boat, and as it listed stampeded to the other side. In an instant they were plunged into the water with rough breakers tossing them helplessly about.

The noise of a negro band blaring away at "I'm looking over a four-leaf clover," was transformed into the choking cries of persons clutching at any floating object as the boat turned half over and settled until only its upper deck remained partly out of the water.

It was similar in many respects to the Eastland disaster which occurred 12 years ago this month and in which more than 800 lives were lost.

The boat reported carrying upward of 100 passengers seeking relief from the heat, had left the pier bound for Lincoln Park, some three miles north, when a squall came up and passengers rushed to one side of the two deck boat to escape the storm. The boat listed and they rushed back to the other side, and it capsized.

A second boat which capsized due to the squall, was a small power boat, and the crew swam safely to shore.

The 'Favorite' was reported to have carried but one small lifeboat, and this was used to take three small boys to safety.

Captain Arthur Olsen, and three members of the crew were arrested by the police, and hurried to the station for questioning as soon as they had landed.

Miss Opal Helton, of Hugo, Okla., a passenger on the boat, and Johnny Weissmuller, national swimming champion, who was swimming nearby, both took a prominent part in the rescue work. Miss Helton saved four children while Weissmuller brought several bodies to the surface.

Scores of doctors and nurses worked frantically along the shore line over the victims bodies. Two hours after the disaster, small craft with their burden of victims, still were coming in to shore along a two mile strip of beach.

Body Washed Ashore.

The body of Michael Citra, eight the twenty-seventh victim of the disaster, was found by coastguards today along the shore, where it had been washed in from the scene of the tragedy.

LONDON IS OPEN TO AIR ATTACK EXPERTS SHOW

Point Out That Geneva Conference Might Better Limit Aircraft.

RUTHLESS WARFARE.

Will Take Eight Years To Prepare Defence—Counter Attack Only Recourse.

LONDON, July 29 (U.P.).—Great Britain, having been sensationally shown by the recent extensive aerial manoeuvres over London to be defenceless against air invasions, experts are now pointing out that the Geneva naval disarmament conference would be better employed curtailing the possibility of aerial warfare than limiting cruiser armaments.

Although the heaviest defences were provided by the Royal Air Force for London, the attackers broke through night after night and "bombed" the city, even landing dummy bombs on the roof of the Houses of Parliament. In this connection, Air Ministry officials explain that London cannot be adequately protected against air assaults until a scheme, now partly prepared, is ready to be put into operation. The completion of this scheme will require eight years.

"If war broke out tomorrow our only defence would be to attack enemy cities, for the enemy would be certain to attack London," one aerial expert declared. Meanwhile the newspapers are emphasizing that aerial warfare in the future will be utterly ruthless and that therefore, whether hostile air craft succeed in reaching military objective or not, the entire poulation of cities will be driven into cellars where poison bombs will destroy thousands while whole streets will be set blazing by incendiary explosives.

BRITISH PLAN WAS REJECTED BY DELEGATES

United States' Delegation Flatly Refuses New Proposals of Britain.

AT NAVAL CONFERENCE.

Last Meeting Will Be Held on Monday—Divergencies Are Great.

GENEVA, July 29 (Canadian Press) —Rupture of the tri-partite naval conference threatened last night as almost a certainty unless developments which nobody genuinely expects, come to save it.

The British delegation presented new proposals yesterday which were flatly rejected by the United States delegation. Reliable information concerning a secret session of the tripartite plenipotentiaries indicates that when Rt. Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, presented the new British plan for the limitation of cruisers, destroyers and submarines, Hugh B. Gibson, head of the United States delegation, asked whether this plan was Great Britain's last word.

Mr. Bridgeman said it was.

A plenary session has been convoked for Monday next. A Japanese delegate expressed the opinion to the correspondent that this undoubtedly would be the last meeting of the conference, as there seemed no reasonable chance that the divergencies between the British and the Americans could be reconciled.

It is understood that in United States and Japanese circles three features of the new British proposals stand out as making them objectionable from the viewpoint of both nations. The first is that the British plan restricts the liberty of the two other nations to build eight-inch guns on secondary cruisers.

The second is that the British, they contend, have abandoned the idea for which the British fought during the meetings of the League of Nations preparatory commission on general disarmament conference, that warships should be limited by categories or types.

The third is that under the British scheme six-inch gun cruisers would be imposed upon the navies of the United States and Japan.

The matter was referred to Police Chief A. J. Brown, but not with instructions to hang bells around the cats' necks.

POOL OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

SOLVE PROBLEM.

BRANDON, Man., July 29 (Canadian Press). — The election of officers, discussion and voting upon resolutions and short addresses by E. B. Ramsay, secretary of the Central Selling Agency, and G. W. Tovell, of the Manitoba Co-operative Dairies, occupied yesterday's session of the annual meeting of the Manitoba Co-operative Wheat Producers' Limited.

Six of the seven directors of the Manitoba pool were re-elected, the one change occurring in District Five, where John Quick, of Grandview, succeeded G. S. Stevens.

In response to a call for a more aggressive elevator policy, the board of directors submitted a resolution calling for the issuance of bonds for the erection of new elevators. As collateral the Manitoba pool interests in the existing elevators would be hypothecated up to 65 per cent. The resolution was approved.

Mr. Ramsay recounted the main features of the year in grain marketing, and declared that the increase in the volume of grain under the growers' control would gradually solve the marketing problem. The greatest problem in the early marketing season was the non-pool wheat, Mr. Ramsay declared.

RAIN SPOILS HAY BUT HELPS GRAIN

Warsaw Farmers Held Up in Their Harvesting Operations.

WARSAW, July 29. — Hay crops are dwindling in quality and quantity with the continued wet weather. Some whole fields of sweet clover and alfalfa hay are utterly unfit to take in. New hay is growing up through the cut, which lies on the ground. Other fields are lined with windrows that have been turned several times and are now black. A few men succeeded in getting a few loads or perhaps one field in safely. At the beginning of the season the general run of farmers were pleased with the prospect of abundance of good hay. By the time it was ready to cut it was splendid.

Grain crops, however, are profiting by the rains and good, well filled heads are appearing. Wheat is about ready to be cut; some will be ready this week. There is more fall wheat than usual. Rye looks well, too, and more of it is being grown than in recent times. Some few odd fields of barley are turning.

Garden stuff in sandy, elevated gardens is extra good. Green peas, beans and lettuce were never better. Low flat clay or clay-loam gardens are not up to the mark. Much stuff is stunted.

Huckleberries are abundant and pickers are generally well rewarded for their pains.

A terrific thunder-storm or series of storms visited this district on Wednesday morning, lasting from about midnight until three o'clock. During part of the time there was hail. No damage is reported so far, except that fifteen telephone lines were put of commission.

Hay harvesting is in a worse plight than ever, and those who have wheat ready to cut must still wait.

GARDEN PARTY GREAT SUCCESS

Meyersburg Church Lawn Was Very Prettily Decorated for the Occasion.

NORHAM, July 29.—The Meyersburg church held its annual garden party on Tuesday evening.

The church lawn was prettily decorated with strings of bright colored pennants, giving a festive look to the scene.

One corner of the shed was occupied by a candy and ice cream booth which was well patronized.

Another section was occupied by the happy hunting ground of the child, "the fish pond." A large scenic picture of a fisherman and his rod proclaimed to passersby the joys within. The blowing of horns and shriek of whistles soon announced that the children had been successful in their "fishing."

The ladies served a very bounteous and delicious supper. The "Blue Orchestra" of Campbellford were the entertainers and delighted those present with their music. There was a large crowd present from Campbellford, Orland, Codrington, Norham and other surrounding places. The proceeds amounted to over $85.

They used to get twenty miles on a gallon, but now they can get to heaven on a pint.

CAPT. HARDING HAS TWO FALLS

London Aviator Has Two Crashes Inside of Twenty-four Hours.

PLANE WRECKED.

LONDON, Ont., July 29. — Canadian Press. — Captain Dave A. Harding, D.F.C., of the Royal Canadian Air Force, and a prospective candidate for the trans-atlantic flight from this city to London, England, experienced his second crash in less than 24 hours, when the engine of a plane owned by the Jack V. Elliott Company, of Hamilton in which Harding was taking off near Crumlin, died when about seventy-feet in the air. The officer quickly turned his plane around and after going a distance of some fifty feet, the machine hit the ground and a fence.

The plane was practically a complete wreck, the propeller was smashed, the carriage buried in the ground and the wings shattered beyond repair. The engine is all that remains intact at the present time, and it has likely been damaged by the severe jolt.

Harding escaped without a scratch. The accident happened shortly after noon at what was known as the old Jockey grounds, not far from Crumlin.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29.—(Canadian Press.)—As the result of a conference here yesterday between Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, and representatives of the Provincial Government, it was decided to settle the dispute between the Manitoba Telephone Commission and its electrical workers, by an arbitration board. The dispute was the result of a two-cent wage reduction made by the commission. The latter body also agreed to give the workers a three-year contract on the basis of a general 3 1-2 cent. increase, besides agreeing to abide by the decision of the Board of Arbitration.

The men have asked for a 5½ cent increase per hour.

Canadian Bacon Supplied to Troops

LONDON, July 29 (Canadian Press). — Canadian bacon is now being supplied to the troops in Great Britain, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Secretary of State for War, stated in reply to a questioner in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. A trial was also being given Canadian bacon in overseas stations where its suitability had not yet been established.

MANY FLIERS WANT POSITION

Half Dozen Men Would Like To Try London-to-London Flight.

APPOINTMENTS EXPECTED.

LONDON, Ont., July 29.— (Canadian Press.)—With a half dozen fliers in the city, an announcement is expected hourly as to the men who will pilot the London-to-London machine out across the broad Atlantic. While A. W. Jellison, associated with the Jack V. Elliott Flying Co., flew to town this morning from Hamilton to press his claims, the inside track still seems to rest with Flying Officer Dave A. Harding, A.F.C. Camp Borden, and Lieut. James (Buzz) Vance, A.F.C. Toronto.

Harding and Vance have many common ties, though they were total strangers until they met this morning before going into conference with the flight management committee. They are both bachelors; they are both 20 years of age; they were both born within 35 miles of London, Harding at Petrolia and Vance at Ingersoll; they both hold the Air Force Cross for distinguished service overseas.

But most interesting perhaps, was that they both are well acquainted with the world famous and much-talked of Col. T. E. Lawrence, the uncrowned king of Arabia, having met him while serving in Egypt. Vance had Lawrence as a passenger for part of his London to Cairo flight in 1919. Lieut. Vance's flying companions on this trip was none other than Lieut. Harry Yates, son of George Yates, assistant deputy-minister of railways for Canada, and a former well-known Londoner.

POULTRYMEN WILL ASK FOR BETTER JUDGES

Ontario Delegates Pass Resolutions at World's Poultry Congress.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Minister Promised He Would Consider Increasing Annual Grants.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 29.—(Canadian Press).—Resolutions advocating better judging by culling inspectors, fall fair judges and any other officer appointed by the Government and the selection of such judges from qualified men at the Poultry Judges' School at Guelph were adopted at the Ontario Poultry Confederation conference held here yesterday in conjunction with the World's Poultry Congress.

The new officers elected for the ensuing year are: Thomas Abram, Oakwood, president; A. L. Smith, Hamilton, vice-president; Sydney Everitt, Stratford, W. Rowberry, Toronto, and A. E. Field-Marshall, Ottawa, as members of the executive; and W. J. Roberts, Hamilton, Thomas Abram, and W. Rowberry as delegates to the Eastern Canada Live Stock Union.

The retiring president, A. E. Field-Marshall, occupied the chair. Votes of thanks were extended to the retiring officers and the conference went on record as highly appreciating the Ontario live-bird exhibition at the congress. A vote of congratulation was tendered to the National Live-Bird Committee of the congress.

The retiring president announced that the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, Hon. John Martin, had promised consideration of the request of local associations for an increase in the annual $50 grant and that action would be forthcoming in a short time.

A resolution was passed advocating a "better grade of prices on hatching eggs and baby chicks sold by the Government stations more in keeping with the standard bred poultry industry.

The poppy was taken to China and the Orient by the Arabs, who were clever physicians. The misuse of opium is believed to have started in India.

PAUL BUNYAN

FREDERICTON, N. B., July 29.—(Canadian Press).—"That's a job for Paul Bunyan!" declares the New Brunswick lumberjack when some particularly arduous piece of work falls to him. By that declaration he implies that the task is beyond the powers of ordinary man, for Paul Bunyan is a legendary hero, endowed with supernatural physical strength and prowess—a very Olympian of the lumber camps.

Nobody knows when sprang the legend of Paul Bunyan. Possibly in the early days some brawny backwoodsman of that name distinguished himself among the tall timbers and tales of his achievements passed from mouth to mouth, gaining color at each telling.

Today Paul holds a secure place besides Hercules, Jack the Giant Killer and the other select heroes of folklore. His deeds are related in every camp; he is the unattainable ideal of every lumberjack.

Paul Bunyan mows down the loftiest kings of the forest with single strokes of his mighty axe. He clears a valley of timber in the space of a day. And when Paul gets involved in a "rough-and-tumble"—as every lumberjack with spirit must do once and again—the other combatants are out of luck, for he is as irresistible a scrapper as he is an axman and has been known to unwittingly smash an opponent's skull with one blow of his fist.

Legend reports that in his childhood days Paul Bunyan derived considerable amusement from unarmed encounters with wolves, panthers and wildcats. When he was still in his rompers these beasts could put up a respectable fight against him before being broken or strangled and ignominiously carried home upon his shoulders. But as he attained manhood such combats lost their savour, for he could subdue the most fearsome creature of the wilds with a casual slap.

Now raw bear and cougar meat constitute minor items of his regular bill-of-fare. He drinks his tea boiling, and when he goes on a spree nothing short of a gallon of raw alcohol will quench his thirst. An interesting fact about this superman is that he possesses a dual personality, existing not only in the Canadian lumber woods, but also in the oil and sulphur fields of the southern States.

Down in Texas Paul Bunyan is a mighty driller. Once he was working on top of a tower of a height suitable to his taste and inadvertently dropped a wrench. "Heads below!" shouted Paul in warning. And three days later one of the workers at the foot of the tower was killed by the falling tool. It is strange that the oil drillers should have adopted the same central figure for their tall tales as the axmen of New Brunswick. Perhaps it indicates lack of imagination. However that may be, Paul Bunyan stands supreme among the heroes of lumber camp and oil field.

A colorful volume could be added to the library of Canadian folklore if the Bunyan legends—suitably expurgated—were gathered together and transcribed.

HOME AND EMPIRE DEFENCE IS PICTURED WITH REALISM IN GREAT R. A. F. PAGEANT

Display Shows New Conception of British Air Power.

WONDERFUL EXHIBITION.

Lessons To People Of Empire Taught By Set Spectacles of Defence Methods.

LONDON, July 29.—(Canadian Press).—The eighth Royal Air Force display, the greatest of its kind in the world, approached this year an effective realism not hitherto attempted in its two set-pieces. Just as each preceding display has been notable for the emphasis laid on some aspect of air power, so this year the outstanding pictures were those of home defence and Empire protection.

This year, under the guidance of Air Marshal Sir John Calmond, the two set-pieces, while maintaining and even accentuating the spectacular note, had a definite lesson for the people of the Empire. The guarding of the heart of the Empire from hostile air attack and the power to watch over and, if necessary, protect the scattered bands of Britons working on the frontiers of Empire are matters of vital concern, and the two short spectacles which showed the defeat of a bombing raid on London and the rescue by aircraft of a white population from the fury of a barbarian mob sum up in their swift progress of manoeuvre and counter-manoeuvre practically all the highly skilled and more serious military flying.

The air battle for the safety of London took place at an altitude within the view of the spectator on the ground, but an earlier event, in which four single-seater fighters attempted to outclimb each other in the space of 15 minutes, was an epitomo of one essential of the defending aircraft. Every one of the fighter squadrons, which, with the yearly growth of the Royal Air Force, are ringing London with their protective power, must be able in that 15 minutes to climb three miles and more into the sky. The air battle itself demonstrated how valuable are ascendancy in speed and rate of climb, and how necessary are quickness of manoeuvre and ease of control if a determined enemy in close formation is to be forced to relinquish its purpose.

Equally the other side of the picture was seen, in the efforts of twin-engined and single-engined machines, each in their respective formations, to maintain themselves as a close-knit mass and by combined gun-fire beat off the faster fighters while forcing their way on to the objective for their bombs. The heavy twin-engined bombers, weighing seven tons, are not so defenceless as their bulk and comparative slowness of movement may suggest; keen observers with glasses were able to note that a forward gunner sweeps the whole air ahead and at an angle of 90 degrees of each side of the centre line of the machine; another gunner at the rear covers the sky above and all round behind the main planes; and when glasses are focused just underneath the fuselage in rear of the wings a third gun will be seen fired by a man lying prone and able to ward off aircraft seeking to rise under the tail of the machine and pump lead into the pilot's cockpit. Thus the lack of speed of manoeuvre of the big bomber is balanced by multiplicity of gun-power.

Further, when it is realized that, with two objects flying at over 100 miles an hour on divergent courses, effective range is limited to about 500 yards, and the available time in which to get a fixed gun single-seater fighter into position to take aim at the relatively small vital spots, to fire, and to swing away again before crashing into the object aimed at, is a matter of four seconds, the magnitude of the problem of utilizing the aeroplane as a weapon will be appreciated.

The object of the attacking formation was to remain a closely knit force. The fighters, on the other hand, by repeatedly diving in formations, hope to break the regularity of the enemy's grouping, chase a machine to comparative isolation, and then shoot it down by sheer superiority of machine-guns directed from different angles.

After the clash of battle to save "London" the rescue of a white population from the savage race unprovided with aircraft may seem a simple matter, but, if the need for high performance and quick manoeuvre sinks into relative insignificance, other qualities of long endurance, extreme reliability and ability to fly for considerable periods hundreds of miles from any organized base assume the greatest importance. Therefore a new type, of which a few examples were seen in the parade of experimental aircraft, is being evolved. It has been called the general purpose machine, and robust construction, simplicity of engine design, and the reduction of every possible source of trouble to the minimum are the first requirements rather than extreme speed. It must be greyhound and cart-horse combined, able to fly off with guns and bombs, to nip in the bud the raids of a turbulent border tribe, and equally able to load itself with spares and equipment.

This type is as yet only under trial and has not been supplied to overseas units. Its need was illustrated in one of the pageant's episodes. Gun, fire and bombing from the air set up a barrage between the hostile tribe and the white man fleeing for safety to the open country; food, water and ammunition was brought by air to the refugees. Their striking power in co-operation with the army was shown when large twin-engined aeroplanes arrived with armed infantry, light guns, and supplies for employment in a country supposed to be miles from any base.

Great Britain alone of the nations has produced aircraft of the type of the Vickers Victoria, which can carry 23 infantrymen with their full equipment and rifles, together with water, food and medical supplies. Smaller machines of the same type holding up to 16 men were used as far back as 1923 in an actual case of necessity, removing 200 men from inaccessible spots in Iraq to the base hospital in Baghdad in less than five days.

The great importance of these carriers is obvious. Five of them can carry 100 men with full equipment and stores hundreds of miles away from a base in a few hours, and by means of their use much economy in men and material should be effected.

NOT A CHANCE.

A traveler in the tropics came to a charming little creek and, wanting a swim, asked a native: "Is it safe here. Are there any sharks?"

"None, I assure you."

The tourist undressed and went into the water. Suddenly he became afraid again and asked the stranger: "You're sure there are no sharks?"

The other shook his head impatiently: "No, there are no sharks. The crocodiles have driven them all away."—Pele Mele, Paris.

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY

said this year by Mr. French in presenting the naval estimates in the House of Representatives on January 4."

Sir Austen here read an extract from Mr. French's speech. This extract pointed out how dependent Great Britain was upon sea communication. It said that a severance of these communications for only a few weeks would subject the British people to great suffering and the British navy to defeat while the United States could remain cut off even for years should the necessity arise.

"There," continued Sir Austen, "is a statement of the British case with which no Englishman will quarrel and it was made by an American."

Now Enjoys a Good Meal

Renzyme has taken care of his digestive troubles.

Like most people who have suffered from indigestion, the writer of the letter quoted below had tried many remedies. Renzyme is so different in effect to any previous treatment used that he is now enthusiastic in its use.

No matter what the cause, or of how long standing, Renzyme is bound to afford relief because it actually supplies the digestive ferments which set up the process of digestion.

Mr. A. R. Robertson, Hamilton, Ont., writes:

"Your statement that the 'RENZYME' is a rejuvenating fluid is correct."

"I have been troubled with indigestion for years and have tried all kinds of remedies but secured no relief until I was persuaded by a friend to try 'RENZYME'. Almost immediately I had relief and now I am a constant user of same. I most whole-heartedly recommend to anyone who is troubled with stomach disorders to try 'RENZYME' because I know that he will find it to be effective."

You can obtain Renzyme from your druggist at $1.50 a bottle or it will be sent to you, postpaid, on receipt of price, if you mention this paper. The Renzyme Laboratories, Toronto, 2, Canada.

FRIDAY, JULY 29 1927.

SHOULD PROVE AN INCENTIVE.

The action of the Ontario Government in promising to take some five hundred young farmers, the winners of the various livestock judging competitions throughout the Province, to the Royal Winter Fair as its guests should prove of much value as an incentive to greater interest in this department of agriculture.

The visit of so many young men from all parts of Ontario to the Winter Fair will be an event of considerable importance, and the enthusiasm caused by such a gathering will unquestionably have widespread results.

The Government is on sure ground in seeking to realize as much as possible out of the investment it has made in the Winter Fair, and at the same time to create among younger farmers a greater pride in agriculture.

Undoubtedly the winners of the livestock competitions will go home from their visit to Toronto firm admirers of the Winter Fair, and thus will act as important publicity agents for the annual event in their respective localities.

The prospect of being guests of the Government will at the same time quicken interest in the competitions themselves, and this is a development that will mean much to rural Ontario.

WHY NOT PETERBOROUGH?

The annual Royal Canadian Henley regatta is growing in size and interest each year until it has become one of the major events in the sport calendar, attracting widespread interest on both sides of the line.

Crews from many clubs in Canada, as well as a number of United States entries, are participating at St. Catharines this year, the list being the largest and most representative in history.

There are not a few people who hope that some day Peterborough may be represented by a crew in this great annual regatta.

They point out that this city has unique advantages in having a splendid river close at hand, and that there is plenty of sturdy material available from which crews could be selected.

Our splendid boating facilities are being largely thrown away at the present time, for not only are we not at all interested in the rowing game, but here in the home of the canoe known the world over we are doing nothing to develop paddlers.

Peterborough should occupy a prominent place on the aquatic map, instead of being left off it altogether.

THE ROYAL VISITORS.

The invitation sent by the local City Council to the Prince of Wales to visit Peterborough on his way back from his Alberta ranch is but one of dozens that have been forwarded to His Royal Highness from Canadian municipalities.

The citizens of Peterborough would be overjoyed to hear that the smiling Prince was coming to this city.

But it must be remembered, not only in the case of the two Princes, but in regard to Premier Baldwin, that these distinguished visitors have come to Canada primarily to do honour to the Dominion jubilee, and that they hope to have an opportunity also to make their visit something in the nature of a holiday.

If they were to accept even a quarter of the invitations already showered upon them the Royal visitors and the Premier of Great Britain would not have a moment to themselves, and their impressions of Canada would not be nearly as agreeable as if they are given a chance to enjoy themselves a little.

For all that The Examiner hopes that His Royal Highness may include Peterborough in the list of places selected for a visit.

IT MUST BE ENFORCED.

Whether the drivers' license system now being introduced into Ontario proves a success or not depends entirely upon the manner in which the regulations are enforced.

Under the Act as it is at present those who have been driving a car for at least six months are granted a license without an examination as to their ability.

While a person who has been operating an automobile for half a year might in theory be expected to be capable and competent, there is reason to think that in actual practice the six months' test is resulting in licenses being granted to drivers who are not fit to be allowed to sit at a wheel.

It is to be hoped that the system will so work out that it will be possible to suspend the license of incompetent drivers at least until they have given satisfactory proof in an examination that they have mastered the art of driving safely.

The new law will be useless except as a means of earning revenue for the Government if it does not weed out the incompetent as well as the reckless drivers who are making conditions dangerous for everybody on the highways.

The Minister of Highways will be expected to use his latest legislation in a manner that will make it of real service.

"TENTING TONIGHT."

(Montreal Herald)

If Chairman Hanna of the Ontario Liquor Control Board were not so deadly opposed to advertising, we could give him a pointer which might be worth while. One of the unique provisions of the Ferguson statute to promote temperance by making the purchasing of liquor easier is that a tourist (and that includes the man away from an Ontario home as well as the visitor from the United States) can secure a legal domicile by merely selecting a location, putting up a tent, and opening the case.

Already there has been such a demand for tents in Toronto that more than one purveyor has been sold out several times, and the makers are now working overtime at a period of the year when usually they are idle. But think what a boom there might be in the tent business if "D.B." were to authorize the creation of a company to rent tents to tourists under the control of the Control Board and the fact were advertised in the States that not only would Ontario supply liquor at what must to the American be a reasonable price, even when the cost of the permit is considered, but would also provide the spot where the liquor could be legally consumed!

The old battle hymn of the Civil War would afford a very good basis for such advertising. Just think how "Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground" could be modernized to suit Ontario conditions and broadcasted by radio to thirsty listeners-in! Then, indeed, there would be no disappointment at the slowness with which the Hanna permits are being sold, the more particularly if explanation was given as to what happens when a naughty windstorm blows the tent down before the case is consumed and the legal domicile disappears.

"Tenting Tonight on the New Camp Ground" may yet become the national anthem of those Americans who yearn to become Canadian froth-blowers.

SERVING YOUTH.

The callow youth in the high-powered car who announces his appearance before the door of his chosen one with loud and long honking of his horn must be served. It is a free country, and if the distance from his car to the door bell is too great for his poor, tired, aching feet, over-punished by dancing, why, he has a perfect right to use a modern method of communication.

What does it matter to him that in the house next door there may be children trying to go to sleep, or a sick person who needs perfect quiet? Youth must be served.

Again, when he returns with the fair one from the movie or the dance or the jolly jaunt through the country, has he not a right to churn his motor for several minutes after saying good-night? And if he shoots off down the street with gears meshed in low and motor spinning at the topnotch of possible revolutions, whose concern is that? If the poor dumbells have nothing better to do than retire before the small hours of morning, let them take the consequences. Youth must be served.

There are some people who think that youth behaving in this perfectly natural way should be served, and served by a police summons, and later served by a stiff fine or a few days in the quiet pen. But, of course, such are poor crabs who have no sense of the fitness of things. Why bother about them? Honk for your girl all you like. Bawl outside her door like a bull calf at the bars calling for its mother. Strip the gears of the old man's car if you get any satisfaction out of doing it. Keep your hand on the siren all the way down the block.

Only dead ones have nerves anyway. If they don't like it, let them take the air.

Youth must be served.—Belleville Intelligencer.

MAKING A GREAT RAILWAY.

(Toronto Globe)

There is a faint echo these days from down the river which is to be made a seaway some day concerning the "crushing burden" of the Canadian National Railways, but it is so faint as to be hardly audible. Its object is too apparent, and its point too greatly at variance with the truth to deserve much consideration. The "whisper of death" has been stilled, and if resurrected now would be seriously discounted by actualities. In fact, it would be regarded much as a scarecrow. The miracle wrought in the financial position of the Canadian National in five years makes criticism of the former style difficult to swallow.

How the National won its way might be explained in various ways, but the following from The Brockville Recorder and Times is worth reprinting:

"One of the very first things that Sir Henry Thornton as a railway executive of experience realized was that if the Canadian National was to be made a success it was essential that business-like methods should be applied to its operation. And modern business methods dictate the expenditure of money to obtain more money. Accordingly, with the support of a sympathetic administration which laid down a policy of 'no interference with the Canadian National management,' and with the assistance of a body of employees, each and every one of whom assumed a personal interest in the undertaking, Sir Henry proceeded to carry his plans into effect, and he is still carrying on the work. Having first reorganized the system upon a workable basis and having eliminated unprofitable and often duplicated services, Sir Henry spent money upon advertising—more money than some people thought should be spent in such a direction. This started traffic toward the Canadian National lines and an increase in the earnings. Then he spent more money—upon improving the roadbed, upon purchasing new and modernized rolling stock, upon acquiring motive power of the most approved type to replace locomotives that were obsolete and unable to haul as heavy trains at as high a rate of speed. He also spent more money upon building feeders into regions, chiefly in the growing West, which were previously without railway connection, in order that traffic might be augmented. And the strange part of it all is that the more money Sir Henry and his associates spent in improvements and extensions the greater became the earnings, until today they stand in a most favorable position and the National system is acknowledged to be one of the crack roads of North America, a property in which its owners, the people of Canada, may take justifiable pride."

In other words, the National has been run as a railway. It has not been made a patronage preserve. Consequently the precedents, and the prophesies founded on precedents, have been left in the background.

The future is bright. The railway thrives as the country thrives, and there is evidence that the country is on the eve of an important era of prosperity.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, July 29.—After a slow opening of Wednesday's market, when it looked as if there would be a large carry over past the holiday of next Monday, with no market until Tuesday, buyers for the packers suddenly turned loose in the market, and started to clean things up, but at the week's declines.

The result was that, with the exception two or three hundred cattle, mostly western stockers, there was no hold over to worry about. With morning, the market is clear of all butcher offerings.

Price declines for the week average from 50c to 75c on all grades of cattle.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., July 29 (Canadian Press). — There was some inquiry from foreign buyers for grain in the Montreal market yesterday, and as the prices bid for wheat were in some instances in line with exporters 'views, a moderate amount of business was done. The trade in coarse grains was slow, but prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were firmly maintained under a quiet demand from all sources.

The undertone to the millfeed market continued strong under a good inquiry from local and outside buyers. The movement of standard grades of rolled oats was smalll and prices were steady.

A feature of the local egg trade was the stronger feeling that developed, and prices for all grades were advanced two cents per dozen. This was attributed to the increasing scarcity of supplies of fresh eggs. The receipts were 880 cases.

The butter trade continued extremely dull, but values were steady. The receipts were 2,308 packages.

Prices for all grades of cheese were reduced ¼c to ½c per pound. There was a better demand from local foreign buyers at the reduced prices and a moderate amount of business was done. The repeipts were 4,457 boxs.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29 (Canadian Press). — A bearish movement initiated by an eastern concern, resulted in a drastic break in grain prices on the Winnipeg market yesterday. Wholesale profit taking in July wheat inspired a general decline which was not halted until the cash month had dropped 4½ cents from the high point of the day. All months recovered before the close, the final reading showing July 2⅜c down, and both October and December 1⅜c lower.

Rye tumbled sharply, and at the close showed a loss of 3 cents from the previous day. Barley tumbled 2⅜c.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, July 29 (Canadian Press). — Likelihood of a big bulge coming in the domestic visible supply had much to do yesterday with a downward swing of wheat values. Cooler weather north-west promising relief from black rust increase was also a bear influence. Chicago wheat prices finished heavy, 1¼c to 1⅜c net lower, with corn ¾c to 1⅛c down, oats ¾c to 1 cent off, and provisions showing 5c to 20c decline.

Expected rain over the entire corn belt put the corn market on the downgrade. Oats went lower as a result of sympathy for weakness of corn and wheat.

ABOUT RAILWAY UNIONS.

Apt. 2, 319 Oxford Ave.

To the Editor:

The amazing disclosures in recent press reports regarding the financial condition of various enterprises undertaken by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers have shocked and dismayed the Canadian members of that organization. The convention at Cleveland, in session since June 6, at an estimated cost of $30,000 per day, has been forced to make drastic changes in organization and policy, involving the resignation of the four principal Grand Division officers and the abolishing of their positions, the separation of the banking and other enterprises from the legitimate trade union functions of the Brotherhood, and the levy of an assessment of five dollars per month on its 85,000 members for at least two years.

To the seven or eight thousand members in Canada, this assessment will mean the loss of at least $800,000 without the slightest return. The rise in rates will involve a loss of membership, and a further weakening of any protection which might otherwise be expected from the Brotherhood. As a matter of fact, however, none of the "Big Four" railroad brotherhoods are incorporated in Canada, and their pension or insurance schemes may prove to be of little or no value in the time of need. The Canadian members have no control over policy, with 85 delegates in a convention where the Americans have over 700.

The remedy for this state of affairs is obvious. Canadian members of this American organization, which is charged with gross mismanagement of its financial concerns, should leave it, and join an independent organization, the Canadian Association of Railway Enginemen. This was formed in 1921, and has 24 lodges in active operation. It is registered under the "Trades Union Act," and provides insurance in a large Canadian company, under Government supervision. Not only is our money kept in Canada, but there is an enormous saving in dues, office staffs and salaries of Grand Division officers.

Purely as a business proposition, leaving all questions of national sentiment aside, Canadian enginemen will find it to their interest to ally themselves with their comrades who have established a sound and progressive Canadian institution. Our association confines itself to union activities, and will not endanger its funds by gambling in Florida land deals or other speculative ventures. It is Canadian in enterprise, in control and in membership, and it is confident that, having had their eyes opened to the dangerous liabilities involved in belonging to American unions, Canadian enginemen will join it in increasing numbers.

B. E. WHITE, Locomotive Engineer and President, Canadian Association of Railway Enginemen.

A Thought For To-day

harder people with stronger wills.

Weak people are always doing the natural thing for them of taking the easiest way. Hard, strong people drive straight through troubles and opposition and enemies to the greater peace which lies beyond. Only through association with hard leaders can the soft people ever experience that reward. Big organizations may be formed easily, because there are so many natural followers.

Weak people must have the protection of organization. The strong can travel alone.—Tom Dreier.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE OBLIGATIONS OF FRIENDSHIP

The International Uniform Sunady School Lesson for July 31: The Obligations of Friendship.—I Samuel 18:1-4; 19: 1-7.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

Text: I Samuel 18:1-4; 19:1-7.

And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David; and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

And Saul took him that day, and would let him go no more home to his father's house.

Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul.

And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him, and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to

And Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David.

But Jonathan, Saul's son, delighted much in David: and Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee. Now, therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in a secret place, and hide thyself:

And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art, and I will commune with my father of thee; and what I see, that I will tell thee.

And Jonathan spake good of David unto Saul his father, and said unto him, Let not the king sin against his servant, against David; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works have been to thee-ward very good.

For he did put his life in his hand, and slew the Philistine, and the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel: thou sawest it, and didst rejoice: wherefore then wilt thou sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause?

And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan: and Saul sware, As the Lord liveth, he shall not be slain.

And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan shewed him all those things: and Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence as in times past.

In Jewish and Christian circles David and Jonathan stand as the types of ideal friendship illustrating to the full the Golden Text of this lesson, from Proverbs 18:24, "There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

Such stories would not be treasured and have such widespread circulation were it not that they express an ideal to which something fine in human life responds. Friendship is a holy and beautiful thing, for there is something about it spontaneously real and simply honest.

Blood relationship is a matter of accident, or at least something over which the individual himself has had no control. We do not choose our arents, neither do we choose ourp brothers and sisters or cousins. Within the same family wide divergencies of character, outlook, and temper are often exemplified. The strength of the sense of kinship, in spite of these differences, is suggested in the proverb that "blood is thicker than water." There is, in fact, something unnatural about a man who does not feel some sense of responsibility toward his own kin, even perhaps where spontaneous and genuine affection may not be present; though this responsibility in itself creates, usually, an atmosphere of affection in family life.

Friends Are Chosen.

Even if one cannot choose his relatives one can choose his friends, and where friendship is real it becomes in some measure an expression of one's own character, for all character is expressed in choice. Where the approaches of friendship are mutual, a force that is stronger than almost anything else in the universe results. There is nothing that can destroy a friendship that is true and thoroughgoing.

The friendship of David and Jonathan illustrates also a characteristic of friendship; namely, that it is often manifest under strange circumstances and transcends situations of difficulty. Surely it is interesting that David's most intimate friend should have been a son of Saul, the man who pursued him with jealousy and kept his life in almost constant jeopardy for a long period.

The friendship between David and selfishness, courage, generosity, the mingling of life upon a high plane in which friends help each other to attain eir mutual a nd. nchlest a pisations. Friendship is exercised only upon a high plane; common lusts and common purposes of evil might bring men together, but such association cannot create anything worthy to be called "friendship."

It is said at times that there is "honor among thieves," but in the main the world reveals on the planes of low life the sordid and cowardly way in which men of low character will betray even those with whom they are most intimately associated where the own interests can be served. Friendship is something higher and different. It is the thing that is singled out for the highest place by Jesus himself, for when he would emphasize the privileges of discipleship and the richest est thing that he had to confer upon men he said, "Henceforth I call you not servants but I have called you friends."

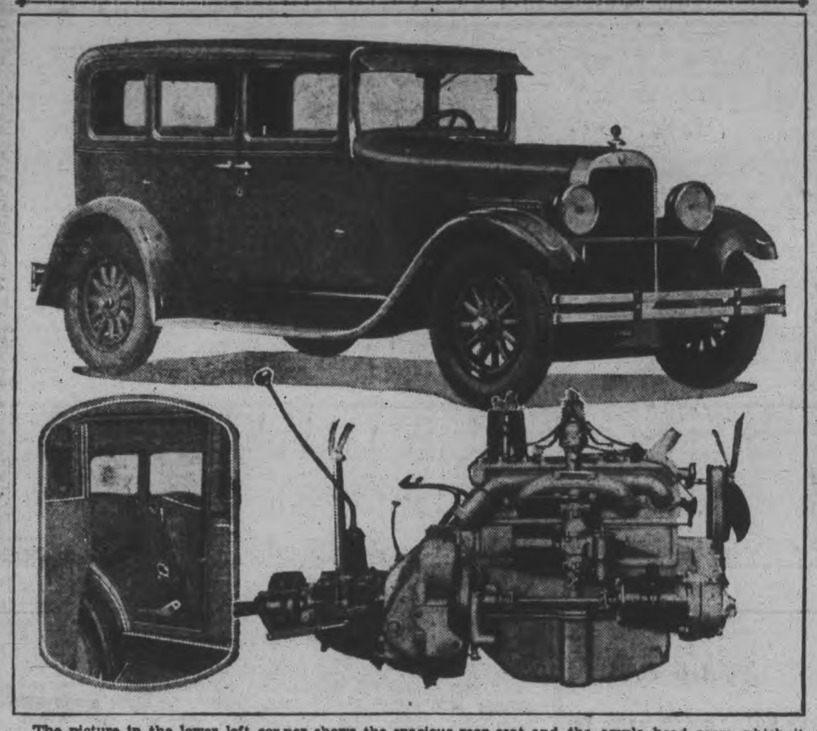
Dodge Introduces America's Fastest Fours



The picture in the lower left corner shows the spacious rear seat and the ample head room which it affords. At the right is the remarkable motor with which the new cars are powered.

A. M. Miller, advertising manager, Dodge Brothers, Canada, and G. H. Munro, field supervisor, are in Peterborough to-day with the new Dodge Brothers Four, claimed to be "the fastest four in America."

Mr. Miller and Mr. Munro are on their way back to Toronto from a special trip to Montreal. Afterwards they will tour Western Ontario, then the Province of Quebec, and on through New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to the Atlantic coast. Another "trans-Canada" car is on its way to the Pacific Coast by an all-Canadian route.

Mr. V. M. Eastwood, local Dodge Brothers dealer, says about the new car:

Dodge Brothers (Canada) Limited is to-day introducing the fastest line of four-cylinder cars in America, of which the sedan pictured above is the first available for delivery. These new cars are said to be capable of going 30 or more miles on a gallon of gasoline at average touring speed, and will be priced at levels materially below those at which Dodge Brothers cars of corresponding types have always sold. A coupe and cabriolet roadster will be available shortly.

The top of the sedan stands 70⅞ inches above the ground, whereas the former sedan measured 73 25-32 inches. Even with this reduction in height there is more head room in the new sedan.

Other equipment includes a nickeled robe rail, assist cords, vanity and smoking set, moto-meter, nickeled bumpers, front and rear, speedometer, ammeter, oil gauge, and automatic windshield wiper.

The famous new and powerful "124" motor furnishes power for the new cars. This motor was developed by Dodge Brothers engineers after years of experimentation, and is considered the best and most advanced four-cylinder motor the company ever built. On the brake block test it develops 40 horse-power, which is one horse-power for every 68 pounds weight of the new sedan.

Combined with these important advantages is still another feature. The gear ratio has been changed so that the engine speed is slower than before, permitting sustained higher speeds without vibration.

The de luxe sedan is upholstered in thick pile mohair, beautiful in appearance, and possessing wearing qualities that will make it last as long as the car. The rear seat is unusually spacious and a foot rest is provided to add to riding comfort. Silk curtains are provided for the rear quarter windows giving the car an artistic and distinguished appearance.

AIMEE TO GIVE UP ANGELUS MINISTRY

Will Quit as Soon as Successor in Pastorate Can Be Found.

LOS ANGELES, July 29. — Canadian Press. — The Times says that Aimee Semple McPherson will surrender control of the Angelus Temple as soon as her position as pastor can be filled, and the present squabble between the evangelist and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, can be settled.

The Evangelist announced she would submit her resignation to the Church committee now engaged in re-organizing the business affairs of the Temple. The newest difficulty broke out a few days ago, when Mrs. McPherson cut short a revival campaign in Alton, Illinois, to return and face an outbreak in the Temple. She said others had attempted to usurp her place as head of the Temple and removed Mrs. Kennedy on the ground that other church leaders demanded it.

"It will be necessary for me to remain in charge until the unfortunate difficulties between the church and my mother have been satisfactorily settled," Mrs. McPherson said. "I am hoping that a new leader can be found and the church difficulties can be straightened out during the next three weeks."

She said several cities had started a movement to found temples similar to that in Los Angeles, including Toronto and Montreal. She would appear periodically in the churches England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales would also be in her programme of expansion.

YOUNG CYCLIST DIES UNDER CAR

Visitor To Toronto Was Holding on to Side of Truck, Police Say.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

TORONTO, July 29.—Twelve-year-old William Stewart Chambers, of Philadelphia, Pa., who was visiting his grandfather at 29 Inglewood Drive, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when he fell from his bicycle under the rear wheel of a motor truck driven by George W. Wills, 169 Marlborough avenue, at Yonge and St. Germain streets. The lad died of a broken neck.

The truck, the police say was southbound on Yonge street, with the boy, riding his bicycle, hanging on to it. As they reached St. Germain street the lad's wheel swerved, and swinging in toward the rear wheels of the truck, threw him under the vehicle. He fell in such a position that one of the rear wheels passed over his neck ,fracturing the spinal column and killing him instantly. A doctor was called, but all that he could do was to pronounce life extinct.

The end of the ceremony. The picture shows the bridal couple leaving with John and Belle Wilson following behind, and Mrs. Wilson, mother of the bride left standing alone, until the best man rushed up and escorted her to the verandah.

MASONIC PICNIC.

The Masonic outing held yesterday at Hiawatha, under auspices of Corinthian, Peterborough, and Royal Arthur Lodges proved to be one of the most successful picnics in the history of the organization. One lone solitary shower of a few minutes duration, sufficient however, to cut short the splendid list of sporting events that had been prepared by the energetic committee, was all that occurred to mar the pleasures of the trip. Coming towards the end of the programme its presence was not altogether unwelcome, as it helped to drive some of the more enthusiastic fans to the kind shelter of the "Stoney Lake," so that the start for home was made on time.

The softball competitions between the three lodges for the Senior Warden's trophy resulted in Royal Arthur Lodge being declared the winner. In the first round Royal Arthur defeated Peterborough by a score of 4—2, and in the finals the same team defeated Corinthian by a score of 7—2. Holyman, captain of the Royal Arthur team, pitched the two games, while Chris. Graham completed the battery.

The tug of war was won by Corinthian Lodge, who defeated Peterborough Lodge. Rain prevented the pull between Corinthian and Royal Arthur Lodges. The hammer and nail race was won by a team composed of visitors; the saw race was won by Corinthian; the centipede race by the visitors; the married men's race by Jack Gillespie. Carl McLean and W. P. Gray were second and third respectively. The fat men's race was won by Doc. Green with J. Turnbull and W. H. Richardson second and third.

Bingo, under the direction of Jack Seels, proved to be the feature of the homeward trip. This was interspersed with community singing; it is open to question which proved to be the most popular; the singers were given a rough passage.

Among those present were D. A. Loomis, W. D. Campbell, G. C. McLean, R. L. Dobbin, D. McLeod, C. J. Telford, W. G. Howden, A. B. Hood, George Evans, J. E. Fowler, V. Hamilton, F. M. Hamilton, A. G. VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

FROM ALD. GREENE.

To The Examiner Editor:

Dear Sir,—In reference to your article in Wednesday's issue re the northern half of the James Stevenson, Park, would say that your remarks only confirm that your statements are incorrect and not according to facts.

I am not anxious to use valuable space in the "Examiner" for a detailed discussion as perhaps it would only interest a small percentage of readers, but I would invite you or any citizen at your convenience, to discuss the matter as to the programme and plans for the development of the said park and which were, months ago, recommended to and accepted by the City Council. If you would take time to do this, I feel certain your attitude and opinion would be altered and you would then understand the position correctly.

RETURNED MAN KILLS HIMSELF

Puts Muzzle of Shotgun Into Mouth and Pulls Trigger.

INQUEST ORDERED.

WOODSTOCK, July 29.—Charles Schneuker, aged 34, an employe of the C.N.R. and a returned soldier, took his life in his boarding house some time during Wednesday night. A shotgun was used, Schneuker placing the muzzle in his mouth and attaching a string to the trigger to aid him in discharging the weapon.

Schneuker returned to his boarding house about seven o'clock in the evening, and immediately went to his room. Nothing more was seen or heard of him, until yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, when on complaint of a woman next door that she heard a loud report in her neighbor's house, investigation was made. The lifeless body of Schneuker was then discovered in his room. He had placed all his papers on a table with instructions as to their disposal, and then taking a position on the bed, placed the muzzle of the gun in his mouth and fired the shot.

The dead man was born in the neighborhood of Kitchener, and his mother and two sisters live in Toronto. Coroner Dr. McKay has ordered an inquest, the preliminary hearing taking place yesterday evening.

BIG MOTORDROME IN FAIR MIDWAY

Only Girl Driver in Game Here for Exhibition Week.

A pretty girl speeding in a standard sized automobile on walls that are straight up and down will be one of the spectacular sights seen at the Peterborough Exhibition this year as one of the feature attractions of the Ziedman and Pollie Shows, engaged to furnish the midway amusements.

The girl is Miss Irene Dare and she is said to be the only woman on earth who pilots an automobile with all four wheels on perpendicular walls. Miss Dare is the star of the Dobish Motordrome and besides her thrilling performance in the automobile Miss Doris Gray, Barney Page, and Joe Dobish will be seen on motorcycles doing almost unbelievable feats and crowning the performance with a spectacular "Race of Death" in which they race under and around Miss Dare's automobile, all of them on the straight walls traveling at breack-neck speed.

The Dobish oMtordrome is one of the twenty-two shows that will be seen on the world's fair midway. Besides the diversity of shows there will be ten big modern riding devices and numerous minor entertainment features. Two big bands will be heard in almost continuous concert and numerous free acts will take place throughout each day and night. Among the shows is the incomparable Mike and Ike, world's only midget twins, and their troupe of performing midgets.

The engagement of the Ziedman and Pollie Shows for this year's midway is but one of the many progressive policies inaugurated this year by Secretary F. J. A. Hall and his associates. There will be more agricultural exhibits, more fine stock, better race horses than ever seen before at any Peterborough Exhibition.

HUCKLEBERRY SOCIAL HELD

Warsaw Sunday School Departs From Customary Offering of Strawberries.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

WARSAW, July 29.— The United Church Sunday school held its annual ice cream social on Tuesday evening. A good attendance of Sunday school people was present.

Plans had been made to hold it on the church lawn, but the weather was too damp.

Ice cream and huckleberries, bread and butter, cake and tea were served voluntarily, and the social gathering was very pleasant, so much so that the people were almost loath to quiet down for the programme. However, when Mr. Herrington took the chair the crowd was soon seated. The programme consisted of a motion song, "Two Little Hands," by May and Emily Payne, which was very prettily done. Later they sang "A Little Bird" very sweetly. Mr. Anderson recited, in his usual good style, "Engineer Bill," with a little squib about a very athletic girl, who was not strong enough to help her mother, as an encore. Master Clinton Crowe recited "Popping Corn," with an encore. Mrs. Herrington sang "British to the Core," Otta Crowe and Doris Payne gave an exhibition of club swinging. Some of the senior girls sang "Scatter Words of Love," Rev. Mr. Moyer, of Cottesloe circuit, gave a short, but very interesting talk on Sunday school work. He mentioned that until the Dummer Sunday school convention, in the early summer, he had never been at a Sunday school held in a school house. He spoke of the strangers coming to Canada and the great educational advantages Canada gives these people, but there is not quite so much done for their spiritual welfare. There are many small schools, especially in the west, where religious training is given. The speaker emphasized the work of these schools.

SPLENDID COURSE.

MONTREAL, Que., July 28 (Canadian Press). — "On your right is the Royal Victoria College for Women," announces the barker in stentorian tones as the sight-seeing bus lumbers eastward on Sherbrooke Street. And the passengers are usually nonplussed by the spectacle of a score or more husky males lounging and smoking upon the steps of the dignified stone building indicated.

The explanation of the anomaly is that the Royal Victoria College for Women houses the French Summer School during the vacation months, and at least as many men as women are drawn there by the special course. McGill's French Summer School is one of the most popular of the many vacation courses now available to teachers and students. Several hundred persons from all over Eastern Canada and some from points in the United States are at present mastering the French language and at the same time thoroughly enjoying their vacation. The programme is highly attractive, the periods devoted to the study of grammar and conversation being broken by expeditions to the many points of historical interest in Montreal, visits to the Art Gallery, and attendance at local theatres when French companies are playing.

Several French plays are produced by the school during the short term, and this dramatic study has proved one of the most valuable mediums of imparting the less widely known of Canada's two languages, while at the same time providing a large measure of entertainment. Of course, conversation is the most important branch of the school's curriculum, but much time is devoted to French literature.

Altogether the course is well varied and comprehensive. The vast majority of those attending are school teachers or university students who are not satisfied with the knowledge they have already acquired and are ready to devote their well-earned vacation weeks to continuing their education. The growth in attendance at the French Summer School clearly indicates that English-speaking Canadians are coming to realize strongly the value of French as a cultural asset.

Montreal, the most important bilingual community and the third largest French-speaking city in the world, obviously offers the most suitable location for this educational project.

MINDEN LADY LEFT FORTUNE

Mrs. Robert Taylor To Receive $300,000 Under Brother's Will.

HALF OF ESTATE.

OMAHA, Neb. July 29. — Mrs. Robert Taylor of Minden Victoria County, Ontario, has inherited $300,000 from the estate of her brother, Thomas Hamilton, who died at Richfield, Nebraska, last week. Allen Hamilton, brother of Mrs. Taylor, has also inherited $300,000 from the Thomas Hamilton estate. Allen Hamilton lives in Richfield.

Thomas Hamilton left $600,000 in lands and gilt-edged securities when he died. He was president of the State Bank of Richfield, to which office he was elected last year when he was 90 years old. He was 91 a few weeks before his death.

Hamilton's $600,000 grew from $100 which he saved up while working as a farm hand when he lived at Cornwall, Stormont County, Ontario, many years ago. With this $100 young Taylor came to Nebraska and he lived to see his 'stake' increase from $100 to $600,000.

Born in Ireland.

Hamilton was born in Omagh, Tyrone County, Ireland, and when he was about six years old the family moved out to Canada, settling near Cornwall. When he was old enough to go out to work he went to work for M. R. Walker where he remained for five years. His wages were $144 a year, and it was while working for Walker that he saved up $100.

When Hamilton came to western United States he settled in Ohaha, because the name 'Omaha' was something like that of his birthplace 'Omagh.' He left his sister, now Mrs. Taylor, and the others of the family in Cornwall.

Found Dead.

Hamilton was found dead in his bed one day two weeks ago. He had died of heart disease. He lived alone in the big house that he built for his wife some forty years ago or more. He left no will and the property will all go to his one brother, Allen of Richfield, and Mrs. Taylor of Minden.

Mrs. Taylor will have to wait until the estate is settled before she receives her share. That will require about a year under the Nebraska laws.

Mrs. Taylor in Lindsay.

LINDSAY, July 29. — "What would you do if you had $300,000?" was the question asked Mrs. Robert Taylor, of Minden, Ont., last night.

"I would try and do some good with it," was the reply.

The despatch was the first intimation to Mrs. Taylor that she had inherited $300,000 from the estate of her brother, the late Thomas Hamilton of Richfield, Nebraska.

For five weeks past, Mrs. Taylor with her husband, have been visiting with their daughters, Mrs. Archer, of Lindsay, Mrs. Brock of Ops Township and Mrs. Arch. Taylor of Little Britain.

Mrs. Taylor (71 ,to be exact) accepted the news cheerfully, but without any emotion, except to repeat: "Oh my, poor Thomas, he was to have paid a visit to Canada on Aug. 1, but the good Lord willed otherwise. He was a hard, conscientious and honorable worker as a lad, and was determined to make good."

"We heard the news of his death, which occurred on July 14, from my in Cornwall, Ont. (we came from was with her uncle when he died. I believe that he left $600,000."

"How did he make his money?"

Worked For $12 a Month.

"Well, I remember when we lived in Cornawll, Ont. (we came from Ireland) that Thomas worked for $12 a month the first year, and he was able to save $100 that year. He went to the States and proceeded to make good. He invested wisely and married well. When his wife died she left him some money, which all passed to him when his only son died years ago. I believe that his money was invested in oil fields, farm land and real estate in the city."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor have lived in Minden, Ont., Haliburton County, practically all their lives. They have worked hard on a small farm, and some nine years ago retired to a quieter life in the Village of Minden. They toiled hard and raised a good family.

The Hamiltons come from a long and noble ancestry, and claim to be second cousins to Sir Ian Hamilton, British General.

Thomas Hamilton has visited Canada and Minden several times, and years ago purchased a small farm on beautiful South Lake, which he still owns, and which is being farmed by a nepnew. The only other near relative is a brother, Allan Hamilton, of Richfield, Nebraska.

Again Mrs. Taylor was asked what she would do will all her new found money and replied: "Put it to good use, I trust. I think I could do a lot of good with a lot of money. But I have had no official word yet, as I understand there is a lot of legal procedure to go through."

A delicious Summer recipe

Here is a new and very economical dish to serve for lunch or supper. Fill a pie-dish or mould with pieces of cold cooked meat. Add two hard-boiled eggs sliced, and, if liked, some sliced red peppers and a little parsley. Dissolve about a dessertspoonful of powdered gelatine in hot Bovril and pour over. When set, turn out on crisp hearts of lettuce, and serve.

JOHN G. KENT PASSES AWAY

Manager of Canadian National Exhibition Ill Since November.

WAS 66 YEARS OLD.

TORONTO, July 29. — After a lengthy illness, John Gowans Kent, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, died last night at his home, 135 Glen Road.

Mr. Kent suffered a general breakdown last November. The condition of his health forced him to remain away from his desk. Since January he was able to pay an occasional visit only to C.N.E. offices.

Mr. Kent is survived by his widow; one daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Alex. McKelvey, and Harry Kent.

Born in Selkirk.

John Gowans Kent was born in Selkirk, Ont., 66 years ago. His father was the late Henry Kent, a general storekeeper, who left his business to locate in Toronto, where there was a larger field, and established the firm of Gowans, Kent & Co., Ltd., which, with the assistance of his sons, developed until it enjoyed a national reputation. On his death Mr. Kent and his brother carried on the business which has been absorbed by Cassiday's, Ltd., Front Street West. At the same time Mr. Kent became associated with other enterprises, and took a deep interest in the problems of industrial Toronto, which resulted in his election to the chair of the Toronto Board of Trade.

While Mr. Kent was one of Toronto's outstanding business men until he accepted the position of manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, his career was marked from the outset by close association with bodies interested in social welfare and the Boy Scout movement. Mr. Kent gave freely in an unostentatious manner to charity, and rendered much practical assistance to the unfortunate of the city.

Connection With Exhibition.

Mr. Kent, however, is best known through his connection with the Canadian National Exhibition. As a breeder of greyhounds and Russion wolfhounds, he became interested in the dog show, to which little attention was being paid. Within a year he had built up a record entry and before long was elected an associate director. He then became president of the Exhibition in 1912.

As Dr. Orr's health began to fail Mr. Kent willingly assumed the duties of general manager, carrying on without compensation or the knowledge of the public. When Dr. Orr retired Mr. Kent took the office without pay, and in 1920, at the solicitation of directors of the Exhibition and public-spirited individuals, disposed of his private affairs to devote his entire attention to the Exhibition. Mr. Kent was a member of the board in 1903.

Doctor Has Narrow Escape When He Meets Reckless Driver.

NEAR CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 29.—When returning from a professional visit in the country yesterday afternoon, Dr. O'Hara, Campbellford's well-known veterinary surgeon, met with an automobile accident that nearly cost him his life.

When nearing an intersection on the Hastings road, about 8 miles from town, and going at only 12 miles an hour, the doctor was suddenly up against a commercial traveller tearing off sixty miles an hour, and on the wrong side of the road. With great presence of mind the doctor applied the brakes and pulled off to the left, but not soon enough to escape a side swipe from the other car. Other than being badly shaken up, the doctor escaped injury. Bernard Blute, manager of the Campbellford girls' baseball team, who was in the doctor's car, is suffering from shock, and when interviewed by The Examiner ,some hours after the accident, appeared to be still in a bewildered condition.

AIMEE WALKS 'IN THE LIGHT'

Scoffs at Demand That She Confess Truth in Her 'Kidnap' Story.

NO CONFESSION TO MAKE.

LOS ANGELES, July 29 (Associated Press). — Aimee Semple McPherson, auburn-haired storm centre of Angelus Temple, has no confession to make regarding her story that she was kidnapped last summer and whisked away into Mexico while her congregation mourned her as drowned.

Rejecting the demand of the Rev. Gladwyn N. Nichols, former choir leader of the Temple, who with 780 of its members seceded last fall and organized an independent church, that she "confess to the world" what happened during her mysterious absence a year ago, the religious leader stuck to her story.

Nichols publicly asked Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, to "make a clean breast of the whole affair for the good of their souls and the peace of their consciences."

To which Mrs. McPherson replied: "I am not surprised. The Rev. Mr. Nichols and his church need the advertising. Very clever, but uncharitable. After all these months of silence, it seems strange that Nichols should take such a sudden concern in my conscience. Isn't it revealing that this urge came at the moment when my name is in the headlines every day?

"I have no confession to make whatever. I told the truth and walked in the light."

SAINT and SINNER

At luncheon that day, Kate Lundy, whom none of the family except Cherry thought of as an ordinary servant, made an unexpected remark as she stirred her tall glass of ice tea vigorously. Mrs. Lundy had been in the habit of having her luncheon with Faith and Cherry and Mr. Lane, if he happened to be at home at that hour. Today Faith found her presence strangely comforting. It kept her from thinking too much of Bob and Cherry, alone in Bob's offices, in the congenial intimacy of employer and private secretary.

"What you need, Mis' Hathaway, is to get out more. Why don't you dress up about four o'clock this afternoon and pay some calls on the ladies in the neighborhood?"

Faith flushed, and the hand that reached for the bowl of combination salad trembled slightly. "I do owe three or four calls," she acknowledged. "But I—there's the baby, you know, and Cherry will be wanting another of those dresses made this week—"

"Oh, drat Cherry!" Kate Lundy retorted with a snort. "And I'll keep an eye on the baby."

"You—you're awfully good to me," Faith began, then her voice broke into sobs. In a moment she was weeping on Kate Lundy's broad bosom; a horny old hand was stroking her hair.

"There, now, honey! Cry as much as you want to," Kate Lundy soothed her. "Reckon every girl that gets married has to go through a few cryin' days. But you got a mighty fine husband, Mis' Hathaway. Cry right on, honey. It'll do you good."

But as usual, when a woman is encouraged to cry her tears dry up. Faith looked up into the broad, homely face with a smile quivering on her lips. "I didn't mean to act like a baby," she tried to laugh. "Oh, Mrs. Lundy, tell me! Do you—do you think he really loves me?" She wanted to ask, "As much as he loves Cherry?" but her lips would not utter the disloyal words.

"Sure he does!" Mrs. Lundy reassured her vigorously, a little too vigorously, Faith thought fearfully. "Of course he ain't the romantic kind, but I'll take the good solid, substantial men any time. That man'd do anything in the world for you, Mis' Hathaway, and you don't need to be afraid he'll chase around after other women. He ain't that sort."

So Kate Lundy was thinking of—Cherry, too, Faith told herself desolately.

"Now, if I was you," Kate went on with forced cheerfulness, "I'd have me a real good time this afternoon—gossip with the neighbors, take your sewing along, exchange a few recipes, invite some nice young couple over to play bridge this evening or to dance. You mustn't let yourself get in a rut, you know. Tell you what I'll do—I'll make up a batch of my raisin-nut cookies and a lot of them minced olive and cream cheese sandwiches and you can have a little jumped-up party this evening, to surprise Mr. Hathaway. Now you go and lie down and rest, and I'll have your flowered voile pressed real nice for you by the time you wake up. Don't you worry about the Midget. Her and me understand each other."

Faith found that it was very pleasant to be ordered about for her own good. And she obeyed as docilely as a child. It was three o'clock when she woke from the nap she had not believed she would be able to enjoy, with her heart as sore as it was. After a cool bath—already drawn and faintly scented with some of Cherry's violet bath salts, which Mrs. Lundy had had no compunction in using—she dressed herself carefully in the thin, flowered voile, white shoes and stockings, and her wide-brimmed straw hat, faced with pale pink chiffon which made her skin look lovely, and, feeling pleasantly excited, set out to pay her calls.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as rather an unfavorable day in planetary government, except early in the morning the aspects are threatening.

This is an auspicious rule under which to pay debts and settle accounts, but most unlucky for borrowing.

Newspapers are to benefit, owing to sensational rumors and startling reports.

Advertising continues under a direction of the stars that makes it most important, but personal publicity will be much overdone.

Danger from enemy propaganda will increase rather than diminish as the year advances and warning is given against "parlor anarchists."

While this rule prevails deception is supposed to be easy and the truth more difficult to maintain than is usually the case.

The seers prophesy many new schemes for obtaining money and they foretell a worldwide swindle of some sort which involves governments.

Labor is subject to sinister influences from the stars which may impel workers to make serious mistakes.

Again earthquakes are foretold and loss of property indicated in the prognostications of those who read the stars.

Forest fires will cause heavy losses this month, it is forecast, and one of incendiary origin may do great damage.

Women are to be subject to a sway making for concern regarding mental rather than physical adornment.

Colleges and universities are to face a new girl problem, for there will be a majority of young women registering, astrologers predict and they read this as the preparation for future big world's work.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of unusual experiences in the coming year.

Children born on this day are likely to be strongly conservative and extremely executive. They generally succeed.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

TIME SAVERS

Patty shells and timbales are worth their price in summer. Odds and ends of meat, fish, vegetables or even creamed eggs served in shells make delightful and easy lunch or supper dishes.

TIGHT BOXES

Tea, coffee and spices will lose their flavor unless kept in tightly closed receptacles.

WHITENING SILKS

Never wait for a white silk blouse or silk underwear to get yellow before whitening. Use whitening rince from first washing.

TWO LEAVENERS

Some cooks use a spoonful of baking powder to the spoonful of soda in sour milk biscuits or griddle cakes, to avoid the yellow color and strong flavor that sometimes results from soda used alone.

OPEN DOOR CAREFULLY

When a cake is baking, always open the oven door gently, to prevent it from falling.

STEEL KNIVES

Steel knives left in hot water are liable to lose their handles.

STRONG SODA

Clothes washed in strong soda solutions will be faded and rotted.

BABE RUTH HITS OUT HIS 34th HOME RUN

VARSITY JUNIOR EIGHT WINS FIRST REGATTA HEAT

McGill University Boat Club Made Good Impression at Henley Meet.

RACES ARE CLOSE.

Final Events of Big Programme Will Be Run Off To-day.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 29.—(Canadian Press).—The elimination heats at the 45th annual C.A.A.O. regatta on the Royal Canadian Henley Course this afternoon provided some excellent racing, keen contests and exceedingly close finishes, the like of which, is only occasionally seen in the senior finals.

Varsity Wins.

The closest finish of the day came in the junior fours between University of Toronto crew stroked by J. Keith and the new crew from Wyandotte, Michigan. St. Catharines which was a contender early in the heat weakened after a mile. Both Toronto University and Wyandottes had no opposition from that point and were sure to qualify, but they gave everything they had to make a race of it. Varsity had a clear lead of a length at the mile, but Wyandottes were well within themselves, having never rowed harder than 34 strokes to the minute. For the last five hundred yards, they extended themselves, but Varsity hung on doggedly and retained sufficient to give them first place, but only by one foot in 6.47. The other heat of the junior eights between Detroit, Argonauts and Ottawa was just two fifths of a second slower than the first. Argonauts with Fiddes just out of a sick bed rowing No. 7 took the lead from Detroit after the mile and crossed the line two lengths ahead. Ottawa was left six lengths to the rear.

Sensational Finish.

Positively sensational was the finish of the first heat of the junior 140-pound eights in which the three competing crews, Montreal Lachines, St. Catharines and the Hamilton Leanders raced in under the gun with the three shells lapping. Lachine won by half a length ahead of St. Catharines, who were second by about 19 inches. All the way down the course it was a battle. Hamilton got the early lead and took to splashing. Lachine forged ahead and had fully two lengths at three quarters of a mile. From this point on, the two Ontario crews gradually pulled upon the Montrealers.

The second heat between McGill, Detroit and Argonauts finished in 6.48 1-5 and was nearly 14 seconds faster than the first, and was almost as close as far as Detroit and McGill were concerned, although Argonauts were distanced before they had gone a mile.

Detroit had set a killing pace at the outset which caused their style to become ragged for a spell. Argonauts in trying to keep up weakened. McGill rowing consistently all the way came gradually from the rear, closed up steadily on Detroit, caught them in the last quarter of a mile and nosed them out by three feet at the finish. A great contest is looked for when these same crews row in th final tomorrow against Lachine and St. Catharines.

The Ottawa Junior four was the only crew from the Capital city that was not eliminated yesterday and they put up a dogged performance against Bartletts Don crew and McGill University. Dons won with Ottawa second, but both crews could have done better, as the time 7.23 shows plainly, but they were content to finish at a moderate rate of speed after McGill having it in hand. McGill led at an early stage, but steered badly. It was a grand race for the first mile when Dons led out. Ottawa left McGill in the last quarter of a mile.

Second Heat Faster.

The second heat between Buffalo Westsides and Norris Don crew was faster, official time being given as 7.13 2-5 as compared with 7.23 for Bartlettes heat. Norris crew was eliminated after a plucky race. They were bow to bow with Westsides at the mile and were able to put a sprint in the last quarter but the Buffalonians outsprinted them and had a couple of lengths to the good at the finish gun.

Eddie English, of the Argonauts, lost a hard race in the first heat of the 140 pound single primary sculls to Flinterman of Detroit, after leading all the way until the last fifty yards, although he qualified for the final to-day. G. Johnson, of Lachine, was distanced before the race had gone half way. The time was 8.50. W. Read, of the Argonauts, eliminated J. McNee, of Ottawa, in the second heat, but had to travel the route in 8.27 to qualify. He won by two lengths.

The final of the 140 pound maiden fours will be rowed off to-day between McGill University, the Don crew stroked by B. Smith and the Westside crew, of Buffalo. Westside qualified by rowing over the course alone yesterday, Lachine, the only other entrant in that heat, scratching their entry at the last moment.

Ottawa, which was grouped with Dons and McGill in the first heat yesterday, had considerable ill-luck. They broke water first and were picking up a little lead in the first 100 yards when Dons and McGill fouled their oars. The crews were called back and the race re-started. Dons this time got away first. Dons and McGill made a good race of it, and Ottawa, in the last half-mile, with a handicap of nearly six lengths, tried to pull up. They gained some water, but it was too late.

Big Card To-day.

For to-day the biggest card of the three-day meet is to be run off—sixteen events.

In addition to the finals of the events for which the elimination contests were held yesterday, the first heats of the senior singles will be held. Joe Wright, Jr., will meet Garrett Gilmore, of Chicago, at six o'clock in the evening, followed twenty minutes later by Frank Adams, of Vancouver, and Johnny Durnan, of Toronto Argonauts.

The first heats of the senior eights will close the day. Dales, Toronto University, Detroit, and Wyandottes will meet in the first heat. The second heat will bring Lachine, Keith's Toronto University crew, Argonauts, and Winnipeg together.

Two St. Catharines crews will compete for the working boat fours, and Welland, St. Catharines, and Hamilton Sea Cadet crews will compete in the navy gig race.

M. Kelly, of Ottawa, R. D. Ingraham, of St. John, N.B., and Guest, of the Argonauts, will have one sudden death heat for the junior singles championship earlier in the afternoon.

The 150 pound special eight-oared contest will also be decided to-day, the competing crews being Hamilton Leanders, Toronto University, Detroit, and Argonauts. The 150 pound fours are also on the card, Ottawa, Dons, and Argonauts being the competitors.

The winner of the junior singles will be eligible to compete in the Association singles against Wehmeir of Detroit, McGreal of Philadelphia, and Maurice Brett of St. Catharines.

The two most famous amateur cricket matches in the world are played at Lord's in London, usually during the same week of midsummer. They are Eton vs. Harrow and Oxford vs. Cambridge. Of these games, the public school match is the older. The university match has just celebrated its centennial, while the contests between Eton and Harrow were inaugurated in 1805. In that year a notable player for Harrow was Lord Byron.

The national sport of Switzerland is shooting and their skill is evidenced by the report that they won all but one of the first prizes in the recent international rifle competitions at Rome.

PIRATES LOSE TO BROOKLYN

BOSTON BRAVES LOSE.

NEW YORK, July 29.—(Canadian Press).—Brooklyn disposed of the Pirates at Pittsburgh yesterday by 7 to 5, checking the Pirates in their efforts to entrench themselves securely in first place. Bill Doak stopped the corsairs with two runs in seven innings, and then was obliged to leave the game when overcome by the heat. Carmen Hill, out after his sixteenth victory, was given poor support and was chased off the mound during a three run attack in the fifth.

Giants Win.

The Giants forced the Cubs to yield again at Chicago by 6 to 5 before 20,000 fans thereby blasting temporarily Chicago's hopes to go into a tie for first place as the Pirates went under to the Robins. The Bruins remain a full game behind the pacemakers. Rogers Hornsby, acting manager, whacked a triple to start off a three run rally in the sixth and then put the game away with his seventeenth homer of the season scoring behind Ott in the seventh.

Reds Win.

The Reds continued to hang on to fifth place by a one point margin when they defeated the Boston Braves at Cincinnati, 1 1to 6. Rixey held the Braves to nine hits while his comrades clouted Genewich and Wertz for sixteen singles.

Staging a six run rally in the eighth inning, the Cardinals won the second game of the series with Philadelphia at St. Louis, 10 to 8. Williams slugged out two homers to bring his total to 22 and make him home run king of the National League. His first homer came in the fifth with two on and the second in the ninth with one on.

GIRLS UNABLE TO ENTER MEET

President Refuses To Allow Girl Athletes To Compete in Men's Races.

CONTROL NECESSARY.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., July 29.—(Canadian Press).—Miss Marion Nelding, president of the Maritime Provinces branch of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, and acting president of the Canadian body who has threatened the suspension of all girl athletes competing in the Maritime Track and Field championship for men at Halifax on August 6, gave out the following statement yesterday afternoon:

"The Women's Amateur Athletic Federation has complete control of track and field sports and the constitution provides that they must be held under suitable conditions and surroundings. It is not considered advisable that a meet be held with men's events included on the programme.

"I refuse to sanction for the meet on August 6, at Halifax, when women were to compete at the Maritime men's championship. This feature of making the sports separate is one of the main reasons for the formation of the Federation, making possible the control of women's athletics by whom separate and distinct from men's events."

Miss Belding further stated that she had received application for the holding of the meet on the morning of August 6, separate from the men's events in the afternoon. This sanction has been granted.

Boston continued its winning ways against Cleveland at Boston, defeating the Indians in both games of a double-header, 3 to 0 and 4 to 3. REAL BATTLE.

Columbias Will Have Full Strength in Action Here.

A STRONG OUTFIT.

But Swanston Crew Are Hopeful of Taking Fall Out of Them.

The Columbias, the Toronto Senior team, which will clash with the Petes at the James Stevenson Park tomorrow afternoon, is one of the best amateur clubs in Toronto, according to reports from the Queen City, and they will be the strongest opposition Max Swanston's team has been called upon to meet this season. In spite of that fact, however, the Petes are hopeful of taking a fall out of the visitors and will have their best team in action, with either Heckman or Hardill doing the gunning. Columbias have not announced their pitching choice, but will undoubtedly use their best bet against the Petes. The game will start a 3 o'clock sharp and should be one of the best battles of the year.

"WAR PAINT" IS SOMETHING NEW

Here is a Western Film Far From the Cut and Dried Path

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's first custom-made western proves to be something new in that type of drama.

When it was announced some months ago that M-G-M would invade the western field with a new class of blood-stirring drama and a new western star there were many who thought the finished article would be a repetition of the ordinary.

"War Paint," starring Col. Tim McCoy, opens tonight at the Regent Theatre and proves to be a revelation in that class of drama.

In fact it is about the first time the writer has seen an Indian story handled with any considerable degree of intelligence and the only time I can recall when the Indian is given the consideration due his race.

The organization producing this picture did a wise thing when it went to the great open spaces of Wyoming and selected a male star who had never faced the camera before.

Col. Tim McCoy, product of the plains and mountains of the Great West is a romantic looking figure who plainly shows he has not been touched with egotism which so often goes with the appearance of profession screen artists.

Pauline Starke, who plays the leading feminine role, the daughter of the commandant of a western fort in the eighties, gives a wonderful performance as does Karl Dane in the role of drunken and lovable Sergeant Major Clancy.

Irish Hearts

By MOLLIE MALONE

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough, a gay, careless youth of Killanmaul, a village on the west coast of Ireland, plans to go to America, and the villagers give a farewell supper for him. He is in love with Sheila, daughter of Old Tom Kildare, and Sheila has promised to join him when he sends for her. Emmett has flirted dangerously with Annie Finnegan and her father, Denis, thrashes Emmett. He escapes with the aid of Sheila.

It was more than two months after the disastrous banquet at the Inn that Sheila heard from Emmett. He wrote a short note to Old Tom and enclosed a postcard photograph showing him resplendent in a white linen suit with a brave cap upon his head.

"Dear Tom: I have a job and am enclosing a picture in my uniform," the note read. "Give my love to Sheila and tell her it won't be long till I have a fine job and will be making lots of money."

Sheila paid little attention to the letter. Old Tom raved over the uniform. "An' what d'ye suppose he is become?" he asked as he gazed at the photograph. "He looks like an admiral of the navy! Doesn't he look grand now? An' there's them that said the boy couldn't make good. Little they know of Emmett Murtough."

And little did poor Old Tom know of New York City and its regiments of "White Wings" who clean the streets!

The picture card revived all of Old Tom's faith in Emmett, and Sheila was compelled to listen to his praises of the man at every meal and during the long evenings

"It was whilst he was wooing me that he did it."

before the fireplace. But Sheila heard her father in silence. She commented in no wise save when her patience gave way and she cried: "Enough, Father! Emmett Murtough is nothing to me nor can he ever be after what has happened."

"Tush, now, an' couldn't ye forgive a boy that's doing so well, even if he was after making a mistake here in Killanmaul?"

"He was not honest with me," she would answer. "It was whilst he was wooing me an' promising me the ring that he did it. There's no truth in him."

But Old Tom remained loyal, and soon another letter was received. But of this he said nothing to Shiela. Old Tom began to have business at Knockbotherum, and two or three times a week he would drive there in the morning and return at night. Sheila suspected that something was up, but Old Tom, who strangely enough always returned sober from these visits, gave her no hint as to his business.

"What are ye doing in Knockbotherum, Father?"

"An' why should I tell me bus'business to a chit of a girl?" he would reply, and that was the best satisfaction Sheila could elicit from the old man. Near half a year had passed when Sheila learned Old Tom's secret. One night she heard him singing as the pony ended its plodding way from Knockbotherum. Sheila knew the portent of that husky voice. Old Tom had stopped too long at the Knockbotherum tavern. Sheila hurried out to help him from the cart and to unhitch and put up the pony.

"Ah, Sheila, acushla, 'tis news I have fer ye, great news!"

"Into the house with ye first an' let me pour ye a cup of tea," she replied, "then ye shall tell me."

"Tis no tea I want, for I've brought home a drop from the tavern," he objected, as he dragged from the cart a half gallon jug. "Hurry with the pony, Sheila, an' I'll tell ye the news!"

At least he is in a good humor, thought Sheila, as she cared for the pony. And what could be the news? Was it another letter from Emmett? No matter, she would not marry Emmett now under any circumstances, not if he was the biggest man in New York City. He had treated Annie shamefully, he had treated her shamefully; he was a selfish good for nothing, and naught her father could say would change that.

"Let me make ye comfortable, Father," she urged as she fetched the bootjack and helped him off with his boots. "An' will ye have some tea?"

"No tea, child. Pour me a bit of the crathure an' that'll be all I'm needing." Sheila tipped the jug into the tumbler and placed it at her father's elbow.

"Now tell me," she asked.

"We're off to America!"

"Father! America! Are ye gone daft?"

"'Tis true. I've sold the farm, the pigs an' the pony an' the cow an' all."

Sheila staggered. The Kildare Farm sold! It couldn't be; their little home, the only thing in the world that they possessed and which would give them a living through all their lives. Impossible!

"Father, ye don't mean—say ye don't mean it! Where will ye go? How will we live? Father, tell me it isn't true, tell me it isn't true!"

"But it is, Sheila, an' I've got the steamship tickets right here." Old Tom fished into his inside pocket and pulled out his great wallet. He opened it and passed to Sheila's shaking hand the railroad tickets to Queenstown and the passages from Queenstown to New York. "An' Sheila, darling, there's a hundred pounds left over an' above the tickets for us to have our start in America. I've had letters from Emmett, and he says there is the grandest chance there. That politics is just waiting fer a man like me. He says he will meet us an' have a place fer us to live, a real home, an' he mentions you, Sheila, an' he wants that you should marry him when he gets a better job later on."

"But we can't, we can't go! An' I won't marry Emmett Murtough ever!"

"Ye'll do what's best fer ye, me girl. An' who should know what's best fer ye but yer own father? An' beginning the morrow ye must begin to pack yer things, for we sail from Queenstown a week the coming Monday."

"Oh, I don't want to go. I'll be afraid there amongst all the strangers. It's so big, I'd be afraid, afraid!"

"Sah, now! As if a daughter of the Kildares could be afeared any place. Shame on ye, Sheila. Think what we will be, think of the money we'll make. An' 'tisn't as if we had no friends. There's Emmett, already in a fine job an' wearing a fine uniform and him awaiting to help us. Come, now, we're going, girl, an' put an end to all this blather. An' even if ye don't want to marry Emmett, why there's many an' many a man in America who would be glad of a girl the likes of ye." This last was in a softer tone. Old Tom knew well the temper of his Sheila, and he realized that marriage with Emmett not only would not tempt her, but that if she believed that he intended to force the match on her that she would not go at all.

But Sheila did not give in that night, and Old Tom went to bed disgruntled and angry. Why couldn't the girl understand that here was the grand chance of a lifetime? He himself had stayed too long in Killanmaul. If only he had emigrated to America years before he might now be living off the fat of that very fat land. But it was not too late, and with Emmett already there and willing to help him get started it would all be easy.

The pillow of Sheila was damp with tears that night. Scenes of her childhood with her mother when there had been happiness on the Kildare farm and a bit of prosperity, too, came back to her. All the dear nooks and corners of the farm, small though it was, came back to her vividly now that it seemed that they were to vanish forever from her sight. Her affection for the animals, few though they were, grew in intensity as she contemplated leaving them and turning them over to the new owner, whoever he might be, for Old Tom had been too excited by his cups to give her many of the details of the transaction which left them in Sheila's mind homeless and wanderers on the earth.

In the dark she clutched her locket with both hands and drew it to her lips. She had a "singing heart" she repeated silently and tried to smile through her tears, as became a girl who had been bestowed with gifts by the fairies of Killanmaul hills.

With morning Sheila accepted the situation, as she knew she must. The deed of sale had been signed and filed, and Old Tom had collected the price of the farm. Dutifully, and with an eye to pleasing her, he turned over the tickets and the balance of the payment to her for keeping.

DOG SAVES TWO FROM DROWNING

St. Bernard Plunges Into Saskatchewan River To Rescue Girls.

STREAM VERY SWIFT.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 29—Molly, a St. Bernard dog owned by Frank Doye, of Fort Saskatchewan, is the darling of Fort Saskatchewan today as the result of a sensational rescue of Freda Doye, fourteen, and her twelve-year-old companion from the rushing waters of the Saskatchewan River.

Freda and her playmate were playing on the edge of the river when the earth, which had been loosened by the recent heavy rains, suddenly gave way, precipitating them into the water. While both girls could swim, they were powerless in the grip of the fast running current and were quickly carried out in the stream. Struggling in the eddies Freda frantically called to Molly, who was barking and pacing up and down the bank.

The big St. Bernard sprang into the water and made direct for the struggling and exhausted girls. While one held tightly to the dog's collar the other clutched the long brown hair and the battle to safety began.

Scores of spectators hurried to the scene, while the parents of the girls were notified by telephone. The dog was unable to return to the south side of the river but, undismayed, turned about and struck for the farther shore. Rescued and rescuer were carried twice beneath the surface but each time the faithful dog struggled on and finally in an exhausted condition reached the bank.

Even after the girls had been revived and were being driven to their homes, the St. Bernard would not leave them, but insisted upon accompanying them in the automobile.

And here's a little family secret about Molly. She is expecting a litter of puppies next week and in the circumstances the action of the faithful animal was doubly heroic.

Molly rescued her playmates fresh from triumphs scored at the recent Edmonton dog show, where she took a first prize and three seconds in her class.

Chicks From Coast Reach Ottawa Safely

OTTAWA, July 29 (Canadian Press).—What is claimed to be a world record was created yesterday with the arrival of a shipment of three hundred White Leghorn baby chicks from the University of British Columbia one hundred per cent. safe and sound and very hungry. Hatched on Saturday, the chicks were shipped on Sunday by express and had no feed or water on their three thousand mile journey across the Continent. The chicks were placed on exhibit at the World's Poultry Congress now meeting here.

It is generally agreed among poultrymen that when a chick is hatched nature has provided within its tiny body nourishment for a few days.

"They are wound up for three days" has been the expression among persons who buy day-old chicks, and accordingly the owners of big incubators ship chicks by the thousand, allowing three days in which the newly hatched will have no food or water. However, this is believed to be the first time the fast has been extended so long, and the tiny passengers have travelled so far.

Bottomley Freed For Good Behavior

LONDON, July 29. — (Canadian Press.)— Horatio Bottomley, widely known war time figure in Great Britain, former member of parliament, lecturer, and financier, was released from Maidstone prison to-day, where he had been serving a seven year term for fraudulently turning to his own use five thousand pounds subscribed to the Victory Loan Club, which he had founded while a member of the House of Commons. Good behaviour resulted in Bottomley's release after serving slightly more than five years of his sentence.

CONGRESS HEARS CANADIAN EXPERTS

Standardizing of Eggs Has Produced High Consumption in Dominion.

OTTAWA, July 29 (Canadian Press).—Breeding, feeding, and marketing were the principal topics dealt with by the World Poultry Congress in session here today. While they were the main subjects, some sections of the Congress heard papers on diseases of fowl, the promotion of poultry shows, and the management of egg laying contests.

E. J. Smith, Brockville, told of the satisfactory results secured in the Dominion from standardizing of eggs for sale. The work of extension was still progressing and today Canada led the world in the per capita consumption of eggs.

W. R. Graham, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, outlined some of the problems of quality which must be solved by the trained scientists in the Dominion.

MILLIONAIRES WIN.

Beat Weakened Clerks Team 15-5 in League Softball.

The Millionaires and Clerks played the long-looked-for game last night, resulting in a score of 15 to 5. The Clerks were minus most of their players, while the Bankers had their strongest men out. It was felt by most of the crowd attending that the Clerks, minus anyone in the field but a boy, should have defaulted to the Millionaires, picked up a full team from the players of other teams watching the game, and given the people something to make it worth their while turning out.

SUN IGNITES CHEMICALS

DAMAGE $10,000.

NORTH BERGEN, N.J., July 29.—The heat of the sun, which is believed to have set fire to a vat of chemicals, was blamed for an explosion which destroyed two buildings at the August Santori Fire Works plant, shattered windows for a radius of a mile, and frightened thousands of residents of this town where the plant is located, yesterday afternoon.

No one was hurt, although the concussion was felt several miles away.

The chemicals were placed outside one of the shacks to dry. Apparently becoming overheated, they burst into flame which was communicated to the one-storey structure, setting afire a large quantity of fireworks. Santori, his son and two other workers fled amid a shower of fireworks and blazing timbers, and a second building blew up.

Damage to the plant was estimated at $5,000, and the cost of broken windows is expected to total as much A similar blast occurred two months ago less than 200 feet away from yesterday's explosion.

Movement Irregular In New York Market

NEW YORK, July 29 (Canadian Press).—Speculators for the advance continued to press their advantage in to-day's market, but heavy week-end realizing sales and sporadic bear selling imparted irregularity to the price movement. Call money, after renewing at 3% per cent., advanced to four, as banks called loans to meet a heavy month-end demand for funds. With brokers' loans about $500,000,000 above the total at this time last year, many operators were inclined to proceed cautiously.

Violent fluctuations developed in some of the high-priced specialties, particularly those believed to harbor large short interests. Dupont soared more than thirteen points and Commercial Solvents 'B' eight, with a number of others up three to five points. City Stores 'B,' United States Steel, and Diamond Match reached new high ground. Heaviness again cropped out in United States Cast-Iron Pipe, Postum Cereal, Houston Oil, Crucible Steel, Mack Truck and International Nickel, but losses were relatively small.

Amulet and Kirkland Lead Mining Market

TORONTO, July 29.— (Canadian Press.)—Amulet and Kirkland Lake were the two chief centres of interest on the market of the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. The former with trading in some 42,000 shares advanced to a new high of 3.90, the close at this figure showing a gain of 13 cents. Kirkland Lake was traded in to the extent of 27,000 shares and it moved up eight cents to the high of 1.48. Area was active and up one point to 45½. Hollinger and McIntyre were two weak features, the former dropping 35 cents a share to 18.25 while McIntyre was off 25 cents to 25.50. Dome Mines was 10 cents stronger at 7.50. Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves were each up three cents to 8.46 and 6.07 respectively. Noranda declined 20 cents to 21.80, and Central Manitoba Gold three cents to 1.55.

Toronto Trading Brisk With Nickel Leading

TORONTO, Ont., July 29 (Canadian Press). — International Nickel was the active feature of a fairly brisk market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Nickel was traded in to the extent of some 1,700 shares, most of the sales being selling orders, and it declined 1⅝ points to 58. C. P.R. was a strong spot, advancing 1½ points to 188½. Industrial Alcohol was quiet and firm, gaining ⅛ to ⅝. Brazilian was dull and weak at 169, a decline of one point. Cosmos weakened ½ to 26, while Page Hersey eased ⅛ to 72½. Massey-Harris was quiet and unchanged at 37.

The unlisted section of the market was active with Kirkland Lake leading the way in volume, with trading in more than 11,000 shares. The closing quotation of 148 was unchanged. Walker continued active and slightly weaker at 46¾ down ¼. Other liquor stocks were dull. British Americal Oil was in good demand at 25. Amulet was active and up 7 points to 3.79.

Wheat Prices Drop To Week's Lowest Price

CHICAGO, July 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Wheat prices dropped sharply to-day to the lowest level this week. Weather conditions in the spring crop belt were good and leading authorities expressed the view that the crop in the United States was due to suffer considerable damage from black rust. Wheat closed weak, 1¼c. to 2⅝c. net lower, Corn 5-8 to 1¼c. off and Oats showing ½c. to 1 5-8c. decline, Provisions were unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.

Opening prices were: Wheat, July 1.38 7-8, September 1.37½, Corn, July 1.02 1-8, September 1.05 5-8. Oats, July 42 7-8, September 43 7-8.

GUTHRIE DISCUSSES POLICIES AND HOPES OF CONSERVATIVES AT BIG CONVENTION AT ORONO

DELEGATES CHOSEN.

To Represent Riding at Winnipeg Gathering—County Officers Re-elected.

ORONO, July 30 (Special to The Examiner).—Honorable Hugh Guthrie, Leader of the Opposition in the Federal House, was the chief speaker at the annual convention of the Durham County Liberal-Conservative Association held in the Town Hall, Orono, on Friday, at 2.30 p.m., the president, Dr. G. C. Bonnycastle, of Bowmanville, being in the chair.

Honorable Mr. Guthrie was accorded an enthusiastic reception when he entered the hall, when he rose to address the gathering, and again at the conclusion of his remarks.

In introducing the speaker, Dr. Bonnycastle mentioned the fact that he had at one time practised law in the neighboring town of Bowmanville, and Mr. Guthrie, in his opening remarks, said it was just thirty-six years since he had visited Orono.

Congratulating the riding on the faithful and diligent member who is its representative at Ottawa in the person of Fred W. Bowen, and on having, in The Port Hope Times, one of the best daily Conservative newspapers published in the province, the leader remarked: "With a good member and a good newspaper, you should have no trouble at election time."

"The Conservative newspapers in this province are not what they used to be, and the Conservative party is lacking today in newspaper support—a serious lack which, I hope, will be dealt with at Winnipeg."

"We were all optimists at this time last year, but we were overtaken last Fall by one of the greatcalamities that ever befell a political party; and worst of all we lost our illustrious leader; for I believe that Arthur Meighen was one of the greatest parliamentarians that Canada has ever produced. I sincerely hope he will reconsider his decision and again accept leadership of the party." (Applause).

Thanks to Members

Referring to his keen sense of his own limitations when chosen as temporary leader of the party, Mr. Guthrie emphatically stated: "If I have met with any success I have to thank the ninety Conservative members who sat behind me in the House, who stayed faithfully by me day and night; and if we kept the party flag flying—and I believe we did—the credit is theirs, not any little part which I may have taken."

That the development of the St. Lawrence power and navigation is one of the leading questions that must soon be grappled with, the speaker was assured, "and the Conservative party will insist that whatever development takes place, Canada shall hold her own, and not hand over her resources to the capitalists of any other country." (Applause).

Outlining the history of the granting to the Sifton interests the charter for the Georgian Bay canal power scheme, the Opposition Leader was strong in his condemnation of the action of the King government in being ready to grant renewal of the charter, and declared that but for the steady and determined opposition of the Conservative party, 'twelve million horse power along two hundred miles of waterway would have become the property of Sir Clifford Sifton and his business associates.'

Condemning strongly the action of the King government in expending half a million dollars at Washington for a residence for Honorable Vincent Massey—'who is a very ordinary man as far as I can judge' (laughter)—with another $100,000 for its upkeep, it was pointed out that Canada's High Commissioner, Hon. Peter Larkin, is allowed only $5,000 a year and must find his own house; while the representative from the United States, the richest country in the world, has at Ottawa merely an office rented for him in the Metropolitan Building, and is told to find his own house.'

"Paying taxes on our clothing, boots and shoes, and other wearing apparel, on the food we eat, and with a national debt of two and one-quarter billion dollars, it does go against the grain to have added taxation to an ostentatious display spending such an amount of money to provide a house for Vincent Massey."

Budget Criticized.

The Robb budget, with its "supposed reductions," came in for some scathing criticism, and Mr. Guthrie went on to stress some of the advantages which should grow out of the Winnipeg convention. The need of a better understanding between east and west, the geographical difficulties which must be overcome in governing a country like Canada, and the fact that 'in the last two elections as a party we paid too much attention to the east and too little

Invalid Claims Cure At St. Anne

OTAWA, July 30.— (Canadian P...) — Friends of Miss Marie Bourdon of this city assert that she is able to walk unaided after 21 years in an invalid's chair as a result of a visit to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre. Miss Bourdon, who is 61 years of age, had made nine pervious visits to the shrine without relief, but never lost faith that she would eventually be cured.

MORE FIREMEN MAY BE NEEDED

New Ontario Act Calls For One Day Off in Seven For Men.

COMMITTEES MEET.

The city is faced with an increase in the size of the fire brigade, because the Ontario Legislature has passed an act requiring each fireman to have one day off in seven. This was the least pleasant item brought to the attention of the aldermen at three committee meetings held last night.

The meetings were Finance committee, Board of Works, and Fire, Water, and Light committee.

George A. Macdonald's protest against the public manner in which tax bills are sent out, unsealed and delivered by boys, resulted in the decision to pass a by-law calling for the distribution of tax bills by mail.

The city treasurer reported that there will be 7,051 bills next year, costing $141.02 at two cents each, with $30 for envelopes, a total of $171.02 extra cost. Deducted is $23.00 paid at present for delivery, making the net cost $148.02.

It was felt by the aldermen that the mailing of the bills would be more businesslike and would eliminate the complaints of non-delivery, with resultant requests for duplicates.

An account of $26.00 for moving the guns of the 4th Battery to the Exhibition grounds and back for the Jubilee celebration salute was ordered paid.

A report of the engineer on sewer service for four houses facing on the C. N. R. track south of Smith street was sent to the Board of Health. This sewer would be very shallow and in private property and is not recommended.

Sewer service for the district at the corner of Reid and Murray streets will be given by putting a pipe across the creek on the Reid street bridge.

Chief as Inspector.

Ald. Stocker suggested that the Chief of Police be appointed weed inspector, an appointment called for by the revised Weed Act. His suggestion was amplified to call for every member of the police force being appointed.

An increase of $100 was granted to John Thirnbeck.

The mayor moved that oil be put on Water street to-day, saying that it should not go over Sunday. He explained that the strip, which is under contract to be paved, is in bad shape and that the Amiesite company has had some difficulty in getting equipment for the job. The strip will be oiled.

The gap between the Provincial highway and the Charlotte street pavement will be paved this year.

Smith street, between Water and George streets, will be patched with oil George streets, will be patched with oiled gravel. This is also under contract with the Amiesite company, and the mayor expressed doubt that the company will be prepared to pave it this year. A letter will be sent to the company asking for an immediate reply, stating when work will be started.

Two residents of Centre street asked for sewer connections, but as this would require some 700 feet in front of vacant lots the committee could not see its way clear to do this work.

The Ontario Fire Fighters' Association wrote calling attention to the act requiring the men to get one day off in seven. The association stated that it did not wish to cause an overdraft, but would like to see the change put into effect by the end of the year.

The mayor suggested that one man could be saved by requiring the chief to drive his own car. The chairman will investigate and bring in a by-law calling for extra men if needed.

The mayor and chairman will look over the situations where hydrants are recommended by the chief and make a report on those they consider necessary.

AIMEE OUTLINES HER WORLD PLANS

LOS ANGELES, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Aimee Semple McPherson late last night outlined to her Angelus Temple followers her plans for world evangelical work but failed to clear up definitely the question of whether she intended to resign as pastor of the Temple.

A demand for a showdown between Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, in their row over the Temple finances, made by forty-two branch churches of the Angelus Temple, failed to achieve its aim when the evangelist informed her congregation that the difficulty would be settled within their own home.

MARMORA MAN CHARGED WITH GRAVE OFFENCE

James Gordonier Accused of Criminal Assault of Sister-in-Law.

IS COMMITTED.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

MARMORA, July 30. — Charged with a serious offence against his wife's sister, a young woman married less than two years ago, James Gordenier, county constable and bailiff her for the past four years, was committed for trial at the next Court of Competent Criminal Jurisdiction by Magistrate R. R. Casement at the preliminary hearingof the case in the County Magistrate's Police Court held yesterday afternoon in Marmora Town Hall.

Accused, who was defended by E. D. O'Flynn, of Belleville, refused to plead. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan conducted the case for the prosecution.

The public was excluded from the Court during the examination of the complainant, the only witness who took the stand. Interested auditors were Inspectors Sylvester and Lougheed, of the Provincial Police, and E. Hill, local inspector under the Liquor Control Act.

At Cross Purposes.

A somewhat Gilbertian situation arose in connection with the arrest of Gordenier. Although the alleged offence was stated by witness to have occurred on April 30, the complaint was not lodged until last week. On the day that two officers from Belleville arrived in Marmora to arrest Gordenier, the latter, in total ignorance of his impending detention, journeyed to Belleville in connection with his official duties. Learning of the fact that he was sought, he immediately surrendered himself to the authorities.

He was formally arraigned before Magistrate Mikel in Belleville on Friday, July 22, when the case was enlarged until yesterday, and Gordenier was released on $10,000 oall.

Nephew of Murdered Man.

Additional interest was lent to the case by the fact that the accused man is a nephew of Jerome Keene, who

CANADA WELCOMES PRINCES AND PREMIER OF MOTHERLAND

GREAT OVATION GIVEN.

Ships in Harbor Vie With Royal Salute From Citadel in Tendering Respects.

QUEBEC, July 30. — (Canadian Press.)—The Prince of Wales, Prince George and Premier Baldwin were officially welcomed to Canada shortly after 10.30 this morning. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the Seaforth Highlanders, and Prince George that of a naval officer. Premier King went aboard the Empress of Australia and accompanied the Royal Princes and the British Premier to the King's Wharf, where they were officially received.

The Canadian holiday of the two Princes and the British Prime Minister commenced to-day when the Empress of Australia anchored under the battlements of Quebec city. Early morning found the ship moving up stream close to her schedule and also found the ancient city tense with expectation.

Brilliant with flags and bunting, Quebec lived up to its traditions as the historic gateway. The ships in harbor stood by, dressed with their colors fore and aft, and the river traffic paused as the liner took up her place. Even sea swept and rusted freighters joined in the chorus of welcome while from the citadel a Royal salute of guns boomed out at regular intervals.

Thousands View Landing

The Princes and the Premier landed at the King's Wharf in the midst of brilliant mid-summer weather. The Prince of Wales, Prince George and Premier Baldwin were welcomed by Premier King and Lieut.-Governor Perodeau on the Empress of Australia about one hour after she anchored at mid-stream, and both parties came on board the Lady Grey while guns boomed from the citadel. Thousands flocked into the narrow streets of the lower town and thousands more lined Dufferin Terrace from end to end.

His Royal Highness inspected the guard of honor supplied by the Royal [illegible] stepped under a canopy erected on the wharf where with his brother and Mr. Baldwin he was presented to members of the Federal Cabinet, Provincial Cabinet, and City officials.

Following the reception on King's wharf, the two Princes were driven off to Spencerwood in an open car accompanied by a mounted escort of Royal Canadian Dragoons, in scarlet and gold. Premier King and Premier Baldwin followed in an open car As

COMPETITION POEM

The following poem on "Canada" was submitted in the competition conducted by the Women's Music Club marking the Jubilee of Confederation. Because the composer resides outside of the city, it was not eligible for competition:

Together we'll wander in some shady dell
With a friend we lovely dearly,
And a story we'll tell
Of the land of our birth;
'Tis the home of the free..
This year we'll remember
Her grand Jubilee.

Chorus:
Her grand Jubilee, her grand Jubilee;
We have cause to remember
Her grand Jubilee.

Sixty years, a grand term
Since the day of her birth;
Her name we shall cherish,
Every man knows her worth
O! our grand Dominion
Her fame we shall see.
And her flag shall unfurl
On this grand Jubilee.

Chorus:
And now as we ponder
On her wealth and fame,
Since Sir Leonard Tillie
First gave her the name;
On her forest, her fisheries,
Her mines of pure gold,
Her copper, her nickel,
And vast wealth untold;
The story well sifted,
Results we'll soon see;
Eurrah, let us rally
This grand Jubilee.

Chorus:
Thirty-three noble Statesmen
Together well met,
And all those great Provinces
In union have set.
So now we are quite willing
To help friends o'er the sea;
Together we'll rally
This grand Jubilee .

Chorus:
May this year be remembered
By visitor and friend,
And all the great blessings
That God to us send,
Be lavished on us,
From centre to sea,
And we'll not forget
'Tis the grand Jubilee.

Chorus:

Doctor Operates and Saves Unborn Baby When Mother Is Killed By Motor Car

LONDON, July 30 (U.P.).—An unborn child whose mother was killed last night by a lorry in a London street has been saved by the promptitude and skill of the doctor into whose surgery the dead woman was carried following the accident. Dr. Mintzman operated seven minutes after the mother's life was extinct and saved the girl baby by a special respiration process. The child is now in a hospital doing well.

Explaining his remarkable feat, the physician said, "I had read of cases in medical history of child delivery after death, and I decided upon a Caesarean operation. The child was delivered in a condition of blue asphyxia, but after two minutes application of a hot and cold water respiration process, it showed signs of life. I wrapped it in cotton wool and sent it to a hospital."

The case has excited great interest in medical circles because, apparently, no living doctor has ever experienced a similar one. The child's mother, a Mrs. Easton, was killed outright by a lorry passing over her head.

BEAVERBROOK ATTACKS NEWS

Newspaper Peer Says Rival Objects To Opponents Helping Asquith.

GIVES 1,000 POUNDS.

LONDON, July 30 (United Press).—Lord Beaverbrook has admitted his contribution to the fund for Lord Asquith and Oxford, but has used the occasion to take a slam at the Daily News. Declaring that the paper's statement that he was contributing a thousand pounds a year to the fund was made without his authorization, Lord Beaverbrook adds: "The objection of the Daily News appears to be to opponents of the Liberal party contributing funds for Lord Oxford. If this is the objection of the Cadsburys and the Rowntrees, why did they not look after Lord Oxford themselves. Heaven knows he has done enough for them."

Lord Reading has issued an official statement naming the contributors to the fund, among whom are Lord Beaverbrook, with a thousand pounds, and Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner, with five hundred.

VALUATION OF BABY CHICKS IS DISCUSSED

American Hatcheries Have Been Using Canada as a Dumping Ground.

MINIMUM PRICE.

Delegates Believe That Blood Testing Does Not Aid in Selling Chicks to Farmers.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 30 (Canadian Press).—Questions of raising the standards of baby chicks in respect to vitality and lower mortality occupied the meeting of the Canadian Baby Chick Association held here yesterday in conjunction with the World's Poultry Congress.

This was to have been the annual meeting of the Association but the attendance was so small that it was felt necessary to adjourn important business until the second Thursday of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

Considerable discussion took place over the question of placing a minimum valuation on chicks being imported from the United States into Canada in order to check the alleged habit of American hatcheries who are said to be using Canada as a dumping ground for inferior grades of chicks during the surplus season on the other side.

Divers opinions were expressed as to the relative merits of blood-tested chicks versus untested. The majority seemed to be of the opinion that testing was of little value when farmers were not educated to appreciate the protection it afforded them and were unwilling to pay the small extra cost of tested birds.

The whole purpose of the Association is to bring about the production of higher grade chicks, and in this it was suggested that members should work in close co-operation with the Government in their efforts to have a standard of excellence established as a legal requisite to selling.

The American Poultry Association, in annual meeting here yesterday, held in conjunction with the World's Poultry Congress, chose Ardmore, Okla., as the next convention centre of the Association.

A committee was appointed to co-operate between the United States and Canadian Governments in the matter of poultry registration.

A long standing dispute in connection with the participation of the Association, as such, in the sesquicentennial exhibition in Philadelphia was settled by decision reached yesterday to expend the sum of $2,000 towards the expenses of judges and exhibitors.

Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, read the report of the secretary and treasurer. He remarked that while business in poultry culture had slumped somewhat during the last year, the finances of the organization were in excellent shape. If receipts had not been as high as the year before disbursements had been lower.

That report of the budget committee, providing for an outlay of $17,500 for the coming year, was adopted.

George Street Gets Extra Flushing; Car Knocks Down Fire Hydrant

In an attempt to miss hitting a car at the corner of Brock and George Streets last night, R. J. Martin drove his automobile up on the sidewalk and smashed a hydrant, sending a stream of water about five feet in the air for some length of time.

Martin was driving north on George at the time of the accident, and made an attempt to turn west on Brock Street. Lorne Northey, proceeding south on George Street, tried to make a left hand turn on to Brock Street. Martin evidently thought that a crash was inevitable, and, turning towards the pavement, jumped about three feet of cement and crashed into the hydrant, breaking both the curb and the hydrant.

Vesuvius Active; People Pack Up

NAPLES, Italy, July 30. — Canadian Press. — In the throes of its most violent eruption in 12 years Mount Vesuv... to-day hurled hundreds of tons of incandescent fragments far into the air, while a huge column of lava, after nearly filling the inner crater, began to creep over the edge in the "Valley of Hell" towards the Bay of Naples.

Although the head of the observatory renewed assurances that there was no immediate danger, part of the population of the nearby towns began to make preparations for leaving.

CHILD DROWNS IN QUARRY PIT

Josephine Molet, 2, Third To Die in Disused Hole Near Guelph.

BODY RECOVERED.

GUELPH, July 30. — (Canadian Press).—Josephine Molet, two years old, was drowned in a pool of water which had accumulated in an old stone quarry pit. The body was recovered. This is the third drowning in three years in the quarry hole.

BODY OF BOY IS RECOVERED

Neighbors Take Watson Carter From Water Near Where He Went Down.

AT LAKE KATCHEWANOOKA.

The body of Watson Carter, twelve years of age, was recovered from the deep water of Lake Katchewanooka last night by neighbors who had searched for the little lad since yesterday afternoon immediately after the first news had been spread from house to house along that road.

"Watson could not swim," the grief-stricken father told The Examiner yesterday, "and I had managed to keep him away from the water, but I was working at another place, and he was there without my knowledge." Mr. Carter has two other children, both younger than the dead boy.

Immediately after dinner yesterday, Watson Carter, accompanied by his brother and a girl of sixteen years of age from Toronto, went down to the Point, at which the water is very deep. The last that his companions had seen Carter was when he fell from the log on which he was riding some distance out from shore. Seeing the boy go down, the other children ran for help, but it was too late, for when the first help came, the boy was drowned.

Neighbors rushed to the scene of the tragedy and with rough, homemade hooks combed the water near the spot where the tragedy occurred to bring the body to the top. A steamer passed; crowds waved, all ignorant of the intense sorrow that surrounded the little group of friends of the Carter family as they stood

Man Is Drowned In Norham Mill Pond

George Callaghan, Aged 27, While Bathing Last Night, Dropped Into a Hole—Friends Attempt Rescue But Fail.

BODY IS RECOVERED TWO HOURS LATER BY GEORGE BEATTIE OF WARKWORTH

NORHAM, July 30. —George Callaghan, 27, whose home was in Ireland, was drowned last night in Norham Mill Pond. He was employed by Albert Massey, of Morganston, and at nine o'clock, while bathing with Mr. Massey and two boys, Callaghan walked into a hole, and as he could not swim, he immediately got into difficulties.

Mr. Massey went to his rescue, but was unable to get him to shore. His body was recovered two hours later by George Beattie, of Warkworth, who found it by diving.

Mr. Callaghan is survived by one brother in Ottawa and his mother, who lives in Ireland.

RAILWAYS HAVE BIG DECREASE IN NET EARNING

Earlier Opening of Navigation is Factor in Causing the Decrease.

REVENUES LESS.

C.N.R. Payroll is Increased By $1,096,281, With an Addition of 4,058 Employees.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 30.—(Canadian Press.)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics report on operating revenues, expenses, etc., of Canadian railways during May shows a decline in gross revenues from last year's of $241,175 or .6 per cent. The earlier opening of navigation and consequently the earlier movement of grain to the head of the lakes and from Georgian Bay ports was a factor in this decrease. Operating expenses showed an increase of $545,786 or 1.6 per cent., and the net operating revenue decreased by $786,881. The gains made in the earlier months were wiped out and for the five months January-May net revenues were slightly less than in 1926, viz., by $589.

Freight traffic fell off by 6.6 p.c., but passenger traffic was heavier by 6.4 per cent., although passenger revenues were lighter by $143,230 or 2.3 per cent. The pay roll was increased by $1,096,281 or 5.3 per cent., for an increase in the number of employees of 4,058, or 2.4 per cent.

Canadian National Railways gross revenues were less than in 1926 by $235,852, or 5.6 per cent., passenger revenues declining by $206,785 and freight revenues by $107,186. The number of passengers decreased by 14.1 per cent., but the passenger miles increased by 7.9 per cent., the average journey increasing from 60.9 to 76.6 miles. The receipts per passenger mile however, were smaller, dropping from 2,807 cents in 1926 to 2,418 cents.

Freight train loading showed a slight increase from a heavier empty movement, revenue freight being lighter by 13.5 tons per train. Passenger trins increaaed in mileage by 7.7 per cent., but the number of passengers increased only .1 per train mile.

The Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific showed a gain in net operating revenues of $7,293, but the other lines in the United States all showed decreases and net revenues for the system were less by $559,472.

For the period January-May, gross revenues for both the Canadian lines and United States lines were heavier but net revenues for the Canadian lines were lighter. The gains on the United States lines were not sufficient to offset the decreases and the system showed a decrease of $105,932.

Canadian Pacific Railway— Gross revenues were lighter by $152,261 or 1.0 per cent., operating expenses increased by $702,432, or .8 per cent., net operating revenues decreased by $254,743 and operating income by $417,245. Freight traffic was lighter by 8.0 per cent., but passenger traffic increased by 8.5 per cent., and passenger revenues were greater by $114,707 or 4.6 per cent., the average passenger journey increasing by 11.5 miles. The pay roll was heavier by $370,300, or 4.5 per cent., with an increase of only 1.0 per cent., in the number of employees.

For the first five months gross revenues in 1927 were heavier than in 1926 by $4,416,791 but operating expenses increased by $4,128,571, bringing the increase in net operating revenues to $288,217 and producing a decrease in operating income of $381,726.

JAPANESE NOT TO ACT AS MEDIATOR

Naval Conference Awaits Reply From Washington on Britain's Proposals.

SEPARATE QUIETLY.

United States' Delegates Refuse to Comment on British Plan.

GENEVA, July 30. Canadian Press —The Japanese delegation to the Washington disarmament conference, will not endeavor to mediate between Great Britain and the United States considering the difficulties which have arisen between delegations of those two countries in the matter of limitation of naval arms as a matter of principle rather than of technicality and consequently of too delicate a nature to permit intervention.

The British spokesman yesterday reiterated Great Britain's desire to restrict the number of offensive warships. He said that no real limitation could be achieved unless the nations could agree upon the exact number of powerfully armed cruisers which could be construted. The British express the belief that eight inch gun cruisers whether ten thousand ton warships or vessels of lesser size, ought to be classed in this category and subjected to genuine limitation.

Yesterday the delegates were waiting to hear what Washington would have to say after it received the text of the British proposals. Hugh S. Gibson, chief delegate from the United States, has expressed the opinion that the latest British plan is totally unacceptable to the United States.

Japanese Pessimistic.

The Japanese continue pessimistic concerning the outcome of the conference. They seem particularly desirous that if the conference adjourns without achieving its purpose this should be done without anything being publicly said at the final session that might provoke friction or lead to misunderstanding between the powers involved.

The Japanese idea is that the delegates should separate quietly with moderately phrased statements that they had been unable to agree because of an honest difference of opinion, on the various problems submitted to them.

The suggestion emanating from the British circles yesterday that the British would discuss favorably any United States proposal for a certain number of eight inch gun cruisers for the United States in addition to those permitted under the British plan, has apparently had no official follow up. The British idea has not been communicated to the U. S. delegation. Furthermore the Japanese look askance at this suggestion, as probably involving an increase in the total tonnage of cruisers, which the Tokyo delegates desire to keep at the lowest possible level.

Although the United States' delegates still refuse to comment on the British plan, it is understood that they find it particularly hard to swallow the last paragraph of that plan which is said to permit a transfer of tonnage from one category of warships to another. They say that under such a plan Great Britain and America, in principle at least, could put all of the 590,000 tons allocated for all auxiliary warships into cruisers, plus 25 per cent. allowed for obsolete ships This would make a grand total of 737,000 tons.

MEN ATTACK YOUNG GIRL

POLICE NOTIFIED.

MARMORA, July 30. — Sensation succeeded sensation in Marmora yesterday. Following the news that James Gordonier, bailiff and county constable, had been committed for trial on a serious charge brought against him by his sister-in-law, the report was bruited abroad that a girl of about 17 years of age, resident in Marmora, had been attacked by two local men, near the village on Thursday night and stripped of every shred of her clothing. One of the men concerned is a member of a Marmora family which has been much in the public eye during the present year.

The affair, which is the subject of much comment, has been brought to the notice of the police, and it is expected that a prosecution will be initiated.

TROUBLE DUE TO OUTSIDE INFLUENCES

Mother of Aimee McPherson Says a Conspiracy Exists To Oust Them.

WILL NOT RESIGN.

Matter Will Go To Court if Friendly Settlement is Not Reached.

LOS ANGELES, July 30 (Associated Press).—Charges that "outside influences" were responsible for the troubles in Angelus Temple yesterday to the recriminations which have been hurled in the controversy between Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, ousted business manager of the Temple.

Mrs. Kennedy alleged the existence of a "diabolical conspiracy" to oust both her and her daughter from the Temple. She traced the alleged conspiracy back to the trial of the two last year on charges of attempting to frame a story to explain Mrs. McPherson's disappearance and reported kidnapping.

The mother pointed to a statement by the evangelist that "outside influences" had been working against her since her alleged kidnapping.

"That is what I have said from the start," declared Mrs. Kennedy. "I've known it for months."

Mrs. McPherson denied yesterday that she intended to resign from Angelus Temple after giving a statement to the newspapers that she would leave the Temple. Her mother declared the resignation announcement was "a play for sympathy," and had been given out in violation of an agreement between them to issue no more statements to the press in regard to their differences.

Mrs. McPherson retired to seclusion at Santa Monica Beach, where she was preparing to confer with Marshall Craig of Des Moines, Iowa, who arrived here yesterday as an applicant, her secretary, Mae Waldron, said, for the position of business manager of the Temple.

Meanwhile, attorneys representing Mrs. Kennedy on one side and her daughter and the church committee on the other, conferred to settle the business tangle of the church.

"We hope to reach a friendly settlement," they announced, "but if we cannot, the matter must go to the court."

COMMUNICATIONS ARE DISORGANIZED

Heavy Casualty Reports From British India Remain Unconfirmed.

BOMBAY, British India, July 30. —Communication still is disorganized in the region of Baroda where heavy rains have flooded large area during the past few days. Reports of heavy casualties remain unconfirmed.

Advices from Gujerat, in the affected area, were more reassuring yesterday.

The rain is reported to have stopped at Gujerat and also at Ahmedabad where high winds are said to have destroyed 2000 buildings, but with only six deaths.

Passengers marooned at Itola, where a mail train was isolated by breaks in the line, have been taken off and removed to Delhi.

The town of Kaira, south of Ahmedabad, still is isolated and no reports have been received on conditions there.

BISLEY VETERAN DIES AT BRANDON

BRANDON, Man., July 30. — Thos Thompson, veteran Manitoba marksman, died here yesterday.

Mr. Thomson, who was 73 years old, was a well known shot at Bisley, England, before he came to Canada in 1881.

For the first time in forty years he was unable to take part in this season's tournament of the Manitoba Rifle Association.

to the west with a consequence that we have only one member out of fifty-four from the Prairie provinces,' were pointed out. "Don't you think there is ground out there upon which we can build if we pay more attention to matters affecting the west?" he asked.

"I don't know that you can directly benefit the Prairie Provinces by a policy of protection; when a man grows only wheat and cattle, I don't see that you can very well help him by a tariff. But I believe it's good business and good policy to give help in the West as we did in the Maritime Provinces last session—get their products down here to the markets of the East as cheaply as possible. We need Alberta coal, for instance, and the freight rate handicap should be overcome. I don't propose to ask the railways to carry these commodities at a loss, but to give them compensation out of the treasury."

Severely criticizing the King Government for "tinkering with the tariff, creating an uncertainty that is not good for industrial Canada," the speaker declared, "I believe our recovery after the war would have been much greater and much quicker if they had retained the fiscal tariff as [redacted]

Urging that Canadians themselves enjoy the rich resources which Providence has bestowed upon them—"it as galling to know that the cream is being taken off these bounties for the rich concerns in the United States"—Mr. Guthrie, in conclusion, quoted "a very good description of this country, given by the old prophet Moses, and found in the eighth chapter of the Book of Deuteronomy."

Delegates Nominated.

The business of electing delegates to the Winnipeg convention occupied the convention in its opening period, the following being chosen on the first ballot: J. R. Eakins, Millbrook; F. W. McMahon, Port Hope; Dr. Bonnycastle, Bowmanville; W. A. Van Camp, Blackstock. Alternate delegates were: R. R. Waddell, Orono; Edith Hillier, Bowmanville; Mrs. J. Spencer, Bowmanville; and Albert Billett, Hampton. Others nominated, but withdrawing their names, were: J. L. McCamus, Cavan; A. J. Fallis, ex-M.P.P., Millbrook; Warden Milton Elliott, Bowmanville; J. J. Preston, Bethany; Mrs. F. Sculthorpe, and Miss Ada Mulligan, Port Hope; Wellington Cowan, Bowmanville; and Mrs. F. W. Bowen, Orono.

To save calling another convention in the fall, the election of officers was decided upon at Friday's meeting, and on motion those at present holding office were re-elected:

President, Dr. G. C. Bonnycastle, Bowmanville; 1st Vice-President, J. H. Paul, Cavan; 2nd Vice-President, W. F. McMahon, Port Hope; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. Fred Sculthorpe, Port Hope; secretary, Alan Campbell, Bowmanville; treasurer, A. Hayden, Port Hope.

The formal vote of thanks to the Honourable Hugh Guthrie was moved by A. J. Fallis, and seconded by Jas. H. Paul.

The meeting closed with three rousing cheers for the King. A notable fact in connection with the convention was that there were almost as many lady delegates in attendance as men.

MARMORA MAN

was found murdered on February 17 on his bed in a shack at the north end of Marmora—a mystery which has baffled the police for nearly five months.

Wearing a blue suit and soft collar, Gordenier, who is a splendidly built man, 6 feet 2 inches high, slightly bald, with a very erect carriage, sat by the side of his counsel, with a very serious demeanour as he listened keenly to the evidence, and occasionally prompted the defending lawyer.

The story of the alleged offence was described by the complainant, who added that Gordenier on one occasion suggested an elopement.

In cross-examination, she admitted that she did not tell her husband of the affair until July 10—eight weeks after the experience which she described in Court.

Corroboration Unnecessary.

Pleading for committal on the strength of the evidence of this single witness, Mr. Donnan pointed out that despite the serious nature of the charge, no corroborative evidence was required for committal.

Mr. O'Flynn agreed that the Magistrate had no alternative than to commit.

Mr. Donnan declared it was more than three years since he had handled a similar case.

No objection was raised by the Crown to the release of Gordenier on bail, but it was intimated that application for bail would have to be made to the higher Court which will sit on the case.

QUEEN MARIE MAY JOIN NUNS IN MONASTERY

Since Death of King She Has Given Herself Up to Religion.

VISITS RETREATS.

Spends Much Time in Pretty Sixteenth Century Convent Near Palace.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Queen Marie, who, since King Ferdinand death has given herself up completely to religion, may soon join a convent, her friends believe.

Ever since the Queen came to Rumania 35 years ago, she has been fascinated by the old Rumanian monasteries and convents, which she has helped from time to time with money and other gifts. She has visited all these retreats which are among the most picturesque in Europe, and is familiar with their history, architecture and decorations.

There is a pretty Sixteenth Century convent near the Queen's castle in Bran, in the bosom of the Carpathian Mountains, where ever since King Ferdinand's illness a year ago, she has spent much time in meditation, prayer and communion with the resident nuns.

Now that she must yield the throne and sovereign rights to the regency, some of the Queen's friends predict that soon she will join the nuns in this quiet sanctuary, in memory of her dead spouse. He, himself, during the last months of his life, became intensely pious, placing all faith in God, when medical science failed to help him.

Queen Marie, who inherits the piety of her Russian forebears, frequently has said that relief and consolation from the ills and disappointments of this life can only be found in the cloistered peace of a convent far removed from the evil and restless outside world. The Rumanian peasantry, who are deeply attached to Queen Marie, have expressed strong opposition to her giving herself up to a life of seclusion in a convent. They do not wish to lose one who has always been a defender of their interests.

MARKET BOARD DID GOOD WORK IN FIRST YEAR

Advertising of Empire Goods is the Most Conspicuous Achievement.

OTHERS IMPORTANT.

Practical Utility of Board Attracts Contributions From Many Sources.

LONDON, July 30 (Canadian Press). — As a document of Empire interest the first report of the Empire Marketing Board is almost as important as the report of the 1926 Imperial Conference.

Where the Imperial Conference report was political, the Marketing Board's report is economic. It is really part two of the record of the attempt to combine the autonomy of the parts of the Empire with the unity of the whole.

The Empire Marketing Board is the executive organ of the Imperial Economic Committee and thus an essential part of the new and experimental machinery which is promoting the unity of the Empire. It is endeavouring to do for the trade of the Empire what the committee of Imperial Defence does for its military and naval protection.

It was set up in May, 1926, with capital of $5,000,000 set aside by the Imperial Government. British taxpayers have been gratified to find that the utility of the Board's work has become so well known as to attract to this amount another $1,150,000, which has been contributed by such agencies as the Rockefeller Institute, the Empire Cotton Growing Corporation, and various Dominion Governments.

The Board's most conspicuous work of course, is its advertising of Empire produce. But behind the scenes the Board is doing very valuable work in raising the productivity and quality of Empire goods. Thus it is conducting at Farnham, an attempt to fight plant parasites with insect parasites; it is grappling with the Empire-wide problem of lack of mineral content in otherwise perfect pastures; it has saved thousands of pounds by the single discovery that apples must have air in transit, and that the pests which destroy raisins are themselves destroyable.

Coming to its most obvious work—publicity — the Board has met with criticism. But the criticisms are groundless. Only about 15 per cent. of the Board's expenditures is devoted to single parts of the Empire. The rest is devoted to objects which will benefit indiscriminately all parts of the Empire. The Board has actually discovered a way in which the state can benefit industry without exciting the prejudices or the jealousy of one Empire against another, or even of one firm against another.

The effect of the publicity campaign, to which the example of the King and Queen in ordering a Christmas pudding of Empire ingredients, has been a great encouragement, has been that in certain lines of Empire goods there has been an actual shortage, and the Board is preparing a series of seasonal menus so as to protect quality from undue or untimely demand.

QUEBEC GREETS PRINCES TO-DAY

CITY DECORATED.

QUEBEC, Que., July 30.— (Canadian Press.) — Once more Quebec welcomes Royal visitors, but this time a statesman, too, enters the Dominion by the ancient capital. The city is crowded with visitors from all parts of the continent, who will participate in the welcome to the Princes and the Premier. Flags fly from the battlements, streamers hang in the streets and lights are strung across the public buildings. The brilliant skies and brisk breezes of Friday, promised the best of Canadian mid-summer weather for the arrival.

All day Friday offcials of the Dominion Government and officials of the Provincial Government worked over the final details of the reception. The welcome on the Empress of Australia; the luncheon by the Quebec Government and the State dinner in the evening were all carefully planned. Newspaper correspondents from all parts of Canada and the United States have arrived in Quebec during the past two days, as well as batteries of motion picture operators and "still" cameramen.

Throughout the first intensive week, which comprises the actual official part of the tour, the Prince of Wales, Prince George and Premier Baldwin, will be under the close scrutiny of the news gatherers and camera men. As is usual, with such parties, travelling plain-clothesmen will accompany the visitors and each city will provide, as well, the full strength of its police protection.

Canada's guests will be met first by a small ship load of reporters, who will be conveyed out to the Empress when she comes to anchor in mid-stream in the St. Lawrence, below the city's heights.

Granted Interview.

Mr. Baldwin has granted an interview of half an hour. Soon after, Premier King, representing His Excellency the Governor-General and the Government of Canada, accompanied by His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec Province, will go out to the Empress on board the Canadian Government steamship Lady Grey. The entire party will then come ashore at the historic King's Wharf, where Royalty and Vice-Royalty have so often landed.

In the afternoon, there is a gap in the official programme and it is probable that these hours will be spent on the golf links or in a raquets court. Various rumors fluttered through the tourist crowds on Friday, as to the Prince's actual plans, although the official programme has been published several times. One story, which for a while had considerable vogue, was that the Prince of Wales and his brother, were going to fly to Montreal. Others, equally unsound, kept the holiday seekers gossiping throughout the day.

SOUTHAMPTON, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Captain F. T. Courtney, the British aviator, said last night that he saw no prospect of hopping off on his flight to America before Tuesday. A report at 8 o'clock, concerning the weather over the Atlantic, showed that conditions were worse than ever.

If it is fine to-day, Captain Courtney will take his flying boat "Whale" out for a trial. The weather was too bad for a trial yesterday.

Liberal Executive Contemplates Protesting Election in Several Ridings.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 30 (Canadian Press). — Application for a writ of mandamus which would compel Judge J. G. Cory to conduct a recount of the Winnipeg ballots cast in the recent Provincial general election, will be made by Lieut.-Col. A. W. Morley, on behalf of J. Kensington Downes, Independent candidate.

In a statement issued yesterday, Mr. oDwnes said that while he did Mr. Downes said that while he did personnel oi the city slate declared elected, he was anxious "to show up the glaring inconsistencies of the Manitoba Election Act, and the shortcomings of proportional representation."

Protest Elections.

It was learned to-day that supporters of F. C. Hamilton, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Rupert's Land have urged that the election in that constituency be protested on the ground of irregularities. The matter has been placed before the central executive of the Manitoba Liberal Association.

It was stated unofficially that the Liberal Executive had under advisement the protest of five other rural constituencies. The names of the ridings were not divulged.

OLD DIRECTORY TELLS ABOUT PIONEER DAYS IN HASTINGS

Government Authorized Free Grants of Land Along Hastings Road.

BEFORE GETTING DEED.

Settler Had To Take Possession and Put State of Cultivation 12 Acres of Land.

MARMORA, July 30.—In this year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee when so much of pioneer days is being recalled, notes on the Hastings Road taken from the directory of the County of Hastings for the years 1860-1861 will possibly interest many readers.

This road is described as commencing on the northern boundary line of the Township of Madoc and taking a course north, 10 degrees west, for a distance of seventy-four miles, forming the centre line of two ranges of seven townships each within much easier access to settlers than the townships thirty miles from the Bay of Quinte in 1855. Having eulogized the soil and timber, the climate, and the thrifty class of settlers, the narrator proceeds: "In order to facilitate the settlement of the country, the Government has authorized free grants of land along this road, not to exceed in each case one hundred acres, upon application to the local agents and upon the following conditions of settlement.

"That the settler be eighteen years of age.

"That he take possession of the land allotted to him within one month and put in a state of cultivation, at least twelve acres of the land in the course of four years—build a house (at least 20 by 23 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement are duly performed; after the accomplishment of which only shall the settler have the right of obtaining a title to the property. Families, comprising several settlers, entitled to lands, preferring to reside on a single lot, will be exempted from the obligation of building and of residence (except upon the lot on which they live), provided that the required clearing of the land be made on each lot. The non-accomplishment of these conditions will cause the immediate loss of the assigned lot of land which will be sold or given to another.

"The road having been opened by the Government, the settlers are required to keep it in repair.

"The local agent, M. P. Hayes, of Madoc, will furnish every information to the intending settler.

"The log-house required by the Government to be built is of such a description as can be put up in four days by five men."

Mention is made of neighbors rendering assistance to newly arrived settlers without charge.

Of the potash industry it is said: "The ashes of three acres—well taken care of, and covered from wet—will produce a barrel of potash worth from six pounds to seven pounds currency. The capital required to manufacture potash is very small, and the process is very simple and easily understood.

"The expense of clearing and enclosing heavily timbered lands valuing the labor of the settler at the highest rate is about four pounds currency per acre, which the first wheat crop, if an average one, will nearly repay. The best timber for fencing is to be had in abundance."

Doctor Kills Two Robbers in Office

CHICAGO, July 29 (Canadian Press).—A doctor beat two gunmen at their own game last night, killing them both when they attempted to rob him. The robbers, who have not been identified, posed as patients on entering the doctor's offices, but the physician, Frank L. Nathanson, recently had been robbed and was suspicious. He stood by his desk and when they drew their guns he pulled open a drawer, whipped out a pistol, and fired before they could level their weapons. One fell dead, but the other staggered out and fell down the stairway into the arms of a policeman who had heard the shooting. He died in hospital.

CANADIAN WHEAT PLEASES SCOTCH

Like It Better Than Any Other Kind For Bread.

WINNIEPG, Man., July 30.—(By Canadian Press).—Canadian wheat serves Scottish taste in bread better than any other wheat in the world, according to Alexander McLeod, a director of the Scottish co-operative Wholesale Society, Glasgow. Three other members of the Society, John Pearson, director ;William Smith, secretary and James Smyth, accountant, accompanied Mr. McLeod in a visit to Winnipeg recently.

The visitors, who represent the largest buyers of Canadian wheat in Great Britain, spoke very highly of the Canadian system of inspection and sale of grain on certificate.

An inspection of their office in the Grain Exchange, here, and a study of the general conduct of the wheat trade in Western Canada, was made by the deputation. Their society represents a membership of 100,000.

GOOD NAME IS DISPUTED

For quite a long time the white man has taken it for granted that the word "Muskoka" was derived from the name of the famous Indian doctor or conjurer Misquedoh; but one who takes as his authority the "Atlas" written by W. E. Hamilton Esq., has disputed this through the columns of the Press and claims that "as Amerigo filched the honor of sponsorship of this continent from Columbus, so the crafty conqueror Misquedoh (Clear Sky) has been chronicled as the god-father of Muskoka, in place of the undaunted chief tain Mesquia Ukee."

To those who know it, however, the Muskoka district will always be the land of "clear skies" and sparkling waters, and to these as to others who would this year make their first acquaintance with this most glorious and convenient holiday resort district, the Canadian Pacific Railway offers a very complete service. AGENTS FIGHT MARMORA MAN

Become Obstreperous When Joseph Kelly Refuses To Accept Enlargement.

GET THRASHING.

MARMORA, July 30.—Little of the suave diplomacy usually associated with canvassers and travelling agents was exhibited by two men who called on Joseph Kelly here selling photo enlargements and becoming unduly aggressive, put up a fist fight before Mr. Kelly succeeded in ridding his dwelling of their undesired presence.

Right from the beginning, the photo pedlars adopted shock tactics. Mrs. Kelly, working in the rear of the house, heard a slight noise, and, entering the room, found a man carefully scrutinizing some photographs hanging on the wall. The intruder explained that he was travelling on behalf of a photograph company, and suggested enlarging some of those on the wall. He mentioned that his company was promoting a prize contest for the three photos of children best suitable for enlargement. After some consideration, Mrs. Kelly entrusted him with a much treasured picture of her little son.

Row Commences.

Returning on Thursday of this week with another canvasser, the agent produced an enlarged photograph which Mr. Kelly declares was a very poor copy of the original. Mrs. Kelly, on examining the portrait, declined to accept it. The canvasser used a great deal of threatening language which attracted the attention of Mr. Kelly, who, unsuspected by the visitor, was in another room. Mr. Kelly, when shown the picture, confirmed his wife's refusal to accept it. Loud voiced threats to have Mr. Kelly arrested and to garnishee his wages brought from the householder a polite invitation to the other to leave his dwelling. Taking the agent by the arm, Mr. Kelly endeavored to lead him out, when the latter showed fight and aimed a blow which Mr. Kelly ducked and promptly returned. Seeing his companion getting the worst of the encounter, the second man, shouting "You would hit my brother, would you?" jumped into the fray, but the Marmora man, who learned something about the noble art of self-defence in his army days, acquitted himself creditably and soundly threshed both his opponents, who, becoming alarmed, hurriedly left the house.

Constable Gillen was informed of the occurrence, and set out in pursuit of the pair, but failed to discover the slightest trace of them after their hurried exit.

A report that two men selling photo graphs were in the village last night created considerable stir, but on investigation it was discovered that they were genuine canvassers, in no way connected with the couple who caused the commotion.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN TUBES

Balloon Tires Call For Different Type of Inner Tube.

Man judges so often by the outward appearance that frequently he forgets to look at the heart, and this is true of his thoughts about tires.

The most expensive part of a tire is the casing, and one is apt to forget the humble tube, which, nevertheless, if it performs its work well, adds many miles to the life of the tire itself.

Dominion Royal Tubes have always represented the finest quality and have deserved, as well as maintained, a most enviable reputation.

Tubes made for high pressure casings would not wear satisfactorily in balloon casings, and, accordingly, the Dominion Royal Tube designs were changed to meet these new conditions. These changes necessitated a tube that would function properly at much lower air pressure, that would blow down evenly to the rim throughout and that would have no tendency to wrinkle at the splice.

In meeting these needs, a still further refinement was added when a short, thin splice, which would inflate evenly with the remainder of the tube, was manufactured.

These improvements have added materially to more perfect balance in the tire. The tube will run more smoothly, will last longer, with the result that the tire itself has a greatly increased life.

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

In Summer When Childhood Ailments Are Most Dangerous.

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach trouble, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry of thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child they will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely harmless even to the new-born babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AERIAL MAIL SERVICE.

One of the most important developments in commercial aviation has been the recent action of the United States government in yielding the field of postal flying to private companies who tendered for the contracts.

The Government has thoroughly tested the usefulness of aeroplanes as mail carries, has proven that an aerial mail service can be operated efficiently in all kinds of weather and at a cost that would warrant private enterprise embanking in the business and having completed this important test has noow reliquished the aerial mail service to commercial concerns who will carry on from now on.

So far on this side of the line not a great deal of flyers has been made toward using the aeroplane as an agency for fast mail service but undoubtedly the successful experiments of the United States Government will provide an impetus to the establishment on a larger scale of aearial mail service in Canada.

The great war showed that this country can produce the flyers; the Government would have no difficulty in manning an aire post service when it decides that the time has come to inaugurate such a service.

THEY OUGHT TO SMILE NOW.

One of the best pieces of news published this week, the Examiner is sure, was the announcement that the farmers of Western Canada are being paid an interim payment of $27,000,000 by the wheat pool which sold their last year's grain.

That is good news for the farmers and it is good news for everybody else as well for $27,000,000 put into circulation at this time of the year should add to the general prosperity.

Paid just before the new harvest and at a time when farmers usually find themselves short of ready cash the present payment will be decidedly welcome.

It illustrates effectively the value of the wheat pool to the western farmer.

The pool has already made two other interim payments, one last autumn when the wheat was delivered and another early in the autumn when the final returns had been estimated.

It is probable that the first payment was about as much as the farmers would have received altogether for their wheat under the old conditions so that the other payments distributed through the year are all that much extra.

MAKE IT SAFE.

Peterborough's Civic holiday, shifted to the first Monday in August to get in line with other municipalities, will be observed on Monday.

Civic holiday is one of the most popular holidays of the year, not because of what it stands for, but because it comes at a most favourable season.

Usually it is marked by a wholesale exodus to summer resorts and to other cities, citizens taking advantage of the week end holiday to spend a couple of days out of town.

This will be the case this year as well and a word of caution may be warranted to the hundreds of citizens who are planning to spend the next two days away.

Make it a safe holiday.

If you are motoring drive carefully.

Traffic will be abnormally heavy on the highways it will be necessary therefore; to exercise even more than the usual caution.

If you are going to visit a water resort be careful in the handling of boats and in regard to when and where you swim.

An ounce of prevention mave save lives; it is everybody's duty to help make the holiday a safe and pleasant one.

THE INCOME TAX.

The Grain Growers' Guide is lining up the western farmers to fight any further reduction in the Federal income tax, arguing that if the income tax should be abolished the revenue would have to be raised by other methods.

Has the Guide noticed that, although the income tax has been reduced by ten per cent, the revenue collected therefrom during the first four months of the present fiscal year was almost as great as for the whole of last year?

A reduction in the tax does not mean loss of revenue.

As a matter of fact every time the United States government has slashed the income tax increased revenue from the form of levy have followed, the reduction in the tax bringing about a business expansion that made bigger revenue possible.

The fight of the western farmers against tax relief is surely short-sighted.

It leaves them open to the charge that because the class they represent escapes almost altogether they are anxious to have the income tax remain in force, even although they know that most of it is paid by salary earners and that the tax discourages business expansion and leads to safety-first investments.

SELECTING NEW CITIZENS.

There must be some mistake about the statement of the London Morning Post that "powerful influences in the dominions are being exerted to prevent British immigration." The Post expresses disappointment that, "the Empire Settlement Act of 1922 authorized an expenditure of thirteen and a half million pounds, only one and a half million had been actually used.

Why any influence other than that based on economic conditions should be exerted is hard to understand.

Both Canada and Australia have been built up largely by British immigration, and there is certainly no reason at this stage to alter the long-standing attitude of good-will with which new arrivals from the Mother Country have been greeted. There have been times when the proportion of town dwellers arriving has been unduly large, but such a condition was bound to correct itself without much delay.

Since the war several factors have operated to lessen immigration. Canada suffered some depression, as did Britain and other countries, but in Britain the "dole" was long in operation, a system of State aid for unemployed to sustain life and morale until conditions improved. It is easy to understand why less aggressive people preferred to remain at home and accept the "dole" rather than face conditions that, at least, were uncertain on this side of the Atlantic.

In the working out of immigration regulations there are bound to be some cases of irritation, even injustice. Abbe Casgrain of Quebec, who is doing valuable work among the new arrivals, has written a letter, which appears in another column of The Globe today, complaining of unfair cases of deportation of young Englishmen which he has observed. Young men accepted at a British port arrive in Canada only to find they are not to be admitted.

Fortunately a remedy appears in sight for this condition, for it is announced that medical examination of immigrants for Canada will shortly be made at the European port by Canadian doctors, so that the risk of deportation at the Canadian port will no longer exist. Such a change is long overdue, for the man who seeks to establish himself as a Canadian citizen is entitled to fair and efficient treatment by the Government authorities. Should he be turned back from a port on this side he may suffer disadvantage for years to come.—The Globe.

VALUE OF SEA POWER.

It is an accepted general rule that a man or a nation may have what can be bought and paid for. That should apply to naval defense and to ships and guns. But when it comes to buying things not needed on the "Keeping up with the Jones'" plan the over-expenditure of money reflects back again on the spender.

There is a deep, strong confidence among Americans in the ideas propounded by their ablest authority on sea power, Capt. Alfred T. Mahan. In a thoroughgoing manner he surveyed the events of modern history and concluded that a nation which wanted to gain and retain its place as a great world power must be strong in navy and naval fighting men. He proved from history, particularly of Great Britain and the United States, mainly in their relations with one another and with France and Spain, that while other matters might be of great account, there should be no neglect of naval power. Without that no great nation could maintain its place in the sun. That was abundantly proven in the Great War. Had the British navy been beaten in 1917-18 there would have been a compromise peace, if not complete surrender.

The issues which have been under consideration in London for the past few years are related to the security and maintenance of the British Empire. It was demonstrated to the men of this generation that naval competence should never be permitted to be threatened by neglect nor by any weak policy of sentimentality. The United States, France, Italy and Japan are all friendly to Great Britain now, but there is no positive guarantee of perpetual peace. There are powerful anti-British elements in the United States, those elements which prevented that country going to war when Germany committed an act of war against the United States in the sinking of the Lusitania. The "propaganda" so-called, which has been hard to overcome in the present instance, is not organized but quite spontaneous and is explainable by the willingness of certain sections of the press to give attention to one-sided versions of the Geneva conference. Knowing the magnanimous spirit of the British Government, Canadians should be prepared to support it in any such conference as this one at Geneva and help to overcome the traditional suspicion against Great Britain which finds too ready credence among Americans.

Until Canada is prepared to undertake to build and maintain a fair proportion of the naval power which is necessary for security, Canadians are excluded from taking their due part in settlement of such matters. We have faith in the intelligence of the Canadian people, who are witnesses of what is proceeding at Geneva, and have confidence they are willing to do their part in maintenance of sea power and keep the Empire secure in its position.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough people will show their love for their home city by deserting it on Civic holiday as usual.

Conservative delegates might be able to win favour in the West by helping to get in the harvest while they are out there.

Chicago is to get the Tunney-Dempsey fight principally because higher prices for seats can be charged in the Windy city. Prize fights are conducted nowadays on strict business principles.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Ont., July 30. — Opening with a heavy run of about 5,000 cattle for last Monday's market, accompanied with a spell of hot weather, trade took a turn to the dull side, excepting for anything of choice quality and well finished butcher stock. During the week, top quality steers sold steady from $8.25 to $8.75, in small lots, and a bunch of three prime quality beef steers topped the market at $9.10.

Baby beeves also sold steady to firm through the week.

For the bulk of the week's offerings the market suffered a general decline of from 50c to 75c. Fat cows and bulls, 75c to $1.00.

Western stocker cattle mostly of poor quality, swelled the week's receipts, and for this class of cattle trade was slow, with several hundred of the Westerners left over at the close.

Next Monday being a local holiday, there will be no market. For this reason a special effort was made to effect a clean-up of all the butcher stock before the week-end.

In the closingm arket there was a fairly active trade, and a general clean-up was effected at prices steady with the early declines.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, July 30 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain in the Montreal market yesterday was quiet, the demand from foreign buyers being only for odd loads of wheat and barley in nearby positions. The only demand of importance in the domestic market was for a few loads of No. 3 Canadian Western barley and a fair-sized lot of Argentine corn changed hands for domestic account.

The undertone to the Spring wheat flour market was easier, but there was no change in prices. The demand was quiet. Only a small trade was done in Winter wheat flour, but prices were steady.

Owing to the continued scarcity of some lines of millfeed and the good inquiry from outside sources, a very firm feeling prevailed in the market, but there was no change in values.

A fair trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices ruled steady.

A moderate amount of business was worked in all grades of eggs and prices were firm at the late advances noted. The receipts were 436 cases.

There was some demand from outside speculators for car lots of Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter yesterday and sales of odd cars were made at 34¼c to 34⅝ per pound, but apart from this the trade was quiet and values were unchanged. The receipts were 3,274 packages.

The local and foreign demand for cheese continued dull and prices were again easier. The receipts were 5,319 boxes.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Que., July 30—(Canadian Press). — Sterling, demand $4.85 9-16; cables $4.86 1-16.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 30 (Canadian Press).—Apart from a slight weakness reported from Nova Scotia there is no outstanding change in the condition of the egg markets in Canada yesterday.

Toronto.—The egg market is firmer. Dealers are quoting country shippers, extras 33 to 35, firsts 30 to 31, seconds 26 to 28.

Montreal — Market is strong and higher. Receipts are light.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Big deliveries here on July contracts had a decided bearish effect in the wheat market yesterday. Extreme weakness of the July delivery of rye counted also as a depressing factor and so likewise did fading-away of fears of crop damage by black rust.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1¼ to 2¾c net lower, with July rye 6½c down; corn ⅝ to ¼c off; oats showing ½ to 1⅝ decline, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.

End of the month settlement of July contracts, especially in wheat and rye became the dominating influence in the grain pits yesterday. Deliveries of wheat to fill Chicago July contracts were of exceptionally large volume, totaling more than 1,500,000 bushels.

July and September deliveries of wheat came together in price yesterday, July losing its premium and for a brief interval being at a discount under September. Meanwhile, advices from the northwest indicated that black rust was making little or no headway in the face of favorable weather, and leading authorities expressed belief that in the United States the Spring crop is now too far advanced to suffer material damage. Friends of higher prices for wheat were also handicapped by the fact that only a limited amount of export business appeared to be in progress.

The movement of new oats is expected to increase from this time on.

Provisions went lower with grain, despite an upward trend in hog value.

Oysters and clams contain about 100 times as much iodine as beefsteak.

CENTRE PARKING.

Mr. Editor: Just another brain wave, re angle parking at the curb, which is met with disapproval please omit the bricks.

Now that the Toonerville trolley has gone into the discard, apparently for good, and not before it was time, why not try angle parking in the centre of the street, as adopted in some narrow streets of other cities?

Such a method would leave both curbs clear, allow about 14 feet for traffic on each side of the parked cars—a real sunny position for cars—which the owners prefer to leave in the streets all through business hours; and lastly furnish a jumping space (before they are on the sidewalk, for motorists who accidentally step on the gas, instead of the brake, when parking.

A Thought For To-day

HARD BOILED.

I like people who are blessed with the element of hardness. They are people who live their own lives. They know what they want to do and have the strength to carry their plans through. Soft people cannot discipline themselves nor command the obedience of others. One cannot plan with them, because their weakness will not allow them to stick to a plan. They waste their lives in the valley of indecision. Such soft people become useful only when driven

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

HEY, MOVE OVER

A professor tells us that within three or four generations there will be a couple of billion more people in the world than the mundane spheroid can support. Then our experience in street cars will come in handy. . . . A palm leaf fan saves a great deal of calamity. . . . Anyhow the surplus would be taken care of by the number of people flying over and back by that time. . . . Seven billion people is no crowd at all to a man who has tried to take an automobile ride of a Sunday afternoon.

Disarmament is the process by which a country which has several obsolete battleships discharges them for nice new shiny cruisers.

Russia proclaims a defense week. Has somebody been trying to lend that country some money again?

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

For Sunday, July 31, 1927.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

This is an uncertain but inconsequential day in planetary direction, according to astrologers.

It is a time fairly fortunate for social companionships and neighborly visits.

Churches may be not well patronized since sloth and laziness are supposed to be encouraged by this position of the stars.

Families should be careful not to enter into discussions that have possibilities of dissension, for there may be much irritability developed under this sway.

Again both the army and navy will become much discussed. Criticism and disagreements are indicated for newspaper and other comments on government policies.

There is a trend in the planetary influences that is likely to add to the honors of those holding high places, while the less fortunate of the world suffer losses.

London astrologers now read that the Prince of Wales must choose a bride and they foresee a sudden change in his status.

Early autumn is to be a time when Neptune and Saturn affect Washington, D. C., unfavorably bringing danger of serious trouble.

Mexico may become involved in a new international incident that will disturb the United States.

Diplomacy is to be of prime interest in the autumn when American ambassadors will be put to the test in Europe.

The conjunction of Jupiter and Uranus this month in the martial sign of Aries is read as affecting the destiny of nations.

Military dictators are to arise and era of force is to threaten the whole world, according to astrologers.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have much change and activity in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will be lucky all through their lives. They are likely to be great travelers.

DRESS

Rather high necklines are favored on many of the new summer frocks. The straight high square is shown above at the left. At the right is a neckline higher at one side than the other and finished with grosgrain ribbon. Below is the new high v-neck.

Never before have women had so much to choose from in the way of collars and necklines. You may choose the high-collared frock if you like but there are as many smart daytime frocks without collars as with them. And there are necklines to suit all necks and all faces.

There has been a tendency recently to make the daytime decolletage rather high at the front. We are used to the high decolletage with the bateau or boat-shaped neckline. Now we have it with the square neck and even with the v-neck—so that we have a v that is decidedly spread out. This rather shallow v is surprisingly becoming to the woman with a shapely neck—though for the stout woman the deeper v is a better selection.

The outline of your favorite v or square neckline may be so firmly inburned upon your neck and chest that when you change for a low-cut evening frock the tanned silhouette is perfectly visible—a rich bronze wedge or square against the fair flesh tones around it. These tanned outlines are anything but attractive, and it is undoubtedly in order to preserve a fair white neck and chest and shoulders for evening that many women wear a high-collared frock. The only other way out of the difficulty is to get such an extensive coat of tan that even in a low-cut evening frock no untanned skin can be seen. The ordinary bathing suit permits you to get a really generous bronzing—though care should be taken not to burn to the peeling point.

BENDEL PRESENTS NEW MODES FOR WE

At the left, a sturdy tweed sports coat for late summer and fall vacation wear. Right, a sweater suit that combines practicability with individuality. Both are described in the accompanying article by Henri Bendel.

By HENRI BENDEL.

NEW YORK, July 30.—August will bring a change in vacation location for many families if this summer runs true to form.

Most women, after six weeks or two months in even the smartest watering resorts, seem to desire a change. Tennis and golf lost their allure and the zest seems to have fled from bathing and sailing.

And so the last span of the summer finds many persons deserting famous seashore places and taking to the woods, the mountains or even to the rough life of western ranches.

As they change their abodes, of course they must change their clothes. The new environment calls for a different type. Seashore clothes may be pastel shaded and fragile. But camping and roughing it demand a certain hardiness in attire to harmonize.

Tweeds and Such.

Materials for the mountains or woods or ranch differ from those for seashore clothes. So are the colors. Tweeds, twills, whipcords, homespuns and other sturdy materials supplant the colored silk dresses and floating chiffons. Colors are deeper.

I show today a tweed sports coat that combines practicability with charm in a manner ideal for the chill of the Rockies. Its color suggests the woods, a deep green of the pines, combined with lynx fur.

In its supple fullness and its flaring surplice closing it suggests the autumnal changes in styles that will come. The plain, straight coat with regulation opening will be passe this fall. Plain cuffs end the straight sleeve. The coat is lined with tan crepe de chine.

The hat I have designed for this costume is two shades of green. Its mushroom shape presages the autumnal style in headgear. While the new hats will give shade to the eyes, they will be more conservative in their brim sizes than summer hats. The velvet touch of deep green for banding and edging gives a satisfying richness and neatness at the same time.

A Sweater Suit.

The other costume I show today is a Patou model of sweater suit that is quite appropriate for afternoon mountain or ranch wear—that time when a woman wants to be feminine looking, but still appropriately dressed to climb a peak if necessary or tramp for a snap-shot or so.

As sweater suits become almost as ubiquitous as felt hats, I find pressing necessity for individuality. The woman who cares for her attire demands a touch of "something different."

This sweater gives it in its novelty wool and silk weave, which is hard like a fine homespun. Its colors shade from beige to yellow and then deep rose.

Wards Off the Sun.

The rose skirt is prodigal in the generous depth of its double box pleats. The scarf of two shades of rose wards off the sun from Milady's neck or adds a bit of warmth, as desired.

The rose felt hat really has a double brim. While one turns down accommodatingly to give the eyes desired shade, the other turns back to form the tailored looking banding around the crown.

This double brim treatment also is another sign of autumn styles. For as usual, the latest styles of one season hint broadly enough of the next season's modes, so that no shocking break comes in the continuity of fashions.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Informal afternoon calling upon one's neighbors was still the accepted thing in Faith's home town. She wondered, as she walked up a flower-bordered cement walk to the pretty stucco home of the young Edward Minnocks, why she had not identified herself with the social life of the neighborhood long ago.

A little girl of seven, in a hand-embroidered white linen frock, and short white socks that showed her play-scarred and sun-browned, knobby little knees, answered Faith's ring.

"I'll see if Mama is in," the child said primly, after she had stared owlishly at Faith for a moment.

"Tell her Mrs. Hathaway is calling," Faith smiled. The little girl was so much like Joy, her own little sister, now away at a girls' camp in the mountains.

But she was not smiling two minutes later when she turned to walk hurriedly down the flower-bordered walk. For the little girl had returned with the message: "Mama isn't in. She says—I mean, she'll be sorry she missed you."

Faith felt that the eyes of young Mrs. Minnock, who was undoubtedly watching her from behind the living room curtains, were gloating over the fact that ever the back of her neck was scarlet with humiliation. But—why? after Faith's marriage, had seemed eager to be friendly—

"Maybe," Faith tried miserably to reassure herself, "she was not dressed or had a headache or was going out of something. Of course she didn't mean to snub me. I'm glad I left my card. Maybe she'll return my call anyway—"

To prove to herself that she was wrong, Faith forced herself to walk proudly, with head erect, up the flagstone walk leading to the door of the next house on her list. There was a car—a pretty little blue coupe—parked in front at the curb, and Faith knew that it belonged to Mrs. Bronson, the mistress of the quaint little brown-shingled bungalow. Certainly she was at home!

A colored maid, with a ridiculous little lace cap askew on her shiny, black hair, answered the door. Faith, nervously uncertain as to the correct procedure, presented her card, which the maid scanned nearsightedly as she bore it away, leaving the door ajar.

Faith could not help hearing snatches of the conversation from an inner room. "Hathaway! That Cherry Wiley's sister—you know, Rose—murder—her baby—"

It took all of Faith Hathaway's courage to remain where she was, head high, eyes hot with humiliation and anger, until the colored maid came back, shaking her be-capped head with assumed regret: "Mis' Bronson say she sorry but she got a headache from the heat and is layin' down. She say call again, please."

"Call again! As if I were a bill collector!" Faith stormed to herself as she marched down the flagstone path, her head still high; but her face even more red than it had been after her rebuff from Mrs. Minnock.

She did not make another "call." She would have died rather than submit her bruised pride to another such snubbing. So she was a pariah on Serenity Boulevard! Serenity!

She wanted to run home, but she forced herself to walk sedately. And when she reached her own lawn she found a long, shining limousine drawn up to the curb. The Pruit's car! Faith felt like shouting aloud for her snubbing neighbors to look. Let them flout her. She still had friends!

Although Selma Pruitt, daughter of the Lincoln Pruitts, as the millionaire family was always called, and sister of George Pruitt, an erstwhile suitor of Faith's, was too thin and dark and intense, she looked beautiful to Faith that afternoon. For Faith had passed through Gethsemane: had felt, as she hurried home after having been crudely and obviously snubbed by her neighbors on Serenity Boulevard, that she could never hold her head up again. And here was Selma Pruitt calling on her, greeting her with an affectionate kiss. The Pruitt limousine, an imported French car, was parked before the Hathaway home for the whole neighborhood to see.

"I just ran in to invite you and Bob and Cherry to dinner on Wednesday, if you are free," Selma told Faith, when the two girls were served with iced tea and tiny, thin sandwiches by Mrs. Lundy. "I telephoned and the maid told me you were out calling on your neighbors. So I thought I'd drive down and deliver the invitation in person. I—thought you'd be back soon," she added, with elaborate casualness, but her eyes wavered away from Faith's.

"Thanks awfully, Selma," Faith said, swallowing at a sudden lump in her throat. "It—was kind of you to come. And—you were right. I—I wasn't gone long."

"I hope you won't think I'm a meddlesome cat, Faith, but will you let me tell you why I didn't think you'd be out long on your calls?" Selma raised her keen dark eyes to Faith's stricken brown ones.

"Of course!" Faith gasped, her face flooding with the scarlet of humiliation. "I—I know you're my friend, Selma."

"All right, then, old dear! Here goes!" Selma exclaimed with assumed gayety. "I have a cousin living in this neighborhood, you know. She may have called on you—I told her to. Mrs. Hunter Collins?"

Faith nodded, speechless. Mrs. Collins had called two weeks after her marriage to Bob——.

"Well, Marcia—Mrs. Collins—belongs to a bridge club that includes nearly every woman in the neighborhood. Call themselves the Bide-a-Wee Bridge Club, or some fool name like that. Marcia was at the house last night, and she said she had suggested to the other club members that they invite you to become a member. Well, the truth is——"

"I was blackballed?" Faith asked quietly, but her eyes were burning with anger.

"Something of the sort," Selma admitted. "Darned tabby cats! But it was because of Cherry—not you, of course. There seems to be a general idea that our little Cherry doesn't add to the social tone of Enfield. No, don't shut me up, Faith darling! You'd better know what they're saying. It seems that Cherry's trial for murder, in view of the fact that she was acquitted might have been forgiven her, but nas nature's haste in presenting her with a baby two months ahead of schedule is another matter.

"Do they think the baby—that it was Mr. Cluny?" Faith choked with anger.

"Heavens, no!" Selma repudiated the idea. "They think Chris Wiley is the father all right, but that that is the reason she didn't—couldn't—marry poor old Mr. Cluny, and that that explains the separation between her and Chris now. They believe Chris married her because she—well, you know, honey! There's no use harrowing you with details. I just thought I'd better warn you. I wish to heaven I had told you before you set out on your round of calls, you poor darling!"

"Thanks, Selma," Faith said stiffly, but she was praying that she could keep from crying until after Selma had gone.

"Of course George was wild, simply wild!" Selma went on cheerfully. "In fact it was his idea that I invite the three of you to dinner, but of course," she added hastily, as Faith's face flamed, "I had intended to for ages, but the weather, you know—so hot—"

"It is very kind of you and—George," Faith cut in quiveringly. "I'll see if Cherry or Bob has any other plans, and let you know. Now, would you like to see the baby? She's the most adorable thing, Selma——"

But now Faith was praying that Selma would go, go quickly, and leave her to her shame and her tears.

To Obtain Relief From Neuritis

The nervous system must be thoroughly restored. Here is a case which illustrates this point.

The twitching of nerves and muscles warned Mrs. Mapletoft of the exhausted condition of her nervous system. She also had frequent nervous headaches and persistent neuritis in her right side.

Only temporary relief can come from external applications for neuritis. To really get rid of the cause of trouble it is necessary to thoroughly restore the exhausted nerves by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. Wm. Mapletoft, Mount Forest, Ont., writes:—

"For about three years I suffered from neuritis in my right side. I had pains through my back and twitching of the nerves and muscles. I had also been operated on for appendicitis, and it left me a nervous wreck. I was very restless and uneasy, and bothered with frequent neuralgic headaches. My appetite was poor and I sometimes took weak spells. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and in a very short time I found relief. This medicine has done me the world of good and I can recommend it to all suffering as I was."

Progress

Since Confederation some of the greatest inventions of this or any age have been made. Among the many industries that have made such wonderful progress is the monumental industry. Only a few years ago the lettering, carving and finishing of them was all done by hand. Today we have electric and compressed air power to drive our chisels in place of the hammer and mallet.

This enables us to turn out more Monuments and do the work more perfectly. We are always pleased to show our workmanship and quote prices. Our plant is the best that money can buy.

BALDWIN MAY SEE COOLIDGE DURING VISIT

Suggestion From American Sources Approved in London Circles.

NO ACTION TAKEN.

British Do Not Consider Geneva Conference Failure, Although Hoping For Little.

LONDON, July 30 (United Press).—The suggestion emanating from New York that Premier Baldwin should take advantage of the opportunity afforded by his Canadian visit to see President Coolidge regarding the controversy between Great Britain and the United States over the naval disarmament question has excited much interest here, and is strongly endorsed in many quarters. The Government has not yet considered the suggestion, the British United Press is informed, because the British view is that the conference at Geneva has not yet broken down, although it is admitted that the hope of an agreement being reached, following the definite refusal by the United States of Britain's latest proposals, is like the hope for a man on a raft a thousand miles from shore.

If, however, the conference finally ends in a disagreement, there is little doubt that the suggestion will be discussed, but it is a matter more for Premier Baldwin himself than for any one in London, although naturally he would not take such an important step without consulting Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain and the Cabinet, a difficult procedure with most of the Ministers out of town for the summer recess.

Pipe and Smile

The first glimpse of Mr. Baldwin was characteristic. It was a pipe and a smile. A tender had been engaged for newspapermen to go aboard the Empress before the Royal party and British Premier left for the official reception, but the tender was slow coming alongside. An accommodation ladder was dropped, but the tender could not make it. A hawser snapped and the tender was further off than ever.

Above, through an open porthole, appeared the pipe and smiling face of Mr. Baldwin. He waved the pipe cheerily to the impatient newspapermen. A few minutes later his pipe left behind, he was receiving the newspapermen on board.

Baldwin Hopes for Success

QUEBEC, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin stepped on Canadian soil today with a firm hope that a definite conclusion would be reached at the disarmament conference. Premier Baldwin does not expect during his stay on this side to meet President Coolidge and discuss the situation with him. He had not heard of the suggestion, he said, when questioned on the point before he left the Empress of Australia. "I did not leave England until I was satisfied that our delegates could go back to Geneva with a fair hope of arriving at a conclusion and I am quite sure that no effort will be spared on our part to arrive at a conclusion. I further feel confident that if a definite conclusion is not arrived at, it will not be our fault," he added.

Will End Peaceably

GENEVA, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Although the British and United States delegation to the naval reduction conference apparently are as far apart as ever on the knotty eight-inch gun cruiser problem, feeling persists that if a break in the conference is inevitable, as seemed to be the case today, it will be effected without hard words being used on either side.

Japanese have shown particular anxiety that if the conference adjourns without reaching an agreement, nothing should be said at the final public session which might engender misunderstanding between the Powers concerned, but the opinion has been given that Japanese intervention will not be needed to tone down the concluding declarations of British and Americans.

INDIAN EMPLOYEES CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Try to Sneak Home When Ill, Thereby Spreading Diseases.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Men in India cause the State railways in that country plenty of worry during the cholera and malaria epidemics, according to Dr. T. H. Bishop, of Calcutta, who visited Winnipeg recently in the course of his first tour of the Dominion.

Dr. Bishop is one of the chief medical officers of the India State Railways.

Men have been known to disguise themselves as Purdah women in attempts to journey home while suffering from either cholera or malaria. Numerous other means of evading the medical authorities have been tried by the natives and often with disatrous results, Dr. Bishop stated.

Dr. Bishop cited last year as a case when evasion by the natives resulted in a malaria epidemic which proved so serious that it interfered with the operations of the trains as a large number of railway clerks were stricken with the disease.

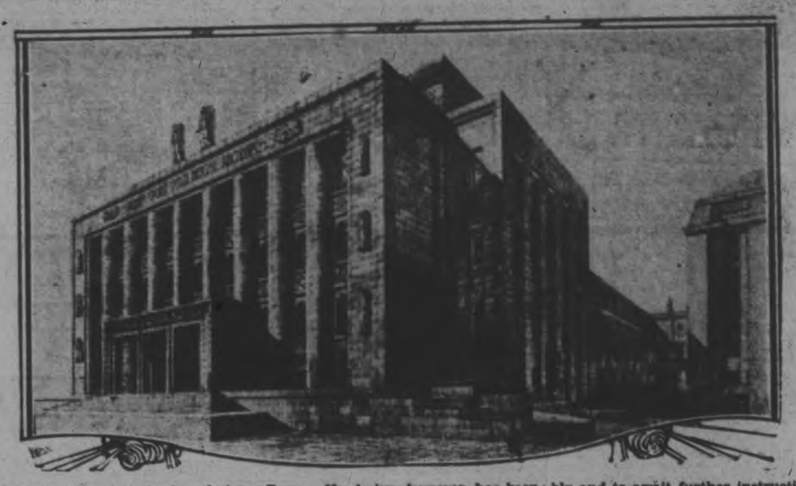
DESIGN SUBMITTED FOR PROPOSED LEAGUE PALACE AT GENEVA



One of the prize-winning designs for the proposed League of Nations Palace at Geneva, Switzerland, is that illustrated, which was submitted by Marcello Piacentini, Gaetana Rapisardi and Angelo Mazzoni of Rome. No design, however, has been finally accepted, the international jury of architects having decided to submit 27 out of the 377 proposed designs to the coming league assembly and to await further instructions. There were no British designs, or dominion plans, in the first twenty-seven which were considered by the jury as most acceptable.

NEW RULINGS ON TOURISTS

Auto Club Certificates Not Basis For Time Extension.

NINETY DAYS ALLOWED.

OTTAWA, July 30. — (Canadian Press).—New regulations governing the issuance of permits for tourists' automobiles have been issued by the Department of national revenue. The outstanding feature of the new regulations is that certificates from automobile clubs as a basis for obtaining an extension of permits will not be accepted in future.

On the other hand, the Department has notified collectors that permits for a period of sixty days will be granted to bona fide automobile tourists without bond or deposit with the privilege of thirty days' extension on application to the collector.

COUGARS PLENTIFUL AROUND VICTORIA

Come Right Into City and Steal Chickens in Spite of Hunters.

Chickens in Spits of VICTORIA, B.C., July 30 (Canadian Press).—Cougars are more plentiful on Vancouver Island this summer than ever before, according to hunters and wild-life experts.

Victoria itself has not escaped the depredations of the animals and chicken coops have been plundered frequently in spite of the activities of trained cougar hunters. This is the second summer in succession that Victoria has experienced a cougar scare.

Last July a cougar wandered into the downtown district, was pursued by a squad of armed police and finally shot down while it was crouching on the roof of a brick building near the heart of the city. A few weeks ago Charles E. Wilson, well-known Victoria barrister, almost drove into a cougar while on his way home in the exclusive Rockland avenue section.

The animal bounded into the woods and was seen several times by other people the next day but avoided capture. There have been several reports that the cougar has been recently in Beacon Hill Park, which could be reached by a wild animal only after prowling through a thickly populated district.

It is said that the gradual extermination of wolves and the late spring on Vancouvar Island have been mainly responsible for the presence of cougars this year in increasing numbers. Wolves were formerly abundant on the outskirts of Victoria and they sought practically the same prey as the cougars. The wolves have now disappeared save for a few isolated packs in the wilderness near the west coast of the island.

Half of Required Extra Harvesters Found in Province.

EDMONTON, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Twenty thousand men, besides employing farmers and their permanent help, will be needed to harvest Alberta's gain crop this year, according to the Provincial Labor branch. Of these, ten thousand are estimated to be within the province, eight thousand will be brought in from outside, and somewhat over two thousand have already been placed this summer in excess of the same date last year.

PROMINENT PEOPLE ATTEND CONGRESS

TORONTO, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Teachers and educationists are converging upon Toronto for the second biennial conference of the World Federation of Education Associations which will meet in this city August 7 to 12. Approximately two hundred delegates from Great Britain have arrived and a still larger number are heading for the city. Several Japanese delegates have reached the United States, as has also a small party from China which will be greatly augmented by Chinese teachers resident in America.

Committees of local teachers are busy arranging for the accommodation of the 6,000 delegates who are expected to attend. Half a dozen of the leading Toronto hotels have set aside blocks of rooms for the visitors, while the remainder will be looked after in the comfortable college residences. Meals will be served in Hart House, which is conveniently adjacent to University College, where the sessions of the conference will be conducted.

The majority of the British and foreign educationists visiting the city are leaders in public life in their native countries. Many of them have distinguished themselves as politicians and writers.

F. W. Goldstone, M.A., general secretary of the National Union of Teachers, was elected to the British House of Commons in 1910. He was leader of the teachers' panel of the Standing Joint Committee during the arbitration proceedings conducted by Viscount Burnham, in which capacity he presented the teachers' case for improved renumeration with convincing mastery. His association is the strongest teachers' body in the world, with a membership of 120,000.

Another interesting politician-teacher is T. J. O'Connell, T.D., general secretary of the Irish National Teachers' Organization, who was recently elected to the Lower House of the Irish Free State. The Irish National Teachers hold the distinction of being the only organization covering Ireland which has survived the past 20 years of strife. Mr. Cummins, another Irish teacher who will be present, is a member of the Free State Senate.

Prominent among the women delegates is Miss E. R. Conway, J.P. for the City of Liverpool, England. For more than a quarter of a century she has served as headmistress of various Liverpool schools. In 1918 she was elected president of the National Union of Teachers, being second woman to hold that distinguished position.

China is represented at the conference by Dr. F. W. Kuo, who has been honored with degrees by British and American universities in recognition of his scholarship. In addition to being a brilliant lecturer, Dr. Kuo is an author and editor. He edited the largest Anglo-Chinese dictionary in existence. He was organizer and first president of the National South-eastern University, Nanking, China. In 1924 he was appointed by the Chinese Government as a trustee of the China Foundation for the Promotion of Education, established with the Boxer Indemnity Fund recently returned by the United States. Dr. Kuo is a vice-president of the World Federation of Education Associations.

SCIENTISTS TRY TO AID SAILORS

CAUSE OF MANY WRECKS

VICTORIA, B.C., July 30.—(Canadian Press).—Science is planning conquest of the "silent zone" at Race Rocks, near here, which in recent years has been responsible for the loss of several ships and lives.

The agency that science will use is the radio beacon, and Race Rocks are to have the first radio beacon to be installed on the Pacific coast. The wireless beacon will be equipped with a modern valve transmitter using 500 watts, which in foggy weather will automatically send radio warnings to all vessels within seventy-five to 100 miles steaming within the radius of the treacherous tide rip shoals.

The beacon will surmount the difficulty caused by a freak of accoustics in the existence of a silent zone around Race Rocks and Bentinck Island, which was firmly averred by mariners plying the waters of Puget Sound from Tatoosh to Race Rocks inbound and outbound to mainland and island ports.

Though equipped with powerful fog-alarm apparatus, Race Rocks and Bentinck Island to the northeast of the Race have lured four vessels to disaster within the last twenty years under conditions that were so startling that the authorities made a full investigation of the peculiarities of the zone of deadened sound.

Of late years there was the steamship Siberian Prince outbound in a fog, which piled up in a rocky cradle on Bentinck Island. Almost as soon as the wreckage had been cleared away the Dutch ship Eemdyck was wrecked at almost the identical spot, despite the fact that the Race Rocks fog horn was roaring full blast at the same time, the sound disappearing into the mysterious silent zone.

One of the most notable cases on record happened in broad daylight, when a Canadian government service tug, without wireless, was standing out past the Race Rocks and was ordered back. To hail the tug, three men stood on the rocks below the lighthouse waving and shouting. Scarcely 100 feet separated the tug and the shore, yet the hail was not heard. Later, the crew of the tug, who had waved in return, stated they had not heard a sound, and though the foghorn had been pressed into service at the same time, it, too had brought no better response.

Bentinck Island and the wreck of the Eemdyck were the direct cause of one of the worst marine disasters every recorded in these water, when the tug Hope, proceeding with steevedores to the Eemdyck, ran foul of cables from the stranded ship and sank. Seven men lost their lives, while thirty others had an almost miraculous escape.

POULTRY INDUSTRY NEEDS INFORMATION

OTTAWA, July 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Need for more comprehensive economic information than is now available to the poultry industry for greater effort along co-operative lines and for deeper research as an aid to breeders were stressed in addresses before various sections of the world's poultry congress by the speakers from many countries today.

Champion Golfer Values Old Club

VICTORIA, B.C., July 30 (Canadian Press). — Rudie Wilhelm, Portland golfer, who walked on with the Pacific North-West amateur golf championship at the Colwood links here recently, is only an occasional player. He is one of those rare golf specimens who plays an accurate game whenever he goes on the course, whether or not he is in practise.

Winning golf matches and championships comes naturally to him, and it doesn't matter much what club he uses. But Rudie is superstitious. When he won the final round from Frank Dolp, runner-up at Colwood, Rudie turned to his caddie, and presented him with his golf bag and clubs. He said, "Here, son, I won't be using these for a while—want them?"

Of course, the caddie wanted them, and accepted them with a beaming smile. The incident meant nothing in the life of Wilhelm—until he was met by Bill Steedman, Seattle golf scribe. "Say," quoth Steedman, "you did not by any chance let that boy get away with that lucky sawed-off midiron of yours, did you?"

Wilhelm's championship smile vanished, and in another moment he was scouting for the caddie.

"I wouldn't part with that for a whole clubhouse," said Wilhelm in desperation. And then finally he found it—the ancient, useless-looking weapon that had brought its owner luck year after year on a dozen golf courses.

When Wilhelm left Victoria, the only luggage he carried with him, apart from his personal belongings, were his championship silver mug — and the battered midiron.

WASHINGTON, July 30 (Canadian Press).—One of the most extensive investigations in the history of the Federal Trade Commission is augured by its decision to inquire into the relations between the E. I. Dupont De Nemours Company, the General Motors Corporation and the United States Steel Corporation.

The Commission's order cited the published financial reports said to show the Dupont Company purchased large investments in the stock of the other two concerns while it also said the press reports asserted the Dupont concern made steel stock purchases with the expectation of having a number of directors in that organization as it now has in General Motors.

SALVATION ARMY VISITS WARSAW

Plains to Conduct Service There Every Sunday Afternoon.

MANY SERVICES HELD

WARSAW, July 30. — The Salvation Army held a service in Warsaw on the Post Office corner on Wednesday evening. A very large crowd assembled and stood with good attention.

The Army Boys' Band gave several selections, which were well received. One of the ladies sang a solo which delighted everyone. There was a selection on an accordion. In the singing of the hymns the crowd joined. Rev. H. B. Herrington led in prayer. Commandant Ham gave a short, earnest, and excellent address, in a clear voice which carried to those in the cars. They purpose coming to Warsaw on Sunday afternoons to try and reach those who do not attend any church. During part of the service, two young men sat on the monument with their feet dangling over the names of the dead.

Warsaw has many opportunities for divine service. An Anglican clergyman comes from Norwood every Sunday morning and evening alternately The Presbyterians have a Sunday School in the morning and a church service in the evening, conducted by a minister from Keene. The Baptists have a morning Sunday School and preaching service. The pastor comes from Indian River. The United Church has a morning Sunday School and an evening preaching service. The minister is resident in Warsaw, but has three other charges, and each alternate Sunday he goes as far as Carmel, and if these are not convenient, there will be Salvation Army afternoon services.

A WEAK STOMACH.

Can Be Strengthened Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Wonderful is the process by which the chemistry of the body changes the food we eat into blood. And the whole of our well-being depends upon this being maintained day after day, year in and year out. Sometimes the process becomes faulty, and then food begins to poison the blood instead of feeding it. This is followed by all the pangs of indigestion, such as gas on the stomach, pains around the heart, often nausea after eating, and a dislike for all kinds of food.

The only way to overcome these troubles is to tone up the digestion so that you can assimilate all your food. To do this you have only to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A short course of these pills will quickly tone up the stomach and banish indigestion. Here is a bit of convincing proof given by Mrs. Chas. Ladner, Ellerslie, P.E.I., who says:—"For some years I was a sufferer from stomach trouble. Everything I ate caused distress, sour stomach and belching. I could not eat meat or potatoes, and I grew weak and nervous. No medicine seemed to help me until I was persuaded to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these simply worked wonders. I took the pills faithfully for a couple of months by which time every symptom of the trouble disappeared, and there has not since been the slightest symptom of stomach trouble. No wonder I praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Labor Opposes Honor to Lauder

EDINBURGH, Scotland, July 29 (Canadian Press Cable). — Edinburgh City Council last night adopted a proposal to confer the freedom of the city on Sir Harry Lauder, the famous Scottish comedian, but this action was taken only after sentiments hostile to the proposal had been voiced by a considerable body of the councillors, notably the Labour members. The vote was 30 to 22 in favour of thus honouring Sir Harry.

CANADA COULD BUY AUSTRALIAN GOODS

Could Give Preference on Many Lines, Says Agent General.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 30.— (By Canadian Press),—Canada could take more Australian goods if she would only give preference to Australia over some countries from which she was importing products which Australia was ready to place on the Canadian market, Sir George Fairburn, agent general for the State of Victoria in England, stated here recently.

Sir George and Lady Fairburn visited Winnipeg on their way across Canada, enroute for home.

Australia was a competitor of Canada, Sir George said, although there need be no rivalry, for with proper adjustment of trade, there should be a market for all Empire goods. He was hoping to see a greater trade exchange between Canada and Australia.

VITESSE WINS GEORGE CUP AT COBOURG

THIRD RACE IS WON BY KATHEA 3EATS VITESSE

The Best Race of Series Was Sailed Yesterday at Cobourg.

ELEANOR THIRD.

Vitesse Wins Geoerge Cup, Taking Two Out of the Three Races.

COBOURG, Ont., July 30.—Plenty happened in yesterday's third and deciding race for the George Cup, which was sailed twice over an 8-mile windward and leeward course.

On the buck up to the first mark in a good wholesale southwest wind and big sea, Diana of the Kingston Yacht Club was dismasted, and to everybody's surprise Vitesse of the Rochester Yacht Club, easy winner of the first two races, was whipped to the weather mark by Kathea II of the Crescent Yacht Club of Watertown, N.Y., which won the cup last year, only to be disqualified on a construction rule.

At the end of the second leg, which was a four-mile run to leeward, which completed the first round of eight miles, Kathea led by seven seconds, with Vitesse second and Eleanor third. Vitesse had 13 seconds on Eleanor.

The start was terrible for all but Vitesse and Eleanor. They broke across the starting line within a couple of seconds of the gun, Eleanor in front, but Vitesse was a few lengths to windward and only a length astern. Kathea and Diana's skipper had evidently misjudged the time badly for they were caught to windward of the mark and lost plenty of time and distance getting across. Kathea was 200 yards behind the leaders, while Diana was another hundred behind her.

The battle to the windward mark was a keen one and provided the best contention of the series. Vitesse to windward of Eleanor held on after her both on the starboard tack. Five minutes after the start Windeyer decided to test Skipped Barrow's position and came about trying to cross her bows. He failed by half a boat's length and was forced to bear her away and cross her stern. However, he held away on the same tack, forced Barrows to follow him with Vitesse.

At 11.25 Windeyer tried his luck again and to everybody's surprise crossed Vitesse's bows and went on out after Kathea which under Eddie Lansing's careful nursing was showing her real class and was right up with the leaders. Eleanor crossed Kathea's bows and Vitesse came back and tried to do the same but she failed. Then Barrows tried to ride Viesse through Kathea's lee but was back winded and finally broke tacks and went across his stern. Meanwhile Windeyer in Eleanor, recognizing the fact that Kathea was the boat to beat at the moment rounded on Kathea's weather bow and tried to hold her. But he failed.

Kathea worked out from under his lee and was first at the buoy by 200 yards. Meanwhile Barrows and Windeyer fought it out. A half a mile from the mark Barrows took Vitesse across Eleanor's bows and seemed to have second place well in hand but he misjudged the buoy and had to take another short hitch. Windeyer in Eleanor made no mistake. He reached the buoy on his first stab at it from his inshore tack and rounded it right on top of Vitesse.

Smart canvas work by the R.C.Y.C. crew and the excellent judgment of Skipper Windeyer pulled Eleanor right back into the hunt. Windeyer sent his mainboom off to port and flung his spinnakr to starboard. The other pair reversed the operation, but they soon found that the young R.C.Y.C. skipper was right and they had to gybe over. In the first quarter of a mile Eleanor blanketed and passed Vitesse and set sail after the leader, Kathea. He just about caught Kathea, too, but Barrows dropped Vitesse down on him and gave him broken wind.

They fought it out all in a heap, all the way down before the wind, but in the excitement all three went a half mile to leeward of the mark. When they finally found it they dowsed their spinnakers and hauled up for it. Kathea still held a short lead, but Vitesse had Eleanor by 50 yards.

In the second roun of the course Kathea II. gave Vitesse and Eleanor a good lacing. The wind which had been about sixteen miles strong at the start had increased to eighteen to twenty and the lake was freckled with white caps. The Watertown boat just revelled in the heavy going and showed all and sundry that Viesse's reputation as a "horse" in hard weather was a myth of the Rochester crowd's imagination. Vitesse had all she wanted to do to hold Eleanor and the Toronto boat is a light air craft. Kathea had well over half a mile lead at the windward buoy the second time around and rolled home the last four miles sitting pretty and unthreatened at any stage.

Vitesse and Eleanor fought it out up to the windward mark, but the Rochester boat worked out a lead of a couple of hundred yards which was sufficient to keep her free of Eleanor's blanket on the road home.

The finishing time:
Kathea II.—1.57.03.
Vitesse—2.00.05.
Eleanor—2.00.58.

Ball Fan Lacks Mental Poise

PHILADELPHIA, July 30. — A man who would stand in line for hours for a seat in the bleachers, and then shout himself hoarse rooting for his favorite baseball team is not well-balanced mentally, in the opinion of Dr. Thaddeus L. Bolton, Professor of Psychology at Temple University. He may not be abnormal, but he is not gifted with good mental poise, Dr. Bolton said to-day.

"The well-balanced man," said Dr. Bolton, "will not become fanatical in his love for one particular sport to the exclusion of all others. If he does he is suffering from a mental hypertrophy.

"A hypertrophy," explained Dr. Bolton, "is a growth. There are mental and physical hypertrophies. Physically they manifest themselves in the form of corns, bunions, boils, etc.; mentally in the case of the baseball fan, by a tendency toward overardent hysterical devotion to the one particular sport."

WILD HORSE BUYERS STILL IN BUSINESS

Working Now Gathering Wild Horses for Soviet Government Farms.

KAMLOOPS, B.C., July 30.—"Wild Horse" Jack Byers is here, supervising the roundup of horses to be sold to the Soviet government of Russia. "Wild Horse" Jack is a true human link with the "wild west" and he is credited with having handled more bronks than any other man in Canada.

Several years ago he realized what a lot of good Canadian horseflesh was going to waste on the plains of Alberta and in the sage brush and bunch grass country of British Columbia. He rounded up eighty head of these so-called wild horses and went on an experimental journey to Europe with them.

He played the part of travelling salesman and the string of horses was his sample case. He toured nine countries with them and disposed of them at favorable prices. Most important, he established the reputation of the Canadian horse in the markets of Europe. Partly as a result of that trip 1000 horses were sold to Russia last year. Additional thousands are to be sold this year.

But this does not mark the commencement of Jack Byers' experience with shipping horses. Back in the early years of this century he was wrangling horses to be sent to the British Army in South Africa and he undertook the same duties during the Great War. Russia is buying horses in this country in preference to other countries because they are able to withstand climatic conditions better. Experiments with stock form the Argentine were not successful.

Russia's present scarcity of horses dates from the time of the big German drive, just prior to the revolution when the breeding mares at the numerous government horse farms in both Russia and Russia Poland were seized and taken to Germany.

YANKEES LOSE TO CLEVELAND

Hugmen's Winning Streak of Six Straight Games is Broken.

CHICAGO WINS.

NEW YORK, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Although outhit by the Yankees by 14 to 11, Cleveland defeated New York in the first game of a series here yesterday by six to four, breaking a six straight winning streak of the Hugman. Neither Ruth nor Gehrig hit homers, though the Babe made three hits in as many tries. Grabowski, Yanks' catcher, split a finger on Luke Sewell's foul tip in the fifth inning and retired in favor of Collins. Hudlin was pounded hard but he tightened in the pinches.

White Sox Win.

The Chicago White Sox took the opening game of a series at Philadelphia by a score of 6-4. Alphons Thomas was unsteady at the start, walking four men in the first inning, but settled down and held the Athletics to seven scattered hits. The visitors drove Jing Johnson out of the box in the fourth inning when they scored three runs on a double, two singles and a hit batsman.

Browns Lose.

Behind Ruffing's six-hit pitching at Boston the Sox won their first game of the season from St. Louis. The score was 8-2. The Browns before yesterday had won ten straight from the Red Sox. Ruffing's hitting was as spectacular as his pitching. In the seventh the Sox bunched hits off Crowder for six runs. The feature of the big inning was a triple steal headed by Rothrook.

Senators Win.

Washington took the home series opener yesterday from Detroit 5 to 4 in 11 innings. After trice wresting the lead from the Tigers, with the score tied at 2-2 the teams scored a run each in the tenth and Detroit repeated in the eleventh. The Senators, however put over two markers after two were out with a walk to McNeely and singles by Ttate, Harris and Speaker. Zachary, pitching his second game for the Senators, held Detroit to six hits but was taken out in the final inning when the first man up tripled.

Mister Sporting Editor:

It looks to me, Mac, like the newspaper experts was the biggest loser in the Dempsey-Sharkey tangle, except Mister Sharkey hisself. It was bad enough to have the Boston pug sunk after the most of the paper sharps called him to win, but worse than that, the boys on the sporting sheets ain't able to agree yet as to whether Mister Sharkey was submarined or not. They seen the fight and they seen the pictures, slow motion and all, and now they is about 50-50 as whereabouts on Mister Sharkey's sun-parlour Mister Dempsey planted his right lunch-grabber. Ist thing them experts'll know the customers is going to subscribe for a tin cup, a ½ dozen lead pencils and a "Please help the blind" sign for them. It looks like as if they been shuting their eyes and calling them like a lotta ball umps do.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, I see where some of you fellows and Ald. Greene is been in a jam about J. Stevenson Park. You birds is hard to get along with. You don't never give the city fathers credit for nothing. Ain't they raised the best crop of hay a guy would want to look at over in the ball yard this year? Even on the base paths they is 2 blades of grass under city ownership where none was known before, and yet some of you grousers on the paper raise a howl because you think the city oughta saved a building for a club-house. They don't need no club-house over there. What they want is a barn with a darn good haymow.

Among them on the sidelines when Oshawa Motor and the Kiwanis Jrs. was playing Wed. night was yours truly. Mister Herb. Wolfe, late of the village, was in charge of the boys from Motorville, and he has a right smart crew. The young Petes looked bad up there at the plate, and they're going to need a lotta batting practice if they want to cover much territory in the playoffs. The 1st two twirlers Oshawa used had them dizzy fishing after hooks, and even the last bird, which wasn't a pitcher at all, fanned a pair in the 1 inning he worked. The boys want to get in there and get all the work they can before the playoffs is staged because soft pitching is the 1 thing you can't look for when the finals is in sight.

Mon., Mac, the horses get their inning down at Exhibition Park, and them what don't show their civic spirit by getting out of town oughta get a lotta fun out of seeing the fiery steeds in action. My best selection for the day is either Belle Mahone or Lou Grattan to win the matched race. You can play that 1 right on the nose, gang.

And if the horse racing don't get you there is a East Peterboro League game on the cards during the p.m. at the Exhibition Grounds, so there is a double bill for the 1 price of admission. This E.P. race is closer'n U.S. automobiles in front of Mister Hanna's store, No. 45, and every game is full of pep.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, you'd had enough from me for this week, and I'll jump right here.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

JAPAN WINS FROM MEXICO

Takes Opening Match in the Davis Cup Elimination Games.

EARLY LEAD.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 30 (Canadian Press).—Japan took the opening match in the Davis Cup teams contest from Mexico at the Triple A. Club here yesterday. Yoshire Ohta, Japan, defeated Robert Kinsey, Mexico, in a thrilling five-set battle. The score was 2—6, 1—6, 6—4, 6—1, 6—2.

Kinsey opened a strong chop stroke in the first set which bewildered Ohta. The second set was somewhat similar to the first although Ohta showed some improvement in this set, his overhead being more accurate.

In the third set Ohta was leading 2 to 1, in games, and Kinsey took the first point of the fouth game when rain stopped the match. Resumption of play in the third set marked the turning of the tide in favor of the Japanese player.

FIVE EVENTS ARE CAPTURED BY ARGONAUTS

First Time in Three Years the Double Blue Takes Eight Oared Event.

AT HENLEY MEET.

Fewer Championships Will Go To United States This Year.

REGATTA, ST. CATHARINES, July 30. — Argonauts of Toronto captured five events out of the first eleven at the Royal Canadian Henley here yesterday afternoon.

For the first time in three years the double blue captured the junior heavyweight eight-oared event, stroked by M. Murdock.

They rowed a smashing race and showed their superiority at all times. This is the first year in eleven that the famous Joe Wright has headed the Argonaut delegation, and they certainly show the results.

The crew will row in the final event of the senior race against the survivors of yesterday's heats, and will give any one of them a real battle. They row well together, and are certainly powerful.

The Results.

The second day's results at the C. A. A. C. Regatta held on the Royal Canadian Henley Course yesterday afternoon demonstrated one fact very clearly—that fewer championships are going to the United States this year than in the past few years.

Out of the eleven final events decided yesterday, Argonauts of Toronto captured five, McGill University coming next with two firsts. Below is the complete standing of the various competing clubs at the Regatta yesterday by points:

Clubs—	1st	2nd	3rd	Tl.
Argonauts, Toronto	5	0	2	17
Detroit	0	4	1	9
St. Catharines	1	2	0	7
McGill University	2	0	0	6
Dons, Toronto	1	0	2	5
Westside, Buffalo	1	1	0	5
Leanders, Hamilton	1	0	0	3
Ottawa	0	1	0	2
Brockville	0	1	0	2
Wyandotte, Mich.	0	1	0	2
Toronto University	0	0	1	1
Bachelor Barge, Phil.	0	0	1	1

It will be observed from the above that although Detroit stands second in the matter of points, the Michigan Metropolis has not as yet annexed one championship.

By the elimination of W. Garret Gilmore from the senior singles yesterday any danger of the coveted honour going back to the United States was decisively removed, for only Canadians will compete in the finals.

Gilmore, however, a former holder of the Canadian singles championship put up a strong bid for the honour again, but although he covered the course at a faster clip than ever before, he was six lengths behind.

Junior Clubs, Working Boat.

1—St. Catharines, Alguire, stroke.
2—St. Catharines, Healey, stroke.

Championship Singles, First Heat, One to Qualify.

1—Jos. Wright, Jr., Argonaut R. C., Toronto.

Time—7.53 3-5.

Gilmore was away first at the start. Fifty yards and Wright had his nose in front. Ten strokes more and the Henley finalist had a length. In a quarter of a mile Wright had three lengths, and was flying away, rowing thirty strokes to the minute, while the Philadelphian was rowing thirty-two. Gilmore put on more speed, but still Joe held his lead, rowing steadily, and finishing by at least ten lengths to create a new course record.

Championship Singles, Second Heat, One to Qualify.

1—Frank A. Adams, Vancouver, B.C.
2—J. Durnan, Argonauts R. C., Toronto.

Time—8.12 2-5.

Both broke water together. Durnan was rowing a faster stroke, but Adams was holding him at the quarter mile. At the half mile Adams had two lengths. At the mile Durnan had cut the lead in two. Adams kept his man in hand, and did not extend himself until the last two hundred yards. He won by three lengths, and finished fresh.

Senior Eights, First Heat, One to Qualify.

1—Wyandotte B. C., Wyandotte, Mich.
Detroit B. C., Detroit, Mich.
3—University of Toronto R. C., Toronto.

Time—6.45 3-5.

Detroit was in front at the quarter mile. Wyandottes pulled up and were a shade in front at the mile, and soon had a length. Varsity was three lengths behind. Wyandotte won by four strokes.

Senior Eights, Second Heat, Two to Qualify.

1—Winnipeg R. C.
2—Argonaut R. C., Toronto.
3—Lachine R. C., Montreal.
4—Toronto University.

Time—6.46.

Winnipeg at the half-mile had an appreciable lead, with Lachine in striking distance, with Argos close, and Varsity trailers. In the last half mile, Argonauts pulled to within three-quarters of a length of Lachine, who were nearing the leaders. It was a great finish for the first three. Argos were second by inches on Lachine.

CARDINALS WIN.

Tenth Inning Rally Gives Chicago Game Over Giants.

NEW YORK, July 30 (Canadian Press).—The Pirates continued to hold undisputed sway in the National League by staging a timely rally in the ninth at Pittsburgh to down Brooklyn by 4 to 3. Trailing by two runs in the last frame, Lloyd Waner led off with a single and after Grantham was retired, came home on a double by his brother. On top of that came Traynor's triple, driving in the tying run and Plitt out of the box. Clark replaced Plitt and walked Cuyler and Harris to take a chance on Wright, who lined a hit off the right field stands to decide the game.

Cardinals Sweep Series.

The Cardinals made a clean sweep of the St. Louis series with Philadelphia, winning yesterday's game 6 to 3. The Cardinals took the lead in the third inning by scoring four tallies on two singles, a walk and two doubles, after two men were out. In the eighth Schuble tripled, scoring Southworth and Schulte for the other two counts. Haines held Philadelphia to four scattered hits and won his fifteenth victory of the season.

Chicago put over a thrilling tenth-inning rally yesterday to subdue the Giants by 5 to 4, before 32,000 fans, the largest week-day crowd of the season.

The attendance was boosted by the observance of "Ladies'" Day.

The New Yorkers tied the score in the eighth and took a one-run lead in the tenth, only to have the encouraged Bruins push over two tallies in the last half of the inning. Stephenson hit a home run.

A SQUARE PLAN HOUSE OF ENGLISH DESIGN

This home is of the popular square plan type and equally popular, English domestic architecture. The former has an economical influence on cost while any architect will tell you that "English domestic" can be relied upon for delightful appearance.

Is there not a refreshing contrast between such a bright and distinctive hooded entrance and the dreary, light obstructing verandah approaches to the majority of our thresholds. Compare, if you will, the difference in character between this attractive lantern light fixture and the common, bargain day, globular beacon we all know. Other interesting features closely associated with this entrance are the narrow, latticed window which is equally effective from the inside and the stone number plaque over the door.

The shutters, window box and lattice are painted a bright blue, creating a pleasing bit of diversion from the white, marble dashed stucco of the walls. The number plaque is also painted blue with the exception of the cut in figures which are left in the natural stone finish.

Dipped cedar shingles in four shades of brown with ten per cent red, laid staggered, entice the eye to the very peak of the roof where in the same region it will find further interest in the chimney top. The cement cap is painted black and the tile pots a bright red.

Passing on for a brief review of the floor plans, you will find that all rooms have desirable dimensions and are exceedingly well looked after from the viewpoint of light.

The living room is 13 ft. x 21 ft. and has an open fireplace with blue tile hearth. The mantel and all-wood trim is finished in white enamel. The sunroom, 8 ft. x 13 ft., is separated from living and dining rooms by double glazed doors and there is also another similar door between the latter rooms. This means that all the necessary light and cross-ventilation for the dining room is provided by only having openings in one outside wall. The kitchen is 12 ft. x 7 ft. and the window and sink are quite properly placed co-relatively.

Ascending the attractive stairway with its mahogany stained rail; white newels, risers and trim, and black treads, we find on the second floor a bright square plan hall. This could be used for a sewing room, or, in a pinch, an extra bedroom, as there is a door between it and the bedroom hall. A modernly appointed bathroom and three good sized bedrooms with clothes closets complete the accommodation on this floor, but there is also a maid's bedroom in the attic.

Including hot air heating the approximate cost of this home is $8,300.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications for this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address, W. Stuart Pavey, 380 Richmond St., London, Ont.

CANADA WELCOMES

the party moved off rounds of cheers went up for the royal visitors and for Stanley Baldwin, who comes as a private citizen. Other cars, thirty in all, bore officials and other members of the parties to the Chateau Frontenac, where the Province of Quebec is entertaining the guests.

Actually the first aboard the Empress of Australia were newspaper correspondents, who were carried out on a Canadian Government tender. Passengers lined the Empress railing and found amusement while the small vessel tried for half an hour to make fast to the great hull of the Empress.

Missionary of Peace

"A missionary of peace, bonne entente, and friendship,—in such words, spoken in French, Premier Taschereau of Quebec on behalf of his Government, today welcomed the Prince of Wales to Quebec. "Some day," Premier Taschereau added, "you will reign over the greatest empire of the world. Canada will be and will wish to remain part of that empire."

Premier Taschereau's speech was made at the lunch given by the Provincial Government of Quebec in honor of the two Royal Princes and of Premier Baldwin.

Warning

Sub-section 18 of Section 10 of the Highway Traffic Act requires that on and after the 1st of October next ALL HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES must carry in a conspicuous place on the left side thereof a lighted lamp showing white to the front and red to the rear.

Any lamps so used shall be clearly visible at a distance of at least 200 feet.

These Lamps are now on the market and can be had from

KARL SIMPSON
460 GEORGE STREET
Phone 574W. Peterboro, Ont.

This Lamp has been submitted to the Department of Public Highways, Toronto, and meets all requirements.

It is windproof, vibration proof and burns ordinary coal oil 15 hours in one filling, which permits one to travel 90 miles if necessary without attention.

Don't confuse this with a toy electric lamp whose battery would be useless on one two-hour continuous drive, to say nothing of the rest of it.

I respectfully wish to advise, especially, that if you travel behind a horse in the evening, your life is in danger even from the most careful motorist if you haven't a light, and there will be a lot of people unnecessarily injured before October 1st, to say nothing of property loss, if they neglect this matter until that date.

I will be glad to show these lamps to anyone from 8.00 a.m. to 6.15 p.m. and in the evenings from 7.30 to 9 p.m. at the above address.

Those who have already ordered from me can get their lamps anytime now, and those I have promised delivery in North Monaghan and Smith will go out in the next few days.

Get your order in now while the price is low. It may have to advance.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPELLFORD, July 30.—Lieut. Hallam of the Salvation Army has taken his departure for another field of labor. He will spend the week-end in Toronto, when he will probably learn of his new appointment.

Big preparations are being made for the Open Tournament at the Campbellford Bowling Club on Monday.

District Deputy, Mrs. Throw, of Trenton, paid a visit to the Rebekahs on Thursday night. The degree work was put on in her honor and won favorable comment from the district deputy. On conclusion of lodge ceremonies the forty members present retired to the Clifton Tea Room for refreshments. Mrs. Smith, the proprietress of the tea rooms, and a Rebekah, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks by her sister lodge members for the use of her very comfortable tea room for this part of the entertainment of the District Deputy.

The Rebekahs are holding a picnic at Twelve o'Clock Point on Monday.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and St. John's United Church held their Sunday School picnics yesterday. St. John's going to Presqu'ile Point, and St. Andrew's to Crow River Bridge. It was an ideal day and being a half holiday for the local merchants, a large number attended at both places.

COMMERCIAL USE OF ROADS PROBLEM

Will be Discussed at Meeting of Good Roads Association.

MONTREAL, July 29.—As at previous gatherings of the Canadian Good Roads Association, the pressing problem of the commercial use of the highways will receive due consideration in the drawing up of the agenda for the fourteenth annual convention, scheduled to be held at the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, Ont., on September 27th, 28th and 29th next. With the remarkable development of bus traffic throughout Canada and the equally rapid increase in the use of the truck as a common carrier for hire the question of levying upon such vehicles their rightful proportion of the cost of building and maintaining highways has become an acute issue in governmental and municipal circles, while it also affects the individual citizen to an extent that many do not realize.

Up to the present, Canada's improved roads have for the most part been provided by direct taxation upon private owners of pleasure or industrial motor vehicles, who now contend that operators of common carriers on the highways, both for passengers and freight, should bear a share of the expenditure based upon their profits and the destructive effect of their unusually heavy vehicles upon the road surfaces.

The determination of an equitable apportionment of charges as between such public carriers and private owners is one of the most difficult questions which confront the financial and highways departments of the various provincial governments, and it is in the endeavor to secure for their guidance the fullest possible data that the Canadian Good Roads Association keeps the question to the fore at its successive gatherings.

One of the most constructive treatments of the problem so far brought forth was that contained in a paper read at the Edmonton convention last year by J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles for Ontario, who, after reviewing the legislation in force in several provinces, summed up the duties and responsibilities of governing authorities in respect of common carries on the highways as including regulation of rates and schedules, compulsory insurance against damage to goods or injury to the person, prevention of unfair competition with the railways and other long-established common carriers, collection of fees of taxes commensurate with the use made of the highways, and generally such measures as will fully protect the interests of the public as a whole. In his conclusion Mr. Bickell said:

"The whole question of transportation by passenger bus and by truck is one which must receive careful consideration and be watched lest it get beyond control. Undoubtedly the common carrier motor bus and truck have a place in the transportation scheme of our country. As these forms of transportation have many advantages over the railways for local travel or service, public necessity and convenience would seem to warrant their further development.

"However, if buses and trucks continue to increase in number, and their use by the traveller or by the shipper continues to grow at the same rate as it has in recent years, special highways will be required for this traffic exclusively, and it is not doubtful what will be the effect on the railways, the established means of transportation in which we have millions invested and on which we are bound to depend for service which neither the bus nor the truck operator can ever hope to provide."

VANCOUVER SHIP IS LOST AT SEA

Fate of Motorship Apollo, Six Weeks Overdue, is Unknown.

HAS NO WIRELESS.

VANCOUVER, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Fourteen men, mostly Canadians or from the Old Country, are believed to have gone to their deaths on the Vancouver-owned motor ship Apollo within the last six weeks or else to be undergoing an epic struggle on a disabled vessel with no wireless with which to call aid.

The Apollo left here on May 26 loaded with lumber for England and has not been heard from since June 12, when she left Mazatlan, Mexico, for Balboa, after effecting temporary repairs to her starboard engines at the latter place.

It is not known whether the ship has foundered or, again disabled, is being buffeted helplessly about the Pacific Ocean. Shipping lines have been advised and a watch is being kept for her. Mazatlan is about nineteen hundred miles from Balboa.

MOIRA TAKES FOXBORO BOY

ONE ARMED HERO.

BELLEVILLE, July 30 (Canadian Press).—Ross Nicholson, aged 18, was drowned last night in the Moira River near Foxboro. He, in company, with Harry Waldron, were playing on a mattress and Nicholson became fatigued and fell off. Waldron, although having only one arm, made frantic efforts to save him, but Nicholson fought so hard that Waldron had to leave him and go to shore in an exhausted condition.

The river at this point is very swift and although grappling has been used since the drowning last night no trace of the body has yet been found.

5,000 HARVESTERS FROM WEST COAST

Annual Trek to Prairies Will Start in Few Weeks.

VANCOUVER, B.C., July 30. — (Canadian Press.)—The annual trek of farm laborers from the Pacific coast to the prairie wheat fields will commence in a few weeks, and probably more than 5,000 will make the journey, according to labor department officials here.

Every summer, British Columbia Columbia coast cities assist in meeting the prairies' demand for harvesting labor. Men who spend the winter and spring in the logging camps or in the mining country drift into the cities during the summer and from their number many of the harvesters are included. Special returns fares' rates are offered the men on Canadian railroads.

The employment service of Canada distributes the men according to the demand, placing them on wheat farms in Alberta Saskatchewan, and Manitoba, although most of them go to the two western provinces, the east usually taking care of the supply of labor for Manitoba.

When the harvest is over the men return to the coast again. It is probable that most of the year's harvesters will be back by October. Last years British Columbia contributed 8,000 men for service in the prairie wheat fields. The number required and the date of their departure from the coast depends on the condition of the crop. Definite reports as to the demand will not reach the coast for several weeks.

Black Rust Spreads; Wheat Prices Go Up

CHICAGO, July 30. — (Canadian Press).—Wheat scored sharp upturns early to-day after an irregular start. The gains were associated largely with word from a leading crop expert that black rust had made more progress in Northern South Dakota than expected. Opening at 5-8c decline to a shade advance, wheat suddenly jumped in some cases more than three cents a bushel. Corn, oats, and provisions also were firmer, corn starting 1-8 cent to ¾ cent up and subsequently holding near to initial figures.

Rails Take Over Lead On New York Exchange

NEW YORK, July 30 (Canadian Press). — Constructive forces were again at work in to-day's stock market, with major speculative operations for the advance shifting from the industrials to the rails. Heavy buying of Pennsylvania, which moved up more than a point to 66, the highest level since 1910, featured the railroad group.

Hudson assumed leadership of the motor group by moving up more than three points to a new 1927 high around 89. General Motors also was generally active and heavily bought around its recent high levels, but the other motors failed to make much headway. United States Steel Common and Dupont were under pressure.

International Harvester extended its gain to more than five points, and Timken Roller Bearing and Green Cananea each moved up about three points to new high levels. Radio Corporation was weak.

The closing was firm. Total sales approximated one million shares.

WASHINGTON UNABLE TO ACCEPT NEW BRITISH NAVAL PROPOSALS

They Are Described as Being Less Acceptable Than Original Plans.

SCHEME OF EXPANSION.

Governmental Circles Wish To Lay Blame of Break-up on Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — The Washington government feels that in view of the finality of the latest British proposals to the disarmament conference in Geneva, an agreement is impossible and there remains only the necessity of each government to make clear its position in the adjournment of the conference.

Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of War Wilbur went over the latest British proposals yesterday and, it is understood, found them entirely unacceptable.

They were described as being less acceptable than the original proposals.

Governmental circles are apparently anxious to make it appear that the responsibility for the break-up of the conference would rest on Great Britain, because, they insist, her scheme calls for expansion rather than limitation.

Coolidge Refuses Plans.

President Coolidge will not accept the British proposals for limitation of naval armament presented to the conference at Geneva.

President Coolidge called the conference and he is apparently still hopeful that further discussions may bring about modifications in the British attitude.

The President interprets the expressed desires of Great Britain as calling for construction of a larger navy than the United States is willing to build.

Cabinet Meets.

London, July 30.—The situation at the tri-partite naval conference in Geneva, as outlined in messages from W. C. Bridgeman and Viscount Cecil, the British delegates, was considered at a cabinet council to-day. It was authoritatively stated last night, however, that no special significance attached to yesterday's meeting.

The cabinet is said to have made no fresh decisions. It is understood that the ministers had before them nothing in the shape of an official reply from Washington to the proposals which the British have submitted to the naval conference.

Another cabinet council was expected to be called on Monday to receive any further communications from Mr. Bridgeman and Viscount Cecil arising from the plenary sitting of the conference on that day. It was stated that this council might be of a more critical nature than that of to-day.

The hurried calling of yesterday's cabinet council was explained as being due to the fact that through an oversight, the ministers had not been warned overnight of a meeting as is customary.

Press Comments.

The English press in its comment on the Geneva disarmament conference, is rather despondent of success.

The Daily Mail in an editorial says that failure will be unfortunate but certainly not tragic. It continues:

"It is ridiculous to support that because Great Britain and the United States have not yet been able to find the precise formula required, that Great Britain is going to embark on any vast programme of warship construction.

"There is no more reason to regard the growth of a big United States navy with alarm than there would be for Scotland to worry because the big British armament factories are situated in England."

The New Statesman, a weekly publication, declares that any liberal or labor government in England would follow just the same attitude as the present government on the naval question. It adds:

"We disagree amongst ourselves about figures, but we are practically unanimous about main principles on which our delegates at Geneva are insisting."

The Nation, another weekly, expresses the fear that a failure of the conference would have disastrous results on Anglo-American relations, and says that the government should exert every effort to avert a failure.

WAR ON CANCER IS PROGRESSING

Remarkable Moving Pictures Shown To British Empire Cancer League.

MORE HOPE IN RESEARCH.

LONDON, July 30.—(Canadian Press).—Extraordinary moving picture films showing the growth of cancer cells were mentioned in the report submitted to the annual meeting of the British Empire Cancer Campaign at the House of Lords.

"The films," writes the Daily News medical correspondent, "resemble those of a flower unfolding.

"Perhaps we are on the eve of great discoveries that will do away with the present methods of treatment—X-rays, surgery, lead and radium. At any moment a weak spot may be found and a break-through may occur.

"Meanwhile steady progress is being made in the capture of outposts."

Hopeful Tendency.

The "concentrated attack which is being made on the cancer problem from many different angles," was referred to by Sir Thomas Horder at the meeting. Although the campaign was far from the point at which it could even pause in its efforts, said Sir Thomas, there was apparent a more hopeful tendency in recent research than had been the case before.

In studying the growth of living cancer cells by moving pictures the cells must be kept in a special container to abolish the vibration of passing traffic, which would spoil the photographs.

This container is placed on a concrete bed, which is in turn placed on layers of sorbo sponge, resting on a large block of concrete let into the ground. The whole structure is isolated from the floor of the room in which the photographs are taken.

Two-Day Films.

Over the top of the observation incubator is a moving-picture camera. The mechanism for opening and closing the shutter and for turning the film around once is all controlled by means of an electric clock. Photographs can be taken at intervals of 10 seconds, 30 seconds or one minute. The photographs are taken over a period of time up to two days. In order to show the result on a moving-picture screen the film must of necessity speed up as much as 960 times.

Though all the blood-tests suggested have so far been found wanting, much is hoped from Dr. Lumsden's work on natural and acquired resistance to the disease, of which Lord Cave says, in his preface to the report: "If these researches can be confirmed, it is obvious that they may prove to be of outstanding importance in connection with the problem."

A CORRECTION.

The automobile that was in the accident at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets on Thursday belonged to A. T. Fontaine and not to J. Fontaine as was stated in The Examiner last night.

WHEAT HARVEST LATE THIS YEAR

Will Not Be General on Prairies Before End of August.

WINNIPEG, July 30.— (Canadian Press.)—Harvesting of wheat will not be general in Western Canada before the end of August even under the most favorable weather conditions, according to a crop report published by the Manitoba Free Press to-day. During the past twenty days very substantial progress has been made by all grains, and there are no reports of serious damage from stem rust. Districts in Alberta and Saskatchewan have suffered from hail damage ,but Manitoba has had practically no losses. The percentage of hail loss in Alberta and Saskatchewan, when compared with the total acreage, will not be large.

PRINCES SPEND CROWDED DAY AT MONTREAL

Civic Reception, Golf, Oratory Crowded Into Programme of Canada's Guests.

ATTEND GARDEN PARTY

Baldwin Addresses Canadian Club on Business Affairs of Empire.

MONTREAL, Que., August 2 (Canadian Press). — A civic reception, golf, oratory, sight-seeing, and dining were all crowded into Montreal's day on the programme of Canada's guests. Yet in the midst of it all, Premier Baldwin managed to have a walk in the country.

For the Princes the day was a series of rushes through crowded streets, with police motorcycles thundering ahead on the way from duties to diversion and back to official duties again. The day began early, for by 8.30 Their Royal Highnesses had slipped away from their hotel alone in a taxi for about an hour's Badminton. Then a change to uniforms and civic reception at the City Hall and a brief public reception while a guard of honour held the streets and mounted police held back the crowd on the Champ de Mars. Another sweep through the streets, and away into the country for two hours of golf. It was at the Laval-Sur-Le-Lac Golf Club. The Prince of Wales, in grey flannel trousers and a pink shirt with sleeves cut short, and a Panama hat, was paired with Armand Dupuis, president of the club. His Royal Highness took off with an excellent drive, followed by good iron shots. Prince George, bareheaded and wearing grey flannels and a blue sweater, was paired with Ernest Goyer.

The Princes' and the Premier's parties appeared at Senator W. L. Macdougald's garden party late in the afternoon. It was high on Mount Royal under brilliant skies. The city and the harbour lay below and the colourful crowds moved about while military bands played into the early evening. Down again into the city went the two parties to appear later at the private dinner given by E. W. Beatty.

Had Intensive Day.

Mr. Baldwin's day was almost as intensive as the Royal one. With Mrs. Baldwin he, too, attended the civic reception. At one o'clock he was the guest of honour of the Montreal Canadian Club. It was a hot, crowded room, with many hundreds standing in the hotel corridors listening to the Prime Minister's speech from amplifiers and it was probably the first time a Canadian Club has ever been addressed by a gentleman in shirt sleeves. The Prime Minister in rising, struggled out of his coat with the assistance of the club member beside him, and proceeded to his remarks, wearing a yellow coloured linen waistcoat.

The business affairs of the Empire were Mr. Baldwin's topics. He told of the work of the Empire Marketing Board in creating an atmosphere and a "consciousness of Empire." It was to be hoped, he said, that Canada would give the Empire the first choice when it came to purchasing.

The Prime Minister spoke with pride of the high sense of public duty of the younger men of England—the men who had gone from school to war. These men were showing great promise in all spheres of public life, and represented the keen post-war interest of the people of Great Britain in the affairs of their country. Any assumption that there was decadence in Britain was "the greatest mistake in the world."

Second-Hand Plane Falls, Killing Two

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (Canadian Press). — A second-hand, unlicensed airplane, nose diving to the ground and killing two persons, yesterday brought to a climax an unprecedented eight days of air tragedies in Chicago. The accident was the third in the eight-day period, and brought the number of deaths to seven.

The victims yesterday were William Quake, 25, and John Hubley, 26. Their plane went out of control while less than three hundred feet high, and nose dived in a crash which brought instant death.

STOLEN AUTO BADLY BURNED

Thieves Must Have Had Narrow Escape When Car Upset.

MEN GET AWAY.

Nothing short of a miracle saved the thieves who stole an automobile belonging to Carl Phillips early Sunday morning, when the car turned over about twenty minutes later about three miles distant from the city on the Provincial Highway. The crash shattered the glass in the car and smashed the front, and the car later burst into flames which almost demolished it.

Phillips and some other men had gone into Cheu's Cafe on George Street after the dance at Chemong, and had left their car parked at the curb almost in front of the cafe. Two other young men had gone into the cafe at twenty minutes after two and they also said that the car had been there when they entered.

After finishing his meal, Phillips, accompanied by the other men, came out, and found the car missing. He immediately reported the loss at the Police Station, and search for the missing car began at once.

The two youths who had gone into the cafe after two o'clock then proceeded on their trip to Toronto. On approaching a point in the Highway about three miles from Peterborough they saw flames shooting into the sky apparently from the centre of the road. Going closer, the boys discovered a car on its side, the windows smashed, and the rear end a mass of flames. The license plates showed that it was the missing car. The boys immediately sped back to the city and met the police coming out the Highways. With grass and dirt their only extinguishers, the men managed to put out the flames, which by this time had reached the upholstering in the interior of the car.

A search, conducted by Sergeant Thomas in the vicinity, revealed no sign of the thieves. At first it was thought that they were pinned beneath the car, but they had probably managed to jump when the car lurched from one side of the road to the other. From the appearance of the Highway it seems that the car must have been travelling at a terrific speed and jumped from the right-hand side right across, landing on its side. As yet, no trace has been found of the thieves.

SEAMEN HELP MINERS' UNION; BLOW TO REDS

Head of Union Demands Suspension of Fonr Officials.

OTHERS PLAN ACTION.

British Red Leader Rebuked For Praising Soviet at Federation Meeting.

LONDON, August 2. — (United Press). — The drive against the Reds who have for long been striving by various methods to secure control of British Trade Unions continues with much vigour.

The action of Havelock Wilson, head of the National Union of Seamen, in demanding and securing the suspension of four officials of the Union, including the General Secretary, and getting authority to lend 10,000 pounds of the Union's Funds to the non-political Miner's Union, is one of the heaviest blows the Reds have suffered and has caused a sensation in Labour quarters.

Moreover, other Unions which are suffering from the blight of Moscow's agents are considering similar action because it is realized that unless something drastic is done Russian influence will soon dominate the Union of Great Britain and deprive the present leaders of their authority.

Meanwhile, the British Red leader Purcell, has been formally rebuked in Paris by Jouhaux for praising the Soviet at the International Federation of Trade Unions, a protest with which trade unionists here associate themselves.

OTTAWA GREETS VISITORS TODAY

Princes and Premier Welcomed To Capital By Mackenzie King.

GREAT CROWDS OUT.

OTTAWA, Aug. 2 — (Canadian Press).— The capital received the princes and Premier to-day with all the color and dignity of military and official life. His Excellency, the Governor General, Lady Willingdon, and Premier King were on the station platform to greet the visitors and a few minutes later the official party moved across the plaza escorted by mounted lancers to Parliament Hill, where thousands of flags fluttered in the cool breeze and thousands of persons cheered the procession.

Under a canopy where the Royal Standard flew, speeches of welcome, and reply were made and amplified by loud speakers for the benefit of the vast crowds. Premier King in welcoming the Prince of Wales spoke of the special significance of his visit in the year of Canada's Jubilee.

Prince George too was welcomed. Prime Minister expressing the hope that "remembrance of the present tour will be such as to cause Prince George to visit Canada again in the near future.

In welcoming Mr. Baldwin, Premier King made reference to the chimes of the Carillon. The notes of the hours and quarters, similar to those of Big Ben and the Westminster chimes, served to remind Canadians "of the heritage of freedom which has come to us through the establishment of British parliamentary institutions."

Leave Montreal Early.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press).— Their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and Prince George the Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin, and their aides, left Montreal at 9.10 this morning for Ottawa, where they will be welcomed by Lord Willingdon, Premier King, and Federal and Civic Officials. The Royal Party completed a busy visit here by driving through flag bedecked streets to Windtor Station where they boarded the special train that will take them westward.

MADE PRIVY COUNCILLORS.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 2 (Canadian Press). — His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has become a member of the Privy Council of Canada.

Something of a surprise came after Premier King's address of welcome to the Prince here to-day, when the Premier said that His Royal Highness had done Canada the honour to accept membership in the Privy Council of the Dominion. The Prince was presented with a minute of the last meeting appointing him to the Council, and signed this morning by His Excellency Lord Willingdon, the Governor-General of Canada.

Stanley Baldwin, Premier of Great Britain, has also accepted membership in the Privy Council. Mr. Baldwin was presented with a minute recording his appointment following an address in which Premier King had welcomed him to Canada on behalf of the Government.

Morrissey Men On Arctic Expedition Kill Polar Bear At Close Quarters

ABOARD THE SCHOONER MORRISSEY (Carrying the Putnam Expedition to the Arctic), Mill Island, Aug. 2.—The body of a big Polar bear, an old battle-scarred male, was swung up on the deck last night from the whale boat, at the end of a strenuous thirty-six-hour exploration expedition.

Bob Peary and John A. Pope of Detroit got him. They did it with revolvers, at close quarters, afoot, far out on ice pans milling along in a six-knot tide, shrouded by a pea soup fog which at once shut out all sight of them from the shore.

It was a first-class Arctic show of hard hunting, fortunately with a happy landing, for ice pan and dead bear and live men ultimately landed up in the fog on a near-by island.

On Thursday the Morrissey found anchorage in a fine narbor on Mill Island, lying about at the entrance of Fox Channel. The name was given it by Baffin in 1615, "by reason of the grinding of the ice," for terrific tides millrace about the rocky shores.

INTEREST IN BIG CONVENTION GROWING IN WHOLE DOMINION

Gathering at Winnipeg Should Set New Attendance Record.

SELECTION IS JUST.

Delegate Will Represent All Conservative Canada—Many From Maritimes.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 2. The active participation of Major-General McRae M. P., North Vascouver, in the organization of the Conservative National Convention at Winnipeg on October 11, has had a marked effect in creating activity and interest and the convention is now certain of being the greatest political gathering ever held is the Dominion. In point of attendance there is no doubt it will create a record and there are almost certain to be in delegates, alternate delegates and visitors, between four and five thousand present.

The Maritime Provinces, which are most distant from the convention city, will have a complete representation from several constituencies and in addition a number of alternate delegates will also make the trip. The work in New Brunswick is more advanced than in the other Provinces as most of the delegates have been selected, but considerable has been done both in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Both Premier Rhodes and Premier Baxter will be at the convention as well as the Honorable J. D. Stwerat, Conservative leader in Prince Edward Island.

The selcetion of delegates in the Western Provinces is about complete. In Saskatchewan where the Conservatives have not a Federal represent ative the greatest enthusiasm previals and at least five hundred Conservatives will journey from that pro vince to Winnipeg to particpate in the proceeedings of the convention. The Conservative Provincial Association met recently in Saskatoon and completed plans for the transportation and entertainment of delegates.

The enthusiasm in Saskatchewan is indicated by the following excerpt from the report of the meeting: "to give you some idea of the interest being taken in the convention in Saskatchewan the Conservative can didate at the last election in Rosetown constituency reported that they would have a couple of coaches from his constituency alone and it must be remembered that he was defeated by nearly two thousand in the election. From Regina there will be at least forty and possibly seventy-five, and from other constituencies in like numbers." Reports from Man itoba, Alberta and British Columbia are certainly encourageing. Dr. Tolmie, Conservative leader in British Columbia, who is in Ottawa at the present time, has given the assurance that every constituency in that Province will have a complete representation and in addition there will be a number of other Conservatives who will go to the convention.

On the question of leadership there is no attempt being made in the constituencies or Provinces to instruct their delegates. The report from Saskatchewan on this subject is "the general attitude out here on the ques tion of leadership is to make no decison before hand but in the interest of party at the convention choose the best man. Saskatchewan is not wedded to any candidate, but the Jelegates from this Province will make their decision after hearing the candidates and in consultation with the representatives from the other Provinces.' The policy on the question of leadership which has been adopted in Saskatchewan obtains in almost all the other Provinces and on leadership and platform the delegates will be uninstructed and have complete freedom of action.

JAPAN MAKES FINAL EFFORT; PROPOSES HALT

Britain and Japan To Stop Building Cruisers For Time.

LIMITS SET.

Britain and U. S. To Have Twelve Big Cruisers and Japan Eight.

GENEVA, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press). — Japan has made the last supreme effort to save tri-partite naval conference. After failing in their first attempt to find any formula which held a possibility of giving satisfaction. Admiral Saito and Viscount Ishii this morning visited Hugh S. Gibson, chief United States delegate, and handed him the text of a compromise plan concerning cruisers.

The project is quite provisional in nature, but designed to prevent wrecking of the conference on this outstanding difficulty.

The Associated Press learns that the Japanese proposal provides that Great Britain and Japan shall cease building. Cruisers when they reach the end of their present authorized proramme and that up to 1931 the number of ten thousand ton cruisers shall be limited to twelve for Great Britain and the United States and eight for Japan.

The plan also calls for a secondary class of cruisers with a maximum of eight thousand tons each, but nothing is said about eight inch guns in connection with this type of cruiser.

The plan proceeds by suggesting that, if any building programme becomes a menace to the other signatories, they could be empowered to denounce the arrangement. The United States would undertake not to exceed the British cruiser strength before 1931.

SOCIALISTS PARADE.

No Different Feeling At Final Shot Lieut. Burke Assures Friends At Ottawa

OTTAWA, Ont., August 2 (Canadian Press). — "How did you feel when you were firing that last shot in the King's Prize?" Lieut. Desmond Burke was asked on his arrival here from Bisley last night. He replied that he did not feel any different than when he was firing the other shots of the match. Had it been a bull's eye he would have been tied for the King's Prize, the richest in the British Empire for rifle shooting, and by far the most coveted However, the shot was just off the edge of the bull, and accordingly was an inner. Thus Lieut. Burke dropped a point, and came second. He said he was shooting more consistently this year than in 1924 when he won the prize.

Lieut. K. B. McGregor also reached home last night. His great achievement at Bisley was winning the Times Cup.

CANADA NEEDS STATESMEN OF BALDWIN TYPE

Should Emulate Baldwin Ideal of Citizenship, Says R. F. Downey.

A GLOWING TRIBUTE.

Speaker Points Out To Rotary Good Qualities of British Premier.

A fervent hope that Canada might develop the Baldwin type of statesmanship and emulate the Baldwin ideal of citizenship was expressed by Mr. R. F. Downey, county school inspector, during a most enjoyable address to the Peterborough Rotary Club to-day, the speaker's remarks being featured by a glowing tribute to the British Prime Minister.

Another high light at to-day's luncheon was the presence of Raymond Bott, president of the Youngstown, O., club, and having the further distinction of having been the youngest member in the first Rotary club in history, Chicago, No. 1.

President Bott, called upon to address the members, told something of the early difficulties of Rotary, and referred to the fact that for twenty years or more he had spent a part of each summer in Ontario. He had learned to love Canada, and was particularly impressed with the wholesome likeable qualities of its people.

Mr. Downey's address, as he explained, covered four or five leading events which he felt would have much influence upon future developments. First he mentioned aviation, touching upon its possibilities, and then passed on to refer to the important place occupied by the radio. Two other events, the effects of which promised to be of vital interest were the world's confederation for education to meet at Toronto next week.

The Diamond Jubilee was still another event of great importance to Canadians. It led to a study of the problems and difficulties of the past and to a realization of how much was owed to the Fathers of Confederation. The mistakes of the past, Mr. Downey pointed out, must be remedied in the present while the successes should be developed into greater successes in the future.

Finally the speaker dealt with the visit to Canada of the Prince of Wales, Prince George, and Premier and Mrs. Baldwin. Of the British Prime Minister, Mr. Downey spoke in terms of the highest praise, quoting a newspaper word picture of Stanley Baldwin to show what manner of man was this now being welcomed in Canada. Referring to Mr. Baldwin's action in making a free-will offering of one-quarter of his private estate to the British exchequer during the war, the speaker expressed regret that among Canadian politicians there were not more signs of the Baldwin type more indications of politicians seeking to do what appeared to them to be right rather than doing what they considered to be best for themselves.

AGED RESIDENT OF CITY PASSES

IN HIS 95TH YEAR.

The funeral took place this afternoon of George Peters, who passed peacefully away on Sunday. The service was conducted by the Rev. Thomas Rodgers, in charge of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The pall-bearers were Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, R. R. Hall, K.C., Robert Harrison, John Spear, John Taylor and Sandy Matchett.

Interment was made in the family plot in Little Lake Cemetery.

A man who all his life has been interested in books and reading and education, Mr. Peters was the mentor of many of the residents of the district in his younger years, when he taught school at Cavan, Orono and Smith, and he will be remembered also by many citizens as the kindly guardian for a quarter of a century of the old Mechanics' Institute, the library that supplied the city reading matter before the present Carnegie-endowed institution came into being.

Mr. Peters was born in the West Indies, on the Island of Barbadoes, on December 5th, 1832, of Scotch parentage. His father was a British soldier.

Four Women Aflame Leap From Launch

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Trapped in a burning launch, their clothing in flames, four women narrowly escaped death Sunday by leaping into Sheepshead Bay. They were rescued by two men in a pleasure craft.

Badly burned, the women were dragged from the water and taken to Coney Island Hospital. Three were able to go to their homes, but the fourth remained at the hospital. The accident occurred at the foot of Bedford and Emmons avenue.

Exile Doesn't Bind Him, Carol Asserts

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Prince Carol of Rumania last night denied he would not seek to return to Rumania before the expiration of the ten years' exile imposed on him, but he is not intent on "sneaking in". He said he was awaiting reaction to a message to the Rumanian people issued Sunday night before making any move. Carol declared renunciation of the Rumanian throne was forced on him and he feels he has the right to protect the interests of his son and the dynasty.

MUCH TO AMUSE CAMP CHILDREN

Kiddies at Jackson Park Have Many Pleasures On Daily Outings.

"Under B 14, Under G 52, Under O 63." The droning call that has become so familiar to amusement-seekers patronizing the "Bingo" games at various events of late years echoes above the hum of children's voices, gathered for their after-dinner programme of fun and frolic at the Camp for Children at Jackson Park. With a large consignment of toys which arrived for the little boys and girls this year, in response to a public appeal, came several of the cards used in the "Bingo" games, and the children find them a favourite pastime.

Sixty-four boys and girls, from five to fourteen years in age, are at the Camp this week, and attendance has been at the peak during the entire summer months. The tan and freckles which are abundantly distributed among these children are plain evidence of the health which comes from their outdoor life. There are no little cripples among the children this time, the "ailes brises" of childhood, as the Frenchmen so poetically term the "broken wings" of their planes, when they fail to function properly. The children are all sound of wind and limb. The periodical visits of the doctors excite them immensely. "I'm goin' to have my tonsils out next week, I betcha", announces one small dark-haired lassie, whose sister denies that a similar operation on her last season gave her any discomfort whatever. "I never came out of the chloroform at all", she says, "so it didn't hurt me at bit. She's got somethin' the matter with her, but we don't know what it is. The doctor told daddy." That "she" referred to is a small girlie whose most evident physical difficulty is a missing tooth, but she grins proudly over the possession of some secret ailment.

A friendly little boy with a most intriguing catch in his speech confides much information.

"We stay here for dinner and breksus and go home in the bus for nussin'", he says, with much surprise over such munificence. He fixes the cuffs on his small stockings with great care and says he has just got out of the kindergarten and wants to go to school soon. "I want to write," he says, with a sidelong glance at a moving pencil. He regards with scorn the tale of a fair-haired cherub who maintains that he was recently sitting innocently, "not doin' a thing" when a bad, bold bee came out and stung him in the eye, leaving the sting in the wound. The critical listener with the lisp says: "He, be pokin' around over dere. That's what happened him."

They have been playing "vaccinating" lately, and roll up small sleeves to display sundry scratchy red marks, made with a sharp pencil in the hands of the "doctor", a little boy who was assisted by a "nurse" and 'lady" to soothe the sufferer. One little girl has really been vaccinated twice, "once on the ship and once on the land", and her companions regard her with much respect.

This sets another lassie to remembering her grandma who lives over the sea, and is the happy possessor of numerous donkeys. To own a donkey and ride on one, like her grandfather in Ireland, is the secret desire of this little girl's heart. The little boy with the lisp has a grandma who owns "hens, dogs, cats, cows, pigs, and calves," and who once pre-

ARMS SESSION POSTPONED TO END DEADLOCK

Plenary Meeting is Deferred in Hope of Agreement.

OUTCOME DOUBTFUL

Successful Japanese Mediation Said to be Only Thing Save Conference.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—A sensational development emerged Sunday night from another amazing day in Genevia's amazing tri-partite naval conference —for by mutual agreement the plenary session arranged for yesterday, which most delegates believed would sound the dirge of the conference, has been postponed until either tomorrow or Thursday.

This in itself is said in conference circles to be a somewhat favorable sign, but the belief is expressed it would be a grave error to assume it necessarily implies salvation of the conference.

Crisis Unabated

Excessive optimism would be ill founded, observers say, because the British delegation has as yet shown no signs of accepting the American request that the United States be given complete freedom in its construction of eight-inch gun secondary cruisers within the total cruiser tonnage which may be allocated to her.

If members of the other delegations had any doubts whether the American Government, including President Coolidge himself, is backing Hugh S. Gibson, chief American delegate, in his insistence upon cruiser liberty, they were dispelled Sunday in no uncertain manner. Gibson told W. C. Bridgeman, head of the British delegation, the American Government had entirely concurred in the rejection of the British plan, announced by Gibson when that plan was presented Saturday.

Save Conference

Successful Japanese mediation was said in the tri-partite naval conference circles last night to appear to be the only thing that could save the conference from failure.

A lengthy conference of the Japanese delegation was held yesterday. This followed a meeting between Viscount Ishii and W. C. Bridgeman, chief British representative, at which Mr. Bridgeman is reported to have asked the Japanese statesman whether any means could be discovered that offered a chance for acceptance as a remedy for the 8-inch gun cruiser difficulty which is causing the existing deadlock.

Continue Study

From what meagre information seeped out to the press, the Japanese had not succeeded in developing a magic formula which would bring the British and Americans closer together on this contested point. However, it was understood last night that the Japanese were continuing their study tenaciously.

The British spokesmen did not spare their words yesterday in criticising unfavorably the United States proposal which was framed to permit denunciation of the treaty in case the British found the United States construction of cruisers a menace to British security. The spokesmen affirmed that this proposal was fundamentally objectionable because it authorized no meeting of the signatories until 1931 and denunication of the treaty was not possible after the end of 1931.

However, even if the right of denunciation began immediately upon the initialing of the treaty, the British maintain that in its essence the United States proposal would be unacceptable.

SAILORS SAY FOOD SHORT

Captain Replies That Men Are Bolsheviks—Cook Says Poor Sailors.

LIVE ON BREAD.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 2.—(British United Press).—"One hell ship's voyage," is the description given by the crew of the American ship Chimlacothe which arrived here this morning, 114 days out from Portland Oregon. Provisions ran short a month ago and during the last three weeks all on board existed on three pieces of bread and three biscuits a day.

The sailors declare the vessel was under provisioned when she left Oregon. The cook showed your correspondent his log, wherein entries demonstrated the paucity of food. Moreover, that many of the provisions were bad was proved by the fact that even when the men were starving, the barrels of fish were so "stinking" they could not be used.

Other details of the agony endured were given by the cook, who declared that the crew were "a bum lot of sailors" and that only one of them understood signalling, hence, the signals for assistance were unheeded by passing steamers. In addition, to add to their tribulations, the crew had no tobacco and were forced to smoke tea leaves.

MANY THOUSANDS ARE DEAD AS RESULT OF 'QUAKE AT KANSU

MOUNTAINS CRUMBLE.

Says Magnitude of the Calamity is Still Unknown.

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 2 (Associated Press).—Mgr. Theodore Budden brock, German Vicar Apostolic of the Steyl Mission at Liangchowfu, Kansu Province, in a letter to his colleagues at Shanghai, declares that the loss of life in the earthquake in Kansu on May 23 "may exceed 100,000." He says definitely that many thousands are dead.

Reports reaching missionary headquarters confirm that the earthquake was a disaster of the first magnitude and indicate that the loss of life occurred within a triangle whose points are Liangchowfu, Ningsiafu and Liangchowfu.

Frightful Holocaust.

Liangchowfu is said to have been the hardest hit. Mgr. Buddenbrock was in Sisiang, South-West Liangchowfu, at the time of the 'quake. In describing the catastrophe, in a letter dated June 15, he says: "May 23 was the most fateful day in the history of Northwest Kansu. Nature's forces claimed a frightful holocaust of human biengs, an earthquake so terrible that I thought the end of the world had arrived. We have stood on the brink of eternity and our escape was nothing short of miraculous.

"The magnitude of the calamity is still unknown and may never be known. Destruction of the post offices and telegraph stations explains the failure of the news to reach the outside world. The loss of life is many thousands, and may exceed 100,000. The misery of the survivors is indescribable, as they lack food, clothing and animals.

"Doubtless here is one of the world's greatest catastrophes, requiring international help. We need medicines, food and money. We are living in mud huts, our members moving from place to place, consoling the frenzied survivors and administering the Holy Sacraments.

Renewal of Terror.

"Weeks have passed since that judgment day, but daily still the earthquakes are causing a renewal of terror.

"The Sister Superior at Sislang was attending Mass and was killed when the chapel collapsed. When her body was recovered, it was found to be covering two children, who were still alive.

"Gradually we realized that we were not the only sufferers. Wherever we looked were only stark ruins and impassable streets, and heard the victims' cries of anguish and despair.

"Sisiang, our largest centre, was entirely destroyed. About us, hundreds of villages met the same fate.

"Liangchowful, with a population of 20,000, was razed, only the bare walls remaining. The deaths were interminable. Nobody dares to enter the few remaining houses.

Kulang Obliterated.

"Kulang, southward of Liangchowful, no longer exists.

"Southwest of Liangchowfu we had many fine missions. Now all are gone. One village is buried beneath the mountains, which crumpled. In many places, the earth opened, emitting dirty green and bluish black water, with ear-splitting noises."

Other reports from Liangchowfu say that 70 per cent. of the city was destroyed. The China Inland Mission is said to have been bady damaged. The casualties have not been determined. William A. Belcher, a British member of the China Inland Mission, who was at Liangchowfu, has sent the following statement:

"The earthquake began at 4 o'clock in the morning on May 23. A Chinese Magistrate at Liangchowfu, with his wife, mother, brother, daughter and 26 others, were sleeping in the Government House. They were crushed to death when the house crashed. Three pagodas, each 1,000 years old, were destroyed."

Dr. L. P. Rand of Brooklyn, N.Y., Director of the China Inland Mission Hospital at Liangchowfu, has reported that the hospital buildings are down and many people are injured.

The members of the China Inland Mission at Ningsiafu have reported that the earthquake was felt, but that the damage was slight.

The present conditions of the survivors of the Kansu disaster is not known in Shanghai or Pekin. Nothing has been done by any agency in Eastern China to send relief, since communications with Kansu are virtually non-existent. Many weeks' travel would be necessary to reach the stricken area.

Kansu Province is now under domination of General Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian General." He has thus far made no statement regarding the catastrophe, so far as is known.

TRUCK HITS RAIL; GOES INTO CREEK

Two Young People Escape Without Serious Injury.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 2.—A motor accident occurred about one mile north of the village about 9.30 p.m. on Friday, when a small truck, the driver apparently blinded by the headlights of an approaching car, struck the railing of the bridge over Coyte's Creek, taking out the posts and turning completely over in the creek bed, ten or twelve feet below.

There were two people in the truck, the driver, Rudolph Sherer, from near Pontypool, escaping without injury, the other, Miss Hudson, whose home is west of the village, having her back wrenched and being brought in to Dr. Birks' office for medical attention. She was able to be about as usual the next day. The truck was badly smashed up; apparently it was being driven at a high rate of speed when the accident occurred.

TYPHOID EPIDEMIC CAUSES BIG LOSS

Maine Will Quarantine Citizens Who Visit Montreal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 2.—Still another instance of the inevitable economic losses which follow any serious epidemic of preventable disease is seen in the effect of Montreal's typhoid epidemic on the city's very remunerative tourist trade.

Late in June, Maine health officers announced that any citizens of that State visiting Montreal would be promptly put under quarantine on their return home. This announcement, moreover, came at the fag end of the epidemic and there is no mention made of the date on which the ban is likely to be lifted.

MUCH TO AMUSE

sented him with a pet chick. "Oh, gosh, I like the baby monkey on the merry go round," he says. The little girl sitting beside him has a brother who gave up a good job to go away with the Midway and rule the various animals on the merry go round. She thinks that is a wonderful life and visions the time when he will return here and she may have many free rides on the gladsome machine.

They have much keen competition, the little boys and girls, over the small tasks of the Camp, the job of buttering and "jamming" the bread being very popular. There are "girls' nights" and "boys' nights" for these duties, which are fulfilled with precision and despatch. They beside the cheerful housekeeper, Mrs. E. Smith, with their offers of assistance.

After their afternoon swim in the pool, with their little wet bathing suits over her arms and towels draped over their heads, they come up and play ball with the popular nurse, Miss Alma Haselton, under the tall trees, boys and girls alike joining in the game, although sometimes little masculine noses turn up when the girls want to play with them. "I never got my pokes, I mean my battins, so I won't play", announces one small abused maiden, sitting under a tree, and combing her hair with a pink "bobby" comb. Another little thing whose dark red locks would be termed "Titian" by the poet, but who receives from her small companions the appellation of "red-headed sinner", is engaged in the occupation of winding up firmly the nose of a large tin fish, possessed of an obliging tail that rotates in water after the winding-up operation. "Nixie", small and blonde, with riotous curls, wants to air her knowledge. She is only seven. She can't spell "cat", but she can "sound" it, and she proceeds with the queer "cuh-ah-tu" syllables that are used nowadays to teach children to form words. A little boy is industriously shovelling sand from the roadway into a tiny cart, a "funny" paper occupies the attention of a cheerful group, and a trio of energetic lads are arguing over the burning question as to whether "Paddy", a member of the trio, is Irish or Canadian. Paddy is the only one who appears to be indifferent over the matter, the other two waxing very indignant over the discussion.

The Camp this year is under joint supervision of the Peterborough Health Association and the Kiwanis Club, the latter organization doing much toward its upkeep and ladies from the club assisting the Health Association committee in its direction.

SKIRTS LONGER IN PARIS GOWNS

Featured With Side Draperies and in Single-Pleat Effect.

NEW CHIFFON VELVET

PARIS, Aug. 2. —The collection of Fall and Winter models shown last night by M. Drecoll included frocks and gowns for all occasions. The outstanding features are slightly longer skirts, with side draperies, and in tailored day time frocks the use of panels and tunics.

Suits are shown with straight little skirts wrapped to one side in a single pleat effect.

There is a considerable amount of fine tucking and pleating noted in the sheer dresses destined for general wear, together with much insert work. Coats to wear with sport things are made along slim, straight lines, with geometric insets and chic collars and cuffs of fur.

In the afternoon coats a semi-fitted line is conspicuous with flaring effects in the skirt part and a novel use of fur on one reverse only. The other side of the collar is short, so that when the coat is closed a high standing collar is acquired.

A lavish use of embroidery is noted on the evening dresses and wraps in both silk and strass, while afternoon costume have installed embroidery, Jewlry comprising necklace, bracelet and pin, the latter placed at the waist line or on the shoulder. braid is stitched in clever designs and fringe is seen on sashes and in panel treatments. A decidedly youthful silhouette is accomplished by the introduction of an apron-front idea made in flares, pleats or slight shirrings.

The materials are most important and include velvets, satins, chiffons, crepes and the new printed chiffon velvet that is especially adaptable for mature women. Metal cloths are seen in evening wraps combined with fur and velvet. Black lace is worn over colored and metal cloth slips.

The colors for evening wear favor black and white with many colored wraps to complete the ensemble. Pastel shades are also well represented but are heavily embroidered in gold, silver or self colors.

Fur wraps are smartly cut, emphasizing the rounded fronts, especially those of ermine, sable and squirrel.

Daytime frocks are featured in black, navy and brown, with beige gray and solid beige. Black and navy are two suit colors, with a few shown in tweed mixtures. These, however, are more for afternoon wear. A smart afternoon coat is of black cloth with an upstanding collar and irregularly cut cuffs and hem to match of beige broadtail. The dress is of beige crepe with apron effect and much tucking, the waist extending to the base of the neck, where a narrow banding forms a collar and bow arrangement.

For evening wear there is an ensemble with a wrap of white ermine cut along very straight lines and having a flared collar. The front ends are rounded with skins, with embroidered border to match the cuffs. A white chiffon velvet dress is embroidered in silver and gold and is perfectly straight but for two flaring side sections that fall in a cacade effect.

Another evening dress of individual style is made of black chiffon with the front of the waist cut up high and extending to an unusual shoulder. The skirt has two tiers in front, while the back is a bit unusual, with the material so manipulated that one point is allowed to hang in a train effect and to touch the floor. The back of the waist is cut with two straps in suspender style, and shows a flesh-colored under bodice. Strass embroiderey outlines the straps and forms a floral design and suggests the waist line in front.

An afternoon ensemble of brown velvet has a full-length coat slightly fitted with a fox fur collar extending to the hem on one side and a dress of old blue georgette embroidered in gold and with a deep hem of velvet. Long straight sleeves and a rounded neck carry out the simple straight lines

FELT SICK AND WEAK IN GENERAL

C. W. Payne, 627 Second Ave., East, Calgary, Alta., whose picture appears above, says: "I felt sick and tired in general, my liver inactive and I often had headaches and dizzy spells. Then I began using Husky and this medicine has not only relieved me but has built me up." Husky, the wonderful herb preparation, can be obtained at good drug stores everywhere.

Snails' ashes and honey, ground ram's horns and mud, and bread dough and milk were listed among the beauty preparations of the Roman women of ancient days.

Englishman Plans Voyage to U. S. in Craft He Built.

HAS NO ENGINE

WARRINGTON England, Aug. 2.—In a tiny steel boat of his own construction, driven by wind and muscle power, William Oldham, of Warrington, is planning to set out on a voyage from England to New York and back.

The boat, which Mr. Oldham has named the "Carrie," has been constructed by the owner in his spare time. Resembling a submarine in appearance, it is only 12 feet in length. It will be propelled by a two-bladed screw driven by the hands or feet through a cycle pedal arrangement, aided by a metal wind-mill geared by chains to work the power shaft.

There are six water-eight compartments and four windows. Two persons can be accommodated but there will not be full length sleeping room. Mr. Oldham estimates the voyage will take forty days.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 2.—A serious accident occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Challice, Carmel, on Thursday evening, when their only son, William Henry, aged five and one-half years, was kicked in the head by a horse, his death occurring on Saturday morning.

Ignorant of the danger he was incurring, and apparently with no older person near at the time to issue a warning, the little boy was taking some amusement by making the horse run, when accidentally one of the flying hoofs struck his forehead, the blow proving fatal shortly afterward.

The funeral took place from his parents' residence on Monday, Aug. 1, interment being in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

Tons of Molten Lava Continues to Pour From Mount Vesuvius.

NAPLES, Italy, Aug. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Countless thousands of tons of molten lava last night continued to pour ponderously from the "valley of Hell" under the crater of Mount Vesuvius into ravines leading towards the town of Terzigno, many of whose inhabitants already have fled from the re-awakened activity of the great volcano.

Despite ominous explosions and the constant movement of lava at a rapid rate, Professor Malladra, director of the observatory, declared that there was no danger except in case the weight of the gathering material should cause a break in the side of the mountain from the inner crater to the surface facing Terzigno.

The present phase of the volcano's activity, Prof. Malladra said, probably would cease within a few days.

Beginning yesterday morning the eruption at Mount Vesuvius progressed steadily until early this morning, when the lava, which already filled the "valley of Hell," rose above the dikes erected to check its flow into the valley, and then began to run down the paths towards Terzigno.

A large section of the population of Terzigno and neighboring region began to flee toward Naples after dawn.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

For Wednesday, August 3, 1927.
(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

This is a day of conflicting planetary aspects, according to astrology, and for that reason a time to avoid all sorts of friction.

While there may be much business energy manifested under this sway the judgment is likely to be at fault and caution should be exercised in making any sort of decision.

Deception and certain forms of dishonesty are supposed to flourish under this direction of the stars. Truth may have unusual difficulties in prevailing to-day.

Organization of the forces of evil is indicated by those who read the stars and they foretell crimes of extraordinary resourcefulness.

While this configuration prevails persons in executive positions should benefit. Promotions are indicated.

Late in the day women are well directed in business as well as social activities.

The evening is held to be fairly lucky for weddings, although quarrels are forecast.

Theatres now are subject to the most stimulating influences in which the bit enterprises swallow the smaller ones.

Again the seers warn that nervous diseases and mental afflictions will be on the increase.

There is an especially sinister sign for women, who may be peculiarly sensitive to brain disorders.

Having sowed many ills in the way of moral derelictions the world is to reap a harvest of disease, astrologers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of gain in business and financial affairs.

Children born on this day are likely to be exceedingly clever and able to succeed in an intellectual pursuit.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

While Faith waited for Bob and Cherry to come home that first afternoon after Cherry had gone to work as Bob's secretary, her mind was made up not to tell her sister that the Pruitts had invited them for dinner. The very idea of accepting an invitation tendered in such a way—because George Pruitt felt sorry for them!—was nauseating. She would tell Bob the whole story, though.

But when Cherry and Bob came swinging up the walk together at half past six—fully an hour after office closing time, Faith, looking at the two of them, apparently so happy and carefree, found her resolution wavering. Bob would feel indignant not only for her, his wife, but for Cherry. Her story would fire him with zeal to be Cherry's champion, to force recognition of her upon the neighborhood. And yet—if she didn't tell either Bob or Cherry the truth about the dinner invitation—that it had been offered in pity, there would be no excuse for turning it down. She knew that Bob liked the Pruitts, George especially, and that Cherry would be delighted with the idea of having dinner in the magnificent Pruitt home. Besides—the thought wormed itself unbidden into Faith's chaotic mind—if Cherry had her chance at George he might fall in love with her; he had gone about with her rather a good deal before it had become evident that she was to be a mother——. But, oh, what was she thinking of? Of course she didn't want Cherry to be planning to marry before she had gotten a divorce from Chris! But—if Cherry did marry George, she would not be working every day with Bob as his secretary——.

"I must be going crazy!" Faith moaned to herself.

She was smiling faintly when Bob flung an arm about her shoulders and kissed her—a quick, husbandly kiss.

"Now, don't stew, old lady!" he gibed gayly. "I've been out joyriding with my secretary, if you want the truth! Cherry and I were so darned hot and sticky after working all day that we decided to dash out to the Country Club for a dip before dinner. I wanted to call you but I knew you'd say you had to stay with the baby. Dinner ready, sweet? We're starved!"

"Yes, it's ready," Faith replied coldly. "I didn't know you had bathing suits with you, but I'm glad you went. The weather is dreadful, isn't it."

"Oh, I bought a new suit at noon," Cherry laughed, running her fingers through her red-gold curls, still damp from her swim. "I simply vamped Bob into taking me. Boy howdy, but this husband of yours can swim!"

"You're no slouch yourself, sister-in-law," Bob grinned, tousling her curls. "Say, Faith, here's a surprise! This youngster is really a crackerjack secretary!"

"I'm glad she suits," Faith said in a queer, dragging voice. Then, suddenly: "By the way, Cherry, Selma Pruitt invited us all to dinner for next Wednesday. I suppose it was George's idea," she added with strained casualness. "Perhaps he's forgiven you for having had a baby. Want to go?" Her glance included both Bob and Cherry.

"Did you ever know me to turn down a party?" Cherry cried, her golden eyes sparkling. "Funny old George! I suppose I can marry him if I want to. Won't it just burn Selma up if I do land George? She was crazy over the idea of his marrying you, Faith, but—the notorious Cherry Lane is another story! Maybe I'll do it just to watch the fireworks!"

"Let's eat!" Bob sprang from the living room sofa, his face set and grim, his voice startlingly harsh.

TUESDAY, AUGSUT 2nd.

THE CANADIAN PRINCE.

The reply of the Prince of Wales to the welcome tendered him in Quebec on Saturday left no doubt as the warm spot in his heart for Canada.

His Royal Highness is paying his fourth visit to us; no other Prince has seen nearly as much of this country as has the ever-smiling Prince of Wales, who on an average of every two years since the war has come to Canada, and who on Saturday asked to be allowed to speak as a Canadian as he referred to the citizens of the Dominion as people who did not say "Good-bye," but said "Come again," and meant it.

In the case of the Prince it is easy, of course, to be sincere in saying "Come again."

No visitor, Royal or otherwise, has so captivated the hearts of Canadians as has this friendly, democratic Prince, who one day will be King of the great British Commonwealth.

They like to feel that he likes to come to Canada, and on this occasion they are a unit in hoping that he, with Prince George and Premier and Mrs. Baldwin, will find every moment of their stay in this country full of interest and enjoyment.

TAX BILLS BY MAIL.

The decision of the city's Finance Committee to have the tax bills delivered by mail instead of being distributed unsealed by boys is commendable.

The new method will cost a little more, but the added expenditure is amply justified inasmuch as the usual complaints against non-delivery and the usual applications for duplicates will be avoided.

The old plan was unbusinesslike, and furthermore, it provided for more publicity than was desirable or necessary.

Most people have an objection to details in regard to their financial condition being needlessly exposed, and certainly the manner in which tax bills have been sent out unsealed did not make for privacy.

Changing the system will only make a difference in the cost of distribution of some $148, and the benefits to be obtained are surely worth much more than that sum.

Taxpayers generally will approve of the new method, in spite of a feeling that tax bills are tax bills no matter how they reach you.

ROUGH CITY STREETS.

Two sections of the city streets that can trade bump for bump with the Chemong road and perhaps have a few ruts to spare are Water street between Dublin and Antrim streets and Smith street between George and Water streets.

Both these sections were to have been paved this summer, but Mayor Holloway reported to the Board of Works the other night that it is doubtful whether the company which was awarded the contract will be prepared to do the work this year.

It is to be hoped that if this should prove to be the case that these sections will receive some attention in the meantime.

At present they are in deplorable condition.

The unpaved section of Water street has within the past few weeks been torn up by both waterworks and sewer gangs, and there is probably no rougher stretch of roadway within the city limits.

The Smith street section is only a block long, but it forms an important link between two main arteries of traffic, and its condition at present is trying, to say the least.

If the company cannot carry out its contract this year, some other concern might be given a chance.

In any event these important roads should not be left in their present state a day longer than is necessary.

LEARN TO SWIM.

"He could not swim."

How often that sentence appears in the story of a drowning accident.

In our own district within the past week it has been used twice in the report of bathing tragedies.

Non-swimmers are tempted by the lure of cool water on a hot day to run the risk, stumble into a hole and are drowned.

Many of these unfortunate victims perhaps never had the chance to learn, but that condition does not apply in Peterborough, where the two service clubs, the Rotarians and Kiwanians, have been making it possible for local children to be taught how to take care of themselves in the water.

The Kiwanis Club has provided for swimming instructions for girls in the Y.W.C.A. pool.

The Rotary Club has engaged for the summer a capable instructor who is on duty daily at Inverlea Park.

He is there solely to teach non-swimmers.

His services are free to anybody who wishes to avail himself of the opportunity.

There is still another month in which advantage can be taken of this chance to learn under competent direction how to swim.

In view of the number of drowning accidents reported from far and near, Peterborough's non-swimmers should not miss an opportunity like this, which is not likely to present itself again for some time.

HOPE FOR THE PEDESTRIAN.

The common pedestrian again raises his head in our midst. He wipes the mud off his trousers, retrieves his hat, and walks jauntily away whistling cheerfully. For a while it looked as if he would be completely dominated if not annihilated by the motorist. The corners were being rounded off at the intersections of our main streets and he was being pushed to the wall so that the impatient motor drivers could cut the corners at greater speed. On country highways he had the choice of taking to the tall, dusty grass in the ditches or taking his life in his hands dodging the cars on the roadway. He was threatened with arrest in some cities if he dared to cross the street at the middle of a block. In Ottawa the civic authorities resisted with difficulty a move on the part of the motorists to have the snow scraped from the roadways and piled on the sidewalks. As an added insult on top of all this the pedestrian was called a "jay-walker" if he failed to step lively at all times.

Now, good news spreads from the capital and the hunted and harried pedestrian takes heart. The first evening recital of the famous carillon from the Peace Tower was ruined by the bleating and braying of motor horns and the confusion caused by moving cars on Parliament Hill. Public indignation caused the municipal and federal authorities to combine to suppress this outrage. For future formal recitals all motor cars must be in place on the Hill before the music starts. No horns can sound and no car can move till the recital is over. Wellington street near-by is closed to motor traffic of all kinds. The crushed but reviving pedestrian sees in this a wave of reaction starting from Parliament Hill in the capital itself and spreading far and wide throughout the Dominion. Is this the turning of the tide?—London Advertiser.

RECOGNIZING SERVICE.

Friends of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, better known as the Rt. Hon. H. H. Asquith, are planning to offer him a substantial gift. They hope to provide an annuity of £2,500, and also a cash present amounting to £20,000. Many prominent men, including the Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canada's High Commissioner in London, are interested.

It is pointed out, and properly, that had Lord Asquith turned his great natural talents to personal ends, instead of giving so many years of distinguished service to the state, he would now be a very wealthy man. For this reason his friends are anxious to bestow a substantial sum upon him, thus making the former Liberal leader and his family financially independent.

There are many precedents in various countries, including Canada, for movements of this kind and the public reaction to them has always been favorable. Every fair-minded person must appreciate that honest public service brings little in the way of financial reward, also that the time devoted by an outstanding public man could, in most cases, have been turned to much greater advantage. There are instances, no doubt, of successful public servants who might have had few triumphs in business life. At best, though, this can be only conjecture and accordingly must be ruled out of the picture.

Democracy has never been noted for its kindness. A man may be cheered for his public efforts, but one can't live on cheers. After the last echo has died away, there is still the butcher to be paid. Children must be educated. Rents are high. A thousand and one other expenses beset many men who would like to have their minds free for public service.

Take the leader of a political party. His salary is usually small, particularly if he is in opposition. His duties are heavy. He is often a lawyer, but his public work gives him little or no time for law. The two things simply fail to work together. Our own Ontario Premier, Mr. Ferguson, is a lawyer. How much time has he had for the practice of his profession since picking up the mantle of Whitney and Hearst? Very little, if at all, one feels certain. Now, as Prime Minister, Mr. Ferguson receives a salary of $12,000 per year. To many of us the amount, at first hand, may seem substantial, even generous. But it isn't; it is small when we consider the necessary expenses of one who occupies the premiership and carries out the duties of the office as his party and the people at large expect him to do.

The Ottawa situation is similar. The Prime Minister has a salary of $15,000, plus his sessional indemnity as an M.P., amounting to $4,000. His expenses are even greater than those of a Provincial Premier. His position as head of the Federal Government calls for a large personal outlay. He must maintain a residential establishment in keeping with his position. He must do a great deal of entertaining. He must employ a number of servants. He must dress well, and his family, if he has one, must be well dressed and well educated. All this on an income of $19,000 a year is not easy. Indeed, it is practically impossible, unless the man has private means upon which he may draw.

There is no denying that the financial factor keeps many able men out of public life. They would like to go in, but in fairness to their families and themselves they feel they cannot make the sacrifice. There are too many examples of those who have gone in and who, in the autumn of their lives, after years of faithful service, find themselves monetarily embarrassed.

It would seem that the time is approaching when democracies must make greater provision than they have done up to now, for their leaders. If something along this line is not initiated, only wealthy men will be able to enter public life, and most persons will agree that it would not be a healthy condition to have the affairs of the nation controlled entirely by those of large fortune.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

They knew what they were doing when they used Joe Wright as a model for the statue of Ned Hanlan.

One drawback to being a prince is the number of long addresses to which you have to listen.

It may not be legal to park near fire hydrants, but motorists can knock them off anyway.

Picking the winner of the Conservative leadership stakes is even more difficult than naming the swimmer who will finish first in the Toronto swimming marathon.

Several drowning accidents in this district during the past week claimed the lives of non-swimmers. No opportunity to learn to swim should be neglected, and in this connection the citizens of Peterborough should not forget that a swimming instructor is on duty daily at Inverlea Park.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Dangerous low temperatures in parts of Canada and reports of rapid development of black rust in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Manitoba lifted wheat prices yesterday. Wheat closed firm 1-4c to 5-8c net higher, with corn 3-8c to 1 3-8c up, oats at 1-4c to 3-4c advance and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 10c.

Corn prices averaged higher, the general run of crop comment being rather unfavorable. Oats sympathized with corn. For the most part, provisions were easier on account of scattered selling.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Owing to yesterday being a holiday in England and also at Winnipeg, the export trade in Canadian grain in the Montreal market was extremely dull.

A moderate amount of business was done in the domestic market in Canadian Western oats with local and country buyers and prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were well maintained, but the demand was quiet.

The trade in all lines of millfeed continued active, and the undertone was firm. Extreme dullness marked the trade in standard grades of rolled oats and prices ruled steady.

The egg market was without any special feature to note, prices were steady and the trade was dull. The receipts were 838 cases.

The demand for butter was again of a very limited character, but the undertone was steady and values were unchanged. The receipts were 1,100 packages.

The cheese market was quiet, but values were well maintained. The receipts were 7,490 boxes.

A Thought For To-day

READ THIS TWICE.

After you have carefully weighed your past experience, measured up your present personal equipment, and definitely decided what you are best fitted for in life, let no side issues lure you from your course, but put all your ambition and ability behind the business or profession in hand, and then, if you have the courage to stick through thick and thin, you will achieve success.

The great trouble with most men is that they dip in this and dabble in that, and, while they are dipping and dabbling in outside affairs, they neglect their main motive in life and get so spread out that nothing they do can be called an outstanding success.

They do four or five things fairly well, but not well enough to be more than a half-success in four or five things.

LONG TRIP BY LAKEFIELD MEN

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie and Party Sail to Swift Current.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 2.—A trip of rather unusual inteerst has just been completed by the Rev. A. W. Mackenzie in his yawl the "Gey Gelpie." The yawl carries 780 feet of canvas in her three sails ,and is equipped with an auxiliary motor of 8 h.p. which is used for canal and harbor work. With his brother, Prof. M. A. Mackenzie (who started from Toronto in his ketch, the "Maud", built by the Peterborough Canoe Co.), Mr. Mackenzie went through the Trent to Port Severn, on Georgian Bay. George Nellis Douglas, with his wife, in a small 24 foot open sloop accompanied by two larger boats.

From Port Severn the three boats sailed to Tobermory, the head of the Bruce peninsula, passing Midland, Collingwood, Lion's Head, etc. From Tobermory they went on to Little Current, the largest town on Manitoulin Island. This is the centre of the fishing industry, some men getting 20 tons of fish a week, all being shipped to New York. Using this as depot the party explored the mainland near the Cloche mountains, and the old Hudson Bay Post of Fort La Cloche, the ruins of which are a half mile up the creek. Here the party split, the "Maud" to go on to Lake Superior, with the Nipigon as its aim, while the others returned to Lakefield. The crews included, at various times, the two skippers, Magistrate O. A. Langley, Messrs. E. Northey, E. Cumberland, K. Mackenzie and Master Paul Hedley.

Jubilee Celebration Funds. N

The last chapter of Lakefield's Diamond Jubilee celebration is now closed. The executive committee and the representatives of the finance committee met and after paying all expenses there was a handsome balance left and, after giving a donation to the Citizens' Band the remainder was invested in a bond, the interest each year going to the pupil in the Lakefield school making the highest marks in history at the entrance examination. The idea is excellent and should appeal to every loyal citizen as a fitting way of perpetuating the celebration and also putting a premium of the study of the country and empire.

Many friends and acquaintances in the village will learn with regret of the death of William Boyd Davis of Washago, in the Western Hospital, Toronto, on Monday of this week. The funeral was held on Wednesday from St. Anne's church. Mr. Davis spent a couple of years in the village during the building of the dam as he was chief engineer at the construction.

The street lighting rates of the Hydro Electric Power Commission have been reduced from $20 to $18 in the village of Lakefield. At present there is no reduction in commercial or house lighting.

Softball Game.

The game of the season in the Softball League will be played on Tuesday evening next when the Cubs and the Business Men clash. The respective managers are busy rounding up the teams and every man is being daily impressed with the importance of being on his toes on the great occasion. A considerable rivalry exists between the teams and this particular game has a considerable amount of importance as the winners will play off with the Muskies for the championship of the northern section of the North Peterboro Softball League. Selwyn and Cement team are out of the running and the game on Tuesday evening will doubtless lure out all the friends of both teams to cheer and encourage their favorites.

AMERICAN PARTY FINDS ODD ROCKS

Gneiss Found in Rockies North of Usual Structure.

JASPER, Alta., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Interesting rock specimens have been found by the American scientific party headed by Alfred J. Ostheimer, Jr., which, in the course of their geological, natural history and mapping work have already made three first ascents of eleven thousand-foot peaks. During the summer eight hundred square miles of territory are to be covered, according to the schedule laid down by the explorers.

The first rock picked up, the most important find so far, was a gneiss, although crystalline rocks had been reported absent from the Canadian Rockies north of the 51st parallel east of the continental divide. It is possible that this specimen may be formed from the metamorphism of sedimentary beds as well as the metamorphism of igneous rock. Several specimens resembling granites and one piece of rock showing volcanic action in outcrops not affected by the entrance of the continental ice sheets were found, seeming to prove the presence of igneous rocks.

The geologic table of the area follows that of the more southerly regions, Mr. Ostheimer's first report states. Several beds of excellent fossils have been worked. Another interesting discovery was the finding of "fool's gold," or magnetic pyrholites on the east Chaba Glacier. These chunks of cubbed iron were found in large quantities on the more southerly glaciers of the Canadian Rockies, but the party had not expected to find them north of the Columbia ice field.

Over twenty different birds have been studied more or less, about fifteen of the mammals listed and watched, and considerable work done on the flora. Also an attempt is being made to draft a complete guide to the mountaineering possibilities in the region.

One entire afternoon was spent by the party taking measurements of the Columbia glacier, the most interesting feature of which was the drainage from the ice tongue. No surface water runs off the ice; all the water bubbles up in half a dozen little geysers about twenty yards from the glacier snout. These bubblings present an unusual spectacle. Furthermore, they have no great depth. Probing with the ice axes revealed a depth of but two inches.

The glacier in other respects is not unlike other Canadian glaciers. Dirt and pebble wells, glacial mills, ice falls, moraines, large erratic boulders, glacial tables, dirt bands, ice dikes and even folding of the ice strata occur. Some striking effects occur in crevasses and ice falls where great pressure has been exerted on the moving ice.

VISITORS RUSH TO WATCH LAVA

Tiny Town at Foot of Vesuvius Crowded—Residents Anxious.

LAVA COMING CLOSER.

TERZIGNO, Italy, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).— Thousands of sensation seekers, mostly foreigners, have swelled the population of this tiny town, famous less for its excellent wine and chestnuts than for its dangerous situation at the foot of Vesuvius, in order to watch at close hand the stream of flowing lava moving down the mountain in this direction.

From the edge of the town virtually the entire region toward the crater seemed to-day to be covered with an undulated red blanket spotted with large black patches. Most of the towns folk, mindful of the narrow escape of their homes in 1906 and again in 1926, carried on their daily tasks with one eye fixed on the glowing lava despite assurances of lack of danger given by Professor Malladra, head of the Royal Observatory.

DETROIT GIRL FATALLY HURT

Dies at Chatham as Result of an Automobile Accident.

SPEEDER BLAMED.

CHATHAM, Aug. 2.—Miss Mabel Watson, 19-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Watson of Detroit, died in the St. Joseph's Hospital here yesterday as a result of injuries received when her father drove his car into a four-foot ditch on the Provincial Highway, to avoid striking a car ahead of him.

The young lady received serious injuries to her stomach when she was pinned under the overturned car. She was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where everything was done to save her life, but she died three hours and a half after the accident, from internal injuries and shock.

Father in Serious Condition

Her father, Dr. Watson, is still in a serious condition, and his recovery is doubtful. He is suffering from a broken chest. Mrs. Watson also is suffering from shock.

High Constable George Peters and Traffic Officer Hilliard are investigating the accident. Dr. T. L. McRitchie, coroner, also investigated, and decided to hold an inquest into the circumstances surrounding the girl's death. The preliminary steps for the inquest will be taken today.

The party left Detroit yesterday morning intending to spend some time with friends in Toronto, and later visit other Eastern points. When approaching Chatham, near the scene of the accident, the doctor was trailing another car, which suddenly began to slow up. He then decided to pass it, and quickened his pace to execute the move. As he pulled over to the left side of the road, he observed a big car approaching at a terrific rate of speed.

Realizing that he would meet this car head-on if he tried to pass, he pulled back to his own side of the road. Then he discovered that the car ahead was still slowing up, and he himself was going too fast to stop in time to avoid a collision. Rather than hit the car ahead of him he steered into the ditch.

Occupants Pinned Under Car

The car turned completely over when the front axle fell down and hit the crown of the ditch, and the three occupants were pinned underneath it.

Dr. E. C. Riseborough was called to the scene and all three occupants of the car were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. It is thought that the wheel of the car, which was broken by the impact, struck the doctor's chest. Mrs. Watson was riding in the front seat with her husband, and Miss Watson was in the rear seat. How Dr. and Mrs. Watson escaped with their lives is a mystery. The occupants of the car ahead rendered assistance, but the speeding car, which was the main cause of the accident, sped away, without stopping.

When the surgeon arrived on the scene Dr. Watson was unconscious. He recovered, and was rendered medical assistance.

The traffic on the highway yesterday morning was very heavy and as a result of the many accidents occurring of late High Constable George Peters of Kent has issued instructions to all his officers to enforce the traffic laws rigidly and prosecute all offenders who exceed the speed limit of 35 miles an hour.

TEMPLE ROW IS CLEANED UP

Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Kennedy Kiss and Make Up in Public.

DETAILS KEPT SECRET.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2. —(Canadian Press). — Aimee Semple MacPherson took full control of her Angelus Temple to-day as a result of an agreement announced last night in which Mrs. Minnie Kennedy relinquished the active business management of the church and the two women publicly kissed and made up to the end of their differences.

The settlement announced by the Attorneys for botr, after a two hour conference, apparently ended the ten day row between mother and daughter in which the latter had been backed by a group of Temple members who rebelled against Mrs. Kennedys control of finances. During its bitter course, Mrs. Kennedy had said she was resigning immediately, while her daughter announced in an ultimatum that Mrs. Kennedy was ousted.

The management announcement merely said that Mrs. Minnie Kennedy will give up active management at Angelus Temple and Mrs. MacPherson will assume complete control."

Neither of the women would disclose the details of the settlement but it was learned that it virtually hinged upon a fifty fifty plan insisted upon by Mrs. Kennedy.

AVIATOR HOPS OFF LEVIATHAN 100 MILES OUT AND FLIES BACK TO DEMONSTRATE POSSIBILITY

COULD SAVE TWO DAYS.

Owners of Vessel to Contemplate Equipping Big Liners With Plane Platforms.

NEW YORK, August 2.—Exhibiting the same superb skill as a pilot, after the same careful preparation for his feat that marked his New York to Germany flight, Clarence D. Chamberlin yesterday morning demonstrated with striking success the feasibility of speeding up trans-Atlantic mails through the use of shipboard planes, when he hopped off the Leviathan's top deck, nearly 100 miles out to sea and flew back to New York.

Chamberlin started his flight from a special plank platform, 118 feet long and 24 feet wide, erected above the bridge of the great ocean liner, in front of the forward stack, and extending at an angle of 45 degrees from the starboard side off the port bow.

The owners of the Leviathan contemplate fitting this ship and their other large liners with two or more planes each, which would hop off 500 to 1,000 miles at sea as the vessels approached port, speeding ahead with mail or even passengers who were willing to pay for quicker transit. They believe it would be possible to cut one or two days from the Leviathan's 5½-day trans-Atlantic schedule by sending off fast planes for London and Paris without going through the delays of Southampton and Cherbourg dockings and boat trains and by duplicating this performance for Boston and New York upon nearing American shores.

Probably the most surprising feature of all was that the Leviathan, instead of proceeding at full speed as had been proposed, was run by Chamberlin's request at only 15 knots, the slender little airman explaining with his world-famous grin that if Commodore Hartley indulged in any more speed he "might blow me off the ship the wrong way."

To watchers on the Navy destroyer Humphries and the Coastguard destroyer Wilkes, which were pacing the Leviathan on her port stern and bow respectively, to stand by "in case Chamberlin stumps his toe" on the take-off, it seemed that the plane was flung into the air by the last fifteen feet of the run which was flattened out to give just such an effect.

Bounced High Into the Air.

Actually, observers on the Leviathan attest that Chamberlin bears them out the plane took the air some three-quarters of the way down the 100-foot sloped portion of the runway and was bounced high into the air as she left the bridge by the ever-present upsweep of air from the side of the vessel. Those who had expected Chamberlin to dive after leaving the runway to gain a safe flying speed, were pleasantly surprised to see him climb upward, instead of a sharp angle before flattening out in level flight.

Delayed By Storm.

The flight, which began a little fore 8.15 a.m., was delayed an hour or more by a terrific rain and thunder storm which drenched the Leviathan and the man-made bird perched atop her, besides lashing the sea into a fury which rolled and tossed the Wilkes and the Humphries as well as the navy destroyer Lawrence, standing by half way between the Leviathan's course and Long Island, until half the newspapermen and photographers aboard were half dead from sea sickness.

Finally the storm passed, but hung threateningly on the horizon, growling that it might come back and get really rough.

There seemed to be a fog bank ahead, but Chamberlin unconcernedly went about cranking his motor. The propeller finally turned over with a kick and "took" with a promising roar. The engine idled for a while, warming up and then soared to full power, held to the deck by wheel block and deck hands on the wings. It stopped after a bit and hope waned on the pitching of Wilkes with its cargo of reporters and camera men.

But things were happening on the Leviathan. The great ship swung slowly to the right, gauging her course to avoid a smaller liner coming in the opposite direction. She was turning so that the wind would be across her port bow to give Chamberlin the air current he wanted, and the pacing destroyers turned in a wide arc with her. Everyone sensed that the big moment was near.

Standing on Runway.

Chamberlin could be seen standing on the runway, getting the direction of the air flow and signalling to Commodore Hartley who relayed directions to the bridge. It was still raining a little and the trans-Atlantic flier was shrouded in borrowed oil skins. At last, when the Leviathan was headed almost directly back toward New York, Chamberlin nodded his head and Hartley motioned "hold the course."

The motor was started again and very quickly the thing was over. Chamberlin giving it full throttle, raising the tail in flying position and "lumping" the wheels over small blocks for a fast start down the runway. As easily and simply as if he were flying from his home airport at Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., he was in the air while photographers snapped and ground, then dropped their machines to join in the cheers. Exultant sirens joined the din.

A Fairchild cabin monoplane carrying photographers, had arrived from Curtiss Field, L.I., just before the hop off from the Leviathan, and Chamberlin obligingly flew alongside it as well as over the Leviathan and her escort boats, cavorting in the air in the sheer joy of flying again, and because he knew "the boys" wanted him to "put on a show." Finally he headed for Long Island.

Here he encountered low fog and had to follow familiar railroads to Curtiss Field, where there being no great hurry and flying being hazardous, he stopped for an hour to visit with the "gang."

MAN DROWNED; WOMAN SAVED

ACCIDENT UNNOTICED.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 2—Percy Sommerville, aged about 26 years, residing at 12 Cathcart Street, London, was drowned at Port Stanley, last night. He was bathing at the London and Port Stanley bathing place, accompanied by Mrs. O'Brien and her son, also of London.

The woman and Sommerville waded out and apparently were pulled down by an undertow. A swimmer, who was diving off the pleasure boat dock, felt a body when he dived, and brought up Mrs. O'Brien, who was unconscious but was resuscitated.

Sommerville's clothes were discovered in his locker at the bathhouse, and as he could not be found among the other bathers, boats were secured and a search instituted, resulting in his body being located a few feet away from where the woman was rescued. No one saw the pair go down.

INSPIRING SERMON AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. L. M. Smith Gives Splendid Address at Campbellford on Sunday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2.—"The Lord is King! Lift up thy voice, O earth, and all ye heavens, rejoice! From world to world the joy shall ring,
The Lord Ominpotent is King."

Led by a quintette choir, the congregation at the Baptist Church on Sunday evening joined heartily in the singing of the above song of praise as the opening number of a bright, brief but intensively impressive service.

Then came the prayer for "Victory for the living forces of the living God," and an acknowledgment of hope and trust in the royal promises of the King of all the earth.

Taking for his text, I. John, 4-10 (revised version), "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and gave Himself as an atoning sacrifice for our sins," the Rev. L. M. Smith, the minister, gave a very able discourse on transcendent love.

Briefly outlining the theistic and pantheistic views of God, the eloquent young minister asked if the argument of the modernist, that man naturally turns to God, holds good. Over against the argument of modernism stands the Bible statement that man is at enmity against God. The importance of the work of the atonement was here enlarged upon.

One is to prove one's love for God, said the preacher, by the keeping of His commandments, and one of the commandments is the keeping holy of God's day. "The truth," said the speaker, "is that men do not love God." The world today is still crying out, "Away with Him, we will not have this man to reign over us!"

Concluding an earnest address, the minister asked, "What is the meaning of the cross, if it is not God's great love going out after us?"

As modestly stated by the preacher, it was "a simple gospel sermon," but eloquent in its simplicity.

OLD TIMERS HOLD ANNUAL RE-UNION

Gathering at Juniper Successful in Spite of Bad Weather.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 2.—On Saturday last the old-timers' reunion was held at Juniper Island, and while the bad weather kept a great many at home, there were about a hundred people present and a jolly informal party was held, which was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. Miss Daisy Murray, of Peterborough, delighted the people with her beautiful voice, contributing several solos. The reunion has on several occasions been rather marred by inclement weather, but in every case those who brave the elements say it was well worth the effort, and each year adds another pleasant memory to swell the treasury of Stoney Lake happy days.

The dances at Juniper on Wednesday and Saturday nights have been well attended this season. A six-piece orchestra furnishes excellent music, and the young people are having a delightful time.

A very much needed lighthouse has been erected at Ship Island, and this flash will be a guide to many of the dwellers in the eastern section of the lake. There are two other lights on the lake, one at each end of Clear Lake.

The water lilies, the aristocrats of water flowers, are showing their white heads in the tiny bays and swampy localities of the lake. The water lily modestly loves to hide in any inaccessible spot, and it requires skill to get a bouquet of the beautiful blossoms.

For the first time in twenty-two years there will be no regatta at Crowe's Landing this season. This is not due in any way to a lack of enthusiasm on the part of the cottagers, but this year some needed alterations are being made at the pavilion and a new lighting system is being installed, and the activities of the Cottagers' Association are being centred on local affairs. A regatta is not a source of revenue to the association, but an increasingly great expense. A series of card parties and dances are being given this year, and up to date they have proved very popular.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2.—Carl Irwin, of the Bank of Montreal staff, had the misfortune while diving on Saturday evening to badly lacerate his hands with broken glass in the canal. Owen Hendy rendered first aid.

Mrs. Shenley and Jerry and Mr. and Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Nokes, of Hamilton, were recent visitors with Mrs. C. Nickolas, Inkerman street.

Mrs. Henny, of Rochester, N. Y., has returned home after a pleasant visit with her aunt, Mrs. Amos Green, Raglan street.

The streets of Campbellford were well nigh impassable on Saturday night owing to the great crowds from near and far gathered to do their marketing for the long holiday. Saturday night is always a big night in Campbellford, but owing to the fact that Monday was Civic Holiday, the crowd was greatly augmented by those who might have spent the evening elsewhere and attended to their shopping on Monday morning.

The Examiner interviewed dozens of citizens from surrounding towns who had been attracted by The Examiner's report of 500 autos here on a recent Saturday night. They had come to see, and went away feeling that Campbellford was truly a magnetic point.

A few of the street attractions on Saturday night included Prof. Murphy's free entertainment in front of O'Sullivan's grocery on Bridge street. The professor held the crowd and did a roaring business.

At the Standard Bank corner the Free Methodists held fort for something like two hours, during which one of the lady members swooned and had to be carried into a nearby drug store. Elsewhere the Salvation Army and the evangelists of the Christian Church exhorted the visitors to better living, while just around the corner the dance hall struggled hard to make things go against so many counter attractions. Saturday night at Campbellford is always a night brim full of excitement. There is a rumor that cluster lights are to be placed on Front street, and that a community dance on the pavement will be held every Saturday night.

Charles Calver holds the fishing record of the season with a lunge weighing 38½ lbs. The fish is dead.

MANY ATTEND PARK SERVICE

Good Beginning is Made With Interdenominational Meetings at Chemong.

STIRRING ADDRESS.

Several hundred people assembled at the Pavilion in Chemong Park on Sunday evening when a splendid beginning was made with the interdenominational services held by various churches.

A stirring evangelical address was given by Rev. W. S. Edgar, and the voice of the Gilmour Memorial Church was clearly heard by the many auditors who remained seated in the cars on the fringe of the crowd. Many congratulations were tendered to the sponsors of the meetings by the park residents, who declared that the services were likely to meet a long-standing necessity.

The congregation was led in the singing by the combined choirs of George Street United and Murray Street Baptist Churches, conducted by Dr. Graham. Rev. J. V. McNeely, minister of Bridgenorth United Church, acted as chairman. Adjutant McElhiney, of the Salvation Army, led in prayer.

VACCINATION RULE WELL CARRIED OUT

Parents Asked To Take Children To Family Physician.

GUELPH, Aug. 2.—When the discovery of three cases of smallpox warned the local health department that prompt action was advisable, compulsory vaccination among school children was promptly ordered. The manner in which the ruling was put into force is well worth noting. It was pointed out to all citizens that vaccination of their children was a necessity for their own sakes as well as the health of the rest of the city. It was suggested, however, that it be done by their family physician; but for those who preferred otherwise, the facilities of the Public Health Department were available without cost.

Very necessary precautions were thus carried out with a minimum of trouble.

INTEREST IN BIG CONVENTION

received indicate the convention will be very representative in character. The woman representation will be very large and both in the constituency delegations and among the dedegates-at-large chosen by the Provincial association. In every constituency where there is a large labor vote recognition has been given to labour and the same recognition will be extended to the labor element in the selection of delegates-at-large Many prominent Conservatives have urged that the younger element in the party given greater recognition than has been hitnerto accorded and it is quite evident from the delegates already selected that this request has met with approval.

Major General McRae has just completed a tour of the Western Provinces and is now in Vancouver, but returns to Ottawa about August 20 and will visit the Maritime Provinces almost immediately, consulting with Conservative leaders in the various Provinces at St. John, Charlottetown and Halifax.

WEDDING BELLS.

SICKLER—JENKINS.

All Saints' Church was on Saturday, July 30, the scene of a very pretty wedding, when May, second daughter of Mrs. E. Jenkins, of 94 Gladstone Avenue, became the bride of Mr. W. Herman Sickler, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Sickler of 178 Rubidge Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Blagrave.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Harry Jenkins, of Toronto, looked charming in a dress of two-toned powder blue flat crepe, with hat to match, grey shoes and stockings, and platinum fox fur. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister, Miss Edith Jenkins, as bridesmaid, wearing a very pretty dress of crab-apple flat crepe with blonde hat, shoes and stockings, and carrying a bouquet of yellow roses.

The church was prettily decorated with a profusion of bright colored flowers. A reception was held at the home of the bride, 94 Gladstone Avenue, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of by about forty guests.

Later the happy couple left on the afternoon train for Toronto and Stratford. On their return they will reside at 213 Westcott Street.

Police chief H. S. Myers ordered the man held while he communicated with Montreal police after authorities discovered what they said was a resemblance between the man and George Vance, sought since the murder by Canadian officials.

ALBERTA CLINIC HAS WIDE SCOPE

Surgeon, Dentist and Two Nurses on Staff of Bureau.

TRAVELS IN SUMMER

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 2. — In view of the very vigorous movement sponsored by the Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers of Canada, for the establishment of a free consultive clinic to give advice on matters of health and hygiene, the operation of a somewhat similar innovation in public health work througout Alberta is of particular interest.

The Alberta clinic, financed and directed by the provoncial government, consists of four members—a surgeon, a dentist, the superintendent of district health nurses and an assisting public health nurse.

It is somewhat wider in its scope than the suggested Saskatchewan clinic since minor operations and a considerable amount of dental work are among its duties but its basic aim is approximately the same. It seeks to reach those sections of the rural population which are far removed from regular medical advice.

This summer, during one month, it visited six comparatively large towns and a number of smaller places. Five hundred consultations were held and one hundred and sixty minor operations performed as well as the regular dental work. More serious cases requiring operations were referred to city hospitals.

At each stop, an intensive educational campaign is carried on, utilizing schools, church and town halls as headquarters. One interesting feature of the work is the fact that a very high percentage of the patients are children.

Pie is not bad for the digestion, according to modern medical authorities.

A French professor has shown that in France, where the population in cities almost equals that of the rural districts and villages combined; the cities have furnished 13 times as many men of genius as has the country.

Country-wide loadings of revenue freight for the week ended September 25 totaled 1,182,940 cars. This was a decrease of 4071 cars from the total of the previous week.

Live fish and shellfish similar to those inhabiting the lakes of Palestine has been found by artesian well borers at depths of 200 and 300 feet beneath the sands of the Sahara desert.

PLAY AT OSHAWA

Visitors Beat Central Ontario Clubs by 154 Points to 86 on Saturday.

OSHAWA, Aug. 2.—The British lawn bowlers visited the Motor City to play rinks from Peterborough, Bowmanville, Whitby and Oshawa. At the conclusion of the twenty-one ends the British won five out of six games with a total plus of 68 shots, the Peterborough quartette, skipped by George F. Cairns, being the only Central Ontario rink to be credited with a victory. The exhibition of bowling displayed by the British rink skipped by W. F. Wade and the Lift Lock City quartette was a battle in drawing shots, and up to the intermission the score was a tie, 10-10. On the first end at the beginning of the second half of the game, Skip Cairns scored a three end and on the next a two and from then on was never headed, winning out by 24 to 16. Scores:

CHICAGO GAINS LEAGUE LEAD

Bunch Hits to Defeat Philadelphia 6-5 in National League Fixture.

PIRATES SECOND

NEW YORK, August 2 (Canadian Press). — The Cubs, moving into first place, bunched their hits opportunely to defeat Philadelphia yesterday at Chicago, 6 to 5. After holding the visitors runless for seven innings, Brillheart weakened and was driven off the hill, in the eighth, with the tieing run on base. Bush replaced him and walked the first man to fill the bases. Jonnard, the first man to face Percy Jones, the next Cub pitcher, smashed out a double clearing the bases and putting the Phillies in the lead. Webb tied the count with a home run in the Cubs' half of the eighth, and Jones started the winning rally in the ninth for Chicago with a single.

Defeated by Boston Braves by 4 to 1 in eleven innings at Pittsburgh, the Pirates went into second place. Aldridge weakened in the eleventh after hurling fine ball. Richbourg opened the final frame by beating out a bunt. Bancroft singled and High tripled to score both runners. High then scored on a sacrifice fly.

Win from St. Louis.

Three home runs—two by Bill Terry and a third from George Harper's bat—gave the Giants a 6 to 3 win at St. Louis, third straight victory of the present series. The three distance drives accounted for five runs.

Flint Rhem making his first start for the Cardinals since his recent disciplining by Owner Sam Breadon, was roughly handled during the three innings he survived. Rhem staked the visitors to a five-run lead before Littlejohn took up the burden and held the Giants to two hits the rest of the journey.

Brooklyn gained the edge yesterday in the battle with Cincinnait for fifth place, taking the third game of the Brookly series. Dazzy Vance bettered Eppa Rixey in a pitching duel, and banged in a run himself with a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning.

Life History of Walter Johnson

(By Billy Evans.)

I will never forget the first day I saw Walter Johnson in action; neither will the Washington players who faced him in batting practice. It was the day following his unexpected but welcome arrival in Washington.

I happened to drop out to the ball park early that afternoon. Picking out what I believed was the coolest spot in the park, at the top of the stands, I began giving my attention to the athletes who were standing around the home plate waiting for their turn at bat.

There, before my eyes, was Johnson piching to the players, in batting practice. As he wound up to deliver the ball I smiled at his long, loose arms going through the usual pitching motions.

Next, I marvelled at the ease with which he delivered the ball, and, as it left his hand and sped on to the plate I watched with amazement its line—and a rather thin line—from the pitcher's box to the plate.

For some minutes I watched the veteran members of the Washington club step to the plate to take their turn at bat with Johnson doing the pitching. On the second appearance of all players they did not hug the plate as closly as they had on their initial appearances. They were foot loose, so they might be in the best position to dodge any of Johnson's pitches that might not carry true. However, the control of the youngster was almost as impressive as his speed.

After perhaps 15 minutes of pitching, Manager Cantillon sent the youngster to the club house to change shirts. He had hardly disappeared from the field before the players began to gather in clusters, and I was pretty certain Johnson was the subject of discussion.

Moving from my seat in the last row of the grandstand to a front chair in one of the boxes, I called to Charley Street, then the star backstop of the Washington club:

"That chap Johnson looked pretty fast from the grandstand," I ventured.

"He doesn't merely look fast—he is!"

"Has he a good curve ball?" I asked. There was a trace of disgust in the way Street looked at me after I asked for information relative to his curve.

"Whadda mean curve ball? Say, a guy with the speed of Johnson doesn't need anything else! You can't hit what you cant' see. That's how fast that big busher is."

That very first day, Catcher Charley Street coined an expression about Walter Johnson's speed that has carried on through these years. Whenever a player was set down on strikes with Johnson pitching, and many of them wended their way back to the bench over that route when he was in his prime, the player invariably offered the very good alibi:

"You can't hit what you can't see."

The ballyhoo on Johnson started the first day he stepped into the Washington ball park. It has continued ever since. Within a week more had been written about him in the Washington papers than had been said about the rest of the club during the entire season.

TO-MORROW: Evans tells of first game Johnson pitched.

FANS HAIL JOHNSON

WALTER JOHNSON.

Sport fans are honoring this veteran of the national game. He is Walter Johnson, who, on Aug. 2, 1907, pitched his first game of big league baseball. Today marks the twentieth anniversary of his debut.

Johnson has pitched more years, has taken part in more games, won more victories, scored more shutouts, struck out more batsmen, worked more consecutive scoreless innings than any other pitcher in the history of the American League. And he is still going.

WILL STAGE FIGHT IN SOLDIERS FIELD

Tunney-Dempsey Heavyweight Championship Bout to be Held Sept. 15.

CHICAGO, August 2 (Canadian Press). — Tex Rickard will stage the Tunney-Dempsey fight for the world's heavyweight championship in Soldier's Field, the massive municipal stadium on Chicago's lake front, the night of September 15.

The New York promoter guaranteed the battle for Chicago yesterday after the South Park Board, which controls the stadium, voted four to one in favour of granting him use of the field. Rickard agreed to pay the Board $100,000 for the use of the stadium. He agreed to absorb all expenses for converting the field into a fight arena.

Rickard expects the battle to draw a record-breaking crowd of 150,000, with gate receipts around $2,000,000, eclipsing the previous record gate of $1,895,000 set when Tunney defeated Dempsey for the title in the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium at Philadelphia a year ago.

Rickard consented to the demand of the Board to limit the price of ringside seats to $40.00, instead of $50.00, scaling his prices down to $5.00 for the cheapest seats, tax included.

To meet the requirements of the Illinois law, George F. Getz, a 61-year-old millionaire operator, will become associated with Rickard in the promotion. Getz will take out the promoter's license, but assured the Board that he would not take any of the profits and neither he nor any members of Mayor William Hale Thompson's civic affairs committee will even accept any complimentary tickets from Rickard.

The bout will be ten rounds to a referee's decision.

PETERBOROUGH RINKS IN FINALS

Freeman Runner Up To Smith of Warkworth For Meyers Cup.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2.—At one o'clock this morning the last bowl was thrown in the Campbellford Bowling Club open tournament, which opened yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, when the Mayor and President Archer welcomed the bowlers to Campbellford and to the Campbellford greens.

There were rinks from Peterboro, Belleville, Cobourg, Warkworth, Brighton, Hastings, Tweed, Stirling, Port Hope and Toronto — Peterboro sending seven rinks, one reaching the final in the primary competition and another the final in the consolation.

Warkworth carried away the Myers Cup for the second time in succession, in a 16-end go with the Freeman (Peterboro) rink by a score of 14-13. The rinks were as follows:

Warkworth—Clayton Smith (skip), Dr. Herb Allen, A. M. Smale and Morley Smith.

Peterboro—Harold Freeman (skip), Reg. Fox, W. Greenslade and Ben Chesler.

Each member in the two rinks were presented with a beautiful pyrex casserole with a silver base.

It was exactly midnight when the Parker rink of Cobourg and the Donaldson rink of Peterboro started on the last round. With the exception of the two rinks and President Archer, everyone had made his way home. With six up in Cobourg's favor, the Donaldson rink withdrew when in the last end the cat was knocked off the green, entitling them to another end. This gave the Wiggins Cup to Cobourg. The rinks were as follows:

Cobourg—Joe Parker (skip) Maurice Booth, Harold Worth and Leslie Wilson.

Peterboro — Tom Donaldson, N. Routley, George Taylor and Alex. Anderson.

Each member of the winning rink received a very nice silver clock, and the members of the defeated rink each received a set of table linen.

The only incident to mar the day was when Chief Gimblett sent one of his bowls thundering into the Canal. It will likely be allowed to remain there as the Canal at this point is mighty near to the dam.

The lady members of the Bowling Club put in a strenuous day supplying the many players with ice cream, soft drinks and lunches.

MORE THIS WEEK

MILLBROOK, Aug. 2.—The I. O. O. F. team and the Clerks had a game of softball at the Agricultural Park on Friday evening, the former winning by a score of 25-24. E. C. Richards was umpire.

The Bankers and ex-Bankers played against the Station team on Tuesday, the score being 16-15 in favor of the former, two or three extra innings being necessary to break the tie.

Further games are being arranged for next week. The season for ball was late beginning locally, but interest, both among spectators and players, has run high since the series of games was started.

EIGHT PLAYS FOR SUMMER FESTIVAL

One of Sheridan's Works to be Given at Stratford This Year.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Eng., Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—No fewer than eight of Shakespeare's plays form the programme of the summer festival at Stratford-on-Avon. They are "Anthony and Cleopatra," "Much Ado About Nothing," "As You Like It," "MacBeth," "King Henry the Fifth," "The Taming of the Shrew," "Twelfth Night" and "Hamlet." In addition Sheridan's "The School for Scandal" is being played. So far as attendance goes there is every prospect that the festival will be a success. The performances take place in the temporary memorial theatre, which in sultry days is not so well favored as the old theatre, the latter being situated of course on the bank of the Avon. The new theatre is to be built on the site of the old.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, July 30—A fair crowd from this community accompanied the local softball team to the English Line garden party on Thursday evening where they met defeat at the hands of the Line All-stars by the close score of 13 to 12. Due to a number of obstructions of a more or less permanent nature in the outfield, good ball was out of the question. Meiklejohn was the heavy scorer of the locals with three counters, while G. Petherick pulled off the prize catch when he ran in to centre to pull down a short fly. G. Anderson, Little and Craighead were the heavy hitters for the Line crew.

The line-up was as follows:

English Line: Maybee, p.; Lambert, c.; Little, 1b.; Craighead, 2b.; Diamond, 3b.; Airhart, ss.; G. Anderson, lf.; Locke, cf.; Peake, rf.

Score by innings:

English Line..... 3 6 2 2 0—13
Petherick's Corners..... 0 4 2 3 3—12

Umpires: McArthur and Fairman.

On Wednesday evening a combined team of Petherick's and Rylstone boys met a team from Menie in a softball fixture at Rylstone and won by a score of 19 to 11. The Menie line-up included some of the regular league players, including Eagleson, Rannie, F. Little and Hobbs, also Thompson of Hoards. G. Kerr, Owens, Roy Fry and Roy Barnum of the locals assisted Grant Meiklejohn, R. McKeown, Grenville Meiklejohn, Earl Fairman and P. Gibson of the Rhylstone team. Many good plays were made with very few errors on either side.

Johnson's Record Likely to Stand

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—More than 3,500 strikeouts!

That is one of Walter Johnson's records that is likely to be a target for major league pitchers for years and years to come and yet remain unsurpassed. Johnson is just a few shy of that mark now.

There were lean years and fat years in Johnson's achievement, but Washington fans who will celebrate his debut 20 years ago in the American League on Aug. 2, know that each year Old Barney tried his best.

Johnson struck out the greatest number of batsmen in one season in 1910 when 313 whiffed his offerings. His 78 in 1920 was the lowest he recorded in one season.

YANKEES LOSE TO INDIANS 2-1

Nick Herb Pennock for Two Runs on Three Singles.

CALLED IN SIXTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Rain, darkness and the Cleveland Indians tossed the New York Yankees for a 2 to 1 loss yesterday in a six-inning encounter halted by a thunderstorm.

The Yanks nicked Walter Miller, Cleveland southpaw, for the first run in the fourth frame on Koenig's single and a ringing double from Meusel's bat. As the storm brewed and semi-darkness fell over the field, the Indians fell on Herb Pennock for two runs in the sixth on three singles, Babe Ruth's wide throw to the plate and an infield out.

The torrential rain that hit the stadium a few minutes after as the Indians completed the first half of the seventh, flooded the dugouts and left the field in such shape that a second game scheduled for yesterday was abandoned.

St. Louis at Boston, rain; Chicago at Philadelphia, rain. Only games scheduled.

And it is beneficial too, cleansing mouth and teeth, soothing the throat and helping digestion.

To have a packet always with you is to insure yourself against thirst and fatigue.

Glen Wright, brilliant shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates, considered by many experts as the best in the game, has had a most unusual record in his brief career as a big leaguer.

Wright was secured by Pittsburgh from Kansas City for delivery in 1923. However, he requested that he be allowed to spend another year in the minors, being of the opinion that he wasn't quite ready. It was granted and Wright profited greatly thereby. When he joined the Pirates he was a finished ball player.

In his first year in the majors, the season of 1924, he established an unusual feat for a recruit, playing in every inning of the 153 games in which he took part.

Incidentally, in his first year as a big leaguer, he set a major league record for assists for a shortstop, handling 601 chances. The American League record is 570, made by Terry Turner of Cleveland in 1906.

In his second year as a big leaguer he joined the hall of fame in baseball by being one of the very few major league ball players to ever make a triple play unassisted.

The unusual happening came at a most opportune time. With the score standing 10—9 in favor of Pittsburgh in the first of the ninth St. Louis had Cooney on second and Hornsby on first with none out. Things looked bad for the Pirates. Then came the big thrill.

Bottomley hit a liner to Wright, who touched second, retiring Cooney, who was on his way to third, and then touched out Hornsby, who was racing towards second, ending the game.

TO-NIGHT—TO-MORROW

Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL.

NORMA SHEARER IN "THE DEMI-BRIDE."

The Capitol Theatre opened again after a month's closing with an excellent programme that saw a filled house last night. "The Demi-Bride," with Norma Shearer in the title role, along with a snappy comedy, "Fluttering Hearts," showing a chauffeur-millionaire in a hilarious mix-up, and the usual run of excellent short reels, including some interesting scenes from the Dail Eaaren, make up an entertaining offering for the first half of the week.

There is also a decided innovation in the new uniforms of the ushers, trig affairs of navy, with red trimmings, gold buttons and silver braid.

"The Demi-Bride" is somewhat along the line of a French comedy farce, and Lew Cody and Norma Shearer carry out the idea perfectly, the former in the role of a gay Lothario who keeps a list of ladies' names in a book and maintains an innocent demeanor even when confronted by a wrathful husband.

Norma Shearer is the dainty little lady of the convent who spies Philippe Levaux over the wall and flirts with him forthwith. She is expelled and arrives home unexpectedly, to find her stepmother entertaining Philippe. She imagines, however, that he has come to explain matters with regard to her, and later intercepts a basket of roses which arrive from him for her stepmother. An embarrassing situation when the older lady pays a call on the philanderer at his apartment provides Criquette, the stepdaughter, with an opportunity of unexpectedly bringing matters to a crisis, and her stepfather arranges a marriage immediately between her and Levaux. The latter is extremely reluctant to carry out his part of the bargain, but falls in love suddenly with his little bride when she appears at the altar, a vision of loveliness.

Complications ensue when Lola, one of his more ardent flames, insists on throwing a wrench in the machinery by appearing at the apartment and telling a lot of tales. But the affair simmers down to the satisfaction of all concerned. It is a light, gay production with a somewhat rakish flavor to several of the episodes, but makes excellent hot-weather entertainment.—Jeanette.

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets Fine For Thin, Frail Kids

Children Love Them Because They Are Sugar Coated and as Easy to Take as Candy.

It's your duty, Mother, to see that the frail, peaked, sickly youngster grows up to be strong in body, keen in mind and robust in health.

Extracted from the livers of the lowly codfish are the health, weight and strength producing vitamines that are found in McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets, which are sold by pharmacists all over North and South America.

Doctors know about them and so does McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store, McDermid Drug Co., Jas. Lynch and druggists everywhere and if your children need building up ask for these tablets to-day if you want to give your loved ones a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones. But be sure and get McCoy's.

They are not expensive — 60 tablets—60 cents, and if you are not pleased with the improvement after 30 days—your money back.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

Girl Athlete Claims Broad Jump Record

LONDON, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Miss M. A. Gunn, the twenty-year-old English athlete, established what is claimed to be a world's broad jump record for women yesterday by clearing eighteen feet three and one half inches in a meet at Stamford Bridge.

Miss Gunn also won the hundred yard dash in eleven and four fifths second and helped her team win the 660 yards relay race.

NOT SUCH A HOT RECORD.

Connie Mack has the unusual distinction of having seen his team finish in every position from first to eighth.

SPECIAL EVENT REGATTA HELD

Keen Competition in All Races at Juniper on Saturday.

MANY ENTRIES.

STONEY LAKE, August 2. — The special events regatta was held on Saturday afternoon at Juniper Island and was most successful in every respect. The preparatory work of the committee was most efficiently done, and the programme run off according to schedule. The weather was delightfully warm, but the wind died down early in the afternoon, which made the open sailing race rather difficult, but was much more pleasant for the swimming race than last year's wind.

The races were well contested, and in each event the competition was keen, and throughout the afternoon a splendid spirit of sportsmanship was manifefted, which contributed to the successful event.

Visitors were present from Chemong, Peterboro, Sturgeon Point, Toronto, Fort Erie, and Brockville, who made the trip specially to compete in the various events on the programme.

Comparisons are not always in good taste, but it may be pardonable to refer to last year's entry list which, although very good, was not equal to 1927's record.

The dinghy sailing was won by Reg. Dixon, with a good margin. There were five entries, and the race was a good one. This race was won last year also by Mr. Dixon.

Bob Beal again captured the canoe sailing race from a field of 4, and he is the first man to win the W. G. Morrow Cup, which was presented this year, and is a handsome piece of silverware.

The opening sailing race with seven entries, including Donald Meyer's "Flirt," Mr. Flavelle's "J.W.," Mr. Hall's "Scud," G. B. Matthews' "Skidly," Mr. Willoughby's "B.V.D.," Mr. Brewin's "Sunbeam I." and Reg. Dixon's "Sunbeam II."

This last year was Mr. Flavelle's race, but Mr. Willoughby won this year in his 14-foot dingy, "B.V.D."

The paddle around Juniper for the Gordon Graham Trophy brought out seven entries, with keen competition and intense interest on the part of the spectators. Don. FitzGerald, last year's winner, was a competitor, and this year took second place, Jack Ridpath leading by a few feet, making a good finish of a good race. The official time was 24 minutes, one minute more than last year's time.

The four horse-power outboard motor boat race was one of the events of the afternoon, and friendly rivalry was keen. Three boats entered, G. Gillespie with a Johnson motor, J. Easton with a Lockwood Twin, and G. Guillett with a Lockwood. Gillespie was an easy winner in one of the most exciting motor boat races of recent years.

The open outboard motor boat race was run by the same contestants with 8 h.p. engines.

J. M. R. Fairbairn also entered his boat and gamely went over the course. Mr. Gillespie's craft once more led all the way, winning easily from the other competitors.

Mr. Gillespie also was the first man home in the special event which was open to all motor boats and which drew out 16 entries of all classes of boats. A feature of this event was the fact that the first man to finish had the first draw from a hat full of numbers, and the man to draw No. 1 ticket got first prize, no matter what his place in the race had been. The winning ticket was drawn by J. R. Dodworth, who finished third, and the second prize ticket by Mr. Owens, who finished twelfth.

The swim from Lech's Island to Juniper for Mrs. G. K. Fraser's handsome trophy brought out fifteen entries, which was three more than last year. Last year, three girls and nine boys entered, but this year seven girls and eight boys started, and with one exception all finished. Last year's winner was Tom Van Atta of St. Joseph, Mo. This year Don FitzGerald was the winner, the time being 21 minutes 27 second for the distance of 1,217 yards. William Bertram was second, his time being 21 minutes 58 seconds. Gladys Heward, who finished fourth, and who wins the special prize for the first lady to finish, is a young girl, who last year was a prominent figure in the children's regatta.

The only drawback to the afternoon's enjoyment was the regrettable accident which befell Fred Jones, who was the official starter. Mr. Jones, while firing the starting gun, had the misfortune to cut his right hand badly between the thumb and fore finger. Medical attention was at once given, but Mr. Jones will have a painful wound for some time.

The official committee consisted of Messrs. Gordon K. Fraser, J. H. Renwick, Dr. Perry Goldsmith, G. L. Guillett and Ian Wotherspoon.

The following is the list of the events and the winners:

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND CHARLIE'S TRICK

"Cock a doodle doo!" crowed Charlie the rooster boy one day after he had been playing ball with Jackie and Peetie Wow Wow the dogs and Jimmie Wibblewobble the duck. "I think I'll go take a bath! It's so very hot!"

"A bath! That sounds good!" quacked Jimmie. "I'm going for a swim myself."

"We'll come with you!" barked Jackie and Peetie.

So the four boys ran off together, but while Jackie, Peetie and Jimmie plunged into the water at the old swimming hole, Charlie found a place in the road, not far from the brook, and the rooster boy took his bath in the dust.

"Oh ho! Ah ha!" barked the Fox.

Now of course a dust bath would not do for you boys and girls, unless you took a water bath after it. But Charlie the rooster was different. He just loved to wallow in the dust, tossing it up on his back, and under his wing feathers until he looked like a dried mud pie. Then, when he was well covered, he would give himself a shake and all the dust would scatter, leaving him as clean as heart coud wish. And always, when he shook the dust off after his bath, Charlie made a big, misty cloud in which he could hardly be seen until the dust settled.

"Last one in has to buy the lollypops!" barked Jackie as he jumped with a splash into the brook. He was followed by Jimmie and this made Peetie last, so Peetie would have to treat when the bathing was over.

"I don't see why Charlie can't come in with us," said Peetie.

"It does seem sort of queer," whined Jackie, splashing about. "Here is Jimmie in with us and he has feathers on the same as Charlie."

"Not quite the same kind of feathers," quacked the duck, paddling around in a ring while he looked at Charlie in the road covering himself with dust. "My feathers are oily and water won't wet them," went on the duck boy. "But though Charlie can put a little oil on his feathers from a bag he carries, he can't get enough on to keep him from getting soaking wet if he should jump in the brook."

"Oh, so that's it!" barked Jackie and Peetie. They splashed in the water with Jimmie while Charlie tossed dry dust from the road over himself and pretty soon along hopped Uncle Wiggily.

"Hello, boys!" called the rabbit gentleman.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily!" answered Charlie, Jackie, Peetie and Jimmie. And Peetie whined:

"I've got to buy the lollypops!"

"How is that?" asked the rabbit.

"'Cause I was last one in the swimming hole," explained the puppy. "But of course you came here after me, Uncle Wiggily, and if you wanted to," said Peetie slyly, sticking his head out of the water, "if you wanted to, you could buy the lollypops."

"Well, yes, I'll think about it," said the rabbit gentleman with a twinkle of his pink nose.

"But mind you—I didn't ask you to buy them; did I?" went on Peetie.n "I just said you could if you wanted to—I can't stop you!"

"No, you didn't ask me!" chuckled Mr. Longears. And when the three water swimmers were coming out of the brook, for they had finished their baths, and when Charlie was getting up out of the dust, all of a sudden the Fox sprang out of the roadside bushes.

"Oh ho! Oh ha!" barked the Fox. "I am in luck today! I can have a rabbit and a rooster for my lunch!" And the Fox was just going to spring at the bunny uncle when Charlie thought of a trick to play.

"Now you see us!" he crowed, "and now you don't!" With that the rooster boy gave himself a hard shake. Out of his feathers floated such a heavy cloud of dust that it was like a smoke screen in the navy, and the dust cloud hid Uncle Wiggily and the rooster from the sight of the Fox.

"Where are you? Where are you? barked the bad chap. "I can't see you! Where are you?"

"That's for you to find out!" crowed Charlie. And then with the cloud of dust hiding him and the rabbit, the two hopped off down the road with Jackie, Peetie and Jimmie to buy lollypops.

"It's a good thing you bathed in the dust, Charlie!" quacked the boy duck as he took a long, sweet taste of his cornmeal candy.

"That's what I say!" agreed Mr. Longears who had treated the boys. "Everything seems to happen for the best with me."

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

BAD DREAMS

I had a dream last night: I dreamed
A robber chased me with a gun;
The Missus sat and laughed: it seemed
She thought the show was lots of fun.
My daughter sat upon the roof
And waved a washtub overhead,
And, as we both went by, said "Woof!"
And—well, then I fell out of bed.

Fell out of bed, and woke to find
There was no burglar in the place,
The Missus still was good and kind,
My daughter in her proper place.
She waved no washtub, woofed no word,
She acted like no impish elf,
For all that I had seen and heard
Were things I just thought up myself.

So then I lay awake awhile
And tried to think the whole thing out,
And, when I did, I had to smile—
What foolish things to worry about!
We fear, we doubt, we tremble so,
With heavy cares we fill life's shelves,
Yet half the troubles that we know
Are things we just think up ourselves.

SUMMER COLDS

Discharges of excess mucus from the nose and throat are almost as common in summer as in winter, and the causes are practically the same. The "food" causes of colds are overeating above the body's requirements, and using too much of the carbohydrates and hydrocarbons, that is, sugar, starch and fats.

It is surely true that most people eat two or three times as much food as the body can use for the building up and repair of tissue. Because of the colder weather in winter, such excesses of the heavy foods do not cause as much trouble because the over supply of nourishment is oxidized and destroyed. For the three or four months of summer, the system is trying to get rid of excess heat rather than to retain it. If the same amount of food is used on a day in July as would ordinarily be used on a day in January, it represents only an added burden in weight and heat which must be eliminated. For example, if it is true that a person regularly eats twice as much as he needs in the wintertime, the same amount of food in July would be equal to perhaps four times as much as actually needed. This excess is the material out of which catarrhal mucus is developed. Colds in the summer may then start if the elimination from the skin is suddenly retarded.

If one takes an automobile ride on a hot day while freely perspiring, elimination from the pores may be suddenly checked by the influence of air blowing upon the head and chest. This produces congestion in the upper part of the body, and the toxins which are repressed pass around through the circulation and are thrown out through the protected membranes inside the nose and throat. Thus, a stuffed body with the skin elimination checked, must go through the phenomenon of "a cold" as a life-saving measure.

Those who are over-fed are especially subject to infectious colds which may be contracted in indoor swimming pools. Even those who are very careful about their diet will actually catch one of these "swimming-pool colds" if they become enervated, which is so often the case with those who are spending a week-end, resting from the week's work. The water in outdoor swimming pools is well sterilized by the chemical rays of the sunlight so there is little danger of infection in these open-air pools.

To avoid colds this summer, eat less—cut down on heavy foods—keep the body well covered while motiring—adn do your swimming in the open.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: L. G. W. asks: "Will you kindly tell me what should be the reason that very often I have a burning pain at the back of my neck when I touch it or move my neck much? Also the reason for cold claimmy hands when my body is warm."

ANSWER: There may be some trouble with a cervical vertebra. If the burning pain is around the seventh cervical vertebra it shows a malposition of one or more vertebrae in that section and this could also cause a poor circulation in your hands.

QUESTION: Mamie J. writes: "I am a sufferer from what doctors diagnose as "Urticaria." It affects me with "welts" breaking out all over my body ranging from the size of a pea to that of a half dollar. They produce almost intolerable itching. What would you advise as a cure?"

ANSWER: Eat good food combinations and drink plenty of water between meals, using from one to two quarts before luncheon, and the same mount during the afternoon.

QUESTION: Thank You writes: "I am writing asking if you think there is a cure for tubercular partinitas as I have been operated on three times and have been draining for about a year. Is there any particular cause for draining this long?"

ANSWER: Your question probably refers to tubercular peritonitis. The reason for such long drainage is that you have gotten rid of your trouble and your life is being saved by the drainage. Fasting, dieting, exercising, and other hygienic measures are necessary to get your blood in condition so that it will not be necessary for your peritoneum to throw out the tubercular exudation. Local treatments to the parts are of practically no value as a cure depends almost entirely upon constitutional treatment.

CORNS Gone!

Radox has "given me new feet."

Do you know the agony of corns? What are you doing to get relief? Cutting and plastering will never rid you of a corn. You must get down to the root itself and remove it. The sure and safe way is to place your feet in a hot Radox footbath. Instead of the pain of cutting and the danger of caustics you experience a wonderful sense of relief. After soaking in Radox you can lift out the corn, root and all—painlessly. Read this letter:

"I must tell you what Radox Bath Salts have done for me. For years I have suffered agony with my feet through corns and callous growths on the ball of the foot. I think I have tried nearly every so-called corn remedy that has been invented, but without any relief. I have also been treated by chiropodists, but nothing has done me any good with the exception of Radox Bath Salts. I can honestly say they have given me new feet. My corns and callouses have entirely gone and I can now do a twenty-mile walk on a Sunday with absolute comfort. . . ."—C.F.

When you dip your feet in a foot-bath containing Radox Bath Salts, the dead skin of the corn combines with the Radox Salts to form a protein salt of the actual corn itself. This protein salt dissolves in the water, and so softens the corn that after a few baths it may be lifted out bodily. Radox does not affect the living skin, only dissolves the corn.

CHAPTER IV

In the Shadows of Hell's Kitchen

Two generations have passed since Hell's Kitchen, that district lying in the vicinity of Tenth Avenue and the upper Forties and Fifties, roared its defiance at police and organized law and order. There were men, then, tough, hard fighting brutes, but withal possessing a sense of chivalry and fair play. They were not the skulking bandits of today, excited by cocaine, and shooting to kill, no matter how insignificant their venture. Hell's Kitchen was settled by Irish immigrants and if they used their fists and, sometimes wrested the baton of a bluecoat and beat him over the head with his own weapon, still and all, there was no murder in their hearts, rather of love of fight and frolic, which is the heritage of every son of old Erin.

The character and personality of the district has changed. A polyglot population inhabits it now. Traces there are of the imprint of its Irish settlers, but these human landmarks are old and their children have passed on to live in fancier sections of Greater New York. The O'Sheas had remained.

"'Tis a no good trade," Kathie would complain to her husband.

Mike O'Shea had been a hod carrier when he landed, a greenhorn, thirty-odd years ago. He learned to lay brick and there was no better workman nor had there been a steadier husband and father than he. Eleven children had blessed his match with Kathie, his wife, and contentment had settled upon the old pair. All of the children were alive and well and were successful in marriage or in their trades and there were grandchildren, too, who brightened the Sunday afternoons of Mike and Kathie. Old Mike had a few dollars in the bank, savings from his long years of labor, and the children, God bless them, weren't they sending in regular the fewer dollars that were needed for the old couple's wants? The flat in the old tenement, where they had lived for twenty years, was still comfortable for Kathie was a fine housekeeper and knew how to take care of their possessions, and now a radio had taken the place of the phonograph of ten years before. Why should they be moving, old Kathie would tell her children; 'tis the years that make a home homelike and new things are not for the old.

Rory O'Shea was the unmarried son who had remained at home. He was a gay lad and a courageous lad, now twenty-eight, and the idol of old Mike and Kathie, although they scolded him daily and professed never to have been content with the profession he had followed. Rory was a prizefighter.

"'Tis a no good trade," Kathie would complain to her husband, "what with him coming home with his face knocked up an' his eyes black like he'd been to the fair at Knockbotherum!"

"Let him be, let him be, he's clean an' honest an' 'tis no disgrace to be a prizefighter, if a man wins," the old man would answer, for his heart expanded with pride when his neighbors congratulated him on Rory's battles. But congratulations were fewer today. Matches were rare; now and then some candidate for the lightweight championship would take on Rory, but Rory knew he was being used as a set-up, he knew that his punch was passing, that he couldn't stand up to these boys of twenty-two and twenty-three. Some of them he pitied, for he saw them as the same victims of greedy mismanagement just as he had been. Why, when he started out didn't he fight as many three "prelims" a week, and for what? For a twenty dollar bill out of the fifty that his manager took down for the match. Eager to go, inexperienced, courageous as a bulldog, he had fought when and wherever he was carded, believing and trusting the manager who told him that the championship was just around the corner and that ring experience and ring generalship would win it; he had only to fight to be a fighter. And it was this willingness that had broken down the fine strength of the boy; today he lacked the muscle and brawn to back up his gameness and his experience.

But the fans liked him. The patrons of every club in New York City knew him and his courage and his willingness to carry the fight to his opponent. Six months before he had fought at the Pal'adium. He got a bigger hand than the favorite, a lad who was up and coming.

The loyalty of his following warmed his heart, but he knew after feeling out his man in the first sixty seconds that young Zilinsky was his master. But he had put up a fight and had the galleries roaring when he stood toe to toe and exchanged rights and lefts that rocked him sadly. It was not until the seventh round that his strength gave way, and even then he fought doggedly, hiding behind no clinches and dancing footwork, but carrying the fight to Zilinsky, who, realizing that Rory was weakening, waited calmly for the opening that sent the O'Shea to the canvas for the count.

The O'Sheas occupied the first floor of the tenement where Sheila and Old Tom Kildare now lived. As Sheila became accustomed to her new surroundings and went marketing in the neighborhood she would frequently see old Kathie sitting by the window, prim in her black dress and beautiful in her white hair with brown eyes and the cheeks that still held a bit of the pink of Irish youth. They came to smile at one another, for Kathie recognized at once that Sheila was a greenhorn and fresh from the old country. Soon they met upon the stoop and from the exchange of greetings concerning the weather they came to discuss the best places to buy and Kathie herself guided Sheila through Paddy's Market beneath the "L" on Ninth avenue, south of Forty-second street. Every Saturday the curbs of Paddy's Market are lined with carts and the very freshest vegetables and fruits are to be had at the most reasonable prices in Manhattan.

Imagine, then, the delight of these two when Kathie told of her home which lay on the other side of Knockbotherum away from Killanmaul. And she had been even to Killanmaul years before, driving there with her father in the dog cart. Sheila revived the past to Kathie, and, "did she know" this family and that family? And some the old lady remembered and some were lost in the vagueness of the years that had gone since she and her bridegroom, Michael O'Shea, had sailed for America. Sheila was elated. Here was a friend indeed. The squalid district became brighter as old Mrs. O'Shea recounted the beginnings of her life in America and contrasted the poverty they had endured and pointed with pride to her possessions now, times when Sheila would step in for a cup of tea. True, Sheila missed with all her heart the fresh air of Killanmaul Hills; even the dank fog that swept up from the sea wooed her with its remembered pungent, salty flavor in the hours when homesickness was upon her. But she was braver and Emmett had taken her for walks about the city and into Central Park, and there she spent many afternoons, sometimes taking Mrs. O'Shea with her, but just as contented to be alone and to dream.

Emmett still boasted of what he was going to do. Sheila shrewdly suspected that these boasts were but the veil behind which he hid his discontent. She came to realize that his job with the city was a menial one, for had she not seen the trucks that gathered the waste and ashes at their business in front of her own flat? He still talked of marriage, but the day he would name became farther and farther away. Sheila had put a prompt stop to any love making.

"When ye have made good, as ye say, an' ye come to me, I'll tell ye my answer, Emmett, an' no sooner."

Discontent began to rest upon the head of Old Tom. For three months now he had been waiting like Micawber for something to turn up and to put him in the way of the dreamed of career in politics.

TERRIFIC STORM ACROSS BORDER

Heavy Property Damage Was Caused in New York and New England.

CELLARS FLOODED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Electrical storms of almost cloudburst proportions disrupted traffic and caused severe property damage throughout New York and New Jersey, and into England last night. No fatalities were reported, although a number of persons were injured by lightning bolts.

In New York City, railroad, subway and street car service was disrupted. At Rochester an explosion during a severe rain storm sent manholes in the downtown district spinning in the air, and plunged the city in darkness for an hour. Trolley service in Hudson County, N.J., was at a standstill when lightning struck an electric transformer.

Parks and low lands were transformed into river and lakes at Orangeburg, N.Y., while an almost continuous five hour rain in New Haven, Conn., flooded cellars and clogged sewers. Engines were called to pump out basements in Woonsocket, R.I., while a heavy electrical storm near Fitchburg, Mass., drove from the woods a fugitive whom the police had been seeking for five days. He was Oscar Nuncart, of Mason, New Hampshire, accused of assaulting a woman with intent to kill.

Japs Killing Snakes To Protect Emperor

TOKIO, August 2 (United Press).—Two thousand men played St. Patrick on the little island of Enoshima to-day to protect Emperor Hirohito from danger of snake bite.

The men were clearing the island of poisonous snakes in preparation for the Emperor's visit after he attends the naval manoeuvres. The island is off Kaboshima.

attached to the 93rd Highland Regiment, stationed in the West Indies. When Mr. Peters was three and one-half years old, his parents went to England. They came to Canada in 1838, just about the time of the Mackenzie Rebellion, making the voyage on the British man o' war Inconstant. The soldiers, who wore kilt, were obliged to discard them in the cold Canadian winters. As a little boy, Mr. Peters can remember his father speaking of the rebels strung up to their death on the streets of Kingston.

He went to Normal School in Toronto, where he can remember first having smelt coal-oil, in the year 1859, when the evil-smelling, unrefined oil of those days illuminated the hall for a dance that wound up the Normal School year. Regulations were very strict in those days. Scholars of opposite sex were not allowed to use the same rooming-houses and they were forbidden to walk or talk with each other on the streets or in the class-rooms, so that the annual dance was quite an event.

Mr. Peters remembered too, the first telegraph installed, in St. Catharines, about 1847, when the citizens used to watch the wires in the expectation of seeing the messages fly along their exterior.

In 1862, Mr. and Mrs. Peters were married in Bowmanville. Mrs. Peters is ninety years old, but is a hale and hearty old lady.

During his school teaching years, Mr. Peters had charges at Kirby, in Clark Township, near Newcastle; at St. Mary's, at Fairmount in this district, where he went in 1867, and spent three years; then in Orono, in Cavan, where he spent five years teaching school, and in Smith Township. Pupils of Mr. Peters are scattered over the United States and Canada. Some of those still living in Peterborough include Ed. M. Elliott, J. F. Thornton and J. E. A. Fitzgerald. He was probably the first normal school teacher in charge of rural schools in this district.

Always an inveterate reader, and especially well-read in English literature and the classics, Mr. Peters had his favorite book in 'Pickwick Papers.' He remembered the times when reading matter was scarce, when magazines were few and far between, and when Lever and Lover, and Bulwer Lytton and Dickens were the popular writers of the day.

For forty-eight years, twenty-five of which were spent as librarian in the former Mechanics' Institute, where the readers, as compared with the thousands who patronize the present Public Library, rarely reached beyond the four hundred mark, Mr. Peters resided in the city of Peterborough. He has seen it through the eyes of a student, a gardener, and a book-lover, grow and change. He has seen four generations come and go.

Two children, Miss Annie E. Peters and Walter Peters, of The Examiner staff, both live in the city, the former at home.

ENJOYABLE TRIP THROUGH LAKES

Empress Makes Regular Voyage With Large Holiday Crowd.

PLEASANT WEATHER.

The steamer Empress, which left the Lakefield wharf at 9.15 on Monday morning, was favoured with a merry crowd of one hunderd and fifty-three excursionists. The trip up through Clear and Stoney Lakes was delightful, weather and temperature being all that could be desired. After dropping off her passengers at the various island homes, dinner was enjoyed on arrival at Burleigh Falls. The trip up to the head of the lake in the afternoon proved refreshing and enjoyable, but on the return down the lake, a heavy rainstorm, with thunder and lightning was encountered, the rain washing the decks during the downpour, and driving the excursionists downstairs for shelter. The storm continued for about half an hour, but by that time the steamer reached Juniper Island, where preparations were being made for the regatta and sports, which were to commence at two o'clock. The Empress, however, had to leave at 3.25 in order to make her regular connections at Lakefield for Peterborough.

The captain and crew of the Empress were obliging and attentive in looking after the pleasure and comfort of the excursionists. Frank G. Young, the energetic manager of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co., had a busy day. After seeing the big ship of the line, the Stoney Lake, off with a record crowd of nearly three hundred excursionists, he caught the train at Auburn for Lakefield, and arrived in time to give the Empress his official attention before departing.

IMPORTANT FACT FORGOTTEN AT JUBILEE, SAYS GOODERHAM

National Health Great Factor in Progress of Canada, He Says.

CANADIANS FORTUNATE

Article in Bulletin of Social Hygiene Council Provokes Discussion.

TORONTO, Aug 2.—Did we, in celebrating the Jubilee of Confederation, pay scant attention to the one thing which, more than anything else, has contributed to our national development in the past and must be the chief foundation of our future achievements?

Col. A. E. Gooderham, President of the Connaught Laboraties at the University of Toronto and an outstanding Canadian philanthropist, has provoked an interesting discussion by his comments which are contained in a recent bulletin of the Canadian Social and Hygiene Council.

"Throughout the whole length and breadth of the Dominion, we have just celebrated the Jubilee of Confederation—a memorable event which gave us the opportunity for a national stock-taking. Metaphorically speaking, we checked over the books for the last sixty years."

"Canadians had a host of causes for mutual congratulation. In the comparatively few years which cover the entire historty of the Dominion, our progress can quite properly be considered as spectacular. But, in enumerating the many reasons for it, we tended to neglect the one thing which is perhaps the most important of all and which, inevitably, in the history of any country must be one of the primary factors in any greatness which that nation may achieve.

"In celebrating what the Dominion has already accomplished and looking forward to the growth which we all hope will mark the future, we were inclined to forget about Canadians as a whole in our attention to specific things and persons. We forgot about Canadians as a race.

"To explain, we have almost limitless natural resources, so great that we have not yet more than a vague idea of their extent but of what use would this great natural gift have been to our country if it had not been peopled with a race of inhabitants with the stamina, courage and physique to take advantage of it and develop it. In our industrial, political, educational and cultural advances, exactly the same thing holds.

"Our abilities as a nation in brief, depend primarily on our health. A country undermined by disease, physical weakness, the moral or social cankers which can create conditions which are disastrou to individual and communal well-being, can not advance. In this regard, Canadians are a fortunate people.

"Since this development of a sturdy and virile race is an almost imperceptible thing, influenced by a thousand factors and usually observed only by those directly concerned in the work of promoting health and hygiene, we may pass it by unnoticed. There is rarely anything sensational or dramatic about it. Some feat of war, an unusual discovery in the realm of science, a huge industrial development, the achievements of a political leader, a piece of literature or a work of art —all these are concrete and obvious things which give us something definite on which to fasten our enthusiasm. But the painstaking labors to promote public health, to provide sane and healthful living condition, despite the fact that nothing is more important and that the future of the Dominion must be built on them and their efefctiveness in keeping Canadians a strong and virile people, can never hope to fire the imagination and give rise to a great wave of popular enthusiasm.

"For that reason, we should be careful to keep them always in mind. We have every reason for satisfaction over what has already been done. Our medical, dental and nursing services ,our hospitals and institutions are as efficient as any in the world. Our governments devote a great deal of attention to the question. Our health legislation is advanced. We have battalions of health officers and assistants who are conscientious and carefully - trained guardians of their community's welfare. As far as specific diseases are concerned, we have shown remarkable successes. We are reducing diphtheria, smallpox and tuberculosis motality to a degree that is startling when the work of two or three decades is considered at once, and the same is true of other infectious diseases. For our scientific researches, in the discovery of insulin, to mention the most notable one, the whole world is our debtor. We are cutting down our infant mortality rates everywhere. In the matter of venereal disease, we have passed the point where are satisfied to control it, and are working to wipe it out by the creation of a moral and mental outlook that will make it impossible.

"This list of successful undertakings could be continued indefinitely. It is a thoroughly interesting record, but, more important still, is the fact that it demonstrates how much farther we can go. Our public health work is still only beginning. The things which have already been done cannot compare with those which are still to be carried out. We are a considerable distance away from the point at which we are taking full advantage of all the means science has even now provided for combatting disease. No country anywhere has yet utilized them completely at any point in its history.

"But we are getting to the point where the co-operation of every Canadian is an essential. It is not enough to leave the question of health to the medical and dental professions, the nurse and a comparatively few public-spirited citizens. It is a movement in which everyone must take part.

"By attention to it, there is no limit to the developments we may bring about. The future race of Canadians depends on what we do now and on the future race of Canadians depends the future of Canada."

GARDEN PARTY.

The Tabernacle United Church Holds Very Pleasant Social Evening.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Aug. 1.—The garden party on Mr. T. Russell's lawn, under the auspices of Tabernacle United church, was a decided success. After a period of threatening weather, the evening turned out fine and a splendid crowd gathered to do full justice to the excellent lunch provided and to keep the refreshment booths busy all evening.

Patriotic names for the various dishes in the ice-cream parlor proved an interesting variation from the ordinary. A well patronized booth was that where Mr. George Stollery sold his exquisite pieces of fancy basketry. Afflicted with blindness some years ago, Mr. Stollery did not give way to despair, as some men might but carried on with a brave spirit and is able now to do practically any of the ordinary chores about the farm. In addition, Mr. Stollery took up the study of fancy weaving and some of his products are real works of art.

Warning

Sub-section 18 of Section 10 of the Highway Traffic Act requires that on and after the 1st of October next ALL HORSE-DRAWN VEHICLES must carry in a conspicuous place on the left side thereof a lighted lamp showing white to the front and red to the rear.

Any lamps so used shall be clearly visible at a distance of at least 200 feet.

These Lamps are now on the market and can be had from

KARL SIMPSON
460 GEORGE STREET
Phone 574W. Peterboro, Ont.

This Lamp has been submitted to the Department of Public Highways, Toronto, and meets all requirements.

It is windproof, vibration proof, and burns ordinary coal oil 15 hours in one filling, which permits one to travel 90 miles if necessary without attention.

Don't confuse this with a toy electric lamp whose battery would be useless on one two-hour continuous drive, to say nothing of the rest of it.

I respectfully wish to advise, especially, that if you travel behind a horse in the evening, your life is in danger even from the most careful motorist if you haven't a light, and there will be a lot of people unnecessarily injured before October 1st, to say nothing of property loss, if they neglect this matter until that date.

I will be glad to show these lamps to anyone from 8.00 a.m. to 6.15 p.m. and in the evenings from 7.30 to 9 p.m. at the above address.

Those who have already ordered from me can get their lamps anytime now, and those I have promised delivery in North Monaghan and Smith will go out in the next few days.

Get your order in now while the price is low. It may have to advance.

CANDIDATE MAKES HEALTH A PLANK

Bracken Supporter Advocates Well-Being of People as Most Important.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 2—One of the most unusual instances of the very advanced attitude of the average Canadian in matters of public health was brought to the attention of citizens generally during the recent provincial election campaign throughout the province

Interest in the subject of communal well-being was sufficiently widespread for one candidate, Dr. E. W. Montgomery, a Bracken supporter, to make it one of the chief planks in his platform.

"It is not money in the bank or wheat in the granaries or cattle in the field that makes a country great," Dr. Montgomery said in the course of his campaign. "It is the quality and character of its men."

Pointing to the achievements of the past few years, he used them as examples of the greater things which might be accomplished in the future by united effort. Death rates from tuberculosis and diphtheria had both been reduced largely because the community was getting infectious diseases under control. But there was no reason, he noted, why the deaths from diphtheria could not be reduced to zero.

The major possibilities of health movements had not been even partially exhausted They were, he emphasized, essentially people's movements and it was essential that the average citizen should be kept in close touch with public health and hygiene problems.

King Refuses Wine During Sacrament

BUCHAREST, August 2 (Canadian Press). — Princess-Mother Helen, who is very religious, took her sovereign son, King Michael, to Communion this morning in the local church. When the priest was about to offer the consecrated wine to the boy king as he knelt before the altar, Michael said simply, "I don't drink wine in the morning." Surprised but amused, the priest assured Michael that the holy wine was not the same as other wines, and that he must take at least a sip if he wanted to be a good boy and receive a blessing.

Looking over at his mother, who wore an expression of mingled pain and amusement, Michael finally took the Sacrament. When he got home, his mother gave him a talking to.

Many New Highs At New York To-day

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. — (Canadian Press). — Resumption of the upward price movement in to-day's stock market carried both the rail and industrial averages to record high levels, more than 50 individual issues eclipsing the previous peak prices of the year. Advances reached violent proportions in a few issues which are believed to harbour large short interests. Timken roller bearing soared nearly 17 points to 141 and Manhattan Electrical Supply nearly 10 points to 131.

Practically all of the high grade Railroad and Industrial Stocks reached new high ground. The list including United States Steel Common, General Motors General Electric, American Tobacco American Smelting, Baldwin Locomotive, Consolidated Gas, Chrysler Motors, Hudson Motors, Woolworth, Atchison, New York Central Union Pacific, Southern Railway, Canadian Pacific, and Chesapeake and Ohio. Chicago grain operators were reported to be heavy buyers of Timken, which sold as low as 78 earlier in the year. Both Timken and Manhattan Electrical Supply which has more than doubled in price this year, fell back sharply on profit taking. The rapidity of the advance in these and other issues led to cautionary advices by some of larger commission houses, who urged profit taking on the theory that the technical position of the market had been weakened.

Toronto Market Firm Nickel Strength Features

TORONTO, Ont., August 2. (Canadian Press). — A steady upward swing in International Nickel to the high of 63¾ in transactions totalling more than 3,000 shares, featured the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Nickel opened at 63, and sold up to 63¾, but sagged under profit-taking to 62½. Previous to the noon close, however, it rallied to finish at 63¾, which figure indicated a net gain of 5¼ points over the previous close. C. P. R. also scored a spectacular gain when it sold up to 193¾. The close at 192½ showed a gain of four points.

The rest of the list followed the lead of the favourites, and the market showed a definite, strong tendency. Massey-Harris gained ¾ to 37¼. Industrial Alcohol ¼ to 34¼. Seagram 1¼ to 23¼, and Imperial Oil 1¼ to 46¼. Bell Telephone was a weak spot, dropping ⅜ to 149¾.

Amulet Is Feature Mine Market Active

TORONTO, Ont., August 2 (Canadian Press). — Amulet monopolized the limelight on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day, when in transactions numbering more than 200,000 shores, it soared to the new high of 4.25, later receding to 4.23. The noon close at this figure showed a gain of 32 cents. Area was a strong and active feature at 49, a gain of five points. Lake Shore advanced five cents to 20.50, while Wright Hargreaves gained three cents to 6.06. Coniagas was a weak feature, declining 20 cents to 4.75. Nipissing was down 13 cents to 5.50, and Teck-Hughes two cents to 8.40. International Nickel moved up 4.50 to 63.50, and Noranda sold up 25 cents to 22.0.0

AN OLD VETERAN.

Peterborough's oldest war veteran is stationed day and night at the south end of the grounds of the Armouries on Murray street. It is the 17th century smooth-bore muzzle loader made of bronze and bearing the monograms of George IV and William IV, which was part of the equipment of the British Army during the Crimea War. This old relic came to Canada early in the last century and was brought to Peterborough through the efforts of Captain Sanderson of the Durham Field Battery who had a large number of Peterborough men in training under his supervision.

For several years the old weapon lay in the gun shed of the militia and after the erection of the Armouries, it was placed in its present position largely as a result of representation of the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire.

The wheels in the course of time became old and worn and the hubs, made of solid oak, were worm-eaten and weakened to such an extent that the ancient weapon was in danger of falling to pieces.

Three years ago the old wheels were taken off and the gun was mounted on new wheels which at one time belonged to a captured German field kitchen. The old machine received a coat of paint and a typed sheet containing the following announcement was enclosed in a bottle which was corked and placed in the gun:

By order of Lt.-Col. Frank Bradburn, M. C., these wheels were put on by Quartermaster Sergeant Muir, late 21st Battalion, and Corporal J. Nixon, Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, late 2nd Battalion. Painted by Corporal J. Jordan, M.M., 21st Battalion and Private James Sharman, late 8th Canadian Rifles.

The ancient weapon does not appear entirely to have lost its usefulness for it has occasionally been hailed as a useful auxiliary in giving a realistic touch to warlike celebrations. That it still retained its power to destroy was demonstrated amid a scene of public enthusiasm 1885 when the Peterborough contingent left the city to take part in the Northwest Rebellion. A regrettable incident damped the ardor of the onlookers. Due to a misunderstanding the shot was fired prematurely and an officer, Captain Jim Snider, lost his right hand, shattered by the explosion.

On another occasion the gun came close to figuring in a court case.

On the evening of the day when news of the relief of Ladysmith reached the city, the old gun was pressed into service in the celebration and filled with powder, manure, old clothes for a grand salvo.

A local citizen living on Murray street declared that the concussion following the explosion had loosened the bricks in the wall of his house. Asserting that the explosion was so terrific as to be heard in Warsaw, the complainant appealed to the council for compensation and even hinted at a lawsuit. The Council, however, would not budge and the matter was dropped.

For three or four years prior to 1926 the gun was the home of a pair of swallows which came annually to their nesting place in the muzzle. On May 24th of last year, however, two boys with a curious, perverted sense of humor dislodged the nest by setting alight some firecrackers in the gun. Few birds return to the same place if their nests are torn down or destroyed and the swallows in the gun at the Armouries have proved to be no exception from the rule.

In June of the present year in preparation for the visit of the Governor-General, Lord Willingdon, the old gun in common with the others in the city received a coat of the battleship grey paint so much favored by the War Office in the days before the Great War.

At the conclusion of his address, a resolution was unanimously passed thanking him for his attendance.

The following were elected as officers of the new branch:

Four men were each given $20 and $4.50 costs, or 30 days in the common jail.

Two, who were found intoxicated out on the Norwood Road by Provincial Constable Maker, were fined $10 and $6.50 costs.

One man was fined $30 and $4.50, as he interfered with a little 7-year-old girl on Bethune Street while intoxicated.

Thomas Flannery pleaded guilty to beating a horse and was fined $10 and $6.50 costs.

OBITUARY.

REV. W. B. TIGHE.

A former resident of Smith passed away at Ottawa on Sunday morning in the person of the Rev. W. B. Tighe, B.A., B.Th., minister of McPhail Memorial Baptist church in the capital city. Mr. Tighe's death came suddenly, as he expired while making preparations for the Sunday morning service.

Mr. Tighe had been suffering from heart trouble during recent years. In 1925 he was given leave of absence from his church for one year, in the hope of regaining his former vigor, and in 1926 he again took up his duties, apparently much improved in health. Friends in this neighborhood think he overtaxed his strength in carrying out his many official duties in connection with the Baptist denomination.

Mr. Tighe, who was a graduate in Arts and Theology of McMaster University, was born in Dummer 57 years ago, and came with his parents at an early age to Smith. Before entering the ministry he spent some years as a Public school teacher near Lakefield. He held pastorates in Baptist churches in Whitby and Hamilton, Ontario, Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Yorktown, Sask., before taking up his large charge in Ottawa. Because of his residence in the prairie provinces, he was keenly interested in missionary work there and was secretary of the Western Baptist Missions Board.

Mr. Tighe was to have begun his annual vacation yesterday and was expected at the old home in Smith early next week. At the time of his passing, he was in receipt of an invitation to preach in the Gilmour Memorial church on Sunday, August 14.

Surviving him are his wife and two hildren, a son and daughter, his mother, Mrs. John Tighe, a brother, J. Howard Tighe, farmer in Smith, three sisters, Miss Susan Tighe, Mrs. Bullock, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Whateley, of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Tighe's father, the late John Tighe, of Smith, was drowned in Chemong Lake last summer.

MARRIAGE.

MORROW — STAPLETON. — In Regina, Sask., on August 1, 1927, Helen Norton, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stapleton, Peterboro, to Harold C., son of Mrs. Morrow and the late Mr. Bernard Morrow, Peterboro.

The Chimlachote was carrying 1,400,000 feet of lumber.

VOL. LX., No. 27 PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1927 PRICE THREE CENTS

Peterborough Is the Gateway to a Vacation Paradise!

Year after year, a steadily increasing army of visitors finds its way into the region of perennial charm, our great summer playground, the Kawartha Lakes. The Lake region extending from Lakefield to Coboconk and covered daily by an excellent steamboat service is easily accessible from Canada's most populous areas, and from the most densely peopled State in the American Union, New York.

Intrinsic merit is the basis of the ever-increasing popularity of the Kawartha region. In all the great expanse of the continent there is not to be found another region of fresh water so extensive, so picturesquely distributed into lakes, from the size of a city park to thousands of acres in area, where the islands, thick and frequent, stud their silver expanse. The water, shed from the glaciers of Laurentian slopes, is clear as crystal but not clearer or purer than the crisp cool air, rich with the resinous fragrance of the northern pine that creeps among the islands, which present, with the bold and indented shore of the inlocking land, an infinite variety of scenic beauty. There is no region that offers so many facilities for sport with rod and gun; the fishing is still good, and for the adventurous hunter desirous of hardier amusement, there is good deer shooting to be had in the fall season.

For scenic beauty, the Kawartha Lakes stand on a par with any chain of lakes in the world. Some eleven years ago Belgian engineers, sent by their Government to inspect the locks at Kirkfield, made a complete tour of the region and declared that for beauty the lakes rival any chain they had ever seen, not excepting even the far-famed Lakes of Killarney.

How many citizens dwelling on the banks of the Otonabee could give the complete list of the lakes that constitute the chief attraction of the holiday-makers' paradise? Here they are—Scugog, Sturgeon, Cameron, Balsam, Pigeon, Bald, Sandy, Buckhorn, Chemong, Deer, Lovesick, Stoney, Clear, Katchewanooka. Situated six hundred feet above Lake Ontario these fourteen sheets of water are blessed with a climate that is invigorating, healthy, and conducive to a maximum of pleasure. Splendid camping sites are to be found everywhere in the vicinity and the opportunities for sailing, motor-boating, yachting and canoeing are infinite.

Not without reason did the old Indian bards call this string of Nature's jewels "Kawartha." "Bright Waters and Happy Lands." The placid limpid waters, Nature's finest pictures set in frames of verdure, the wooded shores broken by bays and projecting points, the forests of pine, maple, and spruce echoing with the carols of feathered songsters, the green meadows and the running brooks captivate the onlooker with the charm that delighted the first white visitor, Champlain, when he paddled through the region at the head of his fleet of Huron allies in the Fall of 1615. The gallant Frenchman has left on record in his diary his impressions of the scene. "These lakes", he says, "as well as the rivers that flow from one to the other, abound in fish and the whole country is very beautiful and attractive. It seems as if the trees had been planted for pleasure."

Sir Walter Scott's description of a beauty spot in his own land might be appropriately applied to the Kawartha Lakes:

"So wondrous wild that all might seem
The scenery of a fairy dream."

The most languid tourist will find his lassitude disappear like magic in the clear air of the district, and the gradually increasing exercise of which he or she will be capable, will induce a sturdy state of health that will bring back the all but forgotten joy of living. Dull care that kills so many victims, itself receives a death-blow amongst the charming varieties of Nature's prodigality of delights, to be found in the semi-sylvan scenery—land locked and island dotted lakes, fanned by sweet pure airs, an unending variety, never monotonous, but ever charming.

The tourist who embarks on steamer or launch at Lakefield begins a fascinating ride among the channels and islands of the chain of lakes that stretch away, indefinitely, in almost every direction, leaving one in doubt as to which is the most beautiful. Until Clear Lake is reached, the shores are cultivated, and exceptionally fine and generous farm houses show the taste and the influence of the original settlers.

Passing the lock into Clear Lake at Young's Point, the aspect of the country changes. The woods come near to the water's edge and the outcrop of the granite, the oldest geological formation on the continent begins.

Young's Point.

Young's Point, on Clear Lake, famous in Indian lore and legend, is easily reached either by road or water. From it the tourist can disport himself with equal ease on either Clear Lake or the smaller Katchewanooka Lake. Not the least of the attractions of Kawartha Park on Clear Lake are the sloping sandy beaches which lessen the risks of swimming.

Along the shores of Clear Lake are excellent resorts with good accomodation.

Chief of these are South Beach House, and in Young's Point Carleton House and Lakeview House.

South Beach commands one of the finest views of the entire chain of lakes. From the long verandah of the hotel, looking north east on a fine summer day the tourist is confronted with the stretch to the end of Clear Lake, a panorama of rock, island, pine and blue waters under an azure sky.

Stoney Lake.

A few miles more one is in Stoney Lake, the banks of which are armor clad with these same granite outcroppings. The lake is a maze of channels with islands everywhere. These islands seem to be nothing but rock, but the cedars find a foothold, and give their shade to scores of cottages, which are now tenanted by their Canadian and American owners.

There are eight hundred of these islands which rise from the bosom of the waters and present every shape and size which the mind could conceive. Most of them are crowned with fragrant pine and balsam. Stoney Lake has a vast wealth of romantic beauty and charm encompassed in its area of ten miles from north to south, with a varying width of one to two miles.

The shores are thickly wooded down to the water's edge, while on the various points have been located cottages, colonies, and well-kept hotels.

Charm succeeds charm at every stage of the journey until the traveller reaches the dock at Burleigh Falls, a favorite resort for sportsmen, especially those from Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and New York.

Here one has the advantage of access to the markets, through the telephone, the daily visits of the boats, and service of mails, while he is at the same time within paddling distance of fishing grounds which have all the charm of the unbroken and unvisited wilderness.

At a point 865 feet above sea level, the Park Hotel is romantically situated at the junction of Stoney and Lovesick Lakes. In front of the inn the Falls plunge in broken cascade over cyclopean boulders. North of the inn the rocky terrace slopes down to Stoney Lake and at the wharves the steamers can be boarded which give access to all parts of the picturesque cordon of lakes that extend into a gigantic crescent of pellucid water, for many miles. Not far away is the home of the Burleigh Falls Fishing Club, an organization of American sportsmen. The camp is, however, also open to the public.

Travelling north by the bus or motor, the tourist arrives at Apsley, the point of departure for a number of lakes less frequently visited than the neighboring Kawarthas.

Making Apsley his headquarters, the camper may make trips of two days' duration to neighboring lakes—Jack, Eagle, Loon, Long, and many others. Long Lake offers splendid opportunities, for the camera artist; Jack Lake is a haunt of fishermen, but its banks are inhospitable to the itinerant camper; Loon Lake has many beautiful vistas, and abounds it is said, in black bass. The old depot trail, reached from Apsley, leads into the wildest of the section, and should be attractive to the person who loves the grand rather than the chic. North of Apsley is Eel's Lake, where are some good camping sites.

Juniper Island.

Where Stoney and Clear Lakes meet, Juniper Island thrusts its granite nose through the waters. This is a rallying point for all resorters for here are the post office, general store and a large dancing pavilion. Around the shores of Stoney Lake are a number of popular resorts, all with good accomodation. Chief of these are McCracken's Landing, where Mount Julian frowns over the lake, and Burleigh Falls at the junction of Stoney Lake and Lovesick Lake. Upper Stoney Lake, separated from the Lower Lake by Boschink Narrows, is a lovely sheet of 800 islands. Crowe's Landing on the southern shore, is a popular resort.

Crowe's Landing.

Crowe's Landing is to the eastern end of Stoney Lake what Juniper Island is to the lower part of the lake. It is the postal, shopping and social centre of Upper Stoney Lake and the headquarters of the Upper Stoney Lake Cottagers and Campers' Association. Beautifully situated on the south shore of the lake facing Eel's Creek and close to some of the best fishing grounds and picnic points, Crowe's Landing is becoming one of the most popular places in the Kawartha district. Here are located two stores, a fine pavilion used for dancing and social events during the week and the scene of church services each Sunday, and a fine summer hotel conducted by Robert Lennox. Splendid wharf accommodation is provided. Electric lights have been installed this season and other improvements have made Crowe's Landing an ideal vacation centre. The view from this point is one of the finest to be obtained anywhere around Stoney Lake, there is usually a welcome breeze and with the fine accommodation available there are few places in the district that have more to offer the holiday-seeker. Steamers of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company call daily while Crowe's Landing is easily reached by motor car, as it is little more than an hour's run from Peterborough.

McCracken's Landing.

A Stoney Lake beauty spot that has long been popular is McCracken's Landing where the Victoria House is situated and the terminus of the Stoney Lake bus line running in conjunction with the Canadian Pacific Railway. There are many reasons for the popularity. The location is ideal; the place itself is one of the most favored by nature of any point in the Kawarthas. The view from McCracken's Landing includes some of the prettiest islands in Stoney Lake, Juniper, the centre of summer activities being only a short distance away. Good fishing spots are in close proximity to the Landing, while such favorite picnic points as Gilchirst Bay, Burleigh Falls and Upper Stoney Lake are easily reached. A commodious and well-conducted summer hotel this year much improved, a well-stocked general store, a tea room of picturesque construction and other accommodation is to be found at McCracken's Landing, which is a favorite point for motor parties.

Viamede and Mount Julian

The Viamede and Mount Julian resorts are reached after an hour's sail from Juniper Island, passing through one of the loveliest sections of the lake. They are on what is known as the Burleigh shore. Here rises stately Mount Julian clothed in verdure, its summit commanding magnificent views of the lakeland regions. In the shadow of the Mount is the Viamede Hotel, surrounded by groves of giant trees through which the visitor may roam amid the varying charms of Nature's out-of-doors. The hotel is modern modern in its appointments and has a high reputation. Boating, bathing and fishing are naturally the principal recreations. There is also a large dancing pavilion. The other hotel at this point, the Mount Julian, has accommodation for fifty guests.

Breezes Island is near the eastern shore of Stoney Lake and Boschink Narrows and within a mile of White Lake, which provides some of the best bass fishing in Canada. The Glenwood Resort Hotel is on this island.

Buckhorn Lake

Another attractive lake on the eastern group of the Kawartha chain is Buckhorn Lake. On the shore of this lake is Hall's Bridge, a pretty village reached by driving from Lakefield or by steamer to Burleigh Falls, thence by launch or road. The Buckhorn and the Windsor are hotels open the year round, the territory adjacent being not only a capital one for fishing and general summer outings, but also a splendid hunting ground.

Buckhorn House is situated close to the lock between Little Buckhorn and Buckhorn Lakes. In front of the inn the Buckhorn River foams and washes on its way through a 19-foot descent along a water-course beautifully studded with tree-crowned islands. From the point of view of the fisherman, this is one of the high spots of the Kawarthas especially for bass and lunge. Eighteen pounders are common catches in this neighborhood. Viewed from here, the sight of the broad expanse of Buckhorn, the timbered shores, and the creek discharging into the lake is one to kindle the imagination and to linger in the memory.

Near Buckhorn House is a huge block of granite, poised on a very narrow base, recalling Wordsworth's lines in Resolution and Independence.

As a huge stone is sometimes seen to lie
Couched on the bald top of an eminence;
Wonder to all who do the same espy,
By what means it could hither come and whence.
So that it seems a thing endued
with sense.
Like a sea beast crawled forth
which on a shelf
Of rock or sand reposeth, there to sun itself

East from Buckhorn Lake is Pigeon Lake; a beautiful sheet of water dotted with picturesque islands on which many charming summer homes have been built.

Towards the southern end of the lake, seven miles from Bobcaygeon, is Jacob's Island of fairly considerable size with a good hotel. Between the two lakes is the mile-long channel known as Gannon's Narrows.

Oak Orchard

Oak Orchard Lodge is situated in a park of oak trees near the junction of Buckhorn Lake and Pigeon Lake. The hotel has accommodation for one hundred guests and is first class in appointments and service, being greatly favored by visitors from the United States. It is reached by motor from Peterborough, a drive of fifteen miles over a good road.

Near Oak Orchard, Champlain and his followers made a halt on the journey with their Huron Indian allies to give battle to the Iroquois tribes in New York State, and evidences of the expedition have been found in the vicinity. Another interesting spectacle is the floating bridge across Gannon's Narrows, which saves the motorist a long overland journey.

Beachwood

Nesting on the shores of Deer Bay, with a lovely background of pine and spruce, Beachwood is one of the most beautiful summer resorts in the province of Ontario. The fishing in Deer Bay consists largely of black bass, big mouth bass and maskalonge, which are noted for their size and gameness. At Beachwood, the bay is about one mile wide with a splendid view of Lovesick Lake on the northeast.

While Peterborough may be regarded as the natural gateway to the lower lakes of the Kawartha chain, Bobcaygeon is the central point of the entire region. Bobcaygeon is in itself a delightful vacation ground with good accommodation for boating, fishing, tennis and bathing. Three and a half miles to the north of the village is located the headquarters of the Beehive Golf and Country Club, the farthest north golf course in the Kawartha district of Peterborough County. The Beehive is a picturesque old log building erected in 1831 and is situated near Sturgeon Lake. Playing privileges are available for visitors.

Further west are Sturgeon Point and Fenelon Falls, easily reached by automobile or by motor launch. Beyond Fenelon Falls to the northwest lie Cameron Lake and Balsam Lake, from which the ambitious traveller can paddle via the Trent Canal into Lake Simcoe. The manner in which the lakes and rivers of this section of Ontario are linked together by Nature can be readily appreciated when we realize that while there are 235 miles of continuous system of navigation embraced in the Trent Waterway between Trenton on Lake Ontario and Georgian Bay on Lake Huron, there are only 32½ miles of excavated canal on the entire route.

Fenelon Falls situated on the lovely Fenelon River, between Sturgeon Lake and Cameron Lake and reached directly by rail, is a convenient point of vantage for anglers, canoeists and all lovers of the out-of-doors who would enjoy the delights of both Sturgeon and Cameron Lakes. The scenery here is wonderfully impressive and a splendid view of the Falls may be obtained from the high rocky banks of the Fenelon River. Good accommodation may be had at the Kawartha Hotel overlooking the river, or at the smaller hotels in the town. Fenelon Falls is also an excellent point for outfitting and starting on canoe trips to more northerly lakes.

Sturgeon Lake

Sturgeon Lake is the best known of the westerly Kawartha Lakes and has annually a large number of visitors. The lake is in the shape of a great "L" at the angle of which is the village of Sturgeon Point, with a summer population of six or eight hundred, having a post-office, store, boat livery, and daily boat connection with Lindsay and resorts on the other lakes. Here a fine regatta is held every August. The lake is well stocked with lunge, and fish from five to fifteen pounds are caught every day in the season. The mouth of the Scugog River is a vast bed of wild rice and water vegetation, forming a fisherman's paradise, as among these weed beds the fish hide in order to pounce upon their prey. Sturgeon Point, Greenhurst, and Thurstonia all have increasing colonies of summer visitors, and good hotels where the tourist is assured of a pleasant healthful vacation.

Balsam Lake

Coboconk is the gateway to Balsam Lake. At this picturesque village, the tourist can find pleasant accommodation, all necessary supplies, and guides, and make daily trips into the inviting stretches of the lake. Grand Island, with its thousand-acre ranch occupies the centre of the lake and around its shores the fisherman is reasonably sure of catching lunge and bass. Copper-spoons for lunge and worms or minnows for bass are the standard baits in July and August. To the west of the lake is Kirkfield, with its famous lift lock on the Trent Canal. Here is to be found good hotel accommodation and excellent facilities for tennis and golf.

Haliburton Highlands

To the north of the Kawartha Lakes lies a great stretch of beautifully wooded rugged country, with hundreds of lakes and streams constituting a veritable Paradise for the angler, hunter and canoeist. This is known as the Highlands of Haliburton, and is famed for its cool invit-

YOUNG BEAR IS ATTRACTION

Caught on Road Near Apsley and Chained Behind Stove.

LIKES BISCUITS.

Not the least of the attractions at Apsley is a young black bear caught some two months ago by two youths of the village and now chained in the rear of the store of George Stephens.

Master Bruin, who is daily the object of attention from tourists and neighbours, has developed a fondness for biscuits. It is worth while going some distance to see him perched precariously on the sides of a tub as he paws the water in the effort to create a current which will bring the tit-bit within reach.

The approach of a visitor invariably brings forward the little forest urchin the full length of his chain, and the hand which endeavours to stroke him without at the same time producing something edible is always in danger of being clawed or bitten by the tiny teeth, not yet capable of doing very much damage.

ing climate, great stretches of primeval forest, magnificent hills and lovely lakes, which form a navigable waterway called by the Indians the Kashagawigamog Lakes.

Competent authorities assure us that the fishing on the lakes is not up to the high standard that prevailed ten years ago. Notwithstanding that, there are still some fine catches made every year and with an awakened interest on the part of the public and a more adequate conception growing up of the splendid asset the community possesses in the adjoining playgrounds, there is every prospect of pressure being brought to bear successfully on the Government with the object of having the waters restocked in such a way as to make the fishing grounds the equal of any in the Dominion.

In this ultra modern age, with its increasing demands on the nervous system, no better counsel can be given than that which bids us heed the call of the woids. Who can gainsay the wisdom of leaving behind for a short time the cares of business and the hectic pleasures of the city for life on the shores of the forest-girdled lakes where the sound of the traffic of city streets is exchanged for the music of the trees swaying in the wind; where the tremulous call of the loon takes the place of ringing of the phone bell; where the dying sun forms opalescent pools at evening and the twinkling stars are reflected in the gently rippling waters?

A Message from the Mayor

Interviewed by The Examiner, His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway thus expressed himself: "Peterborough citizens are beginning to realize that they have at their doors a wonderful playground and every years sees an increasing amount of effort on the part of local bodies to place the attractions of the Kawartha Lakes before the attention of the vast army of potential visitors in the most populous districts of Canada and the United States. It is one of the additional merits of the lakes that they are the most accessible of all the great playgrounds, being within easy reach of the most populous areas of the Dominion and the Republic. For example, some of the most beautiful portions of the lakes are within three hours' journey from Toronto.

Peterborough is now fully awake to the importance of the tourist traffic in the economic life of this province, and the city is heartily behind any movement having for its object the boosting of the holiday resorts of this neighborhood.

Dine in Comfort at

HOT weather means all too frequently a poor appetite and a bolted meal. Food that is not enjoyed does harm and steals hours of good work and restful sleep. Frankly, you should try the Paris Cafe for a luncheon or dinner during the hot days. Tastily prepared summer-time specials, fresh vegetables and salads, courteous service, and, above all, cool fresh air contribute to a perfect meal that is long remembered.

Arrangements Made For Replacement Of Old Portraits

Announcement Made By H. R. H. Prince of Wales at Government Dinner Held in Ottawa At Which He Was a Guest of Honor.

HOPED THAT THEY WOULD REACH CANADA SOME TIME NEXT YEAR

Collection Comprised Pictures of King Edward, Queen Alexandra, and Present King and Queen Which Were Destroyed When Old Parliament Building Was Burned.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press). — Arrangements are being made, by command of King George, that the portraits of King Edward, Queen Alexandra, and the present King and Queen, which were destroyed when the old Parliament Building here was burned, are to be replaced. The Prince of Wales made this announcement last night speaking at the Government dinner, in the Parliament Buildings, at which he was the guest of honor. Some time would be needed to paint the pictures, he explained, but he hoped they would reach Canada next year.

Referring to Canada's Diamond Jubilee, the Prince said that the Confederation of Canada if not the first, was at least the clearest step taken up to then on the road which has now led to the conception and attainment of autonomous communities within the Empire, equal in status, marked by a common allegiance to the Crown..

"To me in particular," the Prince of Wales continued, "as the King's oldest son, the conception has a special importance which, in whatever part of the Empire I may be, I try always to keep in mind. The Crown stands above all distinctions of country, race and party, and serves to mark the unity in which all such difference are trancended. If, some day, it should fall to my lot to assume that high responsibility, I trust I may be found worthy of it." He added that at least he had lost no opportunity of keeping fresh those contacts with all parts of the British Empire which he had made in the past ten years.

He emphasized the desirability of personal contact of peoples from widely separated parts of the Empire and frequent conferences among leaders in the various walks of life. Canadians he met in London kept him abreast with "development in this great country which is so bewilderingly swift."

Expresses Gratitude.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales, speaking at the Government dinner at the Parliament buildings last night, said:

"Mr. Mackenzie King, Gentlemen,—The toast you have just drunk so kindly gives me an opportunity of expressing the gratitude which my brother and I feel to the Canadian Government for their invitation to visit Canada in this memorable year, and for the wonderful hospitality which is now being shown us.

"On my own account, I must further express my deep appreciation of the high honor which has been done me to-day—one that I value all the more because I share it with so many distinguished Canadians and with the Prime Minister of Great Britain. I can think, Sir, of nothing which would serve to mark this visit more indelibly in my memory that the distinction which has just been offered me and which I gratefully accept. Membership of the King's Privy Council for Canada carries with it, too, certain duties and certain obligations; my acceptance of them constitutes one more link with Canada and a very intimate one.

"I have to make to you to-day an announcement which has been entrusted to me; I have been specially charged to make it in this building and on this occasion.

"It has been brought to the notice of His Majesty the King that amongst the pictures at the old Parliament Houses at Ottawa destroyed by the disastrous fire of February, 1916, were the State portraits of King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the Queen and himself. It is His Majesty's special desire to replace these portraits, and I am happy to be able to inform you, by command of the King, that arrangements to this end are now being made. Some little time, of course, will be needed for the painting of the portraits, but I hope that they may reach Canada some time next year.

Relations Strengthened.

"Since I was last the guest of your Government, since even my last visit to Ottawa, the relations of the Dominion of Canada and Great Britain have entered on a new and significant phase about which, I hope, Mr. Baldwin will speak to you to-night.

"My brother, the Duke of York, in opening the first meeting of the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia at Canberra, said: 'It is, perhaps, peculiarly fitting that we should celebrate the birth of this new capital city just after the close of an Imperial conference which represents

COOLIDGE NOTE IS BOMBSHELL

Effect of Announcement That He Won't Seek Re-election Being Analyzed.

GENEVA FAILURE BLAMED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—The effect and significance of President Coolidge's brief announcement on the nation's political future were being analyzed carefully today by politicians, business men, and ordinary citizens, who were gradually recovering from the unexpected news from the Black Hills of South Dakota.

The unadorned ten word statement: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928," apparently was due to produce thousands of words of comment by political leaders and newspapermen and had fanned to sudden heat the Presidential campaign which seemingly had been lulled in tranquility during the summer months.

In general political leaders, shocked apparently by the bombshell-like character of the announcement out of a clear sky, either remain silent or only express terse, guarded opinions.

Foreign newspapers today surmise that the Geneva failure is the prime factor in the President's unexpected decision.

THE WEATHER

There has been a decided coolness in the air for several nights that presages the coming of fall. For the past two mornings the temperature has been down to 45 degrees, and while I have not noticed any effects of frost myself, I have been told that tomato plants were nipped slightly on Monday night in some gardens in the south end of the city. The highest temperature yesterday was 75 degrees. The rainfall for July in Peterborough was 4.01 inches. This is a larger figure than usual, but much less than districts farther west.—W. P.

SOLEMN SCENE AT DEDICATION OF MEMORIALS

Prince of Wales Dedicates Altar in Memorial Tower to War Dead.

BOOK CONTAINS NAMES.

Later Unveils Monument To Sir Wilfrid Laurier—Many Statesmen Give Addresses.

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—Canada's Capital city, yesterday the scene of a joyful reception to the Prince of Wales, Prince George and Premier Baldwin of Great Britain, today was the setting for two solemn memorial services.

With fitting ceremony the official life of Ottawa joined with the distinguished visitors in paying tribute to the Dominion's war dead and to a great statesman.

The Prince of Wales dedicated the altar in the Memorial Chamber of the Peace Tower, the national monument to those killed in the Great War, and later that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Many Witness Ceremonies.

Parliament Hill was thronged when the ceremonies began with the arrival of the Prime Minister of Great Britain and Mrs. Baldwin, who were conducted to the Memorial Chamber by Premier King. Shortly afterwards the two Princes arrived with their staffs, escorted by troops of the Royal Canadian Dragoons with gleaming helmets and fluttering pennons on their lances.

Promptly at three o'clock the Prince of Wales took his place before the altar while at the four corners stood an able seaman, a private, an airman, and a nursing sister. When the final words of the dedication speech had been spoken, the Last Post was sounded, the flag on the Peace Tower was dipped, and the guard of honor presented arms. As the last notes of the bugles sounded, those attending the ceremony and the crowds on Parliament Hill stood with bowed heads while the "Silence of Remembrance" was observed, and until the carillon on the Tower began with the notes of "O Valiant Hearts." The Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, and Premier Baldwin spoke in eulogy of the dead.

On the altar will rest a book containing the names of the sixty thousand Canadians who gave their lives in the Great War.

Laurier Memorial Unveiled

The unveiling of the Laurier was made the occasion of tributes to the man whose life was linked with the development of the nation. Among those attending the ceremony were Prince George, Premier Baldwin, and Viscount Willingdon. The speakers were Sir Robert Borden, Premier King, and Hon. Rudolph Lemieux, Speaker of the House of Commons

The ceremony commenced at 3.30 when the royal party arrived at the south-east corner of Parliament Hill where the statue stands. His Excellency called upon Premier King to deliver the address, and Mr. King invited His Royal Highness to perform the unveiling. Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works, handed the cords of the flag to the Prince of Wales. The Centenary Choir, accompanied by a military band, led in the singing of "O Canada." The speakers included Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, and Hon. Senator F. Beique.

The entire ceremony was made spectacular by the tremendous crowds on the plaza below Parliament Hill, as well as the hundreds who were accommodated in special stands which had been erected for the purpose.

Winner of Bard's Crown at Eisteddfod Refuses to Wear Robes During Ceremony

(By Herbert Bailey, British United Press Representative.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Welshman are laughing at the refusal of Caradog Pritchard, a young journalist, who was the winning bard at the Welsh National Eisteddfod, or song festival, to wear the winner's robes, although J. H. Thomas, the Labor leader, was photographed in Druid robes.

Explaining his refusal to "dress up," Pritchard said, "I have no objection to members of the Gorsedd making asses of themselves, but I shall refuse to be crowned rather than make myself and any of my brother bards a laughing stock." He was later informed that his wishes would be respected and the ceremony proceeded without robing.

Pritchard's successful lines dealt with marriage.

Japan Warship Blast Kills Or Injures 20; Mines Explode On Deck During Manoeuvres

TOKIO, August 3 (Associated Press). — Twenty officers and men were killed or wounded during the naval manoeuvres off Kiushiu Island yesterday morning by the explosion of three mines on the middle deck of the minelayer Tokiwa, says a despatch to Asahi from Kiushiu.

The despatch says that the Tokiwa, which is Japan's largest minelayer, was damaged severely, and was docked immediately. A fire which followed the explosions was extinguished by bluejackets from neighbouring warships which were participating in the manoeuvres.

The Navy Office report of the accident merely stated that several officers and men were killed by the explosion, but that the ship was not seriously damaged.

Kiushiu is the southernmost of the three principal islands of Japan. The Tokiwa, a vessel of 9,700 tons, built in 1898, carries a complement of 648 officers and men.

Mons. Buddenbrock Tells of Terrors in Kansu When Houses Fell.

WAS SAYING MASS.

SHANGHAI, August 3. — Canatails of the earthquake in Kansu Province, when it was estimated that a hundred thousand people lost their lives, have been received from Mons. T. Buddenbrock of Liangchow, who sent the first detailed account of the disaster several days ago.

"Monday preceding Ascension Day was unforgettable in its terrors," he writes. "We rose early, as is our custom. The beautiful May sun was shining in its glory, over mountains and valleys. There was nothing presaging disaster. My morning meditation was rudely interrupted by a violent shock, the windows rattling and the house quivering. Such shocks are usual here and soon all was quiet again. I proceeded to the orphanage chapel and began mass, when without the slightest warning there was an indescribable noise, terrible, thundering, and terterrifying echoes.

"As if carried by a hurricane, I was pushed from the altar through the sacristy, and into the open. Sisters and children rushed to the door as the walls crashed. The children scrambled out over the fallen masses. I still hear their screams. We were tossed about and it was impossible to stand. Instinctively we fell on our knees, asking God's mercy amid the roaring and the thundering of collapsing buildings, and rolling earth.

"It is impossible to give an adequate idea of the misery of the survivors, living in mud and straw huts, fearing to return to the few houses left standing.

"The 'quakes continued for some time. For miles in all directions everything is in ruins."

Only fragmentary reports, lacking details, continue to be received by the China Inland Mission.

AMERICAN TOURISTS EXPECT COOLNESS

Seek Summer Board in the Country, Rather Than in Hotels.

Mr. J. H. Burnham returned from the Eastern States this morning. He says that the heat drove Americans north like a forest fire. The chief business everywhere over there just now seems to be providing cool clean restful stopping and lodging places for tourists where they can go into the country and spend a week or two by the water and in the woods. The modern American wants a place to rest in. The hotels in American towns and cities are comparatively deserted. Transients as they are called are taken everywhere in the country. Noise has got on their nerves, and they avoid it. They complain that Canada has not yet got the idea of what they want, and there can be no doubt that when Canadians realize that enormous crowds looking longingly at Ontario and Quebec in the heat of summer, they will provide the accommodation required.

Farmer Kills Two Foxes On One Shot

BETHANY, August 3. — Thomas Thompson, an elderly farmer just north of the village is very proud of his shooting ability, having bagged two foxes with one shot one day last week. Mr. Thompson was on his way to the pasture for the cows, when he saw a fox in the field. He returned to the house for his gun, and on coming back in a different direction discovered two foxes. After waiting several minutes, he fired, and to his amazement he had killed both foxes with one shot.

A great deal of hay has been spoiled, and had to be burned owing to there having been so much rain lately.

The grain crop is ripening quickly, and cutting will be in full swing this week.

The root crops are good generally. Garden stuff is particularly good. Currants, gooseberries and raspberries are all ripe now and are being gathered as quickly as possible. The apples are going to be scarce in this district.

First Seven Months of 1927 Total $541,885—Four New Houses.

The month of July was one of the largest in recent years, in the city of Peterborough, in regard to the amount of building being commenced. For the first seven months of this years there has been a gradual increase over the same period last year, until at present the amount of building permits issued by the City Engineer is more than three times that of last year. At the end of last month the total sum was $541,885.00 and up until the end of July, 1926, the amount was $151,153.00. In July twenty-five permits were issued and the amount involved was $307,557.00.

These twenty-five permits were divided into three classes, garages, eight, amounting to $570.00; dwellings, four, amounting to $20,500.00; and miscellaneous, thirteen, involving an amount of $286,487.00.

The big factor in this is for the addition to the Collegiate Institute, where work has already commenced. The addition will be 152 feet by 139 feet, and will contain thirty rooms. The estimated cost is $258,000.00, and it will be completed about the first of August, 1928.

Fred N. Shearer is building a seven roomed house on Monaghan Road, which will be completed about November 1, at an estimated cost of $3700.

J. S. Fanning is building a laundry on the west side of George street, just south of King street. This building is 125 feet 6 inches by 34 feet 5 inches. It will be one storey high and will be completed about October 1 at an estimated cost of $11,000.00. The firm of Charles Huffman and Sons is the contractor.

A. Comstock and Sons are constructing and altering their main building. The new building will be three storeys high with the interior finished in pine. A steam heating system will be installed and the estimated cost is $15,000.00. T. C. Ephgrave has the contract.

The chapel at the Little Lake cemetery has been re-shingled by F. Rowan with wooden shingles on asbestos paper. The estimated cost was $250.00.

S. Abbott is building a five roomed brick-veneer-stucco house on Lansdowne street at a cost of $1800.

Fred Dummitt is erecting a two-storey six-roomed house on Water street north for Mr. T. Barrie. This street north for Mrs. T. Barrie. This first of the year at an estimated cost of $6,000.00.

Vivian Lancaster received the contract to build the two flights of stairs at the Canadian Legion Hall which were thought to be necessary by Fire Chief George Gimblett.

Fred Rowan is erecting three houses at the corner of Kirk and Reid streets. The three are similar in design and will be two storey six-roomed houses with Brock pebble exterior walls at an estimated cost of $3,000.00 each.

FLIGHT TO INDIA ENDS IN DANUBE

R. A. F. Plane Comes Down Near Aschach, Austria.

START KEPT SECRET.

LONDON, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—The British Air Ministry announced today that the attempt of a Royal Air Force machine to make a non-stop flight to India ended last night when the machine fell into the Danube River in Austria. Flight Lieut. Carr and Flying Officer Dearth, neither of whom was injured seriously, were taken to Aschach, near Linz. The flight was launched secretly yesterday from Cranwell, England.

Many Bones Found In Excavation; Coffin Boards Turned Up At Collegiate

Many bones unearthed by the steam shovel of T. A. Brown and Company, and placed in a cardboard box lying in a corner of the cement shed of the general contractors, T. Witchel and Company, are ample justification for the expectation that some gruesome finds would come to light before the work of digging the foundations for the extension to the Collegiate Institute was completed.

For some days past, the men have been working in the south-east section of the area, in close proximity to the Armories, and it was at the excavation for the boiler room, eighteen feet deeper than the main foundation, that the bones were discovered.

Among them are arm bones, leg bones, parts of skulls—one showing very clearly the air passages leading to the nostrils, and some jaw bones, on one of which a single tooth is to be seen. In the same spot a number of boards were upturned which, although difficult to identify, may well be parts of the coffins enclosing the remains so rudely disturbed.

The men on the job are on the look-out for further relics. Those already found are being retained in the shed until the work is so far advanced that the possibility of further discoveries will be unlikely, upon which the bones will be sent to one of the cemeteries for re-interment.

City to Have Land Surveyed to Find Who Pays For Drain

Township, County, and Suburban Area Commission Decline To Assume Part of the Cost of Deepening the Park Street Ditch.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR THIS DRAIN WILL BE APPORTIONED BY SURVEY

Aldermen Favor Splitting Cost of Deepening, But Representatives of Other Bodies Are Unwilling, Saying City Gets Sole Benefit—August Council Meeting.

F. L. Webster, O.L.S., will be instructed by the city to make a survey of all the territory drained by the ditch on Park street south of the city limits, in order that the cost of deepening it and of future work on it may be apportioned by the Drainage Referee of the Department of Highways. This is the proper procedure under the Act, and was decided on at last night's meeting of the City Council.

Present at the meeting were Warden J. A. Middleton and Reeve Morley Smithson of Otonabee, representing the county, Reeve Lillico and the Council of the township of North Monaghan, and the Suburban Road Commission. None of these bodies seemed willing to take any responsibility, although most of the Aldermen favored doing the work, which it is estimated can be done for less than $200, and splitting the cost, possibly sixty per cent. paid by the city and twenty each by township and commission. Only Councillor Hunter of North Monaghan seemed willing to adopt this course, the others apparently preferring to take a chance on the engineer's report making it necessary for them to pay a portion of the expense, basing their objection to accepting a share on the contention that only the De Laval will benefit.

The engineer's fees, estimated at about six hundred dollars, will be apportioned in the same ratio as the responsibility for cleaning and maintaining the drain, and most of the Aldermen felt that it would be better to pay a part of the cost of the drain than to take a chance that the report would relieve the city of a great deal of this, but the other bodies took the opposite view.

The Mayor explained the reason for calling the deputation. The city has appropriated $3,600 to pay for tiling the drain inside the city and wished to know who is responsible for the drain below Lansdowne street. The old records of the digging of tht ditch have been destroyed by fire.

The ditch is at present, said His worship, filled with roots and rubbish and backs up the water. The city wishes to have it cleaned out and is willing to pay its share, besides making its own drain. The city wishes to hire an engineer to make a report on the properties that will benefit and submit his report to the Department of Highways for a decision as to payment of the engineer's fees and the cost of repairing and deepening the ditch.

His Worship assured the delegates that he had no idea what proportion of the cost each body would have to pay.

County Responsibility Doubted.

Warden J. A. Middleton expressed doubt that the county has any interest in the matter. He thought that the county nor the Suburban Area Commission, having responsibility only for the road, have no responsibility for the ditch, which drains the property in that district.

The Mayor said that the meeting was a friendly gathering to discuss the matter and that the city wishes to clear up the matter and will pay it all if the Department so orders.

Reeve Smithson of Otonabee stated that the county would not evade any portion of the cost assessed against it, although he can't see any responsibility to the county.

The Mayor said that the county might be included because the drain was built before there was a Suburban Area Commission.

He explained that the act provided that the engineer's fees, no matter who hired him, were to be divided according to his report.

Councillor Hunter of North Monaghan recalled that the township had dug the drain more than fifty years before, paying for it from its share in the sale of clergy reserve land.

He suggested that the surveyor would have to go back miles to find all the land drained by the ditch, and that the city should pay the cost of deepening the ditch.

William Brown of the Suburban Area Commission said that the Commission would have to drain other lands if it helped pay for this drain and he objected to this.

Harry Gainey of the Commission said that the engineers from the Department had said the only thing to do was to get an engineer to make an award.

When the Mayor suggested F. L. Webster Mr. Gainey agreed.

Ald. Pife pointed out that the en-

EIGHTEEN ENTER BIG PLANE RACE

Trans-Oceanic Flight Will Begin Afternoon of August 12.

TWO WOMEN ENTERED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—The die was cast to-day for the first trans-oceanic airplane race in history with fourteen official and four unofficial entries for the James D. Dole thirty-five thousand dollar prize for the first and second aviators to fly from the North American continent to Honolulu, starting the afternoon of August 12.

The official list of entries was left incomplete when the hour for its closing at midnight last night arrived. The committee in charge of arrangements announced that all entries postmarked before that hour would be accepted when received.

A wide assortment of aviators and enthusiasts makes up the list which will enter the twenty-four hundred mile dash across half of the Pacific Ocean. Two women were among the official entries—Mrs. William Erwin, wife of a Dallas, Tex., entrant, and Miss Mildred Doran, Flint, Mich., school teacher, who will make the trip with John Augie Pedlar, Flint entry. Several army and navy aviators will participate.

GIVES ADDRESS ON CONFERENCE

Demonstrated Empire As It Was and As It Might Become, Says Baldwin.

GUEST OF HONOR.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 3 (Canadian Press).—The Imperial Conference of last year was able to demonstrate the British Empire as it was and as it might become, to the Empire itself and to the world, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain, said in a speech at the Government dinner last night. The Prince of Wales, Prince George and Mr. Baldwin were the guests of honor at the dinner which was held in the Parliament Buildings.

The British Premier took up the work of the Imperial Conference. Dealing with inter-Imperial relations, Mr. Baldwin said what the committee did was to define in a phrase the living relationship of all parts of the British Empire to one another and to begin to work out the practical application of that relationship. The formula is founded on equality of status of all the self-governing parts of the Empire and the unity of the whole Empire under the British Crown.

"I have heard it said," Mr. Baldwin stated, "and said on very high authority, that Canada needed no such charter of nationhood, because she possessed it already." He said he would not venture an opinion on such a point which is one on which Canada alone could pronounce, but other countries within the Empire found help in the statement of their position.

"We are a practical people, and, granted that our status is clear, what we all want to know is how best we can carry on the everyday work of running not only our own countries but the British Empire." Mr. Baldwin summed up the efforts of the Imperial Conference in this direction in three words — consideration, co-operation and co-ordination. The view of the conference was that "no part of the Empire should henceforth act in external matters which are likely to affect the common weal without counting first what effect its own action may have on the other parts of the Empire and without giving these other parts a chance of expressing their views."

Require Vigilance.

The Prime Minister appreciated that keeping the welfare of every portion of the Empire in view in conducting external relations would require constant vigilance on the part of all the governments within the Empire. Mistakes would be made, due perhaps to forgetfulness, misunderstanding or failure to consult each other as they should. "But I am convinced," Mr. Baldwin asserted, "that we shall all learn as the years go on and I confess I look upon this consultative method of conducting external relations which are of more than individual interest as one of the most interesting and hopeful experiments in that great laboratory of political experiments, the British Empire."

The major responsibility in matters of foreign affairs and defence still rests on the Government of Great Britain. "Canada's share of responsibility is growing," said Mr. Baldwin, "but this diversity of function in administrative matters is largely a question of convenience and can be altered quickly or slowly according to changing circumstances."

MOSCOW, Russia, Aug. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—There are 312,034 official oragnizations in the Soviet Union, with 2,208, 361 employees, the State Statistical Department reports. Their average monthly salary is the equivalent of $37.50 in large district and provincial centres, $26.00 in smaller towns, and $17.00 in the provinces.

PRINCES ATTEND GARDEN PARTY

Many Persons Are Presented To Brothers at Social Event.

AT RIDEAU HALL.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 3. Canadian Press. — Under brilliant skies more than 4000 persons were presented to the royal brothers at a Government House garden party here yesterday afternoon. The grounds of Rideau Hall had never seen a more popular social event.

His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Willingdon received the guests with the Princes under the spreading maple trees. Shortly after the last guest was received the Governor-General's Foot Guards Band played "God Save the King." For two hours His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and his brother Prince George took the curtseys of ladies and the bows of gentlemen, shaking every hand. Frequently the Prince of Wales recognized faces and spoke a few words as the long procession moved along.

Near by on the spacious lawn Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin held lesser receptions, where many Canadians were introduced by the Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King.

Her Excellency Lady Willingdon was modishly gowned in pale maize crepe, with the new flaring skirt of fine lace. Shoes and hose were of gold color and her hat was of deep cream crinoline. Mrs. Baldwin was in corn flower blue, the tiered skirt ankle length. Her blue straw hat was feather trimmed and she carried a blue sun shade.

PARENTS TO BLAME FOR CHILD CRIME

Saskatchewan Juvenile Court Finds Example and Training Count.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 2. — Judge Ethel Maclachlan, presenting the annual report of the Saskatchewan Juvenile Court, finds more delinquency among parents than among children.

"It isn't that parents intentionally overlook the upbringing of their children but appear to be indifferent to the responsibilities that are upon them," she states.

"Bad home conditions, bad community conditions, physical and mental handicaps, poverty, indifferparental discipline, intemperance, paretnal discipline, intemperance, gang influence, the bad example of adults, idleness and unemployment are among the common causes that contribute to neglect and delinquncy," is her summing up of conditions.

From these three excerpts from her report, it will be seen that Judge McLachlan has made an intensive study of the subject of juvenile delinquency and that her findings are likely to apply equally to any section of the Dominion.

Her suggestions for combatting the problem are brief and to the point.

"Crime and misconduct cannot be checked," she says, "by future threat of prison walls or gallows. Youth needs sympathy, profound understanding, skillful guiding and training. One cannot do better than follow the precept of the philosopher: 'Neither condemn nor ridicule but try to understand'."

LIGHTNING TAKES END FROM BARN

Charles Lucas, of Downeyville, Was in Building at Time.

DOWNEYVILLE, Aug. 3.—During the terrible storm that passed over this section Tuesday Charles S. Lucas, who lives just east of the village, had his barn struck by lightning and the end taken out of it. It was a bad wreck as the barn was a large one on a stone foundation. Mr. Lucas and three other men were in the barn at the time. They were shocked and felt the effects for some time. During the same storm Mr. Thomas Middleton, who lives two miles north west of the village, had a valuable horse killed by lightning.

SHOWER OF CHINA FOR WOOLER BRIDE

Miss Lena Forbes Receives Many Gifts From Girl Friends.

WOOLER, Aug. 3.—The spacious lawn, with its beautiful bright flowers arranged with an attractive table of dainties, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill, on Friday afternoon, was much enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips of Brighton, Miss Irene Montgomery and Fay Forbes of Brighton, Marjory Forbes of Frankford, Ethel Gunt , Helen Moran, Mary Teal, Margaret Teal, Lillian Bell, Muriel Whitney, Stella Nelson, Ellen Whitehouse, Vera Teal, Thelma Buell, Frances Terrill, Eva Masters, Lucille Sharpe, Vera Tackaberry, Gladys Vosburg, Edith Valentine, Cora Valentine, Gwendoline Elford, the bride-to-be, Lena Forbes, and the guests of honor, Mrs. W. Forbes, Mrs. Clinton Terrill, Mrs. Esli Terrill. After the buffet luncheon, the party was invited to the living room, where the beautiful display of the shower of china cups and saucers, in honor of the bride-to-be, were presented. Margaret Teal, the convenor, gave an introductory talk on behalf of the guests, of the esteem in which Miss Lena was held among her many girl friends in this, her home community, and how they would miss her, and still their love would follow her to her new home, even so many miles away.

Ethel Gunter was called on for a reading and then Frances Terrill, in her usual fine manner, rendered a vocal solo.

The bride-to-be then responded with a very whole-hearted expression of appreciation.

A reading by Stella Nelson, "An Inventor's Wife"; an inspiring and bright address by Harry Phillips of Brighton; a few words by the hostess, Mrs. S. L. Terrill; vocal solo, Helen Moran. Then the circle was linked to sing Auld Lang Eyne.

STORM DAMAGES GRAIN AND TREES

Wind and Hail Wreak Havoc in King's Wharf District.

KING'S WHARF, Aug. 3.—A terrible storm passed over this section Tuesday and was the worst ever witnessed by the old settlers. There was both wind and hail. Some of the grain was flattened, and a few had their potato stalks broken off with the hail. A tree was riddled at John Winn's gate.

There is a large amount of hay spoiled here on account of so much rain.

ARRANGMENTS MADE

the beginning of another chapter in our Empire story.'

"It is at least as fitting that the notable landmark in the growth of the Empire fixed by that conference should also coincide with Canada's celebration of her Diamond Jubilee. It was the Confederation of Canada, 60 years ago, which marked, if not the first, at least the clearest step, on the road which has now led, by natural progress, without any hesitation or looking backwards, to the conception and attainment of a group of autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, marked by a common allegiance to the Crown.

"To me in particular, as the King's eldest son, the conception has a special importance which, in whatever part of the Empire I may be, I try always to keep in my mind. The Crown stands above all distinctions of country, race, and party, and serves to mark the unity in which all such differences are transcended. If, some day, it should fall to my lot to assume that high responsibility, I trust that I may be found worthy of it.

"At least I may say that I lose no opportunity of keeping always fresh those contacts with all parts of the British Empire which I have been fortunate enough to make in the past ten years. I have heard wise men say that if there is one lesson more than another which has been learned in these post-war years, it is the lesson of the immense value of personal, man-to-man intercourse. In the conduct of affairs of State, in the management of a business, one hears the same conviction expressed on every side. And I myself can testify to it, for I know the value to myself, not only of personal visits, but of the opportunities which I have from time to time in London of meeting visitors from overseas. Thus, there are men in this room, men whose leisure moments are probably all to few, who, when they are in England, find time to come and tell me the news from Canada; there are many other Canadidan men and women with whom I am brought in contact on one occasion or another in the course of the year. They all have something to impart, and to all of them I am grateful for the help they give me, it may be quite unconsciously, in vitalising my interest in Canada, and in keeping me abreast of the development of this great country, which is so bewilderingly swift.

"I like to think, too, that such visitors from overseas return from the Old Country with something of equal value to what they give—that there is a fair exchange between hosts and guests—albeit all members of one great family—of this quickening of ideas and stimulating of interests. Only the other day, I was present at a gathering which, I believe, has admirably fulfilled this hope, I mean the opening meeting of the Imperial Education Conference in London.

Education

"There is no need to lay stress on the value of such conferences for those taking part in them. They convey, moreover, a striking example of the importance which governments now attach to the education of the coming generation, though this is not a lesson which Canada requires to learn from anyone. Nothing, for instance, could be more impressive than the history of the Canadian universities. The older universities have a continuous and remarkable record of progress, while each of the new Provinces of the West has signalized its entry upon the status of Province by the creation of a university, whose successful development has fully justified the faith of its founders. There was one subject discussed at that conference which was of particular interest to me—namely, the interchange of teachers. I know that much has already been done to facilitate such interchange, and I hope that it will be found possible to do yet more. It seems to me to be one of the simplest and yet surest methods of distributing widely a real knowledge of the Empire and its needs.

"It is not possible for all to travel and see for themselves, but surely the next best thing is to enable all to see with the eyes of others, to travel in the spirit and in the imagination, and so to attain to a wider knowledge of what the Empire means.

"At this moment, I at any rate can congratulate myself that I am once more having the good fortune to travel to and across Canada, and to meet in the seat of Government, as I do tonight, such a gathering of Canadians as this."

OBITUARY.

COL. W. B. FORSTER.

PARIS.—Col. Wm. Berton Forster of Vancouver, B.C., who served under Gen. Brutinel, in the Canadian Machine-gun corps in France, in the war, died from tuberculosis at St. Cloud on July 18.

A wide circle of friends and acquaintances in Vancouver will hear with deep regret of the death of Col. Forster. For two years he was manager of the B.C. Products Bureau of the Board of Trade, and in that capacity came in contact with all the leading business men, not only in the city, but throughout the province.

While only a young man, a little over 30, Col. Forster had a remarkable career, having the reputation of being one of the youngest colonels in the Canadian Army at demobilization. He was originally in the Bank of Commerce at Calgary, from which centre he enlisted for overseas. He went through the war in France without serious injury, although the effects of the exposure then experienced has caused his death.

He was retained for military duties in Ottawa for nearly a year after the main Canadian force was demobilized, and for the greater part of that time was assisting in the compilation of the military records for the Government.

He came west to Calgary again, and stayed there for a short period, eventually settling in British Columbia. He had been in Vancouver several months when he was appointed manager of the B.C. Products Bureau of the Board of Trade, an office that he filled with great success. He made many friends from his affable manner and the great sincerity with which he threw himself into his work. Around the Board of Trade he was extremely popular.

General Brutinel, with whom he served in France, has repeatedly urged him to return to France and gave him several offers of posts of considerable importance. Eventually Col. Forster yielded to his old general's pressure and went to Paris to reorganize the string of Adam banks, eighty in number, along the lines of the Canadian banking system. He had been engaged in that work ever since and reports reaching Vancouver were always to the effect that he was making a name for himself in Paris in financial circles from the work he was doing.

During the war he was awarded the M.C. from Canada and the Croix de Guerre by the French Government.

He has two brothers living in Vancouver. He is survived by a widow and two children.

Mrs. Forster was formerly Miss Florence Pearce of Peterborough, daughter of Mrs. E. J. Pearce and granddaughter of the late Aaron Cox.

MISS MARGARET J. PICKENS.

HASTINGS, Aug. 3.—There passed away on July 29 at the Armour residence, Armour Hill, one of the few remaining pioneers of Percy township, in the person of Miss Margaret J. Pickens, at the age of eighty-six years.

Miss Pickens was born in Percy township and resided in that township, with the exception of six years at Parry Sound, all her life. She was the last surviving member of a family of seven. Having been of a quiet, unassuming nature, she leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss. Interment was at the Trent Valley cemetery, Rev. D. A. Thomson officiating on Sunday afternoon.

GEORGE CALLAGHAN.

NORHAM, Aug. 3.—The funeral services for the late George Callaghan who was drowned in Norham mill pond on Friday night, was held in the Morganston United Church on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The remains were conveyed from the Warkworth undertaking rooms, where it had been since the accident.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. E. Beckel of Castleton, pastor of the deceased, assisted by Rev. D. R. Clare of Norham. Interment was in the Christian Cemetery. A large number of people from Morganston, Norham and Warkworth were present. Much sympathy was extended to the brother of the deceased, who arrived from Ottawa on Sunday, and who came to Canada from Ireland about six weeks ago.

JOHN BRITTON.

The funeral of John Britton was held July 19 at 3 p.m., with the Rev. John J. Snyder officiating. The burial was in the Warsaw, N.Y., cemetery.

Mr. Britton was the son of John and Margery Brownlee Britton and was born in Peterboro, Ont., March 16, 1855. He had lived here for forty-four years. Surviving him are three sisters: Mrs. Robert Farrell, Mrs. Edward Sutherland, and Mrs. Robert Jones, all of Toronto.

RICHARD THOMPSON.

WARSAW, August 3. — The funeral of the late Richard Thompson was largely attended. The United Church was filled. Rev. H. B. Herrington conducted the services at the church and at the cemetery. His sermon was a helpful and comforting discourse. The choir sang, "Is There Any One But Jesus?" and Mr. H. Batten sang "There Is a Gate That Stands Ajar," which was especially requested.

There were many beautiful flowers. Mr. Thompson had been in rather poor health for several years, and lately had suffered, but his apeptite failed, and he became very weak. The end was unexpected ,though he had said he could not recover.

He leaves to mourn his loss four daughters, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. E. Payne, Mrs. Freeburn, and Miss Myra, and three sons ,Hector, Bert, and Elias. One son, Stanley, was killed in the Great War.

JAMES KETCHEN, SR.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 3.—The funeral of the late James Ketchen, Sr., takes place at one o'clock today from his late residence in the town of Havelock to Burnbrae, where a funeral service will be held in the Presbyterian Church at 2.30, conducted by Rev. Mr. Lougheed, of Havelock.

The late Mr. Ketchen, who was in his 79th year, formerly resided in the Burnbrae district, and since his removal to Havelock twenty years ago, has been a frequent and welcome visitor to Burnbrae and Campbellford.

The deceased is survived by his wife, four sons and five daughters. The sons are: Gilbert of Sullivan, Sask., Alex. and John of Watson, Sask., and James of Havelock. The daughters are: Mrs. Robert Matthews of Campbellford, Mrs. Charles Taylor of South Bend, Ind., Mrs. Harry Johnston of Trenton, Mrs. Frank Butters, and Mrs. Thomas Sarginson, both of Havelock.

SALES OF C.G.E. SHOW 20 P.C. GAIN

Company's Business Continues Remarkable Increases of 1926.

EMPLOYEES BUY STOCK.

Business of Canadian General Electric Company is continuing the marked increases that were a feature of the 1926 business and that led to a 25 per cent. increase in net profits last year.

It is learned that this year the company's sales are running 20 per cent. above the total of business in 1926. At this time in 1926, business was about 30 per cent. above the 1925 level.

Heavy Unfilled Orders

The high level of increase is certain to be maintained throughout the balance of the current fiscal year because unfilled orders on the books of the company are very large. Reliable information has it that these orders are about $2,000,000 greater than at this time last year.

In 1926 the company showed net profits of $1,70,618 as opposed to $933,751 in 1925. On the basis of current business a further increase in net profits of at least $200,000 is confidently expected by followers of the stocks of the company. This would put a further reserve of earnings behind the preferred shares, which are the chief interest of Canadian investors and which are regarded as among the soundest of Canadian investments, yielding at present prices just under 6 per cent.

Sell Stock to Employees

Company has recently inaugurated a combined investment and profit-sharing scheme for the employees which has been a distinct factor in maintaining the morale of the working force and leading to increased production. Under this scheme employees are enabled to purchase preferred shares at 50—the present market is around 59—and to pay for them on easy terms. In addition to getting the 7 per cent. dividend on this stock employees are allotted a further dividend in the form of a share of net profits and the company guarantees that this shall not be less than an additional one per cent., thus insuring the employees of at least eight per cent. on their funds. To prevent abuse of the scheme the company places all shares in trust and they cannot be sold by the employees for five years after purchase and must be resold to the company if the employee leaves within that period. At the end of five years, employees may take up the stock and sell it in the open market but in such cases they forfeit the profit-sharing privileges.

2,000 Take Up Shares

Under this scheme over 2,000 employees—or nearly half of the total working force of 5,000—have purchased shares in the company. The stock sold under this plan has not been treasury stock but has come out of the supply of shares already issued and allotted by the company four years ago when General Electric Company of the United States, bought the Canadian stock at $62.50 plus one $50 preferred share for each $100 share formerly held.

Expansion in the company's business is stated to be noted in every branch of activity. Merchandise sales, including lamps, small electrical apparatus, radio sets and tubes, etc., are said to be showing particularly gratifying increases. Power plant equopment is a more spasmodic producer of sales because of the large average size of orders but, in common with all such producers of such apparatus in Canada, C.G.E. has had increased business this year and the large number of power projects in view insures further expansion in this field.

Not Expanding Plant

Company has no plant expansion in mind; rather it has been working in the other direction in the past few years, having closed down three plants and concentrated production in other plants. This has been done in the interest of economy.—Financial Post.

PREDICTS CRASH.

Unless U. S. Stops Granting Credit Abroad On Such Large Scale.

OXFORD, England, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Sir George Paish, the economist, in an address here yesterday, predicted a great economic crash unless the United States stopped granting credit abroad on such a large scale.

Sir George was speaking before a meeting of the League of Nations Union, on the danger of the world's unprecedented indebtedness in the event of any break in world unity. He declared that the United States is giving credit abroad on a scale which cannot possibly last. In the view of the world's leading bankers and economic experts he said, a great crash must come unless the United States changes her financial policy. Sir George further asked how Germany and Italy could possibly repay their borrowings.

$10,000 worth of weeds on ten farms in one neighborhood

That is what an inspector valuing farm lands for loaning purposes reported. His report read:

"It is badly infested with sow thistle, as are all the farms in the neighborhood. I have valued $1,000 less than I would if clean of this weed."

And he only discounted the farm value 12%. Many inspectors would go much higher.

United action will exterminate the weed scourge. Destroy weeds wherever found. Under the provisions of the Weed Control Act, 1927, now in force, the destruction of weeds is no longer optional. It is compulsory. Your co-operation is needed to end the weed nuisance.

SOLDIERS BACK FROM COBOURG

March From Station To Armories on Arrival at Campbellford.

MAKE GOOD SHOWING.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 3.—Campbellford's quota to the military encampment at Cobourg paraded from the railway station to the armories on their return last night, after an absence of eleven days under canvas.

Spick and span, rifles at the slope, chests well thrown out, every man in step and with heads up, Campbellford's pride came swinging down Grand Road to the spirited music of their regiment's band—the Northumberland. One little English chap, as he beheld the troop doing a left wheel on to Bridge Street, shouted to his mother: "Ma! Here comes the Guards."

Mothers, wives and sweethearts were there, to welcome home their soldier boys—the sweethearts predominating. On arrival at the armories, the commands were "Halt! Left Turn! Order Arms! Stand at Ease!" After announcing when the troops would draw their pay, and the necessity of turning in their equipment to the C.Q.M.S., the party was brought to Attention, and with a "Slope Arms! Quick March!" and a "Right Wheel!" all 1927 soldiering was at an end.

KAWARTHA LAKES ARE A SUMMER PARADISE

Valuable publicity work in connection with the attractions of the Kawartha Lakes has been carried out for many years past by the Trent Waterway Development Association, and into this branch of the work Frank G. Stinson, the Secretary of that body, has thrown himself with characteristic energy. During his visit to New York in charge of the annual exhibit of the association at the New York Motor Boat Show, Mr. Stinson availed himself of an opportunity to broadcast the merits of the Kawarthas on Wednesday, January 26, from Station W.O.R.

The following is the text of Mr. Stinson's address:

"The term 'Trent Waterway' is applied to a series of navigable rivers and lakes, about 250 miles in length, connected by short canals and stretching through Central Ontario, Canada, from the Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario to Georgian Bay, Lake Huron.

"The Trent Waterway Development Association, with offices in Peterborough, Ontario, Canada, hopes to acquaint the American touring public with the holidaying possibilities of the Trent sys: .1, and in the limited time at our disposal I shall endeavor to enumerate its principal features and manifold attractions.

"In the first place the Trent Waterway is owned and operated by the Government of Canada. Uniformly courteous service is maintained throughout the entire system and there are no lockage tolls or fees of any description in connection with a trip over these waters. Customs requirements and worries are noticeable principally by their absence.

"Everything possible is being done by the Canadian and Province of Ontario Government to facilitate travel and make holidaying a real pleasure in the Trent Waterway district. The municipalities bordering on the Trent are in friendly competition, one with the other, in giving the tourist the best there is in Central Ontario in the way of pleasurable vacation and fair dealing.

"In the Trent Waterway district one finds entertainment for every whim—Fishing, hunting, bathing, boating, golfing, tennis, and when in the mood, rest—all flavored with the invigorating and health-giving fragrance of the fir and balsam.

"The Trent Waterway is easy of access, emptying into both Lake Ontario and Lake Huron—amply served by the Canadian railways and penetrated everywhere by both State and improved highways. A central point in the Trent Waterway system, the city of Peterborough, for instance, is by road only 532 miles from New York, 583 miles from Boston, 296 miles from Rochester, 210 miles from Buffalo, 194 miles from Ogdensburg, 140 miles from Cape Vincent, 398 miles from Cleveland, 357 miles from Detroit and 632 miles from Chicago. By water the Trent Waterway is roughly five days from New York and 8 days from Detroit. So much for accessibility.

"In the summer days, and in the winter to a lesser degree, the lure of the north is strong, and thousands of American tourists visit the Trent Waterway district annually. Tours by road, rail or water of longer or shorter duration are available, and the natural beauty of the Trent compares very favorably with that of any other country in the world.

"The term 'Fisherman's Paradise' is often applied to the Trent and tributary waters. Maskinonge, salmon and lake trout, small-mouthed fellows that challenge one's skill. Like Paradise, the waterway also has four rivers, namely, the Rivers Trent, Otonabee, Talbott and Severn; also many chains of lakes, including the famous Kawarthas. Kawartha is an Indian word, meaning 'Bright Waters and Happy Lands.'

"The Trent area is a new country—a country easy to see and worth seeing. A few hours' travel reaches the beauty spots. A day or two penetrates its wilds. To see the waterway by rail or open road, by stream or lake or forest trail is to find a land rich beyond words in natural attraction. Perfectly appointed hotels, summer hotels, camps and cosy cabins are ample assurance of accommodation.

"Seeing the Trent Waterway by automobile is a delight. A friendly reciprocity validates an American license plate in the Province of Ontario for a generous period. No vexatious delays at the border. Freedom from congested traffic brings restful relaxation and rare opportunity to enjoy nature's open spaces. Plan a tour to the Trent Waterway this year and let your car bring your unexpected pleasure. Rich in historical romance, impressive in modern achievements, the Trent Waterway will give you a never-to-be-forgotten vacation. Here are motor highways and lakeland vistas of entrancing beauty. Each mile opens an exquisite panorama. Each moment reveals a new picture. Each picture a surprise and inspiration.

"Central Ontario, the cradle of the Trent Waterway, is the home of the canoe. A silver network of dustless waterways invites the sturdy paddler. Vast stretches of cool, sweet swelling pine afford secluded retreats where deer and other monarchs of the wild scamper at the first sound of the intruder. Clear days of glorious sunshine and cool, restful nights bring health with every breath.

"The Trent area is truly a hunter's paradise. Beautiful lake resorts and marshy sloughs nestle in the fertile valleys—the natural feeding grounds of geese, duck and other migratory game birds.

"The Trent is a new country, but not a strange one. It was an American visitor who said last summer, 'Ontario hospitality is wonderful.' And he was from the South—that far-famed land of hospitality.

"A complete motion picture of the Trent Waterway was made last year by the Province of Ontario Pictures, in co-operation with the Department of Railways and Canals, Federal Government, Ottawa, Canada, and under Trent Waterway Development Association direction and auspices. This is a delightful scenic, partly in colors, titled in narrative style with a human interest story throughout, and is now available for theatres or private screening on application to the Province of Ontario Pictures. The picture is short, 1,800 feet, and only a nominal fee is charged. The name of the picture is 'Kelly's Cruise' and is at present being shown at the National Motor Show, Grand Central Palace, New York, where we have exhibited annually for the past six years. If you are in New York or contemplate coming to the city for the Motor Boat Show, please look us up at the Trent Waterway Development Association exhibit on the Third Floor. Stay and see the picture and take home a supply of our descriptive literature.

"It is a bit late perhaps for New Year's resolutions, but the finest one you could make would be to resolve that the Trent Waterway, Central Ontario, Canada, be your stamping ground during the coming summer. The waters are refreshing and wet—and so is the Province, after the first of May."

Many Resorts Within Motoring Distance

There is nothing more enjoyable or more interesting than a motor run through the rural districts surrounding the city. Here in Peterborough you are right in the centre of an area which abounds in splendid playgrounds for picnickers, set in the midst of magnificent scenery, which is unsurpassed in the Dominion.

If there is only a small group and you intend to have but one meal, you can easily carry all the food you require in a small box on the running board of the car.

If there is a large number, the outing will require some previous planning. If the party is only got together for the dayy's outing, some organization will be necessary in order to carry the affair through. Appoint a committee of men, to commandeer sufficient cars to take all the crowd, a committee of ladies to look after the provision of the eats, and a mixed committee to purchase what else is needed.

One plan that has been adopted with success in some quarters is to collect a small sum from such male members as do not bring cars, and to delegate to the ladies the entire responsibility of providing the food. By this method everybody contributes towards the entertainment of the day. Members could bring their own partners and form their own little lots, not forgetting, howeevr, the fact that the ultimate success of any such venture depends on the sociability and the mixing powers of the various individuals who comprise the party. All concerned should make a point of helping the "shy and backward" to become thoroughly acquainted with the others.

Interesting Route.

An essential in a good motor trip is that the route should run through an interesting and beautiful countryside. Indeed, the journey to the picnic ground is often the best feature of the day. This essential is fully met in the following list of motor trips, none of them over fifty miles, and all of them through points of interest and never-failing charm. It will be observed that in every case, one may return by a different route from that taken on the outward journey. These suggested routes were given The Examiner by the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League, after a number of special trips over the roads as a practical test.

Be a Pioneer.

On such occasions you don't want an elaborate meal. You are for one day at least a real tough, honest-to-goodness pioneer, with husky, healthy scorn for the niceties of civilization and the pampered appetites of the city dweller. It is a good idea to start a fire as soon as you arrive at the place where you intend to pitch your camp. This ensures a good, business-like fire available for use in cooking and prevents that delay which is so exasperating to the man who has acquired an enormous appetite through an hour of unaccustomed labour in the open-air.

A good nourishing and satisfying meal in the open can be had with batter cakes. Corn batter cakes are made of one-half pint of corn meal, one-quarter pint of flour, one heaped teaspoonful of sugar or two of molasses, and one level teaspoonful of salt. Mix the dry ingredients thoroughly, add cold water, a little at a time, stirring briskly until a rather thick batter results. An improved cake may be had by the addition of a couple of eggs and the use of milk instead of water. Cook just as ordinary pancakes on a sizzling hot frying pan.

Here is a good method of using any small game that fall before the skill and daring of the hunter of your party. This dish is known to the initiate as jambolaya. Cut the small game into joints and stew them. When half done add some minced ham or bacon and ¼ pint of rice. Season with pepper and salt. Serve with tomatoes as a sauce.

Cooking Fish.

If you intend to preserve harmony and maintain good humor throughout the trip you will be well advised to make use of everything that is landed by the fishermen among you. Small fish may be skewered on a thin straight greenwood stick, sharpened at the end in real backwoods style. Have a thin slice of pork or bacon between every two fish and keep the stick constantly turning over the coals like a spit. This prevents loss of the juices.

If there are several fishing enthusiasts among you, use the fish caught by making a steaming fish chowder. Cut the fish into pieces the right size for serving and remove as many bones as possible. For 5 or 6 pounds of fish take ¾ pound clear fat salt pork. Slice it and fry moderately. Cut two fair-sized onions and fry in the fat. Pare and slice ten potatoes. Put a layer of fish in the biggest pot you have, then a layer of potatoes; on top of that some of the fried onion with pepper, salt and a little flour, then a slice or two of the pork. Repeat the process until all the materials have been used. Then pour the fat from the frying pan over all, cover the whole with boiling water and cook from twenty to thirty minutes, according to the thickness of the dish. Five or ten minutes before serving, split some hard crackers and dip them in cold water (or use stale bread or biscuits) and pour in about a pint of hot milk.

Boiled beef, boiled potatoes, applesauce, cookies and coffee, with possibly a salad in addition, makes a satisfying meal. Another favorite combination is fried bacon and potatoes, boiled rice, plain or with raisins, coffee and fruit.

A word in season—don't forget to put out your fire before leaving. There is no earthly reason why you should leave to generations yet unborn, a charred, blackened memorial of your day's outing.

HAND MANGLED BY MACHINERY

Albert Brown, Cavan, Suffers Painful Injury While Fixing Binder.

MANY STITCHES NEEDED.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 3.— Albert J. Brown, Sixth Line, Cavan, met with an unfortunate accident on Tuesday, about 10 a.m. when, in adjusting something that was amiss about the binder with which he was cutting fall wheat, his right hand became entangled in the machine and was badly torn and bruised, the injury extending to the wrist.

Dr. H. A. Turner and Dr. Birks gave meedical attention, some stitches being necessary to close the wound. The arm is being carried in a sling and it will probably be some time before it is fit for use again. In view of the very busy time on the farm the accident is particularly regrettable, though Mr. Brown is fortunate in that his hand being caught stopped the machine, hence no bones were crushed with the possible chance of the loss of the entire arm.

With Sir Alfred Soward, 71, as skipper, and his two nieces, both 23 years old, as the crew, a six-ton auxiliary motor yacht has completed an 1,800-mile voyage in the North Sea.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1927.

A GOOD CITIZEN PASSES.

A long life of useful service has terminated with the death of George Peters, of whom all that was mortal was laid to rest in Little Lake Cemetery yesterday.

Over fifty years a resident of East City, for twenty-five years Librarian of the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute which supplied Peterborough with its reading material before the present Library was built, and for many years previous to his library work, a school teacher, Mr. Peters played no small part in bringing knowledge and culture into the lives of many residents of this district.

Among those who attended his funeral yesterday were men well advanced in years who had been taught by him, and whose memory went back gratefully to their school life and to the teacher who had given them the equipment with which to start life's battles.

Always a great reader and a student of literature, it fell to Mr. Peters' lot after his teaching days were over to spend a quarter of a century in charge of the local Library, an environment in which he was thoroughly happy and where his knowledge of the best in literature enabled him to be of great service.

A fine citizen has gone in the passing of this highly esteemed old resident.

THE MOTOR TOLL.

The number of motor accidents reported from all parts of Ontario indicate that campaigns to induce the public to drive safely have not proved as effective as it was hoped they would be.

Many of these mishaps are the result of carelessness or recklessness, disregard of traffic regulations and similar lack of caution; others perhaps are caused by defective equipment, and probably the most productive of all from the viewpoint of accidents are glaring headlights.

There are regulations in regard to such lights that would be effective if they were enforced, but how often do you read of a motorist being fined because his car lights violate the rules?

The situation has got to the point where this and all other regulations designed to protect the public must be enforced to the limit.

The death toll from motor cars is growing so rapidly that a well-known oil company has published a large newspaper advertisement appealing for more careful driving, pointing out that "if we don't soon begin to drive safely it won't be long until all the pleasure of motoring will have disappeared."

"Give the other fellow a chance," urges the advertisement. "Think how much of this sacrifice of life, limb and property is occasioned by common carelessness."

WALTER JOHNSON.

The honours heaped upon Walter Johnson yesterday, the twentieth anniversary of his first American League game, have been richly earned, and over here in Canada where most of us follow the fortunes of baseball chiefly through the sporting page there is a feeling of satisfaction that recognition has been given to this great player's personality and record.

Walter Johnson has been in more games, won more victories, struck out more men and pitched more scoreless innings than any other American League pitcher, and his achievements in this respect have been more than enough to earn for him a lasting place in baseball's Hall of Fame as well as the distinguished conduct medal awarded him by the American League.

But he deserves to be remembered and honoured for something more important than his pitching, great though that has been.

Walter Johnson has been straight as a string.

Destined to wear the uniform of a club that for many years could not rise out of the second division, he might have copied other baseball stars and schemed to secure his transfer to a more fortunate club where financial rewards would have been greater.

Not Walter Johnson; he was faithful to his club, giving of his best season after season when the going was hard, and it was not until near the close of his baseball day that fortune at last gave him his chance in the classic of the diamond, the World's Series.

Twenty years ago he pitched his first "big league" game; he's still in there, and everybody wishes him years more of successful service.

ORGANIZATION IN INDUSTRY.

The Department of Labour has just issued the sixth report on organization in industry, commerce and the professions in Canada for the year 1927, a volume which shows the extent of organization among the various classes of employers in the Dominion. The report also contains the names of associations whose members are concerned with co-operative buying and selling, among which is the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, the largest wheat marketing organization in the world, handling over 180,000,000 bushels of wheat annually as well as more than 20,000,000 bushels of coarse grains. Other associations discussed in the volume include those embracing wholesale and retail merchants, as well as organizations comprised of persons engaged in professional, technical and scientific pursuits. The various associations are divided into the following groups:

1. Manufacturing.
2. Building and construction.
3. Mining.
4. Transportation and communication.
5. Printing and publishing.
6. Laundering, cleaning, repairing, etc.
7. Personal service and amusement.
8. General manufacturers and employers.
9. Financial.
10. Agriculture.
11. Dairying.
12. Horse, livestock, sheep breeders, etc.
13. Co-operative societies.
14. Wholesale merchants.
15. Retail merchants.
16. Real estate dealers.
17. Professional.
18. Technical and scientific.
19. Insurance.
20. Funeral service.

The report points out that in the first eight of the above mentioned divisions, in which are included the associations whose members are engaged in industries in which the employment of help is essential, there are 374 main and branch associations, with a combined membership of 44,925. Some of the employers included in these groups have agreements with the corresponding organizations of work people covering the conditions of employment in their respective establishments. In the remaining twelve groups the employment of labour is in some cases only incidental, and with the exception of the retail merchants' section there is no corresponding body of organized employees. Although the bulk of the associations whose names appear in the report are purely Canadian, several are affiliated with organizations whose headquarters are in the United States. The figures presented in the report show that there are in the Dominion, exclusive of the co-operative group which numbers 1,155 societies with 474,160 members, 1,300 associations, with a combined membership of 1,024,364. The total number of all classes of associations whose names are given in the report is 2,455, an increase of 514 over those recorded in 1926, the main addition being to the co-operative group, to which 353 societies have been added. The total combined membership of all classes of associations is 1,498,524, an increase of 259,712 over the number recorded in 1926, when there were 1,941 associations with a combined membership of 1,238,812.

PROHIBITION AND PROSPERITY.

In a recent article in a United States paper Samuel Blythe, a well-known writer on political and economic questions, and a man who has travelled much, especially in America, mixed with all classes of the community, and observed keenly of conditions and passing events, writes on various aspects of the effects of prohibition in the Republic south of us, which in some respects are like a cross-word puzzle to him. He emphasizes two views which if not entirely novel are highly interesting. One is that one or two grades of society people drink more of certain brands of liquor than they ever did before the country went dry, pay a great deal more for them, and, on account of the bad quality of the liquor, the physical effects are much more deleterious. The other is that, by and large the country, is highly prosperous as the result of prohibition. Mr. Blythe himself is a teetotaller of 20 years standing, although he admits that formerly from personal experience he was familiar with every phase of "booze" artistry.

Mr. Blythe does not attempt to disguise or deny the great prevalence of drinking bootlegged and bad liquor among certain classes of the community. In fact, he is quite brutally frank about it. People, he tells us, now drink who never drank before; they drink in homes where formerly it was unknown, and in other places where they would never have thought of being seen. He even goes so far as to say that the success of the dinner party, the bridge party, the tea and the dance—any social event at all—is predicated upon the quantity of liquor the host supplies his guests; and if the host is known to be stingy they will take their own liquor on the hip. Where two or three are gathered together, whether it be one or two or three bottles as the case may be that are produced, the contents are all consumed at one sitting. The papers are daily announcing the aftermaths of these drinking bouts. We are told that the spirit and method of American drinking have entirely changed. What in some circles was tabu in drink is now fashionable. The kind of drinking that goes on is described as the "new social stuff," and several columns are devoted to the vagaries of this society "stunt" in its various forms.

The conclusion the writer draws, however, is quite different from what one would expect from such an almost lurid prologue. The evils depicted are confined to, comparatively speaking, a small number of the 115,000,000 people of the United States, and the summing up is that the underlying economic cause of the nation's great prosperity, productiveness, enormous wealth, and greatness is prohibition. What would have been the economic status of the United States had it not gone dry it is, of course, difficult to speculate upon, because long before prohibition the people had taken an upward leap to the prosperity which they now enjoy, a prosperity greatly accelerated by increased business during and consequent upon the war, and the great mass of wage earners, the highest paid and most substantially comfortable in the world, by virtue of the rules of big industrial and other business, were preforce, sober. But without any doubt in its economic effects prohibition on the whole has been a factor in the wealth of savings and the increase of purchasing power, and that consideration will be the greatest factor in keeping America dry.

It is a consideration, however that provokes this comment on our part that what was formerly largely a moral issue has now been reduced to a purely economic issue, and Mr. Blythe says that it "is the only rational way to consider it." In the early days of temperance agitation, in fact from the days of John B. Gough and Father Mathew right up to prohibition itself, liquor was a soul destroyer and a body killer. Now prohibition, despite the pictures which Mr. Blythe paints of the widespread drinking and effects of bootlegging whiskey, is good because it is good for business, and, as good business is a safe bet for the Americans to follow, prohibitionists are apparently quite willing to rest their appeal there. Anyway, the great mass of Americans have plenty of other exhilarations in movie pictures, radio, baseball, prize fights, divorce suits, and automobile speeding, expensive it is true but quite affordable in the prosperity brought about by prohibition. Why worry about bootlegging?—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Premier Baldwin seems to have won the hearts of the newspapermen. As they say in his home land, he's "having a very good press."

Pedestrians will lose hope altogether when they read that Henry Ford hopes to market fifteen million of his new type of car.

The slaughter on the highways continues. Does the fault lie in our regulations or in their enforcement?

Tourists can stay in Canada for ninety days under the new regulations. And judging by some of their purchases they are going to need all that time.

Several Ontario towns are greatly perturbed over the fact that girls in bathing suits parade the streets. But surely swimming costumes are not much worse than ordinary street attire of today?

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., August 2 (Canadian Press). — There was some demand from foreign buyers for wheat in the Montreal market yesterday, and as the prices in some cases were in line with exporters' views, a few loads of Manitoba spring and new crop American grades were sold, but the trade in coarse grains was slow.

A feature of the local trade was the increased demand from exporters for manitoba spring wheat and sales of No. 1 Northern were made at 25 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f., Montreal, tough No. 2 Northern at 13 cents per bushel over, and tough No. 3 Northern at $1.48 per bushel, c.i.f., while No. 4 wheat sold at 1¼ cents per bushel over the October option, c.i.f., here. The domestic grade in coarse grains was quiet, but prices were unchanged.

Owing to the recent decline in cash wheat prices at Winnipeg, a weaker feeling developed in the local spring wheat flour market, and prices were reduced 20 cents per barrel. The demand continued quiet.

There was no change in prices for old crop winter wheat flour owing to the fact that supplies available were somewhat limited, but the tone of the market for new crop wheat flour was easier, with Ontario millers offering car lots for shipment at $6.20 per barrel.

On account of the increasing scarcity of shorts and middlings and the continued good demand for the same, a stronger feeling developed in the market yesterday, and prices scored an advance of $1.00 per ton. Bran was unchanged.

Prices for standard grades of rolled oats were marked up 10 to 15 cents per bag. This was attributed to the scarcity of good milling grades. The trade was moderate.

The egg trade was without any new feature to note, the undertone was firm under an improved demand. The receipts were 1,347 cases.

The demand for butter was again confined to broken lots, but values were unchanged. The receipts were 1,227 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese market, but prices were well maintained. The receipts were 6,899 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, August 3 (Canadian Press). — Failure of buying to develop force enough to sustain bulges brought about a choppy market in wheat yesterday. At the same time, however, too much uncertainty regarding spring wheat crop conditions existed to warrant any aggressive selling.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as Monday's finish to ⅜c lower, with corn ½c to ⅝c down, oats varying from ¼c decline to ¼c above, and provisions 7c to 10c to 32c off.

It was pointed out by bulls that abnormally low temperatures northwest are preventing rapid maturing of spring wheat and that this is a serious matter in Canada, especially as much of the crop there is late, augmenting the likelihood of damage either by rust or frost. Reports at hand said that only about 24 hours of the wrong kind of weather is required to cause heavy damage from rust all through central and southern Manitoba, with the wheat still needing two to four weeks to mature. Disquieting black rust news was also at hand relative to northern North Dakota.

Prospects of warmer weather in the corn belt were largely responsible for corn market declines. Oats dragged lower with corn.

RAIN DELAYS BIG REGATTA BUT FAILS TO SPOIL EVENTS

Annual Civic Holiday Programme Run Off at Juniper Island.

SOME KEEN CONTESTS.

Entries Less Numerous in Some Events and Very Plentiful in Others.

STONEY LAKE, August 3. — The severe thunderstorm which broke over Stoney Lake at 1.30 p.m. on Monday delayed but did not mar the regatta, which was run off after the storm ceased. The attendance from Peterborough was unusually large. The steamer Stoney Lake arrived with a capacity crowd, and the Empress brought a large number also. The attendance of cottagers was not quite as large as usual, because of the storm and the threatening weather which followed it. In spite of all drawbacks, there was a large crowd and an excellent programme of aquatic events provided a pleasant afternoon's entertainment.

The entries were perhaps not as numerous in some events as last year, although some showed a decided increase. The work of the committee in making the arrangements was admirably carried out, and the demonstration of Jupiter Pluvius caused the only delay.

Th judges were: Messrs. J. R. Dodworth, W. G. Morrow, and S. Henderson, J. H. Renwick, and H. F. Foote were referees.

Fred W. Jones was starter, Dr. P. Goldsmith was clerk of the course, Gordon K. Fraser was announcer, W. Clink managed the numbers, while George Guillett was the man who laid out the course and arranged the floats.

As in other years there was considerable annoyance caused by motor boats crossing the course while the races were in progress, which, besides being most annoying, constitutes a serious menace to the competitors.

This year a novel feature was a demonstration of aquaplaning put on by the Peterborough Canoe Co., and which will doubtless become a popular diversion among the young people who enjoy new sensations and are good swimmers.

Gordon K. Fraser presented the Fraser Cups for the dinghy sailing, and Mrs. Fraser's Trophy for the swimming race from Lech's Island; W. G. Morrow presented his trophy for canoe sailing, and the other prizes were presented by Mr. Dodworth.

CITY TO HAVE LAND SURVEYED

gineer's fees would probably cost more than clearing out the drain and his award would probably lay the burden of someone who didn't expect it. The work could be done for $100 and he suggested that the bodies could agree on the amount to be paid.

Ald. Denne agreed that the engineer would settle the matter for all time but that the Councils of Monaghan and Peterborough and the Suburban Area would benefit through cleaning out the ditch.

The Mayor said that the objection had been about the future responsibility and not on the immediate cost.

Ald. Hancock remarked that that area will soon be in the city and the city will then be responsible for it all.

Ald. Phelan added that the cost of the survey would be high but would settle the matter for all time. The present cost, he agreed, is small and may be the only one for years to come.

The Mayor explained that the city would be willing to pay all its share to have an engineer.

Councillor Hunter proposed that Ald. Denne's suggestion be adopted and an agreement could be made.

Ald. Denne proposed that there would be a greater benefit to the city and that the city should possibly pay a little more than the other boards.

Ald. Macdonald supported him, stating that the total cost would not run to half the engineer's fees. Ald. Fife objected to the statement that the city gets the greater benefit. Ald. Greene favored paying possibly 60 per cent by the city and he remainder by the other two bodies.

Future Work Considered.

Ald. Fife remarked that the ditch will not stay cleaned out and will eventually have to be tiled, which cost will have to be apportioned.

The Mayor summed up the remarks as indicating that the county thought that it had no responsibility but was willing to assume any cost. Possibly the other bodies thought the same, he added.

The Warden suggested that the city could go ahead and do the work for its share of the engineer's fees, but that deepening the ditch might make it necessary to lay piping in the ditch.

The Mayor said that this would bring responsibility on the city, so it should be apportioned.

Deputy Reeve Dobbin of North Monaghan recalled that a committee had gone over the land and found that only the De Laval property would benefit from the deepening of the drain.

The Mayor answered that the De Laval Co. thought it had a case for damages against the city or county for the water backed up.

Reeve Lillico contended that the township had no right to spend any money on a suburban road.

To calls from the alderman for the by-law Ald. Hancock interposed a suggestion that a committee be appointed but the others objected that nothing would be gained.

Ald. McIntyre and Fife then moved that a by-law be passed, and the name of P. L. Webster was inserted.

Ex-Ald. Crowe Resigns.

Ex-Ald. Joseph Crowe's resignation as operator of the sewage disposal plant was accepted, to take effect at the discretion of the special committee appointed to go into all the troubles encountered at the plant. The Mayor explained, when the resignation was read, that some of the trouble came from Mr. Crowe's being paid a higher salary than the other men, although he works shifts the same as they do, with apparently no more responsibility.

Ald. Macdonald thought that someone at the plant should be in charge and there should be no discontent because one man gets more money than the others. Ald. Fife proposed that the matter be left to the sewage disposal committee, but Ald. Macdonald reminded the aldermen that Mr. Crowe had been hired by the Council and his resignation should be accepted by the Council.

On Ald. McIntyre's motion the resignation was accepted, to become effective when the committee so decides.

The request of a lady who is starting up a grocery store in the city for relief from the transient trader's fee of $250.00 was referred to the Mayor and Mr. Armstrong. Mr. Armstrong explained that in order to prevent people coming in for a few weeks, possibly with a bankrupt stock, and selling it out and leaving the city without having paid any business tax, it had been decided some years ago to collect the transient trading fee, which is refunded when the business tax equals that amount.

The lady in question, a widow, says that she has put all her money into her stock and cannot pay this sum.

Ald. Fife supported upholding the by-law, holding that the lady should have found out what the by-law was before she started up in business. Ald. Greene suggested that she be asked for a financial statement, and that no action be taken in the meantime.

By-Laws Passed.

By-laws were passed as follows:

2729—Appointing the members of the Police Force inspectors under the Weed Control Act.

2730—To authorize the construction of a sewer on O'Carroll avenue from Benson avenue to a point 100 feet westerly.

2731—To authorize the purchase of the Machine Telephone conduits for $3,000.

2732—Appointing F. L. Webster to survey the area drained by the Park street drain.

Ald. McIntyre was opposed to the purchase of the Machine Telephone Conduits, expressing the opinion that it belongs to the city.

The Mayor said that the system would prove an asset and would enable the city to provide for the removal of poles from the city streets. The city is using part of the system now for fire alarm wires and C.P.R. telegraph wires.

The immediate need for the system is not large, he agreed, but in the future it will be a valuable asset. His contention was upheld by Aldermen Macdonald, Hancock, and Stocker and the by-law passed.

Prince Cannot Come.

The Hon. J. L. Ralston, who is in charge of arrangements for the journeys of the Prince of Wales, Prince George, and Premier Baldwin, wrote that it is impossible to arrange for any of them to visit Peterborough. The Council asked that the Prince of Wales come to this city to lay the corner stone of the extension to the Collegiate Institute.

The Department of Railways and Canals wrote that rebuilding of dam No. 5 is not considered necessary at present but when it is, the feasibility of eleminating dam No. 4 will be considered.

Ald. Denne asked that the C.P.R. be asked to repair the crossings on George street, and moved that rail crossings be put in.

Ald. McIntyre reported that he had read the building by-law through and considered it all right. He pointed out that the law calls for the submission of a list of materials before a permit is granted. The building inspector would need all his time to enforce the by-law, inspecting buildings, he said, and suggested that the by-law be left as it is, with a full time inspector to be appointed when deemed advisable.

D. G. H. Melton's request for a sidewalk in front of his house at the corner of Walnut street and Monaghan road was referred to the Mayor and Chairman of the Board of Works. Some of the aldermen favored carrying the walk to McDonnell street, but others opposed it in front of vacant lots. Ald. Fife said there should be some time limit for such requests.

The applications of V. Boorman and N. G. Doukas for renewals of eating-house licenses were granted.

Certain street cars running in Vienna now serve beer and sandwiches to passengers.

MAKE IT A "SAVE A DAY" JOURNEY AND SEE IT ALL BESIDES.

Number Nine, the Trans-Canada, leaves Union Station, Toronto, every night at eleven. It is the longest distance, all-sleeping car train in the world, and it saves a day each way between Toronto and Vancouver.

On shorter trips, such as Toronto-Winnipeg, Winnipeg-Calgary, and Calgary - Vancouver, its schedule means only one business day on the road. While it is Canada's most distinctive and luxurious train, there is no extra fare. It goes through the world famous resorts, Banff and Lake Louise, by day—is Canadian Pacific super-standard all the way. Any Canadian Pacific Agent can make reservations for you.

OIL FIRM SAYS RECKLESS DRIVING MUST STOP.

No more timely effort has come to the notice of this department in recent years than the advertising campaign about to be launched by the British-American Oil Co., Limited, of Toronto.

This company has prepared a series of advertisements to be run in the Canadian press inviting the attention of drivers of cars and pedestrians alike to the rapidly mounting number of so-called motor accidents on the streets and highways of Canada, most of which, it is claimed, could be obviated by the mere observance of common sense rules.

Conditions to-day are such that much of the real pleasureof motoring is lost. A man driving is in more or less constant fear of the other fellow and when the car is entrusted to any other memer of the family the need for worry is still greater.

Something had to be done to improve driving conditions. Apparently it remained for this public-spirited organization to make the start.

The term "staterooms" for cabins on boats originated from the Mississippi steamers' practice of naming rooms for the various states.

VOLCANIC CITY RULES STRICT

But Old Prospector's Dream of Wealth Fades, Preventing Building.

NO CHURCHES ALLOWED.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 30.—(Canadian Press).—Thriving and ambitious cities now girdle Canada, but not one of these proud municipalities can ever hope to approach the Utopian ideal attained by "Volcanic City."

No railway agent will sell one a ticket to this attractive town; its name is not to be found on any map of Canada. Like Plato's Republic, the magic island of Shakespeare's "Tempest" and a thousand other realms of dream, it never existed outside a human mind—the mind of a weather-beaten old prospector of the British Columbia hills.

Few more colorful careers have been lived in the Canadian West than that of Bill, "Volcanic" Brown. Several times fortune has tantalized him with visions of fabulous wealth, but on each occasion the vision has proved a mirage. He has stood in the shadow of the gallows, and only recently, at an age when most men are content to doze in their easy chairs, he was discovered lost in the mountains with both feet frozen and near to death.

Brown, who was born in New Brunswick, came to British Columbia after making a name for himself in the Ontario lumber woods. While prospecting near the international border, he made what he believed to be a rich strike. He thought that he had discovered a mountain literally loaded with gold, and instantly he became a builder of air castles, planning mighty mines and a city which was to be built up around them.

The prospector's bubble was soon pricked by scientific investigators and Volcanic City, as he had christened his town of the future, was relegated to the land of ambitious dreams. From that day forward he was known throughout the mountain country as "Volcanic" Brown. The name has stuck through four decades.

Some years later he made a genuine discovery in the Copper Mountain district, but more astute searchers after wealth got ahead of him in the matter of development and, despite a legal battle for what he considered to be his rights, he did not benefit to the extent of one dollar by his find.

The ageing prospector became a well-known and popular figure in the boundary district of British Columbia, and when he was arrested on a murder charge scores of friends rallied to his support. Enthusiasm ran high when his name was honorably cleared and he stepped from prison a free man.

Even if Volcanic City had become an actuality, there are many persons who would have felt no desire to reside there, for Brown had very rigid notions as to how it was to be governed. Pious folk would have been unhappy within its walls, for no churches were to be allowed. And as the use of money was to be utterly forbidden, misers and spendthrifts alike would have felt themselves out of place there.

Brown still dreams of sudden death; the volcanic mountain still lifts its cone-shaped peak to the skies; but the ideal city which in his imagination he built about its base is not listed in any gazeteer of Canada.

TOTEM POLES LEFT BESIDE HIGHWAYS

British Columbia Government Road Passes Many Fine Ones.

USK, B.C., Aug. 2 (Canadian Press. — In a few months tourists travelling into northern British Columbia will travel over the totem-pole route, one of the most unique stretches of highway in Northern America. Road gangs are now at work slashing the right of way for the totem pole section of the Pacific Highway. One is operating opposite the Gitksan Indian village of Kitwange, near the line of the old G.T.P., and the scene of one of the most picturesque Indian totem-pole villages in British Columbia.

Kitwanga is known among the Indians as the Westminster Abbey of the Indians, for it is there that the memorials have been erected in the form of ingeniously designed and gaudily colored totem poles memorials to some of the most illustrious red men of the north country.

The whole family history of some of the trial leaders is delineated on these totem poles at the head of which is carved the image of the family's protecting symbol such as the beaver, crow, bear, etc.

The other road gang is at the south side of the Skeena River, between Usk and Kitwanga Canyon. The Pacific Highway there will pass five totem poles and carved house posts to the number of fourteen, each of them a relic of vanished Indian glory.

PASTOR PASSES VERY SUDDENLY

Rev. W. B. Tighe Succumbs While Preparing For Morning Service.

FORMER SMITH MAN.

Referring to the death of Rev. W. B. Tighe, minister of McPhail Memorial Baptist Church, and a former resident of Smith Township, The Ottawa Morning Journal says:

"Baptists of Ottawa district and many other friends today mourn the passing of Rev. W. B. Tighe, beloved pastor of McPhail Baptist Church, whose death occurred suddenly Sunday morning shortly before he was to conduct the morning service.

"The congregation remained outside the church in hushed groups till a short memorial prayer service was conducted by J. W. Stranks.

Graduate of McMaster.

"Born in Peterborough County, June 7, 1872, of Irish stock, Mr. Tighe wended his way through life with the lisp of an Irish song on his lips and his ready wit and cheery smile were a mental tonic to all with whom he came in contact, while his heart went out in fullest sympathy to the afflicted and sorrowing. Receiving his early boyhood training at Woodstock College, Mr. Tighe then attended McMaster University from which he graduated in 1899.

"His first pastorate was at Avoca, Que., in his student days; but immediately on graduating he was called to Stonewall, Man., where he was ordained to the Christian ministry. He has since served as pastor of the following churches: Power Street Baptist Church, Winnipeg; Oshawa, Whitby, Parry Sound, Hamilton and Yorkton, Sask., from which he was called to McPhail Church four years ago on recommendation of Rev. Dr. Malcolm MacLean. In addition to his pastorate he was secretary of the Western Baptist Mission Board, elected Moderator of the Ottawa District Baptist Association.

"He was a member of the Prince of Wales Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and the North Star Lodge, I.O.O.F., Winnipeg.

Like Abraham Lincoln.

"With a personality that savored much of Abraham Lincoln, whom he greatly admired, Mr. Tighe was a mixer among men and never forgetting his Maker guided many into the paths of Peace.

"Born on the Kawartha Lakes, he never lost his fondness for the canoe and only last week was seen on Mooney's Bay.

"Left to mourn him are his widow, Mrs. W. B. Tighe, 160 Percy street, his daughter, Francis, and son, Fred. His mother, Mrs. John Tighe, of Peterborough, is still living. Howard Tighe, of Peterborough, is a brother and Susie Tighe, of Peterborough, and Mrs. (Dr.) Watley, of Melville, Sask., are sisters.

"Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed, but the service will likely be held on Wednesday."

GIRL LET DROWN BY YACHT PARTY

Seattle Yacht Club Demands Resignation of Members Involved.

DURING DRUNKEN SPREE.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 3.—Because P. Cregh Nelson, wealthy Seattle merchant, has been branded by a coroner's jury as one of the "cowards morally responsible for the death" of Miss Violet Maude Payne, the Seattle Yacht Club yesterday demanded he resign. Miss Payne fell off Nelson's yacht, the Muriel, during a liquor party aboard, and not one of those in the party jumped in after her, although they were good swimmers.

The directors of the club accepted the resignation of E. E. Barrington, bookkeeper of the Yacht Club and a member of the party. He admitted that after Miss Payne's death all members of the party agreed to say nothing in order to shield Nelson. He was included with Nelson and Captain Amory P. Bell of the Muriel in the jury's assertion that they were "cowards," although criminally involved.

Nelson is keeping away from Seattle, and his resignation has not been received. He has not been in the city since the inquest.

The coroner's jury summoned after Nelson and his companions had concealed their real share in the party, and hidden the flow of liquor that preceded the tragedy of the night of July 19, gave up the problem last Monday, after returning a verdict that subjected the three men involved to the most withering denunciation.

On Warm Days you long for Simple Foods

When hot weather weakens the digestive system, you long for simple foods which are easily assimilated. But few simple foods are attractive to the appetite.

As a change from commonplace foods, try Quaker Puffed Wheat or Quaker Puffed Rice. They are just whole grains, but their nutlike flavour is enhanced by the puffing process. Thoroughly cooked, and made easily digestible because every food cell has been broken down.

Grain Market Quiet With Changes Small

CHICAGO, August 3 (Canadian Press). — In the face of price breaks in stocks and cotton, the grain market displayed unusual steadiness early to-day. President Coolidge's announcement had no apparent effect on cereals or provisions, all the pits presenting a humdrum appearance, with price changes only fractional. Opening unchanged to ⅝ cents off, wheat later showing a slight rally. Corn was firm, starting a half cent off to ¼ cent up, and later showing a small general advance.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September, 137⅛, December 141. Corn, September 103, December 107⅜. Oats, September 43⅝, December 46¾.

Coolidge Resignation Causes Heavy Selling

NEW YORK, August 3 (Canadian Press). — An avalanche of selling orders, inspired by President Coolidge's unexpected announcement that he did not choose to be a candidate in 1928, gave the stock market a terrific jolt at the opening to-day, when prices crashed three to nearly sixteen points, but a subsequent recovery wiped out many of the early losses and sent about a dozen issues to record high levels. Trading was on an enormous scale with indication that the day's sales would run close to three million shares.

Wall Street undoubtedly was stunned by the President's decision. It caught the market in a vulnerable position with railroad and industrial stock averages at a new peak after twenty consecutive days of rising prices and with brokers' loans around the highest level on record. There were varying opinions as to its ultimate market effect, but a rather unanimous agreement that it had injected politics into the market months earlier than had been expected.

The opening outburst of selling orders appeared to be largely from professional traders who have been sponsoring the recent advance and who desired to conserve at least part of their profits. "Bear" selling also played a big part in the opening decline and short covering in the rally which followed. Dupont made up all of its initial loss of 15⅞ points and climbed to a new peak at 299. Timken Roller Bearing converted a loss of more than five points to a gain of almost equal proportions by attaining a new peak at 142. Losses of 2 to 6 points in recent favorites as U.S. Steel, Common General Motors, Baldwin, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Baltimore and Ohio, and Union Pacific were largely made up.

Selling Of Nickel Feature At Toronto

TORONTO, Ont., August 3 (Canadian Press). — A wave of selling in International Nickel which resulted in more than 4,000 shares of this stock changing hands, and unusual activity in the unlisted department featured the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Nickel opened strong at 67, but quickly declined to 64⅞. It rallied later to finish at 65¼ at the noon close, for a loss of 1¼ points.

Massey-Harris was fairly active and fractionally firmer at 38⅜, a gain of ⅜. Industrial Alcohol was in demand and held firm at 34½. Brazilian was a weak spot, dropping 1⅝ to 168¼.

Imperial Oil was an outstanding feature of the unlisted section. With trading in more than 3,000 shares, it advanced 1¾ to 49¼. It previously sold as high as 50½. British-American Oil was in good demand and firm at 25. International Petroleum gained 1½ to 30¾ in active trading.

The liquor stocks were quiet and practically unchanged.

Amulet and Kirkland Lead Mining Exchange

TORONTO, Ont., August 3 (Canadian Press). — Amulet and the Kirkland Lake issues divided interest on the market of the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. The former, with transactions amounting to more than 169,000 shares, sold up to the new high of 4.75. Towards the noon close it eased to 4.60, for a gain of 15 cents. Kirkland Lake in active trading sold up 11 cents to 1.60, while Beaver in sympathy soared to 1.27, a gain of 21 points. Laval Quebec was unusually active and stronger at 34½, a gain of 5½ cents. Area continued in demand at 53, a gain of three cents. Other gains were: Premier seven to 2.25, Teck-Hughes nine to 8.49, and Wright Hargreaves up one cent to 6.07. Dome Mines was weak, selling off five cents to 6.07. Dome Mines was weak, selling off five cents to 7.30. Pioneer dropped seven to 79, and Noranda ten cents to 21.85.

CABINETS SETTLE NAVY CONFERENCE

Reception of Japanese Proposal Will Decide Fate of Parleys.

GENEVA, August 3. Canadian Press. — Word was waited to-day from London and Washington to indicate the reaction of the respective governments to the new formula proposed by the Japanese in the hope of saving the tri-partite naval reduction conference.

Although the plan kindled a spark there was no great flame of enthusiasm among the various delegations. Even the Japanese in presenting it, said it was "just an idea," that they realized it was entirely imperfect, and that Hugh S. Gibson, chief United States delegate, should feel at liberty to modify it or comment on it in any way he desired.

The announcement that the six plenipotentiaries at the tripartite naval conference supplemented by three or four other delegates, would meet some time to-day to discuss the new situation created by the Japanese compromise plan, stirred the hopes of those conference circles in which belief is still held that a treaty can eventually be drawn up at Geneva.

Whatever decision, if any the "big six" and others can come to, it is felt to depend upon the verdict of the British cabinet meeting being held in London to-day.

EVERYTHING BACKWARD

OXFORD, England, Aug. 3.—One of the queer societies of Oxford University is the "Upside Down Club." Three times a year its members go through a day doing everything backwards. Donning evening dress in the morning, they start with cigars and port as a prelude to a reversed dinner, ending with hors d'eouvres. So on through the day, until they eat breakfast and retire.

In the southern part of India there are 20,000 lepers, few of whom are in leper colonies.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1927

Astrologers read this as rather an unimportant day in planetary government. Benefic aspects dominate.

Under this rule there may be an urge toward charitable and philanthropic efforts. It is favorable time for visiting hospitals or contributing to their maintenance.

This should be a fairly fortunate sway under which to set sail for foreign ports and many tourists will encounter unusual experiences, it is foretold.

Speculation in oil should be lucky at this time, but most perilous later. Prices are to rise perceptibly by wintertime, it is foretold.

Governments are now subject to a direction of the stars making for precarious tenure on the part of those who wield power.

In the United States there may be a slight reflection of foreign dissatisfaction that will be felt by executives, but it will be ephemeral.

The seers prognosticate for the world tremendous progress for the dark skinned races. Alliance with the white man will bring new dangers, astrologers forecast.

In this advancing period of unrest women must become a stabilizing power, making for peace and co-operation, the seers declare.

New inventions of amazing originality and scope are foreseen and much traveling in the air is assured, according to the stars.

Labor is subject to the most encouraging direction of the stars which will advance prosperity and increase power.

For the autumn fashions of military trend will be most significant, it is prognosticated.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be careful of all writings and legal papers in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly clever in all that pertains to social and domestic relations.

DRESS

At right, above, pale gray kid gloves with bands and stitching in dark gray; at left, three-quarter-length gloves of suede to wear with elbow sleeves, and below, beige gloves trimmed with lingerie cuffs.

The young girl who wants to make a limited dress allowance go as far as possible may—and usually does—skimp in the matter of gloves.

But the more mature woman—the important women, as they say—must have good gloves and plenty of them if she wishes to look well dressed. And the more sophisticated she becomes in her tastes in dress the more she is inclined to emphasize the importance of gloves.

In France you may have noticed that women are much more precise in their attention to gloves even in summer, and if you have sojourned in Paris yourself you may have felt this high regard for gloves coming upon you—and incidentally making inroads on your dress allowance. Even young girls in Paris pay particular heed to their gloves, and it would be hard to find a well-dressed French woman—even obviously middle class—who is content to go gloveless outdoors save in the country or in her own garden. I have seen French women keep on their gloves during the entire length of a five or six hour railway journey. They would no more think of traveling gloveless than of slipping off their shoes and sitting in stocking feet.

This precise attention to gloves in France is interesting in view of the fact that the original letting down of the bars of the glove convention had its origin in Paris. It was one of the many wartime fads that spread like wildfire round the world and for a time altered the whole current of fashion.

The slip-on glove that is usually made in six or eight button length is by all means the most highly favored type of glove nowadays. Many women will wear no other sort for any occasion. Once you may remember we called this a Biarritz glove.

Gauntlet gloves have a broad stiff cuff—but the narrow gauntlet type of glove of today is usually spoken of as the cuffed glove—and these, too, are very much in evidence.

Button gloves and clasp gloves are to be found in types suitable for street, sports or more formal wear, but the wrist strap glove which is tightened at the wrist by a strap that snaps into position is really suitable only for street and sports wear.

Rag flowers are easy to make from odd scraps of material, and if you are making a frock you can make one or more of these effective shoulder flowers without adding a cent to the cost. I shall be glad to send you a pattern for the new sort of rag flower if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope—and with the pattern a sketch showing the latest way of arranging them.

MARY MARSHALL.

FRENCH DRESSING

French dressing is considered more wholesome for children than mayonnaise or Russian dressing. Olive oil is an excellent food, but the rich ingredients included in the more elaborate dressings are less beneficial.

FRUIT FILLER

Dried or fresh apples can be used with strawberries or any other fresh fruit for filler in pies, tarts, etc., without destroying the fresh fruit flavor.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith was already preparing for bed that night before Bob joined her in their room. He had been talking with Cherry about the business when Faith left to give Cherry's baby its feeding.

"Pretty hair," Bob remarked casually, as he lifted a strand of her long, shining, dark brown hair, which she was brushing conscientiously, despite her fatigue and the heat. "By the way, honey, I want you to get yourself a new dress for the Pruitts' dinner party. Something extra swank. I saw a gorgeous dress in a window to-day. The sign said it was the new nasturtium shade, and I thought of you right off. Blow yourself for once, sweet, and see how it feels!"

Faith smiled at him brilliantly, the pain which had constricted her heart all day magically relieved.

"I would like a new dress, a fluffy, foolish, impractical dress," she acknowledged.

"Then get the dress I'm talking about," Bob grinned, beginning to unfasten his collar. "It's in the Vanity Shop across from the Yellow Aster tea room . Cherry and I had lunch there to-day, and, as a matter of fact, it was Cherry that spotted the dress first. You'll be a peach in it, sweetheart."

So he had lunched with Cherry, too! Had worked with her all day, lunched with her, then had taken her for a swim!

"Did you pay for Cherry's lunch?" Faith was amazed to hear herself ask in a cold, hard voice.

Bob whirled upon her, incredulous astonishment on his face. And something more—a faint shadow of distaste.

"Listen, Faith," he spoke at last, in a tone he had never used to her before. "There's something funny in your attitude toward me—and Cherry. I gave her the job because it was open and I had to have someone. I figured that she would be safer from gossip and—possible entanglements—in my office than anywhere else in the business world. I think this family has had about enough notoriety and scandal. If you have any different ideas on the subject I'd like to know what they are. I think you owe it to me—and to Cherry—to be frank. You've been looking like a martyr and an abused woman for the last two or three days and it's beginning to get on my nerves."

Faith backed away from him slowly, her eyes wide, staring, her lips suddenly almost as white as her face. Surely this couldnot be Bob—her husband—speaking to her in that cold, measured, almost menacing tone!

And again she heard words coming from her mouth that she had had no intention of uttering: "So that's why you want me to get an expensive dress! You want to bribe me into being cheerful! I don't want it, Bob! Let Cherry have it! All I need is a housedress or a nursemaid's costume!"

They stared at each other after she had spoken, with the eyes. Then, before Faith, horrified at herself, could retract her words or apologize, Bob turned sharply on his heel and was striding toward the door.

(To be continued.)

It is Serious When The Kidneys Go Wrong

These letters tell of two cases in which Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills afforded the desired relief.

For about half a century Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been known to the public as an effective treatment for the relief of kidney ills. Before that they had been for years proven in private practice. Surely they have stood the test of time. And to-day they are more popular than ever before. Why? Simply because they produce the desired results. You know when you use them that you are not experimenting with an untried medicine.

Mrs. Fred Martin, Box 61, Bradford, Ont., writes:—

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's K. & L. Pills, as I used to suffer agonies with gravel in the kidneys and tried several medicines with no results, until one day I decided to try Dr. Chase's K. & L. Pills and obtained so much benefit from them that I am now never without a box in use and one in reserve. I certainly wish Dr. Chase's Medicines every success."

Miss Mary Pettipas, 158, Upper Water St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—

"I suffered for two years with kidney trouble and tried a great deal of medicines, which did not help me at all. I was so nervous I could not rest at night. A neighbour advised me to try your K. & L. Pills and since taking them I feel like a new person and now sleep soundly at nights, thanks to Dr. Chase."

McGRAW VISITS TEAM.

TORONTO, Aug. 3.—Toronto took the first game of the Rochester series here yesterday afternoon 6 to 1. The game always favored the Leafs. Doyle outpitching Shoffner and the fielding of the homesters was decidedly more defensive than that of the visitors.

Toronto packed two walks and three hits into the eighth inning for a trio of runs making the game safe for democracy.

Alexander came himself with a triple and single in four tries.

McGraw Here.

The club has as its guest the famous John J. McGraw who the last week or two celebrated his 25th year as manager of the New York Giants. He is doing some scouting for his club, players are sadly needed on his team as elsewhere and he is taking a personal tour to look the odd one over. Rogers Hornsby is handling the team on the field.

The line up:

Buffalo won at Syracuse yesterday, 7 to 4, in the first of a three game series.

Newark rallied in the twelfth inning to take the first of the Reading series from Reading, 7 to 6. Conroy's single, scoring Manion, won the game for the Bears.

Baltimore defeated the Skeeters in the opening game of the series at Jersey City by a score of 8 to 2. Caudette, recently traded to Baltimore by the locals, scored two hits and played a bang-up game in the field.

FAILED TO HIT HARD.

Ty Cobb hit under .250 in two of the three World Series in which he has played.

ANOTHER COHEN ON TRIAL.

The New York Giants are going to give Sidney Cohen, a brother of Andy, a trial.

Clark's Yawl "Rosa" Wins First Honors

COWES, England, Aug. 3 (Canadian Press Cable).—W. D. Clark's yawl, "Rosa" won the King's Cup at the opening of the Royal Yacht Squadron's regatta here yesterday. Owing to the late start the course was shortened to one round. Lord Stalbridge's "Tally-Ho" was second and Frank Chaplin's "Coral" third.

King George's Britannia won the big yacht handicap class; Lord Waring's "White heather" coming second, and Sir Mortimer Singer's "Lulworth" third. Sir Thomas Lipton's "Shamrock" was forced out of the race when it went ashore.

WIN FIRST GAME OF THE PLAY-OFFS

Pontypool Defeated By Yelverton 3-2 in North Durham League Fixture.

PONTYPOOL August 3. — The first game of the play off between Yelverton and Pontypool took place at Yelverton on Friday evening.

These teams are old rivals for several years and are tied for the supremacy of the North Durham League and Friday's game was the first of the home and home games.

Yelverton was victorious in this game the score being 3-2. It was a hard fought battle, both pitchers being in good form. Clarke pitching for Pontypool ,turned in a good game, but was not supported as well as usual, the outfield being much weaker than at any time this season. Wilson for Yelverton received good support and the work of W. Kerr at shortstop was one of the main features. Both pitchers hit up a good performance; stolen bases were a rarity. The only extra base hit was a two base hit by Payne.

Score by innings:

Yelverton.. . . . . .1000011—3
Pontypool.. . . . . .0001100—2

The line up for Yelverton:

G. Kerr, cf; . McGill c; W. Heaslip 3b; A. Wilson rf; H. Wilson p; C. Evans 2b; E. Capstick 1b; D. Wilson lf; W. Kerr ss and G. Heaslip sub.

Pontypool: Payne lf; Mitchell 1b; Clarke p; Bannon c; Lowery 2b; Taylor rf; Chapman cf; G. Smith 3b; Walker ss; E. Masters and A. Stuart, subs.

Umpires: Sisson at plate, Philips at bases.

LIFE HISTORY OF WALTER JOHNSON

BY BILLY EVANS

Fans in Washington are planning a celebration for Walter Johnson on Aug. 2, exactly 20 years to the day after Johnson pitched his first game for the Senators.

I think Walter Johnson is the greatest pitcher I have seen in the last 25 years. I say that without reservation and without hesitation.

There are many who no doubt lean towards the late Chrjsty Mathewson. I would name Matty second. An interesting coincidence is that these two great pitchers represent entirely different styles in the art of deceiving batters.

Let us go back 20 years to get some atmosphere of those days when the peerless Johnson arrived and, incidentally, to introduce Walter Johnson as I first saw him.

It was a night late in the summer of 1907. I was sitting in front of the old Regent House in Washington, chatting with Joe Cantillon, then manager of the Washington club, and Jack Sheridan, greatest of all umpires, to whom I am indebted for whatever little success I have gained as a major league arbitrator.

The conversation shifted from one baseball topic to another. Plays and players were discussed pro and con until the three of us were forced into a brief silence, only to be broken by Cantillon with these words:

"Looks as if I would have to get the railroad companies to send out a tracer after this fellow Walter Johnson."

"Why and who is Walter Johnson?" asked Sheridan.

"He's a pitcher from the wilds of Idaho who doesn't throw anything but strikes," answered Cantillon.

"Would there were more pitchers like him!" came from both Sheridan and myself in unison.

"I received a wire from the man we sent out there to sign him saying Johnson had started east and should arrive in Washington within five days. He is now two days late."

I had never heard much of Walter Johnson up to that evening and, of course, had no idea what he looked like. However, as Cantillon finished his speech about the "busher," who was two days late in arriving from Weiser, Idaho, or thereabouts, I saw a tall, gangling fellow approaching with a brand new suit case swinging from his right hand as if it contained no excess baggage. I decided he was either a very strong young man or was traveling light. Later events proved I was right in both deductions.

"Why, here he comes!" I exclaimed, as I looked in the stranger's direction. I was merely joshing, hadn't the slightest idea that the young man who handled the big hand bag as if it were a vanity case was Walter Johnson. Cantillon and Sheridan merely glanced in his direction, then switched the conversation. It was only a few minutes before he had pulled up in front of where we were sitting.

"Is this the hotel where the Washington ball players stop?" he asked.

"Only the good ones," replied Cantillon, who was keen for his joke no matter who suffered.

"Then I guess this is no place for me." The youngster had set his suit case down as he talked with Cantillon. It gave me a chance to survey him closely. He seemed undecided as to what to do.

I could see he was well over six feet, despite the fact that there was a bit of a stoop at the shoulders. His features were clean cut as if chiseled. He was good to look at. His arms were tremendousiy long. He was in perfect condition. There wasn't an ounce of fat on his giant physique.

"Then I guess this is no place for me," he repeated. Suiting his action to his words, he stepped over to where he had dropped his suit case, picked it up and was about to start on his way when Cantillon asked:

"And who might you be?"

"My name is Walter Johnson."

Cantillon, never a demonstrative fellow, jumped to his feet and greeted the youngster like a long lost brother, asked where he had been, told how he had been watching every train for the last two days and a lot of other nice things that made Mr. Walter Johnson immediately feel at home.

"You know it was the first long trip I had ever made," explained Johnson. "I had the window open all the way, and my head sticking out of it most of the time. I've been seeing America for a week."

There you have my introduction to the man I regard as the greatest pitcher the game has ever produced. He was a quiet, retiring, modest young man that evening back in the summer of 1907 and, after 20 years of the most remarkable success that any pitcher has ever enjoyed, he hasn't changed one whit. He is the same modest, likeable chap

BELMONTS BEAT ELECTRICIANS

Win Weird Softball Game 21-11 — Errors Predominate.

LEAD CHANGES.

The Belmonts defeated the C.G.E. by a score of 21-11 in a weird game at Confederation Square last night. The game was a poor exhibition of ball, both teams making numerous errors and the pitchers not being in very good form.

The C.G.E. were leading at the end of the third inning by 10-5 scoring eight runs in the third inning on a flock of errors and hits. Their lead was short-lived for the Belmonts came right back with three in the fourth, three in the fifth and five in the sixth.

Carruthers started for the Belmonts and was given terrible support, Harrison, at third, contributing six errors in a row, while Haskill was not giving him the best of support behind the bat. It was either Harrison or Carruthers to the bench after the C.G.E. had scored eight runs in the third. Carruthers got the gate, although it was errors that let the runs in, and Harrison succeeded him, Hall going to third. With Hall to bolster up the infield Harrison got by with only one run scored against him.

Richmond started for the C.G.E. and although hit fairly hard he was given bad support and was succeeded by Nicholls, who was later yanked in favor of Powell.

Maudsley contributed the feature catches of the evening with two pretty running catches of fly balls. Maudsley made the catches while running with the ball. He also played a great game at first. Frick was the heavy hitter of the night with two home runs.

The teams lined up as follows:

Belmonts—Green, cf; Haskill, c; Ash, rf; Harrison, 3b, p; Batten, 2b; Jobbit, lf; Delahaye, lf; Holyman, ss; Frick, 1b; Hall, 3b; Carruthers, p.

C.G.E.—Jones, cf; Maudsley, 1b; Wilson, 3b; Heard, ss; Powell, lf, p; Rishea, c; Nicholls, rf, p; Bennett, 2b; Barry, 2b; Richmond, p, rf.

SOX DIVIDE DOUBLE BILL

Defeat the Athletics 7-4 in the First Game and Lose Second 6-5.

BROWNS BREAK EVEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The Chicago White Sox and the Athletics divided a double header at Philadelphia yesterday, the Sox winning the first game by a score of 7 runs to 4 and the Athletics the second by a 6 to 5 margin in the twelfth inning.

Bib. Falk had a perfect day at bat in the opener, figuring in the scoring of all the visitors' runs, and getting four hits in as many times up. In the second game, Alex Metzler hit a homer with two out and one on in the ninth that sent the White Sox ahead, but the Athletics tied the score on a triple by Fox and Collins' single. Mickey Cochrane broke the game up in the twelfth by hitting a run over the right field wall.

Boston and St. Louis broke even in a double header at Boston. The Browns won the opener, 3 to 2, when Stewart had the better of MacFayden in a pitchers' battle. In the second contest pitcher Hal. Wiltse, Boston southpaw, let the Browns down with two scratch hits, and the Red Sox were victorious, 3 to 0.

Commemorate Anniversary.

Apparently unmoved by the fact that yesterday was Walter Johnson Day, commemorating the veteran hurler's twenty-first anniversary as a big league pitcher, the Detroit Tigers won at Washington, after Johnson had pitched 8 1-3 innings.

The score yesterday was 7 to 6, as against the 3 to 2 score of August 2, 1907. Johnson was charged with the defeat 20 years ago, but yesterday the official scorer by an interpretation of the governing rules not quite clear to other sports writers, laid the defeat to Garland Braxton, relief pitcher who succeeded "Old Barney" in the ninth when the Tigers scored three runs.

Flashing some of his old time speed, mellowed by cunning accumulated in two decades of competition, Johnson had weathered one storm in the fifth inning when Detroit found him for six hits and four runs, and appeared to be on the road to victory when a ninth-inning rally unseated him. While in the box, Johnson held the Tigers to eight hits and had struck out six.

CUBS INCREASE LEAGUE LEAD

Defeat Philadelphia 6-2, While Boston Wins From Pittsburgh 5-2.

RALLY IN SECOND.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Chicago's Cubs yesterday increased their lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates to a game and a half by winning a home game from Philadelphia six to two while Boston won from Pittsburgh. Alex Ferguson blew up in the second inning when the Cubs staged a four run rally in which Earl Webb cracked out a double, driving Adams and English across the pan. Webb also drove in the final run for the Cubs in the sixth. Bush settled down after the third inning, the visitors being able to gather only three more hits. Two fast double plays by the Cubs aided Bush.

Boston made a clean sweep of the three game series at Pittsburgh by winning yesterday 5 to 2. Kent Greenfield kept the Pirates' nine hits well scattered, Hill, leading National League hurler, was given faulty support. He was forced from the game in the seventh inning when he was injured after dropping Harris' assist at first base, the error permitting two Braves to score.

Cards Win 6-2.

The Cardinals took advantage of the collapse of the New York defense in the eighth inning at St. Louis, scoring six runs and defeating the Giants by six to two in the last game of the series. It was St. Louis' only victory in the four-game engagement with New York.

Cincinnati recovered fifth place in the National from Brooklyn with a double victory over the Robins at Cincinnati, 3 to 1 and 5 to 4. McWeeny and May both allowed only seven hits in the first fray but the former was handicapped by Brooklyn errors. Luque went to Kolp's rescue with the tying run on base in the seventh in the closing struggle, stopping Brooklyn, and was officially credited with the victory.

THE CAP COMES INTO ITS OWN ONCE MORE

By CURTIS WOOD.

"A gentleman never wears a cap"—this used to be the mistaken catch phrase of etiquet that chased many a yearning male away from the cap section of his favorite haberdasher's shop.

Today the cap is coming back into vogue stronger than ever. It is riding in on the increased wave of popularity for outdoor sports of all kinds, particularly tennis, golfing, boating and knock-about lounge wear at summer resorts.

Caps are cool. Caps are comfortable. That combination is hard to beat.

Mustn't Be Skimpy.

The latest trend in caps leans to a full-tailored, eight-piece affair with plenty of material, finely sewed, and constructed so as to drape and build a frame for the face.

There is nothing that can spoil a man's appearance more easily than a cap that is tailored too "skimpily." A man with a full face and heavy masculine features should wear a large cap with a wide peak and preferably rough tweed material. A man with smaller features can go in for material of smoother finish and smaller lines.

The Prince of Wales this season has been photographed at the races, at soccer games and other outdoor sporting events wearing the newer style cap. He pulls the peak jauntily over one eye and it gives a rather rakish effect that the English follower of men's modes calls natty.

Light Colors.

For 100 per cent. coolness the new white, tan or cream colored linen caps can not be beaten. They are better ventilated, lighter and more comfortable than the finest $50 panama. They sell at $3 to $5.

The very smartest have perforations under the peak allowing for a inch and one-half vent to permit the air to circulate over the scalp. Some models instead of perforations have a fine brass screen covering. This gives the peak more solidity and keeps the cap from becoming floppy.

Jean Borotra and Rene Cochet, French tennis stars who have flashed into international prominence by their succeeding victories over Big Bill Tilden, introduced a new vogue into sports wear when they brought over a trunkful of crimson, blue, yellow, green and purple berets.

They "Take."

Now young aristocrats from the age of 6 to 60 can be seen wearing them. They are a novelty that seems likely to stay. They are priced in the best Fifth avenue shops from $3 to $6 and there are two fine models priced at $10 that are beauties.

For all-around cap wear a light tweed and a light flannel model has been evolved that is enjoying top sales. They sell at $3.50 to $6.50 and are making their first appearance this summer.

The single-piece cap is out and, with the exception of the berets and linen models, solid colors are out. Checks, novelty patterns and colored mixtures are the vogue.

A man should buy at least three caps to preserve that freshly dressed appearance. It is easy to let a cap become shoddy under the excuse that after all it is for outdoor and sports wear, but the well dressed man will buy a complete outfit, particularly the linen, beret and tweed models described above.

(Photos Courtesy Wallach Bros.)

Roads Are Being Rapidly Improved

While the roadways between Peterborough and the lake resorts are not yet of a standard to satisfy the most exacting critic, steady progress has been made in making of them more adapted to the increasingly heavy volume of traffic passing over them every summer.

The drawing of invidious comparisons between the roadways of our county and those of more populous districts is deprecated by Frank G. Stinson, secretary of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League. "Visitors from the United States and, indeed, we oursedves, often compare our roads with those south of the line," said Mr. Stinson, "but such comparisons are usually unfair. While in many cases the roads connecting Peterborough with the lakes are not all they should be, they are the best we could get up to the present.

"In comparing roads, we should not place the state highways of America over against our rural roads. Let us take the American roads that are as remote as ours are from large centres of population and you will find they are no better than the roads to the lake resorts of Kawartha.

"The dyed-in-the-wool fisherman fully realizes that where the good roads are, the fish are not. Any one who has tried the roads of the United States over a reasonable mileage — 2,000 miles, for example—realizes that in the matter of roads we have nothing to apologize for. But for goodness sake don't put the road to Burleigh Falls or McCracken's Landing over against the state highways of New York and wonder why they are not so good.

"For a province of our population, we have a splendid highway system, and our best roads compare very favorably with the best in the Republic.

"The Ontario Motor League keeps treading on the heels of the authority to keep the roadways in good condition.

"One of the best things that could happen to this city would be the early construction of the new highway from Sarnia, parallel with the Kingston Highway, as was foreshadowed by Hon. G. S. Henry in a recent speech. Such a highway would undoubtedly pass through Peterborough on the road to Ottawa," concluded Mr. Stinson.

That things are on the mend in this district has been abundantly proved by the numerous improvement and construction jobs being pushed ahead on the roads at the present time. Chemong Road, long a prolific cause of complaint, is undergoing the most extensive renovation it has had for years, with a roller, graders and a gang of men daily on the job. The Peterborough-Port Hope Highway has for many weeks been the scene of extensive repair work. On a single day last week, the contractors, the Dufferin Construction Company, created something approaching a record by grading and laying down 400 feet of road between 6.30 in the morning and 7.30 in the evening. Sixty-four tons of metal were brought from Kendry by auto for use on this job.

Along all the rural roads are to be seen evidences of road repair work all going to make the passage of the tourist easier and more pleasant. In fact, as was pointed out by the secretary of the Trent Waterway Association, the tourist travelling by car to the lakes finds himself on first-class roads until reaching Peterborough, and is not likely to cavil unduly, if the remaining 20 or 30 miles through unfenced roads traversing primeval forests are not up to the mark of a highway leading to a metropolis.

LONDON, July 29—(United Press).—Lenin's fear of a "clash between imperialistic States and the Soviet," which he expressed more than a year before his death in an article written for the official Soviet newspaper "Pravada", has been justified, in the opinion of many persons, by recent events.

Although in 1923, few took cognizance of predictions of the coming "Soviet-Imperialistic clash" made by the apostle of Bolshevism almost from his deathbed, Great Britain's break with the Soviet and the many diplomatic complications which followed closely on the heels of this break, have caused many to turn back the pages of history to a chapter which appeared insignificant when written.

"Peace between the Soviet Governmental institutions and the Imperialist States is the only sure means of successfully coping with Russia's future problems," Lenin wrote.

"Under the present state of international relations in Europe, one state is placed under the heel of others—their victors. These victors are able to grant a few concessions to the oppressed masses—concessions which retard the revolutionary movement and create a semblance of social peace.

"At the same time there are a number of Oriental countries, notably Indian and China, which as a result of the Imperialistic war, find themselves completely beaten from their former foundations. Their development has finally come to be directed along the general lines of the European capitalistic system. General European fermentation has begun in those countries and the whole world now clearly sees that they are being dragged into a process which will inevitably lead to a crisis for capitalism throughout the entire world.

"What tactics must Russia adopt as a result of this world trend?

"We must carefully build up our state—maintaining the leadership of the workmen over the peasants, but increasing confidence in the latter and exercising the maximum amount of national economy.

"Our advantage is that the whole world is in a state of revolution.

"Our disadvantage is that capitalism has succeeded in splitting the world and this split is further complicated by the fact that Germany—the foremost cultured country in capitalistic countries of the West are preying on her and are refusing to allow her to rise.

"On the other hand throughout the entire east, hundreds of millions of exploited toilers are being driven to the last stage of human endurance.

"In this article we are not interested in the question of the inevitability of victory for socialism, but in the question of what tactics we should adopt to prevent the Western European counter-revolutionary countries from crushing us. In order to ensure our existence until the next military clash between the counter-revolutionary Imperialistic nations of the West and the revolutionary Nationalistic nations of the East—between the most civilized states and the most backward states—the latter must be civilized.

"Meanwhile, can we avoid clash with the Imperialistic States? Will the difference between the Imperialistic States shape themselves so far as to give us a pause for breathing, as were once received as a result of the American and Japanese differences?

"The solution of this problem depends on many questions. The overwhelming majority of the human race will be forced to fight by capitalism itself. The outcome of that fight will be decided by the fact that Russia, India, China and the other Eastern nations represent the great majority of the world's population. The majority is already drawn into the fight, therefore the final victory for socialism is unquestionable.

"Meantime, we must face this question. Can we stand fast until the Western European States complete their development toward Socialism?

THE CAP COMES INTO ITS OWN ONCE MORE

By CURTIS WOOD.

"A gentleman never wears a cap"—this used to be the mistaken catch phrase of etiquet that chased many a yearning male away from the cap section of his favorite haberdasher's shop.

Today the cap is coming back into vogue stronger than ever. It is riding in on the increased wave of popularity for outdoor sports of all kinds, particularly tennis, golfing, boating and knock-about lounge wear at summer resorts.

Caps are cool. Caps are comfortable. That combination is hard to beat.

Mustn't Be Skimpy.

The latest trend in caps leans to a full-tailored, eight-piece affair with plenty of material, finely sewed, and constructed so as to drape and build a frame for the face.

There is nothing that can spoil a man's appearance more easily than a cap that is tailored too "skimpily." A man with a full face and heavy masculine features should wear a large cap with a wide peak and preferably rough tweed material. A man with smaller features can go in for material of smoother finish and smaller lines.

The Prince of Wales this season has been photographed at the races, at soccer games and other outdoor sporting events wearing the newer style cap. He pulls the peak jauntily over one eye and it gives a rather rakish effect that the English follower of men's modes calls natty.

Light Colors.

For 100 per cent. coolness the new white, tan or cream colored linen caps can not be beaten. They are better ventilated, lighter and more comfortable than the finest $50 panama. They sell at $3 to $5.

The very smartest have perforations under the peak allowing for a inch and one-half vent to permit the air to circulate over the scalp. Some models instead of perforations have a fine brass screen covering. This gives the peak more solidity and keeps the cap from becoming floppy.

Jean Borotra and Rene Cochet, French tennis stars who have flashed into international prominence by their succeeding victories over Big Bill Tilden, introduced a new vogue into sports wear when they brought over a trunkful of crimson, blue, yellow, green and purple berets.

They "Take."

Now young aristocrats from the age of 6 to 60 can be seen wearing them. They are a novelty that seems likely to stay. They are priced in the best Fifth avenue shops from $3 to $6 and there are two fine models priced at $10 that are beauties.

For all-around cap wear a light tweed and a light flannel model has been evolved that is enjoying top sales. They sell at $3.50 to $6.50 and are making their first appearance this summer.

The single-piece cap is out and, with the exception of the berets and linen models, solid colors are out. Checks, novelty patterns and colored mixtures are the vogue.

A man should buy at least three caps to preserve that freshly dressed appearance. It is easy to let a cap become shoddy under the excuse that after all it is for outdoor and sports wear, but the well dressed man will buy a complete outfit, particularly the linen, beret and tweed models described above.

(Photos Courtesy Wallach Bros.)

Roads Are Being Rapidly Improved

While the roadways between Peterborough and the lake resorts are not yet of a standard to satisfy the most exacting critic, steady progress has been made in making of them more adapted to the increasingly heavy volume of traffic passing over them every summer.

The drawing of invidious comparisons between the roadways of our county and those of more populous districts is deprecated by Frank G. Stinson, secretary of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League. "Visitors from the United States and, indeed, we oursedves, often compare our roads with those south of the line," said Mr. Stinson, "but such comparisons are usually unfair. While in many cases the roads connecting Peterborough with the lakes are not all they should be, they are the best we could get up to the present.

"In comparing roads, we should not place the state highways of America over against our rural roads. Let us take the American roads that are as remote as ours are from large centres of population and you will find they are no better than the roads to the lake resorts of Kawartha.

"The dyed-in-the-wool fisherman fully realizes that where the good roads are, the fish are not. Any one who has tried the roads of the United States over a reasonable mileage — 2,000 miles, for example—realizes that in the matter of roads we have nothing to apologize for. Irish Hearts

By MOLLIE MALONE

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough, a youth of Killanmaul, a village in Ireland, goes to America and is followed by Old Tom Kildare and his daughter Sheila, with whom Emmett is in love. Murtough is a careless, boastful lad and Sheila doubts if she should marry him. Sheila makes friends with the O'Sheas, who live in the same tenement in Hell's Kitchen. Rory O'Shea, the son, who lives with them, is a prizefighter, but a clean living youth.

But beyond those who hung about Healy's bar he had not even found a willing listener. And these men listened only when he had dollars with which to buy drinks. There were not many; drinks at sixty cents apiece rated high compared to Mrs. O'Farrell's Inn in Killanmaul, and the taste was not the same to Old Tom's palate.

He found in Emmett the only companion of his impractical heart. The boastings and discontent of the younger man appeased his own vague desires. On Saturday nights after supper the two would sit in the parlor and with a pint of "the crathure" recall the minutenest details of life in Killanmaul, and, as if to keep up the sagging courage of each other, scoff disdainfully at the meagre opportunities for great men which the old country afforded.

Sheila worried. Their capital, about five hundred dollars when they landed in New York, was rapidly diminishing. The rent and the groceries and the gas and electric bills were her troubles, for Old Tom absolved himself from any responsibility in the household affairs. Yet he did not hesitate to beg and to get a dollar or two frequently when he felt the need of the companionship of the hangers-on at Healy's.

"Father, ye must get a job," declared Sheila one night, "for soon we'll have no money an' then how shall we pay the rent an' buy food? The prices are terrible here. Praties are sold by the pound, d'ye mind, now, by the pound, an' flour an' meal by the pound, too, an' a bit of pork enough for us an' Emmett costs almost as much as a half a ham in Killanmaul."

"But I don't know what I could do an' where could I find a job for me talents, Sheila, darling?"

"Yer talents, is it? Why, father, ye'r but a bit over forty an' 'tis a strong man ye've always been; Lord knows, there was no reason for ye to be otherwise considering the little ye did on the farm at home! There's plenty of work; why, they do be digging a new subway up there aways, near the Park, an' surely ye could find something to do there. I'd be ashamed, a strong man like you, to be sitting around the house all the day!"

"An' when did ye begin to have fine manners with yer father, to be telling him what he should do and what he shouldn't be doing?" the old man demanded angrily.

"'Tis no good it'll be doing ye to fly in a rage, now," tartly replied Sheila. "'Tis a job ye must be getting an' soon or it's in the poorhouse we'll be."

"But here's Emmett with a fine job an' a fine future. He's making good money. Why don't ye get married to him? There's room enough for us all here."

"I'll not be marrying Emmett Murtough just to be keeping a roof over our heads, mind ye that. I do not know if I love him at all anymore, or even if I ever did love him, the braggart! Oh, can't ye see, father, that Emmett's not turned out to be the man of his promise an', not that I ever would, but you nor me cannot depend upon him an' his promises now? Why, there's Mr. O'Shea downstairs who started carrying the hod an' he worked steadily, he did, Mrs. O'Shea told me, until he was sixty years. An' now they got comfort an' plenty. Ye could do as well, father, if only ye would try."

"Ye been too much with the O'Sheas, I'm thinking," grumbled Old Tom.

"She's been good to me, an' they come from beyond Knockbotherum way, an' she's the only friend I have in all this great city."

"Well, Sheila, I will consider it, an' if I can find a place suitable to me talents, I'll take it."

Sheila turned away in despair. She felt that Old Tom would do nothing; Old Tom! The village had named him so, she realized now, not because of his years, but because he was an idler, a good for nothing! And there was so little left of their pitiful resources which was to have seen them safely into comfort and plenty. Sheila slipped into a shawl and went downstairs to Mrs O'Shea.

"Ah, 'tis welcome ye are, darling," the smiling old lady cried as she opened the door. "Come right in now, an' the kettle's on an' we'll have a cup of tea. Michael, Michael," she called to an inner room, "here's pretty Sheila Kildare come to see us! Come out now an' make yer bow to the prettiest colleen in New York."

The night was a bit chill and Mike O'Shea had been warming his stockinged feet before the lighted oven of the gas range. He came into the room dragging his newspaper and with his spectacles dropped low on the tip of his nose. He was in his shirtsleeves, and the collarless neckband was open, showing the red flannel shirt that he put on with the coming of every fall.

"Sure, an' 'tis glad we are to have ye," he smiled warmly as he gave her a hand calloused and gnarled from handling a million bricks in his day. "But come into the kitchen, mother," he went on, "'tis warmer there, an' sure there's no Irish girl that doesn't love her kitchen."

Soon the tea was ready, and after praising the tea and the homemade cookies Sheila came directly to her purpose.

"Mrs. O'Shea, ye've been kind to me an' I need the advice of you an' Mr. O'Shea. 'Tis about father. He's dear an' he's been a good father to me, an' I guess he isn't altogether to blame because he hasn't done much with his life. Ye know how it is back home there where the wife is all too willing to do the chores an' to look after things. So father didn't do so much at home an' 'tis hard for him to realize that he must get something to do here."

"An' what can he do?" Michael O'Shea asked.

"That's just it. He hasn't a trade, but he's strong; he's just a little over forty an' he's a good man yet with many years to come, God be willing."

"An' 'tis a job he wants?"

"'Tis a job I'm bound he's to get!"

"Now, wouldn't our Tim have something for him to do what with his contracting an' all?" suggested the sympathetic Mrs. O'Shea.

"He might," admitted Michael, "an' I'll speak to him come this Sunday. Maybe ye could bring yer father down, then Tim can look him over. It'll be hard work a-digging foundations, but if he's not too soft it'll be a job an' it'll pay enough to keep the wolf from the door, as the saying is."

"Oh, I'm so thankful!" exclaimed Sheila. "Ye see, father got some schooling when he was a boy an' he learned to read an' could read the Dublin papers, an', how he loved to talk!" There was no mockery in Sheila's words, for she knew the O'Sheas would know the kind of man. "An' he would tell all the men of the village at Mrs. O'Farrell's inn, come evenings, the latest news in politics, an' would tell them, too, how he would be running the government, if he had his way. Even the Squire always said that Tom Kildare had one of the smoothest tongues in the Killanmaul countryside. An' father liked it an' mother spoiled him, God bless her, an' when it came my turn to care for him an' the farm, I spoiled him, too, God help me! But I'm sure if he's given a chance he'll do his best. An' he must," Sheila added more soberly, "for we need badly the money that he could earn."

"There, there, an' don't ye worry, child," sympathized the older woman, "sure an' there's plenty to do here in this city if a man has a mind to do it, isn't there, Michael?"

"Sure there is, an' Tim'll give him a start at it. Just you bring yer father down here come Sunday."

This warm assurance of assistance relieved Sheila, and soon the three were talking of Ireland, and the laughter of Sheila rang through the little apartment as she recounted the incidents in her life at Killahmaul. It was after ten when they heard the front door of the apartment open and shut and a healthy voice crying greetings from the parlor.

OBSTACLE RACE REGATTA EVENT

Canoeists Have To Portage Across Island Near Juniper.

PRIZES PRESENTED.

Several special events were put on, including an obstacle race, the contestants in canoes paddling west from the starting point past the judges' stand, portaging over the rocks at the west end of Otter Island and paddling east over the finishing line. Nine men entered this race, which proved to be a very popular event.

An outboard motor boat race brought out four entries, a Johnson and two Lockwoods entered with another boat. The Peterborough Canoe Company's Johnson romped home an easy winner.

The ladies' canoe fours was an extra put on by request and brought out a goodly number of entries.

The pillow fight, which was a special event was perhaps the most amusing contest of the entire afternoon. The sporting spirit was evident and good humor prevailed. So popular was the sport that a number of the young ladies entered and for the first time at a Stoney Lake regatta a lady's pillow fight was staged.

Following the races the crowd adjourned to the pavilion for the prize giving. J. R. Dodworth, chairman of the committee, was in charge and prior to distributing the prizes he spoke briefly on a matter which vitally concerns the community life of the lake and its social events. It was brought to Mr. Dodworth's notice that on Saturday night at the masquerade there were visitors present who were under the influence of liquor. These were not among the regular patrons, the speaker was proud to say, but the Cottagers' Association will not rent the pavilion to the committee if this sort of thing occurs again. There is an urgent need of a new piano and it is hoped that it will be possible to secure one before another season.

Mr. Dodworth regretted the absence of J. M. Gouinlock, who for so many years was the efficient and energetic secretary and who, the speaker said, "was the best worker on Stoney Lake and I bar nobody. Mr. Gouinlock has been very ill, but we hope for his speedy and complete recovery." (Applause).

A tribute was paid to the efficient work of the acting secretary, Ian Wotherspoon, who has so splendidly carried on in Mr. Gouinlock's place.

SYDNEY AMERICAN STARTS QUARREL

Says U. S. Stops Britain From Taking What She Wants.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., August 3. United Press. — War was declared on the British Empire yesterday by an American named J. H. Boardman, who in a letter to the Sydney Sun, stated the Empire's actions at Geneva, as follows:

"Did Britain always tell the world what she wanted? No, she took it; and would do likewise now, only for the almighty power of glorious America. We beat you before —we will beat you again. We have ships, men and money. Britain is tottering to pieces, as can be expected from an Empire which murdered and robbed all."

To-day the Sun prints columns of other letters denouncing Boardman, mentioning others, which it has not the space to publish.

Meanwhile Sydney laughs at this Australian-American "war."

FLIER MEETS FATE OF PREDECESSOR

Lieut. Schultze Killed in Fall—Succeeded Johnson As Squadron O. C.

Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Michigan, August 3. — United States Army First Lieutenant Leclair D. Schulze of the first pursuit group and one of the best known army airmen, was killed here yesterday when he jumped one thousand feet from a burning airplane, and his parachute failed to open.

Schulze was testing a new engine in a pursuit plane. He was flying away from the field toward the Clinton River when observers on the ground saw his plane burst into flames, and Schulze leap from it. When officers reached the spot where he had fallen they found that he had not pulled the rip cord on his parachute. It is their belief that he lost consciousness as he left the plane. His parachute was not defective, Selfridge officers said. The plane crashed about 50 feet from where Schulze's body was found and was destroyed by fire. The cause of the fire could not be determined.

Lieut. Schulze was one of the veteran fliers of the army air service. During the world war he served as a test pilot at the American overseas aviation base at Issoudon, France ,and flew all types of pursuit planes used by the American forces. He was recommended for the Distinguished Service Medal.

He had an active part in solving the engineering problems of the army flight around the world.

After Lieut. J. Thad Johnson was killed last month at Ottawa while escorting Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Lieut. Schulze succeeded Johnson as commanding officer of the twenty-seventh squadron at Selfridge Field.

He was 36 years of age and was unmarried.

EVERYTHING FINE AT ROTARY CAMP

Boys Enjoy Overnight Journey To Eel's Creek.

Everything has just been ideal in camp for the past week. Even sunburn has failed to mar the joy of those boys who are so fortunate as to be on the shores of Clear Lake. Camp fires have been lighted every evening, and fun has reigned supreme.

Perhaps the outstanding event of the week was the overnight camp at Eel's Creek . The pointer, with the two freighters in tow, left camp at noon on Wednesday and returned at noon on Thursday . Camp was made on the point of land just inside the bay leading up to the creek, and here between two camp fires the boys—many for the first time—slept beneath the stars. In the early morning as the sun peeped over the trees, and whilst Harry Redfern superintended the preparations for breakfast, the freighter pushed off for an exploration trip among the islands of that part. After breaking camp all the boys enjoyed a swim where Eel's Creek empties into the bay. The boys made a stop at Crowe's Landing for water ,and arrived at camp at noon on Thursday . They rested during the afternoon in anticipation of a visit from the girls of the C.G.I.T. camp across the lake.

The girls put on an excellent camp fire programme, after which refreshments were served. On Friday afternoon the girls came over and gave a swimming and life-saving demonstration.

The water trip to Lakefield did not materialize last week. As the boys, 28 in number, were ready to be locked through at Young's Point when a heavy rain dampened things and made a return to camp advisable. During the progress of the heavy electric storm of Tuesday night the directors' cottage at the camp was struck by lightning. Fortunately no severe damage was done beyond splitting of a joist in two and a slight charring.

Surely there is no finer place in the world for a Peterborough boy than in Rotary Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp. If any event is not chronicled, it is only because there is so much going on that it has been overlooked. Baseball, quoits, and the library are very popular amongst the boys. Berries are ripe and Jack Comstock came in one day with a bowl full of luscious blackberries.

One day while gathering camp fire wood the boys stirred up a wasp's nest, with dire results to some of the boys.

Grandchild's Legacy Depends On Stork

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 3.—(United Press.) — Frederick K. Seggerman in his will made a $10,000 bequest to a possible grandchild, depending upon the whim of the stork.

If the stork presents Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Seggerman, of Glencove with a girl, she will receive $10,000 when of age. If it's a boy he gets $5,000 at birth, and a cousin gets a like amount.

Frederick K. Seggerman died on July 24, nine days after the will was executed. The Seggermans are prominent in Long Island society.

FRIENDS HONOR ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Perdue Receive Many Gifts on Golden Wedding.

SON SINGS MASS.

An event of unique interest took place yesterday when the friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Perdue, 695 Stewart street gathered at their home in honour of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

The day was fittingly begun by a High Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral, sung by Rev. Father Simon Perdue, C.S.B., of Houston, Texas, second youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Perdue. Assistant priests were Rev. Father Costello as deacon and Rev. Father McAuley as sub-deacon.

During the ceremony Miss Lillian Hurley played some old favorite selections, among which were "O Sol Mio' and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," etc. During the offertorty Mrs. Patrick Perdue gave a beautitful rendition of Goundod's Ave Maria. At the conclusion of the ceremony Rev. Father Costello, in a few well-chosen words voiced the appreciation which Mr. and Mrs. Perdue have won for themselves by their sterling qualities.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Perdue, who was formerly Miss Margaret Brick, were married in Ennismore in 1877, having retired to Peterborough about twelve years ago. Of eleven children born to them, eight are living and all were present yesterday.

The reception took place at the family home, where dinner was served at two o'clock. The decoration schemes of the tables and rooms were beautifully carried out in gold, and the daintily iced wedding cake was decortaed with the bridal initials, S.P. and M.B. and the dates 1927 and 1877, while two wax hands joined on top were symbolic of the union of these two lives.

Rev. Father Costello who acted as toastmaster, conveyed the regrets of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien to Mr. and Mrs. Perdue for his absence and on His Lordship's behalf Father Costello presented the bridal couple with two beautitful rosaries in gold and amethyst. Father P. J. McGuire, although unable to be present himself, also sent his heartiest congratulations. Short speeches of congratulations and expressive of much good fellowship, were also made by Rev. Father McAuley, Father Costello, Father Perdue, Father Guiry and Mr. Will Perdue.

The many beautiful gifts in gold received testified to the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Perdue are held.

Relatives and friends present were: Rev. Father Costello and Rev. Father Guiry of Peterborough, Rev. Father McAuley of Ennismore and Rev. Father Perdue of Houston, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Perdue, Mr. and Mrs. John Gannon, Mr. and Mrs. Len. McAuliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Mort McAuliffe, Miss Kate Perdue, Mr. Jack Perdue, Mrs. John Brick and son Frank of Ennismore; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Carl, Lincoln, Nebraska; Mr. and Mrs. Pat. O'Neil and Mrs. Albert Carl, of Omeemee; Mr. and Mrs. William O'Neil of Bobcaygeon, Dr. Garnet Perdue of Detroit, Mrs. Joseph Meighen of Rochester, Mr. and Mrs. Mort. Carl, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Perdue, Mrs. P. Lucas and Donald and Thelma Lucas of Downeyville, Miss Nelie Hogan of St. Petersburg, Florida, Dr. Grace Perdue of Detroit, Miss Margaret Perdue of Sudbury, Mr. and Mrs. William Duffus, Mr. and Mrs. James Curran, Mr. and Mrs. James Guiry, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Perdue and Mr. Will Perdue of Peterborough, and Mr. Pat Perdue of Wetaskiwin, Alberta.

An interesting feature of the celebration was the fact that the bridesmaid and groomsman of fifty years ago, namely, Mrs. Pat O'Neill, of Omemee, and Mr. Thomas Perdue of Ennismore, were present yesterday.

LUMBER DRIVE NEARLY OVER

McDonald Lumber Company's Logs Are All in the City.

SAW MILL BUSY.

Floated down the waterways all the long distance from the firm's limits in Galway, the tail end of the river drive of the McDonald Lumber Company, one of the largest drives in recent years, is now on the Otonabee, in the neighborhood of the Quaker Oats factory. Officials of the company expect the logs to be all taken in at the mill by the end of this week.

The logs, which are mostly pine, are of good size. Sawing the timber will occupy the mill right up to the beginning of winter. One hundred and twenty-five hands are at present employed in the mill.

WEDDING BELLS.

KING—HOWARD

A quiet wedding was solemnized in All Saints' Anglican Church on Wednesday, August 3rd, when Nellie Alberta, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Howard, 558 Chamberlain Street, became the bride of George William, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson King, 551 Chamberlain Street. Rev. T. J. O'Conor - Fenton officiating. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Foy.

BEETON INQUEST RESUMED TO-DAY

Finger Prints Identified in California as Those of Dan Forsythe.

BEETON, Ont., Aug. 3.—The inquest into the death of the robber, believed to be Dan Forsythe, who was killed single-handed by Alex. Hodge when he attempted to rob the latter of over $600 which he had received in the sale of his cattle, was resumed here this morning.

Provincial Police Inspector Stringer, who is in charge of the case, arrived here last night from Toronto, where he had been for the week-end. Inspector Stringer believes that the inquest will go on without an early adjournment. He did not know whether it would be possible to finish it today or not. At the conclusion of the inquest, action is expected to follow rapidly in cleaning up a series of robberies which have come to light.

The residents of the district appear now to be a little more free with their information than formerly. It is not known for certain yet whether Edward Hickland, who was arrested last Friday on a charge of receiving stolen goods, will testify at the inquest.

It was reported yesterday that Alec Sherlock, living near the swamp where the stolen goods were found on Friday, had received a mysterious note of warning to the effect that if he opened his mouth, his house would be burned..

Fingerprints Identified

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—If fingerprints are to be relied upon, and police authorities say that never yet have they lied, all doubt as to the identify of the bandit who was slain by a Beeton farmer when the latter was fighting for his property and his life has been cleared up through the efforts of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Criminal Investigation Department.

There had been a strong suspicion that the unknown dead bandit was Dan Forsythe, one time of Stouffville, Ontario, but positive identification which the R.C.M.P. will now be able to supply was lacking. Fingerprints of the dead man were taken and forwarded to Ottawa to Inspector Edward Foster of the R.C.M.P. Criminal Investigation Department, but among the 180,000 fingerprints on file here there were none to correspond.

Inspector Foster sent copies of the fingerprints to Scotland Yard in England, to Washington, New York, and many other cities in the United States. No mention was made as to identity of the man whose fingerprints they were suspected to be, and this fact adds weight to the following message which was received by Inspector Foster last night from the State Bureau of Identification, Sacramento, California:

"Fingerprints of man killed in hold-up near Beeton, Ontario, same as Dan Forsythe, alias McKinzie, two terms Oregon State Penitentiary, one term McNeil's Island."

CITY TRUCK WITH 600 GALLONS OF GASOLINE GOES ON FIRE AND EXPLODES ON NORWOOD ROAD

Driver Makes Startling Discovery on Top of Logan's Hill.

ESCAPES INJURY.

Flames Burn Grass For Half a Mile Along the Roadway.

"Your truck is in flames on the Norwood Road. It will be a complete wreck in a few minutes," was the unwelcome information received over the telephone by the Canadian Oils Company's manager about two hours after a truck driven by A. J. Dubay and carrying six hundred and five gallons of gasoline had left the firm's premises on Hunter Street yesterday forenoon en route for Deloro.

Two miles east of Norwood, mounting an incline known as Logan's Hill, Mr Dubay experienced engine trouble, and braking the car on the top of the hill, he alighted to make an examination. As soon as he raised the hood of the engine he had to jump backwards to avoid a flame which shot out like the tongue of a serpent. Quickly he darted to the cab to bring the fire extinguisher into action, but was repelled by flames darting through the floor boards. Running to the rear of the car, he was horrified to see a streak of fire run along the bottom of the tank; the heat of the flames had expanded the gasoline and forced some of the plates. To add to the difficulty the brakes loosened by the fire ceased to work and the heavy load, rapidly being converted into a moving inferno, slowly travelled down the hill. Realizing his perilous position, Mr. Dubay satisfied that he had done everything humanly possible to avoid loss, started off in the opposite direction, and from a safe distance watched the culmination of destruction. The flames, fed by the enormous leakage of gasoline, leaped furiously above the tank as bars and plates were warped like tin; the solid rubber tires, brand new six weeks ago were melted and run off like water, and the heat was unbearable within a distance of more than a hundred yards. Coming to a slight bend in the roadway the truck wobbled along the side of the ditch and finally overturned.

The resulting explosion hurled the tank clear of the truck into the air and settled down, belching smoke and flames, in an adjoining field. For half a mile along the roadway the grass was burned to cinders.

The chassis was completely destroyed by the heat and explosion. All the accessories for delivery, including cans, pipes, papers and records, as well as Mr. Dubay's jacket and watch, were lost in the fire. Officials of the company incline to the belief that Mr. Dubay's failure to reach the fire extinguisher saved his life, as he might otherwise have wasted in a futile effort to quell the flames, those few precious minutes that enabled him to hurry out of the danger zone.

Eyewitness' Description.

Bert. T. Huston, formerly of The Examiner staff and for many years with the MacLean Publishing Co. as editor of The Canadian Grocer, was an eye-witness of the spectacular accident. He was returning from a fishing trip to Crowe Lake and drove past the burning oil truck before the explosion took place, stopping one hundred yards away to watch the fire.

"The oil burned first," said Mr. Huston to The Examiner to-day, "sending a column of flame and smoke high into the air. Then suddenly the gasoline exploded and the air seemed to be filled with fire, igniting the grass along the road for a considerable distance. Near the truck itself the grass bushes and trees were burned. Spectators took to their heels when the explosion came, the particles of fire in the air constituting a menacing as well as a spectacular sight."

SEVEN-YEAR FIGHT ENDS NEXT WEEK

Vanzetti and Sacco Refused Clemency By Governor Fuller.

COUNSEL SEEKS LOOPHOLE.

BOSTON, August 4 (Canadian Press). — Exactly one week from today, Nicalo Sacco and Bartolemoe Vanzetti's seven-year battle to escape death for murder will end in the electric chair at Charlestown State Prison unless their counsel can discover an avenue of appeal to the Federal Courts.

Governor Allen Fuller definitely closed their last hope of escape by appeal to the judicial or executive branches of the commonwealth by rejecting their plea for clemency last night.

The condemned men, whose claim to persecution as admitted radicals brought their case world-wide interest, will not know their fate until some time to-day.

In 1932 it is said there will be a serious shortage of boys, due to the lower birth rate during the World War years.

PRINCES FREE FOR ALL DAY

No Public Functions Planned —Will Play Golf and Make Calls.

ATTEND DANCE TO-NIGHT.

OTTAWA, August 4. — Canadian Press. — Princes and other members of the official visiting party faced a day of freedom from public functions. It will be their first day of rest from the intensive programmes since their arrival at Quebec on Saturday.

The two royal brothers are expected to take advantage of good weather to play a round of golf and make a number of private calls.

In the evening they will be the guests of Premier King at Laurier House.

They will afterwards proceed to the Country Club where a reception and dance is being given in their honor by the members, and according to tentative plans will go direct to the special train until they depart for Brockville to-morrow.

Premier Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin have two engagements to-day. They will lunch with Premier King and dine with Sir Robert and Lady Borden.

A possibility exists that the royal train may leave the Capital at seven o'clock for Brockville in order that the Princes may keep engagements to play golf with some friends there. In the event of this arranegment being finally decided upon Premier and Mrs. Baldwin and party will leave on a special train later in the morning in time to rarive in Brockville for the civic reception at noon to-morrow.

Play at Royal Ottawa.

A day in the open air is planned by Their Royal Highnesses, the Prince of Wales and Prince George. By the middle of the morning the Princes and their party were at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club, on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River, teeing off under brilliant skies.

So far as can be learned the royal party will spend most of the day on the links and perhaps pay a few private calls later in the afternoon.

Premier Baldwin is resting this morning, and with Mrs. Baldwin will lunch with Premier King.

HYDRO SERVICE IS PROTESTED

Utilities Commission Wants Service From the Ontario Hydro Body.

POWER INTERRUPTIONS.

At the meeting of the Utilities Commission, held yesterday afternoon, the members of the Commission instructed the secretary to write the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, protesting against the numerous interruptions that have occurred in the service lately. They felt that their complaint was justified, as the Hydro had raised the rates and with this increase they wanted a better service.

Mr. Shirley said that thunderstorms such as we have had should not delay the service, and all the Commission was asking of Hydro was that they get service.

The manager was instructed to see that all service which needed relaying was relayed on the streets which the City Council contemplates paving next year. He also will re-construct some of the electric wiring in the northern part of the city.

The members decided to commence work at once on the water main on Euclid Avenue between Cameron and Erskine Streets. The City Council asked the Commission to build this main some time ago so as these residents who had sewer connections might have water. The Commission then was unable to build the main because they could not get the required revenue called for by statute from the water rates. The Council decided to make good the deficiency.

The Commission decided to supply water to H. T. Hickey in North Monaghan at the corner of Gilmour and Albertas Streets if Mr. Hickey would agree to pay the cost of laying the service and making the connections. His water rate will be the same as the residents of North Monaghan.

Jurors Dispute Over Choosing of Foreman

Picking a foreman for the jury which sat on the Fletcher inquest last night, was not done in the usual cut and dried manner. It seemed that at least half of the members of the jury were named by their colleagues for the honor, so Coroner Dr. T W. H. Young settled the matter by asking the first man named, D. F. Drummond, to act.

TRI-PARTITE CONFERENCE ENDS PARLEYS

British Try To Avoid Break By Proposing an Agreement.

REFUSED BY U.S.A.

Delegates Depart in the Friendliest Manner After a Few Complimentary Words.

GENEVA, August 4 (Canadian Press). — The tripartite naval conference came to an unsuccessful end to-day. After nearly seven weeks of discussion, the delegates of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan found themselves unable to reach an agreement on the limitation of cruisers, destroyers, and submarines, which was the object of the conference.

The end came when Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation, had made the final address of the session. The conference adopted a joint declaration, adjourning the conference sine die. Immediate adjournment came after a vote of thanks had been adopted for Mr. Gibson, the motion being made by the Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, chief of the British delegation, and seconded by Admiral Viscount Ishii of Japan.

The last act of the conference was the adoption of the joint motion of adjournment with the declaration that the Governments of the three Powers represented were invited to give new consideration to the problems involved in the hope that the Government would be able to reach an early solution.

In this joint declaration, the conference also recognized its conviction that obstacles encountered at Geneva should not be accepted as terminating the efforts to bring about the future limitation of naval armaments.

The declaration says: "On the contrary, the delegates trust that the measure of agreement which has been reached here will make it possible for consultations between the Governments to find a basis reconciling divergent views and lead to an early conclusion of an agreement for the limitation of auxiliary naval vessels which will permit of substantial economy, and while safeguarding national security, will promote a feeling of mutual confidence and good understanding."

Last Moment Attempt.

A last moment attempt was made by Great Britain to-day to rescue something from the wreckage of the tripartite naval conference, when the Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, chief British delegate, proposed an agreement restricted to destroyers and submarines.

Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States delegation, declined to entertain this suggestion, which was presented at a secret session of plenipotentiaries held at midday, on the ground that the United States considers the limitation of cruisers, destroyers, and submarines as one indivisible whole.

The conference to-day faced the dissolution as a failure. Unless an eleventh hour reprieve comes from London or Washington, the capitals of the Powers which have been the principal protagonists in the Geneva drama, the final act will take place at the plenary session called for three o'clock this afternoon.

Realizing that no conference is ended until the last session is held, some quarters were wondering this morning whether any miraculous theatrical stroke might again give it life just before the moment officially foreordained for expiration. This hope, however, was regarded as very faint indeed, and it seemed certain that the session would see the heads of the three delegations, British, Japanese, and American, solemnly announce that an agreement to disagree had been arrived at.

NO COMMENT FROM BALDWIN.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 4 (Canadian Press). — Premier Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain, who is visiting Ottawa, refused to-day to comment on despatches from Geneva indicating a breakdown of the tripartite naval conference. It is understood, however, that Mr. Baldwin feels that he has not been in close enough touch with the situation during the past few days to issue a statement, and that comment, if any, on the part of the British Government would have to come from London.

RUSSIAN SOVIETS TO EXPEL OPPOSITION FROM COUNCIL

Administration Asserts in Pravda That Discipline Will Be Maintained.

ORGANIZE STRIKES.

Rebels Plan To Tie Up Railroads and Industries in Eastern Siberia.

MOSCOW, Aug. 4.—Another attack on the intra-party opposition was made in yesterday's Pravda, resulting in the following conclusions:

First—Despite the grave situation in the country and the menace of foreign hostility, the opposition continues to attack the Administration.

Second—It will continue to so attack "even when war begins."

Third—Now more than ever the party discipline must be maintained.

Fourth — "Factional" opposition must be eliminated unanimously by the whole party.

It may be taken for granted that this sounds the death knell of the opposition hope that Trotski and Zinovief will avoid expulsion from the central committee. It appears certain that both will be expelled this week by a decision of the Joint Plenary Council of the Committee and the Central Control Committee, which has been in session for the past three days.

As explained in previous dispatches, the session has much to consider besides the Trotski-Zinovief question, which comes about a third of the way down the agenda.

Even now, should they be willing to accept a compromise on the terms of the Administration, it is possible that these famous "laborers of the first hour" in the Bolshevist vineyard might be allowed to save their faces, but it appears that they are defiant and deliberately trying to force the issue.

Opposition Organizes Strikes.

MOSCOW, Aug. 4.—(A.P.)— The existence of determined groups of rebels against the Communist Party policies, with the opposition carried to the extent of organizing railroad and factory strikes intended to further the ends of breaking the party unity, is reported by The Young Leninist, organ of the Moscow young Communists.

The so-called irreconcilables, the paper declares, have not hesitated to undermine the disorganization of the army and to enlist the support of non-party elements in their fight. These groups have recently increased their activity greatly, leading a vicious campaign against the party, it adds.

It quotes a member of the Presidium of the party's Control Commission, M. Yaroslavskt, as stating that in Tomsk the opposition had a definite plan afoot to call a strike in the whole territory of Eastern Siberia, from Novosibirsk to Cherliabinsk, with the object of tieing up the railroads and factories, ousting the present Communist leaders and taking the authority in their own hands, with the aid of the disorganized army. Propaganda to this end has already been undertaken among the troops, miners and railwaymen, he added.

That the Tomsk rebels are directed by the Moscow Oppositionists—meaning Trotzky, Zinivieff, Sokolnikoff and others, although these are not specifically mentioned — appears to have been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the party Control Commission. Dissatisfaction is also evidenced by activities in Odessa and Kharkoff in the Ukraine, where Oppositionist centres have been established.

GIRL'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL

Coroner's Jury Brings in Verdict To This Effect About Nina Fletcher.

KILLED BY MOTOR CAR.

That the death of Nina Fletcher, who was fatally injured on June 29 in front of the Brown Memorial Fountain, Confederation Square, was purely accidental was the finding of the jury empanelled by Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young last night.

The verdict was as follows:

"We the undersigned jury after learning the evidence submitted re the death of Nina Fletcher find that she came to her death from fracture of the skull about 11.30 a.m. June 29, 1927, caused by coming into contact with a car driven by Mr. White, on the pavement, and that it was purely accidental."

J. W. Read acted for Crown Attorney Hatton, and V. J. McElderry was present in the interest of Mr. White. Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher was Coroner's Constable.

Mrs. Fletcher.

Mrs. Fletcher, mother of the dead girl, was the first witness. She was not present when her child was injured. The little girl had gone down town with Mrs. Buckton, whom the mother considered a reliable woman to care for the children, although she is subject to epilepsy.

Mrs. Renee Buckton.

Mrs. Renee Buckton said she was going to see someone about her illness. She lives with the Fletchers and the child's mother had asked her to take Nina for a walk.

She was crossing the street with the child to get a drink at the fountain. She went part way across and saw the child get safely to the fountain. When the child was coming back she was struck by a car going south on the west side of the street. She didn't see the car until it passed between her and the child and did not see the girl struck. The car was going fast, although she could not judge the speed. She saw the child lying on the road and rushed to pick her up. She refused to let the driver take the child but went with her in his car to Dr. Loudon's and then to Dr. Morgan's. Neither of these was in and the witness collapsed. The child did not recover consciousness. She said the car swerved and slowed up.

FRANK MODEST SPEECH.

Prince Will Be Found Fully Equal to Burdens of Crown, It Is Sure.

(By Herbert Bailey, British United Press Representative.)

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Prince of Wales' first reference to his accesion to the throne, made in his speech on Tuesday night at the Government dinner in Ottawa, has caused much interest here.

Daily Mail calls it a frank, modest speech "worthy of the striking occasion," and adds, "there is not the slightest doubt that when the hour comes for him to assume the honors and burdens of the Crown, the Prince will be found fully equal to them. We are convinced that if a plebiscite were taken to elect a representative who should embody the qualities which we most desire in British manhood, the choice would fall upon him, and with justice.

"In an age where monarchial principle has been overthrown in so many countries it is well for the people of the British Empire, when a change comes in the occupation of the throne here, (and that it may not soon take place is the sincere

Plus Fours Are Losing Their Fame

TORONTO, Ont., August 4 (Canadian Press). — Plus fours have had their day as golfing attire, and they will soon disappear from the links, Walter Hagen, United States golfing star, who is competing in the Canadian open golf championship here, stated to-day.

Mr. Hagen noted that the Prince of Wales and Prince George, now visiting Canada, have sported tennis toggery while playing the "royal and ancient game" on Quebec, Montreal, and Ottawa courses; and he looks to the golfing style getting down to a "more workmanlike basis."

STRIPS FAKE TITLES.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 4.—Every titled person in Italy is to have his claim to nobility investigated, by order of Mussolini. The blue book of Italian nobility has been issued and it already has stripped the titles from 180,000 persons who called themselves counts, dukes and princes. It is estimated that 75 per cent of persons using titles in Europe to-day, with the exception of Englishmen, have no right to them.

Jurors' Fees to Be Paid Child's Mother

The fees of the twelve jurymen who sat on the death of little Nina Fletcher, who was killed by an automobile on June 29th, will be paid to the mother of the child. The child's father, a war veteran, is not in good health, and the jurymen felt that the money would be of some assistance to the family in its time of trouble.

DISPUTE ABOUT BOAT.

Fishing Trips Have Sequel in in Case Before Magistrate.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

MARMORA, August 4. — Exemplifying a fine spirit of "noblesse oblige," a Roumanian here, T. Paroneuk, at the conclusion of a court case, in which he was the complainant, generously advanced a portion of the costs imposed on his erstwhile opponent, following the settlement of a dispute arising from the latter's unauthorized use of a row boat belonging to the man from Southern Europe.

Paroneuk declared that on two occasions Smith availed himself of the privilege of using the boat on a fishing expedition on the Crowe River, without asking permission. In one of these trips some damage was done to the boat, and when the Roumanian called at Smith's house to obtain redress he was ordered outside.

The matter was referred to the court, and was brought before Magistrate G. L. Jarman of Bancroft, at a sitting held in Marmora town hall, on Monday, when an amicable settlement was arranged. Each party was required to pay his own share of the costs.

Smith had not sufficient cash on hand to meet his portion. On learning this Paroneuk at once came forward and added enough to make up the sum required.

GORDON NAMED FOR LEADERSHIP

Former Liberal Member Considered in Running To Head Ontario Liberals.

ROWELL OTHER CHOICE.

Ontario Liberals are busy canvassing the situation that will be created if W. E. N. Sinclair, the Leader in the Ontario Legislature, is appointed to the Bench of the Supreme Court of Ontario. Before Mr. Sinclair is elevated to the Bench, it must be decided whether or not the party can win the seat when the vacancy is created in South Ontario, a riding in which Mr. Sinclair has a large personal following, entirely apart from politics.

If a new Leader must be chosen, Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., who will be the choice of the prohibition wing of the party, will have strong opposition in Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough, former Minister of Immigration at Ottawa, and former Deputy Speaker of the Dominion House, according to the Toronto Globe, which goes on to says:

"Since his defeat in his own Dominion constituency in West Peterboro, Hon. Mr. Gordon has had his eyes turned toward the leadership in the Legislature. Other names have been mentioned for the leadership, if it is opened up, but the two men with the right to use the title Honorable appear to have a distinct advantage over the others who might like to aspire to the party leadership in the Province.

"While a large section of the party would be satisfied with either Mr. Rowell or Mr. Gordon, there are just as many who think that there should be a convention and the choice made there, as has been done before.

"Mr. Sinclair refuses to discuss his possible elevation to the High Court Bench."

GENEVA CONFERENCE CRASHES FINAL SESSION THIS AFTERNOON LEADING DELEGATES ANNOUNCE

Sorrowfully Agree That No Pact Can Be Reached at This Time.

DECISION AT MIDNIGHT.

Announcement Made After Plenipotentiaries Consider Japan's Proposals.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 4. — (Associated Press.)—After trembling for a day on the brink of a precipice, the tripartite naval conference at the solemn hour of midnight crashed to the bottom of the abyss. Its delegates mutually and sorrowfully agreed that no pact could be reached to limit further the armaments of Great Britain, the United States and Japan at this time.

The final session, it was authoritatively stated last night, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock. This announcement was made after last night's meeting of the plenipotentiaries to consider the Japanese compromise proposals.

The decision to adjourn the conference to-day was brought about by the inability of both Great Britain and the United States to accept clearly the Japanese compromise as a basis of discussion for settling the cruiser question which was the crux of the whole conference.

When the private meeting of the delegates opened at the villa of Hugh R. Wilson, United States Minister to Switzerland, with Hugh S. Gibson, chief United States delegate, presiding, the Japanese proposal was immediately brought up for discussion. W. C. Bridgeman, principal British representative and his colleague, Viscount Cecil — all accounts of the meeting agree here—were not quite clear as to whether the Japanese compromise could be acceptable to them. This compromise virtually meant a naval holiday for Great Britain until the United States could catch up with her in naval construction. The British delegates, however, indicated that if the compromise were acceptable to both the United States and Japan, more time would be required to look into it further.

In the Japanese plan, the word "Authorized" was employed to emphasize that Great Britain and Japan would only finish their authorized cruiser programme. Mr. Gibson asked Mr. Bridgeman what he understood this word to signify, adding:

"Does it mean approved and authorized?"

Viscount Cecil answered that it meant "authorized."

After further duelling, Mr Gibson asked: "Does it mean the Birkenhead plan?"

Mr. Bridgeman is understood to have answered "Yes."

"Then that means 453,000 tons for Great Britain by 1931," said Mr. Gibson.

Mr. Gibson added that this was higher than the United States could possibly go and that it would mean that the United States must build up to that figure. Mr. Bridgeman's reply was that the British did not wish to speak in terms of total tonnage. Mr. Gibson insisted that the United States could only build to 400,000 tons as a maximum in cruisers, and declared that there was no advantage in signing a treaty to authorize the British building program.

All the British statesmen remarked that the acceptance to such a treaty will prevent Great Britain laying down more ships than contained in her building program.

Mr. Gibson told the meeting he thought the Japanese compromise contained interesting possibilities, but it all depended on what was implied in it. He declared if the British interpretation of the word "authorized" was not his interpretation it would be difficult to discuss the compromise, but if it did not result in any saving and did not mean a cessation of building, then the compromise possessed no intent for Americans. He added that the United States does not consider anything as authorized until it is approved by Congress.

Mr. Gibson again made it clear that the cruiser plan drawn up by the Birkenhead committee in 1925 was not acceptable. All present seemed to feel that the fateful moment of a break was upon them. Mr. Gibson turned to Mr. Bridgeman and said:

"Have you any further proposals?"

Mr. Bridgeman replied that he had none, and Viscount Isshi, of the Japanese delegation, replied in the same manner, his voice scarcely more than a murmur.

GIRL CHARGES MARMORA MAN WITH OFFENCE

Charles Gordenier Accused of Indecent Assault On Visitor To Village.

CASE ADJOURNED.

Arrested in Belleville as Brother Was Released on Bail.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

MARMORA, August 4. — Two days after his brother was released on $15,000 bail following his committal for trial on a serious offence charge brought by his sister-in-law, Charles Gordenier, of Marmora, was yesterday formally arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Jarman, at the Police Court held in Marmora Town Hall, charged with an indecent assault on a seventeen-year-old girl from Coe Hill, Hastings County, who came here on a visit to a Marmora family one week ago.

At the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, who was unable to be present, the case was adjourned until Tuesday, August 9, and Gordenier was liberated on $2,500 bail.

The alleged offence was committed in Rawdon Township on Thursday, July 28, the night before James Gordenier, former county constable and bailiff, was committed to the Fall Assizes by Magistrate R. R. Casement. Charles Gordenier was arrested on Monday at Belleville by Provincial Constable Wetherall just as his brother James was leaving that city after having secured sureties for his bail.

The Court Room was well filled when Charles Gordenier's case came up yesterday, the majority of the spectators being men. Also in the Court were Mrs. Peever, the hostess of the victim of the alleged assault, Miss Peever, one of the witnesses for the prosecution, Constable Gillen, who brought Charles Gordenier from Belleville, James Gordenier, who has been relieved of his position, and Provincial Constable McCoy.

The Gordeniers, who are both married and have each two children, are nephews of the late Jerome Keene, who was found dead in his bed in a Marmora shack, his skull pierced by bullet wounds, on February 7 of this year. The discovery of the murder was made by Charles Gordenier. The murderer has not yet been traced, although the case is engaging the attention of some of the keenest minds in the investigation department of the Provincial Police.

PANAMA BANS PERU "REDS"

Hold Ten Men Whose Names Were Obtained in Arco House Raid.

CONDUCT ROUND-UP.

PANAMA, Aug. 4.—Ten deportees from Peru have been refused permission to remain here and will probably be returned to Peru as undesirable citizens.

According to a report published by El Tiempo last evening they are Communists and their deportation resulted from the raid made on Arco House, the Soviet headquarters in London, some months ago.

Scotland Yard obtained information during the raid regarding Soviet and Communist activities in Latin America and furnished the names of the "Red" leaders to the respective Governments.

According to El Tiempo, the individuals detained here were deported by President Leguia of Peru on account of the information received from London.

Roundups of "Reds" in Chile, Cuba and Peru are said to be the result of information obtained in the Arco House raid.

FRASERVILLE NEWS.

Last Sunday the quarterly meetings were held in the three churches of the circuit; at Bensfort in the morning, Bailieboro in the afternoon, and Fraserville in the evening.

The quarterly official board met at Bailieboro Monday evening, Aug. 1st. Fraserville circuit will henceforth be included in the new Peterborough Presbytery, by action of the recent annual conference. Mr. John Porter was elected a delegate, with Edmond Dawson as alternate. Plans were made for the taking of the Maintenance and Extension Fund of the church. For the last two years the circuit has raised its apportionment in full and on time. The board plans to do so again. As the church year henceforth ends December 31st, the circuit allotments are for nine months only, or three-quarters of the full year's amount.

Next Sunday, August 7th, the Rev. A. Gladstone Finnie of Orange, N.J., who will be holidaying at the old home in South Monaghan, will preach at Bensfort at the morning service.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman White and family of Brooklin, Ont., recently spent a week-end at the Parsonage at Fraserville. Mr. White assisted the choirs at Bensfort and at Bailieboro with well rendered solos.

VESUVIUS IS LESS ACTIVE

Flow of Lava Slackens—Tourists Again Swarm Around Crater.

FORMS INTO LAKES.

NAPLES, August 4. — All danger to the village of Terzigno, which on Tuesday appeared to be seriously threatened by the river of lava flowing from the crater of Mount Vesuvius in eruption, seemed yesterday definitely averted.

The lava in the last twenty-four hours has moved only about 300 feet, and shows signs of slackening its speed still further. As the lava, in fact, proceeds further and further from its source it cools and forms a barrier against the advance of hotter and more liquid lava behind.

The explosive violence of Mount Vesuvius has also decreased considerably during the last day. Explosions, which on Tuesday followed one another almost uninterruptedly, are now less frequent and have less force.

The quantity of molten lava being emitted is still very great, but, luckily, instead of flowing down the mountainside upon Terzigno, it is collecting in large lakes of liquid fire. Owing to the decreased violence of the eruption the eruptive cone, which during the first days had been almost completely shattered, has now returned to its original shape and size.

The summit of Mount Vesuvius continues to be the object of countless pilgrimages of eager sightseers. The sight of Vesuvius in a rage, giving a good imitation of Dante's Inferno, is truly superb, and camera shutters click incessantly, fixing the scene on countless photographic plates.

PLANE CRASHES INTO BYSTANDERS

Brazilian Machine Kills Girl and Injures Several Others.

SANTOS, Brazil, August 4. — A plane which was to have escorted the Brazilian airplane Jahn from Santos to Sao Paulo crashed into a crowd yesterday kiling a little girl, and injuring several persons. The men in the plane had a miraculous escape.

The machine had difficulty in rising. When it finally did get into the air it struck some telegraph wires and fell, a total wreck.

The Jahn, commended by Joao de Baros, recently completed a flight from Genoa, Italy, to Santos, after meeting with several mishaps.

After successfully defending a negress accused of murder a lawyer of Collinsville, Ill., was given as his fee the knife with which the killing was committed.

Based on Telegrams Giving the Conditions at End of July.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Canada's crops are in good condition. A report issued late yesterday afternoon by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, based on telegrams giving the condition of crops at the end of July, shows that the crop situation in every province is favorable. The official report shows:

Prince Edward Island (from Dominion Experimental Farm, Charlottetown).—Growth of root, vegetable and grain crops good. Clover below average. Timothy average. Haying just begun. Showers on sixteen days.

Nova Scotia (from Dominion Experimental Station, Kentville). — Plenty of rain and warm weather during July aided all crops but caused considerable development of apple scab. Aphides causing serious damage to some orchards. Strawberries were light crop, stone and small fruits good. Much hay unharvested on account of continued wet weather. Grains and roots good, potatoes and corn fair to good.

Ideal Growing Conditions.

New Brunswick (from the Government Experimental Stations, Fredericton).—Ideal growing conditions for hay, grain, roots, sunflowers, potatoes and vegetables. Corn making slow growth. Heavy drop of apples; crop below average. Bush fruits good. Pasture excellent. Live stock in good condition. Milk cows maintaining milk flow. Unsettled weather delayed hay-making.

Potatoes Abundant

Quebec (From the Quebec Bureau of Statistics).—General appearance very good. Cereals, vegetables and orchards as well as industrial crops will give a very good yield. Haymaking is delayed by frequent rains. Lake St. John, Abitibi and the northwest of the province will have a crop above average. Potatoes are abundant and sound and are selling at high prices. Dairy products have been good to date and are selling well.

Prospects Promising

Ontario (from the Ontario Department of Agriculture).—Prospects are very promising and conditions generally are well above average. The fall wheat crop is very satisfactory and promises a high yield. Cutting is general in the south-eastern counties. Owing to the bad weather last autumn, curtailing the acreage sown to fall wheat, more spring wheat than usual has been sown this year. Coarse grains are generally very promising, and are well above the average. Corn has improved greatly during the month, but is still below normal as a consequence of the cold, wet weather. The hay crop is exceptionally heavy, but some difficulty has been experienced in harvesting, and there is still a considerable quantitp to be gathered in. Pastures continue excellent and root crops generally are doing well.

Much Late Grain

Manitoba (from the Manitoba Department of Agricuture).—July favorable. Abundant moisture. Slight hail damage. Wheat cutting not general until late August. Much late grain. Pastures luxuriant. Heavy hay crop, but low natural meadows too wet to cut. Vigorous straw growth. Promise of at least average grain yield if everything proceeds favorably and rust does not develop. (From the Dominion Experimental Station, Brandon).—Rainfall plentiful through the province. Grain and hay crop looking splendid. Wheat stem rust quite heavy in susceptible varieties. Indications are for heavy rust epidemic. Early varieties wheat are likely to escape damage, also Durum wheat. Oats and barley looking splendid. Crop will ripen week to ten days later than usual.

At Morden: Hot dry weather bringing grain crops to rapid maturity. Wheat harvest should be general August 15. Barley August 15 to 20; oats 20 to 25. Much stem rust on wheat. Oats suffering most from rust. Wheat filling well. Pastures good. Hay yielding high, corn improving. Potatoes fair, much fall rye cut.

Strong Growth of Grains

Saskatchewan (from the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture, Regina). — Favorable weather over the province as a whole has resulted in strong growth of all grains. Wheat, although later than last year, is reported in healthy condition with a generally even stand. Aided by the hot weather of past week, about 70 per cent is now headed out. Coarse grains are also in good condition with oats coming into head. Slight traces of rust have appeared in the south and eastern part of the province, being most noticeable along the line from Verwood East to Weyburn, and from there north to Vibank. Hail caused damage to small areas at scattered points throughout the north and northwestern part of the province. Severe damage was sustained as a result of a storm originating west of Swift Current which travelled in a south-easterly direction and caused serious injury in the Vanguard, Kincaid and Lafleche districts. This storm, decreased in intensity, continued through Bengough and Radville. Hail was also reported southwest of Avonlea through Truax and Ogema. Summer fallowing is about 90 per cent. completed. Pasture are in good condition with a plentiful supply of moisture. (From the Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current).—Hot dry weather following abnormal rainfall gives promise of unusually heavy crop. Fall rye harvesting commencing. Prospective yield 25 to 30 bushels. Considerable damage in isolated areas. If not frost for four weeks will have tremendous harvest.

Conditions Good

Alberta (from the Alberta Department of Agriculture, Edmonton).—Crop conditions on July 31 very encouraging. Wheat and Barley all in head. Oats 75 per cent headed. All grain filling well. Rye harvest started. Pastures rank and hay crop being cut. Hail damage in restricted areas. Prospect for good increase in yield over 1926. (From the Dominion Experimental Station, Lethbridge).—Crop conditions Southern Alberta very encouraging except danger frost before late fields ripen. Bad hail in parts of district. Heavy showers lodged wheat in spots. Rain needed in some localities properly to fill wheat. Rye harvest on, crop heavy. Fall wheat harvest starts ten days earlier, Spring wheat three weeks.

Average Hay Yield

British Columbia (from the British Columbia Department of Agricultuer) —Weather during first two weeks of July cloudy and showery. Last two weeks generally have been hot and dry. Moisture conditions continued good with little irrigation needed so far. Haying practically completed and crop well cured. Average yield for province will probably approximate 2¼ tons. All crops ripening fast. Harvesting rye well advanced. Wheat cutting commencing. Will be general in week's time. Cereal yields will be well above average. Potatoes and roots promising. Strawberry picking completed. Raspberries and loganberries will continue for another week. Early estimates of 80 per cent. Apple crop still holds good with prospects of a slight increase when harvesting completed.

Local purposes	6.35 mills
Debentures	9.90 mills
Total	41.00 mills

The Public school requires $4,600.
The High school requires $2000.

The collector of taxes reported that all the taxes for 1926 had been collected except $8.20.

GIRL'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL

when he heard the thud. He took the child in his arms and asked the lady in charge what doctor she wanted. The car stopped and backed up and the girl was taken to Dr. Loudon's.

The car stopped in six or seven lengths from the child after turning into the curb. He saw the child move.

Rena Romyn.

Rena Romyn was sitting in the east side of the back seat. She saw the child just before it was struck. She was not paying any attention to the speed but would judge it to be from 15 to 20 miles.

The right rear fender struck the child. Mr. White turned out toward the east in an endeavor to avoid the child, turning sharply and putting on the brakes. He then drove slowly toward the west curb and stopped near it. The car had slowed down at McDonnell street to let a vehicle pass across.

W. H. White.

W. H. White, the owner and driver of the car, has driven for several years.

He slowed down at McDonnell street to let a wagon go by. He saw the child about three yards from the car and swung to the left and then he heard the car hit the child. The child was running and looking back toward the fountain. He swung into the curb and slowed up, then backing up toward the child. His brakes were tested by one of the policemen right after the accident and they were found all right. He was travelling about 15 or 18 miles an hour.

Mrs. W. H. White.

Mrs. Hazel White, wife of the driver, was sitting in the front seat with her husband. She has driven a car for some years and estimated the speed at about 15 or 18 miles an hour. She saw the child when she was close to the car. The car was fairly close to the curb and the child came out quickly, looking back at the time.

A statement was read from Constable Puffer's report showing the brakes on the car to be in perfect condition.

Dr. J. A. Morgan.

Dr. J. A. Morgan was at the hospital when Dr. McPherson brought the child in. He went with him and examined the child. The left side of the head was injured and there were cracks in the skull. A piece of the skull was pressing into the brain substance and they removed it. There was a swelling around the eye.

They drew off some fluid and cleaned the wound. Later in the evening the child's temperature went up and shortly after he saw it at night the child died. Fracture of the skull was the cause of the death.

Answering Jury Foreman Drummond, Dr. Morgan said the cut seemed to be such as the fender would make. Dr. Young pointed out that the blow on the pavement could cause a cut but that it was a matter of little importance just what had made the wound.

In summing up, the Coroner said that the woman in charge had taken the child out and had seen her safely across the street but had not seen her back. Evidence showed that White had been going at a reasonable speed and there was no congestion of traffic. The child apparently darted out in front of the car.

The jury consisted of Frank Detcher, Stanley Kerneghan, John Read, John Kylie, Claude Sherwood, William Martin, George Grange, Joseph Dwyer, Merton Storey, Clarence D. Rose, Robert Wilson, and Duncan Drummond (foreman).

JAPAN EXPLOSION STILL A MYSTERY

Public Concern For Safety of Emperor Aroused By Warship Blast.

TOKIO, August 4. — Details of the explosion aboard the minelayer Tokiwa, which killed thirty-eight officers and men of the Japanese Navy and wounded forty-eight others at Saiki Bay on Tuesday, do not remove the mystery surrounding the accident.

The Tokiwa had been commissioned for minelaying operations, and was carrying a large supply of mines. The precise nature of the work going on at the time of the explosion is not stated by the Admiralty, but bluejackets were engaged in handling the mines in the 'tween decks on the starboard side about 9.46 a.m., when three of the mines exploded.

The concussion was terrific, and all woodwork aboard, including the boats, was smashed to matchwood.

Five officers and fifteen men were instantly killed and forty-seven men wounded. Eighteen more were absent when the ship's roll was called, and were at first reported missing. They had been blown to pieces by the close range explosion and it was with the greatest difficulty that their bodies were later identified.

Flames broke out on the mine deck and the ship's position was desperately dangerous for a time, as there was a risk that the magazines might blow up, carrying both ship and crew to destruction.

The rest of the fleet taking part in the naval manoeuvres sent their fire brigades to the Tokiwa and the fire was controlled before it reached the magazines.

The discipline among the crew was, as usual ,very good, and as soon as the flames had subsided and the ghastly debris was removed the Tokiwa was able to proceed under her own power to the Sasebo naval base, where she arrived at 7 p.m., and was promptly placed in dock for repairs.

The explosion severely damaged the decks, but the engine room and hull were uninjured.

Public concern over the explosion is intensified by the fact that Emperor Hirohito was expected to join the fleet shortly before the accident.

Report Of Harvesting Causes Drop In Wheat

CHICAGO, August 4 (Canadian Press). — With the cutting of wheat reported as having begun in Canada, the wheat market here averaged lower early to-day. Corn, oats, and provisions developed firmness, corn starting unchanged to ⅛c off, and subsequently rising all around to above yesterday's finish.

Area Returns Strong 190,000 Shares Traded

TORONTO, August 4 (Canadian Press).—Brisk buying of Area featured the market on the standard stock and mining exchange to-day. This stock was traded in to the extent of more than 190,000 shares. It sold as high as 65 but eased towards the noon close to 61½, for a gain of 8½ points. Amulet continued active and moved up 3 points to 4.53. Kirkland Lake was in demand at 1.66, up 3 points. Kirkland Hunton was down one to 14, while Beaver also sold down one point to 1.22. Coniagas was strong and moved up 4 cents to 4.90. Lake Shore was the strongest feature of the dividend paying gold stocks, gaining 20 cents to 20.45. McIntyre dropped 10 cents to 25.70, and Hollinger ten to 18.25. Dome Mines was off 5 cents to 7.25, and Teck Hughes five to 8.45. Laval-Quebec was active and stronger at 34¼, a gain of 1¼. Central Manitoba Gold declined 5 cents to 1.55, while Noranda was off five to 21.85. Towagmac was up 15 cents to 3.40.

Wall Street Opens Strong Stocks Record High Levels

NEW YORK, Aug. 4. Canadian Press. — Recovery in the stock prices which set in soon after the drastic opening break yesterday, made a further recovery to-day under the leadership of industrials, more than a score of which were elevated to record high levels. Rails were inclined to heaviness, presumably on selling inspired by the $7,000,000 wage increase to eastern railroad engineers, although Chesapeak and Ohio common and the three Erie issues mounted to new high ground.

Wall street generally had been prepared for the adjournment of the Geneva Tri-parite Conference without reaching an agreement so that its effect on the market was negligible.

Credit conditions widely regarded as the backbone of the current advance continued favorable. Call money dropped from 4 to 3¾% and rumors of an early cut in the New York Federal Reserve discount rate were widely circulated, although there was considerable doubt that much action would be taken today.

Strength of the oils were believed to reflect the purchase of those securities by professional traders, who had taken large profits in other groups of stocks, and were willing to take a long position in the oils to await the expected improvement in the industry. Merchandizing issues reflected steady growth and expansion of the leading chain store and mail order companies, new peak prices being registered by city stores B. S. P. Kress S. S. Kresge, McCrory Stores B., and Woolworth, all of which reached new high ground.

Among the other issues to break through to new peak prices, were Eureka Vacuum, Loose Wilee Biscuit Postum Cereal, American Express, Kennecott and Union Carbide.

OUTLINES PROGRAMME.

CONSTANTINOPLE, August 4. — Peace and hard work and "not too much talk" is Turkey's programme as she arrives at what is regarded as a sort of half way point in the uphill climb towards the place she wants in the world, says Dr. Tewfik Rushdi Bey Minister of Foreign Affairs.

In an exclusive interview with the Associated Press in connection with the visit to Constantinople of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, President of the Republic, who remained on the Asiatic side for eight years rebuilding his country, Dr. Rushdi told of Turkey's plans.

"We need five years, or at most ten," said Dr. Rushdi in telling of the governments' plans for a small, strong, mobile army, "our life insurance," and for the development of the country's resources, the education of the people and the abolition of the old Moslem religious traditions that hinder progress.

He sees a network of railroads being built in Anatolia as the primary factor in these reforms. Kemal Pasha's strong hand, his complete dictatorship, his insistence on absolute obedience, are still needed in the opinion of Rushdi Bey.

Rushdi Bey is convinced that the fez was a symbol and had to go because it represented a psychological state that was wrong.

"The time will come later when the Turk can wear any hat he chooses, or none," he said. "Restrictions eventually will be lifted, for we don't believe as a principle in telling people what they can or cannot do."

Moslem traditions and practices he readily admitted, are being broken down. Pork, the "unclean" animal that Islam always has held in horror, "is being eaten by the younger people."

It is a good food, one of the best, Rushdi Bey said, "religion may forbid it but the idea will die with the older generation."

A bacteriologist has been examining the fluff, dust, dirt and so on, contained in a man's pockets, and he identified seventeen varities of germs and estimated the total number at 8,000,000.

Facing complete destruction by the Mississippi river, the town of Columbus, Ky., laid out by Jefferson Davis to be the capital of the Confederacy, is preparing to move half a mile from its present site to higher ground.

Master Bigamist Dies; No Wife Claims Body

OSSINING, N.Y., August 4 (United Press). — The nation's master bigamist died in Sing-Sing Prison yesterday, and not one of the twenty-one women he was credited with courting, marrying, and abandoning has come forward to claim his body.

"I was a fast worker," George Schultz explained when he entered Sing-Sing last April 21 to serve two and a half years for grand larceny, "and I didn't dilly-dally about popping the question. I knew what flattery would do.'

Schultz record year was 1918. He coralled four wives that year. He was 63.

Keen's Recipes for AUGUST

Appetites grow fitful and languid during hot August days

They must be tempted with dainty dishes that intrigue the appetite with the novelty of their flavours.

Such are these recipes—so eminently suited to August menus. Try them. Clip them for future reference.

DEVILLED SARDINES

Drain sardines; lightly cover them with Keen's Mustard and pepper, and broil gently or fry in a little batter. Serve on hot toast.

FIVE MINUTE MAYONNAISE

The yolk of an egg, a pinch of salt, a half teaspoonful sugar, 1 teaspoonful Keen's Mustard. Beat well with the egg beater and add gradually 4 tablespoonfuls olive oil, whipping constantly. The juice of a lemon or some vinegar will give it a fine flavor.

CELERY SALAD

Take 3 bunches celery, wash and cut them into small pieces, then add 2 medium sized onions, 2 cloves, garlic, and chop the whole, mixing thoroughly, add a few drops olive oil, 1 cupful white vinegar, 3 tablespoonfuls of Keen's Mustard, season with pepper and salt to taste.

HAM PIQUANT

1 pound thinly-sliced cooked ham; 4 teaspoonfuls Keen's Mustard; dash cayenne; 2 tablespoonfuls milk; ¾ cupful grated Parmesan cheese; ½ teaspoonful pepper:

Mix the Keen's Mustard to a thick paste with the milk and seasoning. Spread this on the slices of ham; then sprinkle each with the grated cheese. Arrange the slices one on top of the other in a brick form. Tie securely with string and place in a baking-pan. Bake in a medium oven of 400°F for twenty-five minutes or until the ham fat is melted. Baste the "brick" now and then with the fat as it runs into the pan. Chill, remove the string, and cut in slices down through the layers.

ROCK CRAB

½ pound pickled shrimps; ¼ pound old cheese; 1 tablespoonful olive oil; 1 teaspoonful salt; 1 teaspoonful sugar; ½ teaspoonful pepper; 1 teaspoonful Keen's Mustard; 4 tablespoonfuls vinegar:

Mince the shrimps and grate the cheese; work into the cheese, a little at a time, the pepper, salt, sugar and Keen's Mustard; then the vinegar. Let stand 10 minutes before adding the shrimps. Stir for one-and-a-half minutes; and serve in glass dish, garnished with lemon.

ITALIAN SALAD

Take remnants of left over meat, a small onion, 2 branches celery, 1 small fresh cucumber, 2 hard boiled eggs, a few radishes, chop the whole very fine, mixing together well, and sprinkle with 2 teaspoonfuls Keen's Mustard, season with pepper and salt to taste. Serve in a dish garnished with a few lettuce leaves.

PIMENTO SALAD

½ pound of cheese; 5 hard-boiled eggs; 1 can of pimentos; ¾ teaspoonful of salt; ½ cupful of vinegar; small lump of butter; 1 teaspoonful of Keen's Mustard; 1 teaspoonful of sugar; white of 1 egg:

Grind in the food chopper the cheese, eggs, pimentos, and add the salt. Mix with a dressing made by cooking together the vinegar, butter, Keen's Mustard and sugar. Cook until this mixture thickens, remove from the fire and add the beaten white of an egg. Beat rapidly until smooth. Allow dressing to cool before mixing with the salad.

THURSDAY AUGUST 4, 1927.

BE NEIGHBORLY, THAT'S ALL.

A visitor from the United States at the local Rotary luncheon on Monday, remarking that he had spent part of each summer for the past twenty years in Ontario, paid a high tribute to the wholesome likeable qualities he found in the people of this Province, particularly those whom he encountered far from the beaten path.

This compliment is appreciated for its own sake, and because it reveals a condition that next to the charm of our lakes and rivers will prove the biggest factor in maintaining Ontario as a banner tourist Province.

Most people like to go where they are sure of a courteous and kindly welcome; they like to feel that they are among friendly folk, and they come back to a spot where they have been well treated.

Just a day or so ago the Prince of Wales spoke of Canada as a land where people did not say "Good-bye," but "Come again," and meant it.

In its treatment of its thousands of summer visitors Ontario should remember these words and give every tourist the same impression of this country as is held by the heir to the Empire's throne.

LINKING THE OLD AND THE NEW.

The first non-stop motor trip from Cochrane to Toronto was accomplished this week over the new highway linking the South with the North, and Hon. Mr. Finlayson was quite right in declaring that the event made the occasion a big day in Ontario's history.

The linking up of the older portions of the Province with the wonderfully rich and picturesque Northland by means of a motor road that is destined to be one of the main arteries of commercial and tourist traffic is indeed something over which the people of this Province should rejoice.

It means much not only to the North but to Ontario as a whole.

There was a time when people were dubious about the wisdom of spending large sums of money in developing the North, and in providing transportation facilities there.

Happily that period of mis-giving has passed.

The whole Province realizes what a contribution to the wealth of Ontario is being made by the vast North Country, and the Government in continuing its energetic and successful efforts in that portion of the Province can be assured that popular opinion everywhere is strongly behind such a programme.

MR. COOLIDGE IS THROUGH.

The terse announcement of President Coolidge that he does not propose to be a candidate for a third term does not altogether come as a surprise.

There have been signs that he was not finding the road to another tenure of office as smooth as it looked at first.

Canadian observers following political developments across the border have marked the sudden change of front on the part of the Hearst papers, which all at once dropped their booming of the President.

The significance of the new attitude, even in the face of the Coolidge campaign to allay agrarian discontent in the West and the attempts of Coolidge press agents to stimulate sentiment in favour of a third term has not escaped notice, and paved the way for the announcement of the retirement from the arena of the President.

Even among many who admired Calvin Coolidge there is a strong anti-third-term sentiment, and this perhaps has been the biggest obstacle in the path of a re-nomination.

There should be some interesting features about United States politics in the near future.

THE PUBLIC IS AROUSED.

There are signs that public sentiment in regard to motor accidents is being thoroughly awakened.

Within the past few days both Premier Ferguson and Hon. Geo. S. Henry, the Minister of Highways, have made references to the heavy casualty lists reported from the highways that give reason for hoping that the authorities intend to tighten up the enforcement of traffic regulations.

When a company like the British-American Oil Company uses huge newspaper advertisements to appeal to motorists to drive safely and to observe common rules of safety, it is surely evident that the situation is serious indeed, and that big business men whose profits depend upon the motorist realize that their business is threatened by the great increase in the number of motor accidents.

The striking advertisement in last evening's issue of The Examiner reproducing news items dealing with a few of the serious motor crashes in Canada during the past two weeks contained much that drivers could think over with profit.

The streets and highways must be made safe, if the right to drive has to be taken away from half the people who now operate cars.

PLAYING FAIR WITH THE IMMIGRANT.

The decision of the Government to hand over to the Department of Public Health the pre-embarkation examination of persons desirous of emigrating to Canada from the British Isles is good business, both for the Dominion and for those who wish to settle upon its unoccupied lands.

Although all prospective immigrants have been obliged to undergo medical examination before leaving Great Britain for some years past, a certain amount of laxity has accompanied that examination which has been left to private physicians, in many cases friends of the applicants and unwilling to see them denied the realization of the hopes which they have entertained. The final examination taking place upon arrival at the Canadian port, one which is undertaken by physicians in the employ of the Government, has, therefore, resulted in not a few immigrants discovering that, although they had been given a clean bill of health by the examiners whom they had consulted in the Old Land, their physical condition is not up to the standard required by the Canadian regulations, and they have been thus obliged to bear the expense of the return voyage and to return to Great Britain, disheartened and disillusioned.

Under the system of medical examination which it is now proposed to inaugurate, this condition of affairs will become an impossibility. Physicians in the employ of the Department of Public Health will themselves conduct the examinations in Great Britain and themselves issue the certificates under which the immigrants will be permitted to embark and proceed to this country. If any further examination discloses a condition which has been overlooked and which renders the immigrant unfit, the payment of his return passage is guaranteed.

This is playing fair with the immigrant and playing fair with the Dominion, which has the right to demand that its doors shall be opened only to those newcomers who are physically able to undertake the rather onerous duties which very often fall to their lot. Advisable though it is that Canada should derive its greatest strength from British stock, even more advisable is it that those whom it welcomes as new citizens should be physically and mentally capable of contributing to the task of developing a nation which has been undertaken.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

MAKE MURDER PAY ITS WAY.

Discussing the subject of "Bigger and Better Murders" in Harper's Magazine Charles Merz makes some interesting and valuable suggestions. He points out that the United States public demands a succession of Crimes of the Century, and if there is a temporary shortage of "great national murders" then some "second-class murder is taken by the hand, led to the centre of the stage and advertised so successfully with all the modern art of ballyhoo that, claiming to be a first-class murder, it actually becomes one." The murder trial, he continues, has become an institution, "as periodic in its public appearances and reappearances as the cycle of the seasons." It is "the cradle of our folk-lore"—12,000,000 words telegraphed about the Hall-Mills' trial in 24 days, 120 reporters and special writers working on the Gray-Snyder trials.

"It is a great game," comments Mr. Merz, "but there is one curious thing about it. The official agency which stages these great shows fails spectacularly to share the profits." The lawyers "profit handsomely," the telegraph companies collect tolls, the newspapers "acquire prestige, buy new presses and become more indispensable to their publics with the unfolding of each chapter." Only the State fails to profit, and the writer proceeds to elaborate his plan:

"Why should this anomaly be permitted to continue? Why should the State, which does most, profit least? It would be an act of justice as well as a shrewd business move if the State transferred these spectacles from the stuffy inadequate courtrooms where they are held today, staged them in great amphitheatres, and charged admission. Bowls are available in every section of the country. The price of admission could be high—with seats in demand, only one original cast and no road companies. Taxes could be cut. Five spectacles a year, each lasting forty days, would net $100,000,000 in an average bowl accommodating 50,000 people. Syndicate rights could be sold to the press. Muscle Shoals, long idle, could be used to produce nitrates to make celluloid film for the Government's moving picture versions of the story. It might be possible—all sources of revenue considered—to cut taxes to a point where they would disappear and the State begin to show a profit.

"It would be a happier existence all round. Trials would come more regularly. Their full dramatic value could be realized by abolishing judges and putting Broadway producers on the bench. As things stand now, Mr. Belasco's heart must break when he sees these amateurs miss chances for great curtains. Meantime, the commercial theatre itself would become clean overnight. For the Government's own super-productions of super-crime and super-sex would drive the riffraff out of business. As for sectional jealousies: they could be avoided by making each section take its turn and giving the corn belt just as many trials as Wall street. All of us would have, at last, a political issue we really cared about. 'Vote for Jones—Six Trials a Year!'

"The Roman Coliseum was a national institution. If we are to have a circus of our own let us develop it with the high purpose and creative effort worthy of a more resourceful nation. Let us have the biggest, jolliest, noisiest, bloodiest murder trials the human imagination can conceive. We are bound to grow."

Then the writer mentions another plan—and here's the sting. "The only thinkable alternative," he observes, "is to treat the courts as if they were really meant to be the dignified homes of justice." In Canada they are just that.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The dog days are here, indeed. The Ottawa Journal has an editorial headed "Is There Life on Mars?"

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press). — The only export business done on the Montreal gran market yesterday was the sale of odd loads of wheat for shipment in nearby positions.

The trade in grain in the domestic market was quieter with sales of a few loads of Manitoba Tough No. 3 Northern wheat to millers and an odd load of No. 3 Canadian Western Western barley at 95c per bushel c.i.f. Montreal. There was some demand from local buyers for oats and a few sales of 5,000 and 10,000 bushel lots were made.

Extreme dullness again marked the trade in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour, but values were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand from all sources. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was also firm with a small trade passing.

The undertone to the egg market was stronger and indications are that values will be advanced today. The demand was fair. The receipts were 919 cases.

The demand for butter continued of an indifferent character, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 453 packages.

The export trade in cheese was dull, but a fair amount of business was done with local buyers at good prices. The receipts were 6,290 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press)—Increased export demand for North American wheat helped give an upward trend to grain prices yesterday. President Coolidge's announcement regarding his candidacy had no apparent effect on cereal values and neither did action of stocks or cotton.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm at the same as Tuesday's finish to ⅝c higher; corn varying from ¼c decline to 1c advance; oats ⅝c to ½c up, and provisions 10c to 20c down.

Cool weather over the corn belt tended to lift corn values. Indications were that late planted corn is not progressing as it should to make an average yield before the usual date of frost. Oats sympathized with corn.

Provisions went lower, influenced by downturns in hog prices and the cotton market.

SPEND BUSY DAY AT CAPITAL CITY

Princes and Premier Attend Several Public Engagements at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, August 4 (Canadian Press).—A distinct slowing up in the programmes of the Princes and the Premier was apparent yesterday. While there were several public engagements none were of the strenuous character of Monday in Montreal or Tuesday in Ottawa.

In the morning the British Prime Minister was deep in his birthday mail, and spent some hours going over his speech for the Canadian Club while the Princes enjoyed a fast round of golf at the Ottawa Hunt Club, free from "galleries" and camera men. Later in the morning the Prince of Wales received a number of invalid veterans, who were transported to Government House. It was one o'clock when these hard-working visitors commenced the day's programme, Premier Baldwin with an address at the Canadian Club of Ottawa, and His Royal Highness with the reception of veterans.

Parliament Hill, again at its mid-summer best, was kept clear yesterday by police lines, but the surrounding streets were masses of humanity. The official party arrived promptly on schedule for the memorial chamber ceremonies in the tower and later for the unveiling of the Laurier Statue. The music of military bands, the bells in the tower and the voices of the Centenary Choir provided interludes of music as the programme proceeded.

Just before the party arrived at the platform erected by the statue, the Union Jacks were caught in the breeze and slipped off revealing the bronze figure prematurely for a few moments. But public works department employees with the alacrity of firemen ran up ladders and adjusted the flags just in time. The speakers in paying tribute to Sir Wilfrid, stood bare headed on the green sward while the crowd, which reached far into the Plaza of the city were below the terraced lawn.

Later the party visited the world poultry congress and then returned to Government House for dinner. Today is perhaps the least strenuous day for the Royal visitors on the programme so far. They will dine with Mr. MacKenzie King at Laurier House, and go to a reception at the country club. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin will have lunch at Laurier House and dine in the evening with Sir Robert and Lady Borden. This will conclude the Ottawa programme.

Enough heat comes to the earth from the sun each day to melt a cake of ice 5,000 feet thick and large enough to cover the State of Massachusetts.

TWO DROWNINGS WITHIN AN HOUR

Toronto Boys Lose Lives—Both Bodies Are Recovered.

ONE IN SWIMMING.

TORONTO, Ont., August 3. — Two drownings occurred within an hour yesterday afternoon. Cecil Johnston, aged 8 years and 4 months, of 496 Eastern Avenue, fell into 40 feet of water in the turning basin at the foot of Carlaw Avenue, and Harold Wilson, aged 16, of 150 Borden Street, was seized with cramps while swimming in the Humber River near the Wanita Tea Rooms.

The body of Johnston was removed to the Trull Burial Co., Danforth Avenue. Coroner Dr. J. H. McConnell is investigating. Coroner Dr. Baden recased Wilson's body, which was taken to Norman Craig's Parlours.

According to Superintendent Hilliard Lang, of the Life Saving Patrol, a call came in from the turning basin at 3.22, and Officer Calder and crew in the speed boat Heldena responded. On reaching the turning basin they dragged until 4.55 p.m., when they found the body of Johnston. They worked over it for 45 minutes, but without avail. Dr. McKichan, 832 Gerrard Street East, was called, and pronounced life extinct.

Johnston had been playing along the west bank of the turning basin with Jack Knight, aged seven, of 126 Victor Street. Knight saw him fall in and was responsible for having the life savers notified. He was able to tell them the spot where Johnson fell in.

At 4.18 p.m. the life savers received word that there was a drowning near the mouth of the Humber River. When Officer Arey reached the scene, however, he found that the accident had occurred up the river near Bloor Street. After dragging for five minutes he found Harold Wilson. Not until they had worked over him for an hour and a half did the life savers give up hope.

Two 16-year-old boys who were with Wilson, Louis Solish and Halond Sharp, told the life savers that they were on the bank of the river watching him swim. He had reached the opposite shore and was swimming back when he cried out, evidently having been seized with cramps. Both lads jumped in and endeavored to save him, but their efforts were rendered futile by his struggles.

LANCASTER, Ky., Aug. 4.—Driving along a country road near here, an Ohio tourist and his wife were driven from their automobile by the entrance of a swarm of bees through the open windshield. FLY-TOX NECESSARY

Wars Are Less Fatal Than Common Insects.

"Flies have caused more deaths than all wars," says Major Ransom of the Medical Department of the United States Army. "Since the fly came into the world it has been synonymous with epidemics of pestilence and disease." But with Fly-Tox it is a very simple easy matter to rid the house of flies—to keep it fresh and clean, free of insect taint. Fly-Tox is the scientific insecticide developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Fellowship. Simple instructions for killing ALL household insects on blue labeled bottles. Insist on Fly-Tox.

CORN FLAKES GAIN LEADING POSITION

Product of Quaker Oats Co. Is In Great Demand in Canada.

The position attained by Quaker Corn Flakes in the markets throughout Canada as learned in trade circles must be gratifying to the manufacturers, The Quaker Oats Company.

Less than four years ago this product was put on the market. Today it enjoys the leading sale in many localities throughout Canada and a sale over the whole country of very large dimensions. Moreover it is a sale that is constantly increasing. The consumption during the first six months of 1927 was greater than during any previous period and new peaks have been reached since the month of June. The Corn Flakes mill is working bath day and night shifts and shipping requirements are taking care immediately of every case.

The Quaker Oats believed there was a demand in Canada for a corn flake better than those previously supplied. After a year's experimentation the present flake was produced. That experimentation comprised research into every feature that makes a corn flake appetizing. No less than 53 flavors were tried and the flavor selected and in use ever since was the unanimous choice of a board of cereal experts. To ensure the freshness of the flake and to preserve the flavor intact Quaker Corn Flakes are triple sealed, first in the bag inside the carton, then in the carton which is wrapped and finally by the waxed paper which surrounds every carton. So confident is the company of the flavor and freshness of Quaker Corn Flakes that on each package is printed the unreserved guarantee to refund the purchase price if the flake is not the best flavored the consumer ever tasted. No guarantee could be more sweeping and in the three years not a dozen requests have been made for refund.

An important element in the success of The Quaker Oats Company is its fair policy with the wholesale and retail trade. Everywhere throughout Canada merchants rely with confidence on The Quaker Oats Company not only for a line of cereals which is the most complete in Canada, but for fair and reasonable treatment which is always accorded to them.

Peterborough people, no doubt, will be gratified to learn of the position attained in so short a time by this product of our home town.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 5, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

While this day's planetary government prevails it is well to be exceedingly cautious and conservative, according to astrology.

Women may find the rule thwarting and they should defer all important affairs.

Traveling may be subject to delays or even accidents, for unusual storms appear to be presaged by the stars.

European tourists, who will exceed in numbers all previous summer records, may meet with unexpected conditions and may experience indignities in certain places.

Those who read the stars find the most conflicting planetary influences active where military matters are concerned and they predict bitter controversies.

While this configuration prevails the trend toward militarism may be strong and preparedness widely advocated and supported.

Women as well as men of many countries are to take an interest in training and drilling for war, it is foretold.

For all rulers of nations new problems loom on the horizon, the seers announce, and changes in government are to be sudden.

Great movements of battleships are presaged by the stars for ports held by the British are to be menaced.

To those who read the future many waste efforts are apparent on the part of European powers who must make new alliances before the end of the year.

Italy is subject to the sinister effects of the July conjunction of Jupiter and Uranus, which presaged changes that affected the destiny of nations.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a busy and happy year before them. They will accomplish much constructive work.

Children born on this day probably will be able to succeed through their own talents and efforts. They are likely to be energetic and executive, able to succeed in independent enterprises.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith pretended to be asleep when Bob returned to their bedroom long after midnight. He undressed in the dark, tiptoeing carefully about the room and swearing softly under his breath when he bumped into a chair. Her jumping nerves told her, even though her eyes were tightly closed, that he leaned over her for a moment, as if debating whether he should risk waking her by kissing her gently on forehead or cheek. She wanted, with every quivering nerve in her body, to raise her arms and clasp his dear head to her breast, to feel his lips upon hers again, but something restrained her. She heard his faint sigh as he turned away, listened, with painfully beating heart, for the slight protesting squeak of springs as he lowered his body upon the hot sheets of the bed beside hers—very close beside hers, for it had been a cherished habit of theirs to go to sleep with hands clasped across the few inches dividing the beds.

She lay rigid now, fearful of moving lest he realize her deception. The minutes dragged like hours, as she heard him threshing about upon the hot bed, as unable to sleep as she was. Suddenly a great and unbearable loneliness descended like a stifling pall upon her soul. There he was—her husband—lying so close to her and yet so far away that she had the panicky feeling that she would never see him again. The preacher who had married them had told them that they were "one" now. And here she lay, feeling as isolated as if she were the only living person in the world. Who was he—that man on the other bed, sighing heavily with despair or with disgust over the heat? He was a stranger to her, and she was a stranger to him.

What was she thinking of? Bitter thoughts of disappointment and disillusion? Was he wondering why on earth he had married her—when he might have had brilliant, beautiful, gay little Cherry? Why, she could not even guess what he was thinking of, and he was dearer to her than anyone else in the world! How unfair, how tragic life was! And how essentially lonely every human being was, no matter how much beloved he might be!

She had wronged him, hurt him, disgusted him, and she could not even stretch out her hand to him across those few inches. So this was marriage! A constant hurting of each other, foolish little misunderstandings that the curious alchemy of marriage transformed into tragedies. She would never have dreamed of speaking to a friend or to a member of her family as she had spoken to Bob—and yet she loved Bob better than all the rest of them put together. What was it about marriage that brought out the worst side of your nature, that made you hurt most the person you loved best? And oh, she loved him, loved him, loved him! And probably he would never feel the same toward her again—

A shuddering sob broke from her lips, startling her as much as it did the man in the other bed. She clapped her hand to her mouth, her whole body beginning to tremble violently. But before she had time to think, to speak, Bob had flung himself across the few inches that separated the beds and had seized her in his arms—fiercely, crushingly. And he was sobbing, the hard, hoarse sobs of a man not given to weeping. And as his body jerked with those hard sobs, his lips were roving hungrily over her face and neck.

"I made you cry, sweet, I made you cry! I'm a beast, darling! And I love you! God knows I love you! Why can't I make you happy? What is wrong with me, darling?" It was said in gasps, punctuated by those hard, dry sobs.

Tears streamed out of Faith's eyes. Her fingers gripped his shoulders hard. "It's not your fault, Bob! Oh, Bob, what's the matter with me? I love you and I'm doing everything I can to drive you away from me!"

(To be continued.)

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

One of the frocks that contribute to the revived interest in violet tones. It is made of chiffon of the shade of a light-toned pansy. Rhinestone belt buckle and pansy-colored shoulder flower furnish the only ornamentation.

Mauve, lavendar, wistaria—all the lighter tones of purple—have come suddenly into prominence. And the really interesting thing about it is that they appeared on the screen of fashion quite unexpectedly. We were thinking and talking about pinks and greens and blues—when first at one, then at another, assembling of well-dressed women these light violet tones appeared. It seemed as if someone had turned the violet light on the stage of fashion. So striking was this sudden appearance of the violet hues that it seemed as if fashionable women must have had some sort of secret conspiracy about it.

A bluish shade of mauve rather than the pinky orchid shade seems tr be especially favored. Yet the pinkish tones of violet, such as orchid, are considered more generally becoming than those of the bluish cast. Still there is something very lovely about the mauves on the bluish side of the lavendar range.

Since violet is composed of red, which indicates power and abundant virility, and blue, which indicates thought and self-control, psychologists conclude that violet indicates power control, energy dominated by thought. When there is more blue in the mixture, as in heliotrope, you have more control—the effect of conquered passion.

Pinkish lavendars are more generally becoming than those of a bluish cast—but the woman of pale blonde coloring will find bluish mauves more becoming than the orchid tints. The high-colored blonde, on the other hand, finds the pinkish lavendars more becoming.

I you want to know exactly what shade of lavendar is most becoming to you write, describing as minutely as you can your type of coloring, and I will let you know just which shade you should wear. But remember that it is the bluish tones that are most fashionable at the moment.

Remember that bright purple tends to make any woman look old.

Flying is all the fashion—and if you can't make the transoceanic hop yourself you can at least have a wing on your frock. A simple evening slip may be dressed up with the new drapery and a smart crush girdle. Don't you want me to send you the pattern and directions? I will if you will send a stamped, addressed envelope.

SOME GOOD TENNIS.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 4. — Tweed Tennis team visited town yesterday afternoon for their scheduled game for the Tummon Cup. While Tweed failed to carry off the majority of the events for the day, they left the impression that when Campbellford visits Tweed things might be different.

The winners in the northern group will then play with the winners in the southern group, which takes in Belleville. Campbellford has won 75 per cent. of the points thus far. They have played twice with Madoc, once with Deloro, and once with Tweed.

The following are yesterday's scores, Campbellford names first:

Men's Singles — H. Free won from R. Fawcett, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Men's Doubles — C. Weston and S. H. Neale won from J. L. Minorgan and Principal T. E. Moffatt, 7-5, 6-3.

Men's Doubles — W. Kingston and G. Connor lost to R. Rashotte and S. Quinn, 21-19, 6-2.

Mixed Doubles — J. H. Bell and Miss Jessie Weston won from W. Bowers and Miss Bowers, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

Mixed Doubles — H. Beatty and Miss Verna Shore won from Miss F. Graham and J. D. Corcoran, 5-7, 6-3, 10-8.

The Campbellford club served lunch on the court to the Tweed visitors.

OBITUARY

OMEMEE, Aug. 4.—On July 20th another link with the past was broken in the passing of Joseph Sandy who had almost reached his 97th birthday. He was as well as usual though he has been growing more feeble during the last two years.

Mr. Sandy came to Canada in 1854 from Cornwall, England and began farming in 1857, and in 1869 moved to the farm on which he died. He witnessed many marvellous changes. He has seen the county cleared, log huts given place to beautiful dwellings, towns and railways built, and indeed, he made a very worthy contribution to the development of the county.

Thus there has gone another of the pioneers who have made Canada the heritage that it is to the present generation.

The funeral, which was largely attended, took place from the residence of his son, F. G. Sandy, M.P.P.

Rev. E. W. Rowlands, a nephew of the deceased had charge of the service assisted by the Rev. Dewey Stinson, a grandson, Rev. P. B. Thornton of Winnipeg and Rev. W. J. H. Smythe of Wellington.

MISS M. E. KELLS.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 4.—The death of Mary Elizabeth Kells which occurred suddenly on Saturday, July 30, marked the passing of a life-long and highly respected resident of Millbrook, and came as a distinct shock not only to her immediate relatives, but to the community at large as well.

Miss Kells had but recently returned to her home here after an extended stay with her niece, Mrs. (Dr.) Brand, of Toronto. She had been in frail health for some time, particularly since the death of her sister, Miss Annie Kells, a little over two years ago.

Apparently in as good health as usual on Saturday, it was immediately following the dinner hour that deceased was seized with a violent pain in her head, passing away very shortly afterward.

Miss Kells was the last of a family of five children, two daughters, and three sons, her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kells, being pioneer settlers in this locality. The history of the Kells family is closely interwoven with the growth and development of the community. Their home, just east of the King street bridge, was one of the many others totally destroyed in what older residents recall as the 'great fire' of 1875, when a large section of the village was completely wiped out.

The immediate surviving relatives are a niece, Mrs. (Dr.) Brand, (Amy Kells) of Toronto, and a nephew, Mr. Edward Kells, of Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. T. B. Collins and Miss Annie Armstrong of Millbrook are cousins.

The funeral took place from Saint Thomas' church, with which deceased had been connected all her life, on Tuesday, at 2 p.m., Rev. P. C. Howard having charge of the service, and delivering a comforting message from St. Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, chapter 15. The pall-bearers were: Dr. H. A. Turner, Messrs. W. T. Wood, R. H. Kells (Toronto), G. Fowler, A. A. Needler, and H. B. Allen.

Interment was in St. John's cemetery. A number of beautiful floral tributes were laid in loving memory upon the casket, among these being a wreath from the W. A. of St. Thomas' church, of which Miss Kells had been a faithful member for many years.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Dr. and Mrs. Brand, and three children, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kells, Toronto; Messrs. Robert and James Fair, Peterborough; Mrs. R. Ruddy, Whitby; Dr. A. and Miss Helen Armstrong, Fergus; Miss Currie and Miss Edith Currie, Omemee; Miss R. Stratton, Peterborough; Mr. H. Cummings, Toronto; Mr. Edward Kells, Cleveland, Ohio.

RAYBESTOS WIN FROM BETHANY

Hit in Bunches For 9-2 Victory Over the Visitors.

SHARP FIELDING.

Raybestos hit in bunches for runs against Bethany last evening and won by 9 to 2, the two teams playing good ball all the way. Sharp fielding by the infielders with a couple of long distance clouts by Ryley and Masterson featured the contest. Masterson poled out a triple to right in the fourth for his first hit of the season, and Bruce Ryley's smash for three bags came in the sixth. It was a long drive to left and Oscar Nicholls was playing well back at the time.

Dawe started for the visitors, giving way to Ryley with two gone in the second, and four runners in for Raybestos. Bethany's fine all-round player was effective on the mound after the third and his fielding caught the fancy of the crowd. Dawe also worked well at first base, and R. Staples, another handy player, handled several hard ground balls in fine style. The visitors threatened to cause trouble on several rallies, but Masterson and his supporting staff were good in the pinches.

Thorndyke's wide peg off Hillier's grounder, Moore's single, and a wide throw to third by the catcher allowed Hillier to score in the first for Raybestos. The brakeliners got three more in the second, on a pass to H. Nicholls, Tom Staples' muff of O. Nicholls fly, a deadheader on Baird, and doubles by Hillier and Moore. Raybestos were hitting the ball hard. A fine throw to the plate by Tom Staples stopped Baird and when Ryley went to the box he fanned Rogers, and the catcher doubled Moore at third.

Raybestos took five in the third on as many hits and a pass. Right on top of this harvest, Ryley opened up and held the homesters scoreless for the remainder of the game, Masterson getting the only safety, his triple to right.

Bethany didn't get a chance on the runways until the third when hits by Price and Daw put two on. Then on Thorndyke's tap to the box, Masterson nailed Price going into third and H. Nicholls doubled Dawe at second when the runner stepped over the bag. Philp singled to middle and Reynolds walked. McGill forced Reynolds at second on a grounder to Hillier.

With two gone in the fifth, Thorndyke singled to right and Philp did likewise. A pass to Reynolds filled the bags. On the play to third off McGill's grounder the runner got the decision and Thorndyke scored. Masterson retired R. Staples.

Ryley's triple and a single by Price tallied another run in the sixth.

DELORO WINS BY EIGHT RUNS

After Four Unsuccessful Attempts To Conquer Marmora Opponents.

MARMORA, August 4. — After four unsuccessful attempts, Deloro men's softball team were able to floor their Marmora opponents on the Deloro diamond on Tuesday evening, running out winners of a good game by 11-3. Bandsman Brooks was able to pitch for the homesters, who tried Warren as catcher, with some success. Marmora used a new pitcher in the person of Meehan, but "Mushy" Clairmont was seen in his old position as catcher . Play was very even until the fifth frame, when Marmora ceased scoring for the remainder of the game, and Deloro registered four times. Included in this quartette of counters was a neat home run by Charlie McInroy. In the fifth, the veteran Hemphill delighted his supporters with a fine triple. F. Shell and E. Horton umpired the game.

The teams:

Marmora — Clairmont, c; Meehan, p; Auger, 1b; Brady, 2b; Cousins, 3b; Prentice, ss; Trumble, lf; G. McInroy, cf; Wright, rf.

Deloro — Abrams, rf; C. McInroy, 1b; Warren, c; Hemphill, ss; Ethier, 2b; Brooks, p; Reynolds, lf; Murray, 3b; McCroden, cf.

YANKEES SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

Defeat Detroit 8-5 in Final Game After Losing First 6-5.

2 HOMERS FOR GEHRIG.

NEW YORK, August 4 (Canadian Press). — The Yankees divided a doubleheader with Detroit yesterday before 40,000 fans, coming out in front by 8 to 6 in the final struggle after losing the first contest by 6 to 5. It was the largest midweek crowd of the season, and Lou Gehrig was loudly applauded when he drove out home runs, one in each game, raising his season's total to 37. Gehrig is now three runs ahead of Ruth.

A four-run drive polished off by Heilmann's four-bagger with Manush on base in the fifth inning decided the Tigers' victory.

Pipgras hurled a good game through eight innings in the second contest, and then gave way to Moore as the Bengals staged a four-run rally in the final session.

Boston Wins 2-1.

Rothrock's hitting was the main factor in Boston's 2 to 1 victory over Chicago at Boston. His single in the first developed into the first Red Sox run, and his single in the seventh brought in what proved to be the winning run. Thomas and Ruffing fought an old-fashioned pitching duel, but the Red Sox fielding was superior.

The Athletics won both ends of a doubleheader with Cleveland at Philadelphia, winning the first by a score of 9-2 and the second by 7-4. The Athletics hit Joe Shaute hard in the first game, while Eddie Rommel held the Indians to seven hits.

The Athletics put the second game beyond reach by scoring three runs in the fifth.

LIFE HISTORY OF WALTER JOHNSON

(BY BILLY EVANS.)

Walter Johnson's debut as an American League pitcher was nothing short of a classic.During his long career filled with remarkable performances, his first game stands out in bold relief.

After he had gotten the kinks out of his legs and the knots out of his long arms, as a result of his week of travel from Weiser, Idaho, seeing America from car windows, Manager Cantillon asked him when he would like to start a ball game.

"I've been ready every day since I arrived," was Johnson's laconic reply.

The fact that Washington was in last place and drawing poorly made it seem wise to use Johnson as the means of stirring up a little enthusiasm and getting out a big crowd. It was decided to send Johnson first against Detroit, then leading the league, the team that ultimately won the 1907 championship..

I was the umpire in that game, and I don't believe I will ever forget the pitching of Johnson in his major league debut. The Detroit club was a slugging aggregation, boasting an array of hard hitters led by such noted batsmen as Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford, and Claude Rossman. It was a club that liked nothing better than fast ball pitching.

Throughout the game, Johnson pitched to the strength of the Detroit club, using only a fast ball, he had nothing else in his repertoire, but before him the Tigers were helpless. As they would pop up, strike out or hit puny grounders to the infield, the battle cry of Catcher Charley Street to the Detroit club was always the same:

"Boys, you just can't hit what you can't see."

He chanted that line from the start to the finish of the game. Late in the contest, about the seventh inning, I believe, the Tigers, unable to hit his blinding speed, led by Ty Cobb, began a bunting game that accomplished its purpose of temporarily upsetting Johnson and enabled Detroit to put over two runs, enough to win the game by a one-run margin.

It was the greatest exhibition of pitching, sheer ability alone considered, that I have ever seen any rookie show in his major league debut. That one performance stamped Johnson as a regular member of the none too strong pitching staff of the tail-end Senators.

The record of Johnson's first year in the American League stands out as a mute tribute to his greatness as a pitcher. The cold statistics bear out the many flattering things I have already said about the youngster, destined to be the most famous pitcher that has ever graced the national pastime. As I turn back to my files for 1907 I find this data:

"In point of effectiveness against the batsmen as far as run-getting was concerned, the young Washington pitcher, Walter Johnson, who broke into the American League, unknown and unheralded, except for certain references to his strike-out ability, was the most effective pitcher in the American League for 1907.

"In his first year as a big leaguer he allowed only 33 runs in 14 games, or 2.36 tallies per contest. Even more striking was the small number of hits garnered off his delivery, only 95, less than seven to a game. This, with a ball club that finished a bad last—and still he managed to win five games while losing nine."

To me the above data of Johnson's first year in the American League epitomizes his true greatness better than any other evidence I might offer to substantiate my opinion that he is the greatest pitcher I have ever seen —in my humble opinion, the greatest pitcher of all time.

SOFTBALL NEWS

The Havoline Oil softball team are playing an exhibition game in Warsaw with the Warsaw team, champions of their section of the league, and who are waiting to go into the play off games. The Warsaw team have a snappy aggregation and will give the Havoline team a great battle for the game. The game will start at 6.30.

What is expected to be the best game of the year in the local softball league will be played on Friday night when the Belmonts and Lockworks hook up in the final game of the post season series. Both these teams are going great guns right now and a great game should result.

The Lockworks lost only one game in the post season series, that going to the Belmonts by a 3-2 score after a great battle. A win for the Lockmakers Friday night will put them on even terms with the Club, and necessitate another game to decide a winner.

Both teams will field their strongest line ups of the season. Manager Haskill announced that his line up will in probability be as follows: Harrison, p; Frick, 1b; Batten, 2b; Holyman, ss; Hall, 3b; Ash, Green, Delahaye and Fanning, field; Haskill, c. Manager Westbrooke figures on starting the following team: Dobson, c; Waddell, p; Smith, 1b; Crary, 2b; Weese, ss; Westbrooke, 3b; Galbraith, Nicholls, Jones, Holland and Johnston, fielders.

With so much at stake and two so evenly matched teams in action a record crowd should be out Friday night at Riverside Park.

The game will start at 6.00 o'clock sharp and will be played at Riverside Park. The admission price will be 25 cents for adults and 5 cents for children.

The Lockworks hammered a 17-4 victory over the Examiner last night at Confederation Square, and now have a good chance of evening the race up with the Belmonts on Friday night. The game was a poor exhibition and was not enjoyed by the large crowd of fans who were out.

The teams were as follows:

Lockworks—Smith, 1b; Crary, 2b; Westbrooke, 3b; Galbraith, rf; Weese, ss; Dobson, c; Jones, cf; Holland, cf; Johnson, lf; Waddell, p.

Examiner—Dugan, 2b, 3b; French, ss; Dormer, 3b, p; Swanston, c; Taylor, 1b; G. Dormer, rf, cf; Scates, p, 3b, 2b; Clarke, lf; Doxsee, cf, rf.

JUNIORS IN CHARGE OF LEAGUE SERVICE

Soft Ball Game Before Meeting Results in 7-7 Tie Score.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Aug. 4. —League service was held in Zion Church on Monday evening in charge of Gladys Petherick, convenor of the Junior Department, with Freda Petherick as leader. Nearly sixty were in attendance, with the Khaki well in the lead. The programme was put on by the Juniors after Rev. Mr. Daniel had led in group singing and given a short devotional talk. Readings were given by Art Petherick, Cora Petherick, George Brunton and Roy Barnum, with a solo by Helen Barnum and a hymn by the Junior Choir.

Before the league service the long waited for ball game between the Khaki and the White-Red teams took place, and after five hard fought innings the score was tied, 7-7. Both teams were short-handed, due to the uncertainty of the game being played after the heavy rain of the afternoon, and several good players were absent from each side.

Khaki—G. Kerr, pitcher; T. Owens, catcher; L. Anderson, first base; C. Barnum, second base; L. Barnum, third base; D. Kerr, short stop; D. Watson, left field; L. Watson, right field.

Red-White — A. Paul, pitcher; R. Fry, catcher; R. Barnum, first base; T. Fry, second base; A. Simpson, third base; G. Barnum, short stop; E. Fairman, left field; G. Petherick, right field; G. Meiklejohn, sub.

By innings:

Red-White	22102—7
Khaki	11131—7

Umpires—F. Fry and F. Barnum.

The next league meeting is on Tuesday, Aug. 9, and these teams will again meet in their second game of the season. Should the Khaki win they will be undisputed leaders of the series, while the Red-White have an equally good chance to top the league.

Next meeting is in charge of Thomas Fry, Devotional Convener.

After league a short meeting was held to make final arrangements for the garden party to be held in John Simpson's grove on Aug. 11. The local ball team will meet Hoard's in an interesting game before the social.

RICKARD TO STAGE BOUT SEPTEMBER 22

Official Announcement Made By Promoter For Dempsey-Tunney Battle.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey will battle Gene Tunney for the heavyweight championship on the night of September 22, Tex Rickard announced late yesterday.

The final difficulty in the path of the match was cleared away by a telegram from Dempsey specifying the former titleholder's preference for that date rather than September 15.

While agreeing to every other provision, the former titleholder had insisted he would not be ready for the fray before September 22, due to the illness of his wife, Estelle Taylor, and would prefer an even later date.

Upon receipt of the wire Rickard immediately declare the new date satisfactory. The promoter announced that Dempsey would leave Los Angeles for Chicago August 15, to start training at a camp yet to be selected. Shortly after arriving here from Chicago yesterday morning, Rickard disclosed that the Tunney-Dempsey match will be the last world heavyweight championship fight he will stage outside of New York.

"Next year at this time New York will have the finest outdoor stadium in the world, especially constructed to give every spectator a clear view of fights or any other outdoor sport. It will hold more people than either the mammoth Philadelphia or Chicago arenas. I have already secured financial backing."

CUBS HAMMER BOSTON HURLERS

Make 15 Hits For 12-1 Victory in First Game of Series.

NEW YORK, August 4 (Canadian Press). — The Boston Braves, fresh from three straight victories over the Pirates, were unable to stop the Chicago Cubs, who hammered a trio of Boston twirlers for 15 hits and an easy 12 to 1 victory yesterday in the first game of the Chicago series.

Charley Robertson, of no-hit fame, became wild in the third inning, and was replaced by Wertz with the bases loaded and none out. Grimm greeted him with a double which sent three runs across the plate, clinching the game for the Cubs.

Phillies Defeated 9-6.

The Pirates drove Clarence Mitchell off the mound with a five-run splurge in the sixth inning at Pittsburgh, and defeated Philadelphia 9 to 6. Paul Waner's home run with two on base was the decisive blow of the rally. The Phils scored their six runs in the first four innings, driving three Pirate pitchers out of the box.

Jesse Haines registered his sixteenth victory of the season for the World Champion Cardinals yesterday by blanking Brooklyn 4 to 0 in the first game of a St. Louis series. Haines allowed eight hits, all singles, but kept them scattered.

"COME SEVEN!"—4000 B. C.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Six thousand years ago, in what is now Mesopotamia, citizens of the sporting fraternity sat about in circles, cast dice and implored Lady Luck to be kind to them. In an ancient cemetery 140 miles southeast of Babylon, the expedition of C. Leonard Woolley discovered sets of dice and other gambling devices. Gamblers of that day had their paraphernalia buried with them to show their profession.

KKOVAH SALTS
MAKE YOU FIT — KEEP YOU FIT

THIRD "VIMY" PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

Well, here is the Third back in the news again. After a short inactive period of two weeks, we have settled down to our regular weekly meeting again which are now held on Wednesday nights, instead of Fridays, as formerly.

In the first meeting of three weeks ago, we learned two methods of determining the height of a tree. During the next week, each Patrol was to measure a tree, using either or both methods. Each Scout was also to make a sketch of something—anything he chose.

Last week we tried a very hazardous experiment. Each Scout brought flour, baking powder, salt, lard, water and a lot of courage. We baked bread on the open camp fire, using only a frying pan as an oven. The Hounds were not very successful in their attempts, and the Hawks profited by their mistakes, and each one made a fine little loaf of bread. Here is where the courage comes in—each Scout had to eat the bread he cooked. Poor Hounds!

Sketches were shown to the A.S.M. Some very good ones were made. One Scout made a wonderfully life-like sketch of his dog. Once again each Scout was to make a sketch during the next week.

At the close of the meeting the A.S.M. announced that next week the Scouts would be given something, but that they would not know what it was until the week following. It was rather puzzling to know what that could be, and many guesses were made. No information was forthcoming from the A.S.M., however.

Last night was the big night. Bread making occupied our time again. Two or three of the Scouts made more elaborate attempts—a couple put sugar in with the flour and made a kind of cake while a third Scout went further and put sugar and raisins in and made raisin bread. It was good too. All made a good try and the results were excellent. Each Scout was able to eat his tiny loaf with enjoyment.

A few minutes were spent in games, then all assembled around the fire to hear what they had waited a week to know.

A. S. M. Taylor took two envelopes from his pocket—one addressed to P. L. Archie Inch of the Hounds and the other to P. L. Jack Gray of the Hawks an don each in large letters was printed: Read below before opening. This is what was written below: —. — — —

Irish Hearts

FIRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough, a youth of Killanmaul, a village in Ireland, goes to New York and is followed by Old Tom Kildare and his daughter Sheila, with whom Emmett is in love. Sheila begins to recognize Emmett as a boaster and tries to evade the marriage. Old Tom urges her to marry him. Sheila becomes friends with the O'Sheas, who had settled in Hell's Kitchen a quarter of a century before, and whose son, Rory, is a prizefighter.

"Hello, mother, you home?"

"'Tis our Rory," explained Mrs. O'Shea as she sprang to her feet to welcome her son. They met at the kitchen doorway, and Sheila turned at the muffled shriek of her hostess. A man, she couldn't see his face, for he had lifted Mrs. O'Shea up in his arms, gave the little old lady a smacking kiss and then sat her lightly down upon her feet.

"Hello, dad. Got great news." He stopped short as he saw Sheila, who blushed in confusion at being a party to this intimate home scene.

"Miss Kildare, this is my son, Rory," introduced Mrs. O'Shea.

"I'm pleased to know you," said Rory as he walked over to her chair and held out his hand. Sheila bowed and shook hands with him shyly. A nice looking young man, she thought, at the first quick glance. It was not until later that she caught glimpse of the cauliflower ear that graced the left side of Rory the Battler's head, and

"Mr. Rory O'Shea has asked me to go to Coney Island, an' I'm going."

shuddered and wondered how such a nice looking man could have been so scarred. Mrs. O'Shea bustled about the kettle, calling to Sheila, "an' will ye get a cup, dear, there out of the pantry." Sheila did, and it warmed her to feel that she was part of this kindly household, even though an acquaintance of so short a time. When the steaming cup was set before Rory and Mrs. O'Shea had sat down in her rocking chair Michael inquired:

"An' what's the news?"

"Aw, can't it wait, dad?" he asked, with a glance at Sheila.

"Perhaps I had best be going, Mrs. O'Shea," spoke up Sheila hastily, but she really made no move to rise.

"Indeed, an' indeed not. 'Tis early it is. Go on, son, and tell us the news."

"I've got a fight." Fight? Sheila's eyes grew wide and wondering. "Campeau for twelve rounds and at the Garden! Oh, boy, what a chance! And it's real. No shenannigan. And I can whip him if I ever whipped anybody in my life! He's a good man, but I took him for the count in five rounds four years ago and I can do it again. Reagan says if I knock him off I can come back into real money making and maybe get a chance at the champ later on."

"Oh, Rory, I don't think ye ought to be fighting any more at all, at all," protested Mrs. O'Shea.

"But it means a comeback, mother, and certainly I ought to be getting mine after staying in the game nearly ten years. Isn't that right, dad?"

"It would be good if ye could, Rory, for ye have no trade an' ye'll need a bit of money while ye're learning one. What's your end in this?"

"It's winner take all. Twenty-five hundred dollars flat to the winner. The loser doesn't get a dime. I know it's a tough chance, and me with just money enough to get through my training expenses, but it means my chance, dad, maybe the last chance I'll ever get. We go on in the semi-finals to Brown and Malloy; that's something in itself."

"But what if you lose?" asked the anxious mother.

"Oh, that's just a chance you got to take, Mother," smiled Rory, "but now I don't think Miss Kildare is finding this very entertaining. Perhaps she doesn't know even what we are talking about." Sheila blushed. Of course, she has heard of prize fights, even the lads in Killanmaul were matched in the meadows there. "I'm a prize fighter, that is," with another ingenuous smile, "that's my profession. I been fighting for almost ten years, and this means that I get a new chance to win a place at the top."

"Oh!" said Sheila. She had read accounts of the fights held at the Garden and of the fabulous sums of money these American boxers earned, but never had she met one, and somehow this pleasant, smiling young man did not seem to be the sort she had pictured as a fighter to be at all!

Soon Rory was talking of this and of that, as the Irish do, with a joke now and then that kept the party in a fine humor. Rory had lost nothing of the easy blarney by having been born in America, thought Sheila, but he was none of the boasting kind. He told of the places to see in New York; the fine boardwalk at Coney Island and the fun and frolic there; of the Bronx Zoo and the strange and queer animals to be seen, and of the Battery and the Aquarium and trips up the Hudson on picnics given by political social clubs. Sheila, when she bade them good night, for the first time since the day she had landed felt that there were dreams to be realized in this great city. It was Rory who took her to the door, and for a moment they stood in the hallway before the stairs that led to her home.

"You must let me take you to Coney Island. It's the last of the season now, but you'll love the sea and the walk and we'll have great fun."

"Some day I will," said Sheila.

"How about next Sunday?" urged Rory O'Shea, who was as fast with his tongue as he was with his fists.

"I'd love to," whispered Sheila as she turned and fled up the stairs. And Rory O'Shea gazed at the empty stairway until he heard a door slam on an upper floor.

CHAPTER V

America's Fairyland

The West Side Club was a semi-political and social organization. Precinct leaders and workers in the ranks comprised its membership although small business men, who conducted the variety of shops along Ninth Avenue, found it to their benefit to pay dues and to appear at the occasional festivals. At night, however, it was well filled with political fry who dreamed of leadership and graft. Legends of graft are many in political clubs throughout the United States and the youth of the land generally dreams of "easy" money. It is the age for that.

Dan Martin, who drove the scavenger truck to which Emmett Murtough was detailed, had urged Emmett to join the club and when Emmett assented he took the young immigrant there and proposed him for membership. The honor, if a doubtful one, swelled the chest of the Killanmaul youngman and he boasted long into night on Saturday of what his new connections were going to do for him. First citizenship papers were to be prepared for him and he would soon have a real say in the voice of America, he told Old Tom Kildare. And Kildare was jealous. Here was his own field, for, couldn't he talk politics with the best of them?

"A good job is better'n the politics ye do be talking so much about," declared Sheila at the supper table. "Mr. O'Shea's son, the contractor, is going to visit them tomorrow an' 'tis likely he'll be giving ye a job, Father."

"An' what to do?" inquired the old man.

"To do a day's work an' earn a day's wages," retorted Sheila, "an' 'tis proud ye should be that kind strangers like that would give ye a chance!"

"Well, I'll see the morrow," answered Old Tom, and Emmett again launched upon the fine fellows who were members of the West Side Club.

"'Tis sorry I am, Sheila, that I'll be busy the morrow an' we won't be able to go any place," he remarked pompously. "Sure, Sunday is the day when most of the boys do be gathering around at my club."

"An' ye needn't worry, Emmett Murtough," cried Sheila hotly, "for I've made other plans myself."

"Other plans?"

"Yes, other plans. Mr. Rory O'Shea has asked me to go to Coney Island, an' I'm going."

"Ye'll not be running around with them O'Sheas now," declared Old Tom. "I won't have it."

"Indeed an' ye will, Father, because 'tis all settled!"

"An' who is this Rory?" asked Emmett. "I never heard of him an' I'm sure he don't belong to the Club."

RADIUM, FIFTY THOUSAND TIMES MORE VALUABLE THAN GOLD AND DIAMONDS, OWES ITS DISCOVERY IN PART TO A WOMAN. SHE IS MADAME MARIE SKLODOWSKA CURIE. SHE BECAME ACQUAINTED WITH SCIENCE IN A HOMELY WAY. THIS WAS BY WASHING LABORATORY BOTTLES FOR HER FATHER, WHO TAUGHT CHEMISTRY IN THE HIGH SCHOOL AT WARSAW, POLAND.

BOTTLE WASHING WOULD HAVE BEEN DREADED BY SOME GIRLS. BUT NOT BY LITTLE MARIE. HER DEEP-ROOTED INTEREST IN SCIENCE DELIGHTED HER FATHER. HE CAREFULLY TAUGHT HER THE FUNDAMENTALS OF SCIENCE.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

SHE ACQUIRED MUCH OF HER KNOWLEDGE OF SCIENCE INDIRECTLY, AS HER FATHER REHEARSED EACH NIGHT THE LECTURES WHICH HE WAS TO DELIVER THE NEXT DAY. LITTLE MARIE ABSORBED ALL THAT SHE COULD.

THE RUSSIANS WERE OPPRESSING WARSAW WHEN MARIE REACHED YOUNG WOMANHOOD. RATHER THAN ENDURE THE TYRANNY SHE SLIPPED AWAY TO PARIS TO CONTINUE HER EDUCATION WITHOUT FEAR OF WAR LORDS.

Feathered Facts And Fancies

WRITER OF LETTER IS PROVED "FAKE"

Cannot Prove American Citizenship of 'Boardman' Say Consul and Paper.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Aug. 4.—(British United Press.)—As residents of this city suspected, the so-called American Boardman who stirred up a veritable hornet's nest by writing a letter to the Sydney Sun denouncing Great Britain, has proved a fake. Following a protest by the United States Consul General, Ezra Lawton, that Boardman was not an American, the Sun immediately instituted inquiries "which failed to satisfy us as to Boardman's American citizenship."

Mr. Lawton then issued a statement that Sydney's American colony was too well treated to have any such views as those expressed by Boardman, adding, "Now that he has been proved a fake, I hope the writers of the letters replying to Boardman will forget the harsh things said in the heat of argument and natural resentment."

The letter responsible for all the trouble referred to Britain as an Empire" which murdered and robbed all."

On her way home after decorating the graves of relatives, Mrs. William Taylor, Sherbrooke Street, slipped on the steps beside the fountain in Little Lake Cemetery, and fractured her arm near the shoulder.

Two passers-by, Mrs. Victor Hamilton and Mrs. Watson, went to the assistance of the injured lady, who is 87 years of age. Mr. Milligan hurried her in his car to the Clinic, and after she had been given medical treatment, took her to her home.

She is now making satisfactory progress.

NINE MEN MISSING.

CLAY, Ky., August 4 (Canadian Press). — Three unidentified bodies were found early to-day by rescue workers in No. 7 Mine of the West Kentucky Coal Company, when an explosion occurred yesterday. The total number of known dead is seven, with nine men still missing.

IN POLICE COURT

There was quite an Asiatic array in the prisoner's box in Police Court this morning when five Chinese appeared, charged with being in a place where smoking and inhaling of opium was being carried on.

Last night Sergeant Thomas and three officers raided a Chinese laundry at 348 Charlotte Street, and found the five men in the building and the room blue with opium smoke. A full array of opium pipes and other smoking utensils was found.

Four of the men pleaded guilty to the charge of being in a room where opium smoking was going on and were fined $20.00, and $6.75 costs.

J. W. Reid appeared for the prosecution, and asked that the fine be not too heavy, as the Chinese in this city are usually law-abiding men, but it is when one from another city comes in that they get into trouble.

Hum Tor, who comes rfom Montreal, was fined $25.00, and $6.75 costs, as he was considered the ring-leader of the outfit.

A fifth man pleaded guilty to selling opium, but he was remanded for a week.

WEDDING BELLS.

BLACK—SHAW.

On Wednesday, August 3rd, Charlotte Luella Shaw, second daughter of Mrs. S. Donnelly and the late Robt. Shaw of Millbrook, was married to Mr. Morley Munro Black, of Liverpool, Kingston Road, eldest son of Rev. A. J. and Mrs. Black of Plainfield. The marriage took place in Plainfield, the groom's father officiating, only the immediate families being present.

The bride, who was given away by her mother, wore a French sleeveless frock of ivory and yellow figured chiffon, having a tiered skirt banded with pale yellow georgette, and yellow hat. Parchment blonde coat, with kid shoes and gloves to match, completed the bride's costume.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Black left on a motor trip to Buffalo, Detroit, and other points, after which they will reside at Liverpool, Kingston Road.

SHARPE—TAYLOR.

Saint Paul's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday when, at one o'clock, the Rev. Mr. Rodgers, of Toronto, in the presence of about forty friends, united in marriage Miss Jean Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Taylor, 313 Bethune street, and Mr. Ormond L. Sharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sharp, George street.

The altar of the church was daintily decorated with baskets of sweet peas and maiden hair fern.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march, played by Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, looked charming in a dress of yellow georgette, with hat to match, and blonde shoes and stockings. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and wore a three strand string of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her attendant, Miss Winnie Taylor, of Sebringville, was dressed in poudre blue georgette, with blonde hat, shoes and hose. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Allan Sharpe.

The ushers for the occasion were Mr. Fred Elliot and Mr. Allan Sharpe.

After the wedding a reception was held at the bride's home, where the decoration schemes were beautifully carried out in pink and white.

After a dainty buffet luncheon, catered by Hoopers, Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe left on the 3.30 train for Toronto, Niagara and other points. The bride travelled in a dress of Grecian rose with white sport hat and a black satin coat trimmed with white fox.

Out of town guests present were Mrs. Wescott and daughter of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Elliott, of Lindsay, Mrs. Dave Elliott of Belleville, Miss Winnie Taylor of Sebringville, and Mrs. Douglas of Warsaw.

Among the many useful and beautiful gifts received by the young couple was a set of community silver, presented to the bride by the members of the staff of the Sun Life Insurance Company, where Miss Taylor was formerly employed. Previous to her marriage the bride was made the recipient of many beautiful gifts at a miscellaneous shower given for her by the members of the combined staffs of the Sun Life Insurance Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe are expected home about the fifteenth of August. They will live at 313 Bethune street.

BOYS' CAMP IS GREAT SUCCESS

Rev. H. B. Neal, Wooler, is the Chairman of First Northumberland Boys' Camp.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

The first boys' camp ever held in Northumberland convened in the beautiful maple grove on the south drive of Presquile Point on July 7 to 14.

From every point of view the camp was a great success and the interest and enthusiasm of the boys was indicative of their appreciation of having the privilege of a week in such a suitable and beautiful place under capable leaders in a helpful program.

Eighty boys and leaders quite representative of the county were present. There were boys from Campbellford, Wooler, Baltimore, Grafton, Brighton, Smithfield, Castleton and Hilton.

The idea of a camp for Northumberland was suggested at Wooler, at the time of the Boys' conference last autumn. Rev. H. B. Neal of Wooler was elected chairman of the camp committee, and since that time has worked and planned for the camp. In April there was a meeting of the camp committee at Warkworth when sub-committees were appointed to help on the work of the camp. The site of the camp, Presqu'Ile Point, was finally selected as the most suitable though not the most central for the county.

Rev. H. B. Neal made a very happy choice in choosing Rev. R. H. Rickard, junior principal of Albert College, Belleville, as camp director. Rev. Rickard gave the camp most excellent service in that part of the camp activities.

Rev. J. W. Edwards of Brighton, as business manager, made a great contribution to the success of the camp.

On the first afternoon of the camp, the whole camp was organized according to tribes, each tribe having a big chief, a little chief and a number of braves. The following were the tribes: Mohawk, Cayuga, Sioux, Cree, Onondagas, Chippewa, Wolves, Blackfeet and Owls.

Each day's program consisted of morning worship, Bible study, recreation, baseball, swimming, nature study, hikes and the closing campfire talk.

The camp was very fortunate in having Orval Killey of Warkworth give them very interesting and helpful talks on Canadian birds and to illustrate his talks with a splendid set of slides.

Mr. C. F. Plewman of the Boys' Work Board visited the camp.

Mr. Chas. A. Cooke, of Ottawa, gave a splendid concert on Wednesday evening to the boys and their friends.

The meals of the camp were all that could be desired. There were lots of good things well prepared by the camp cook, Mrs. W. McColl of Wooler.

Everybody went away from camp feeling that it was a great week of fellowship and most helpful in preparation for the big things of life. The camp committee is looking forward to another camp next year, and even a better one than this year, if that is possible.

The chairman of the camp committee, Rev. H. B. Neal, and the members of the committee are greatly pleased with the first undertaking of its kind in Northumberland. The equipment and tents are to be left for the first Northumberland girls' camp, which moved in the morning the boys' camp broke up.

The camp committee wish to thank the parents of the boys, the leaders and the commission and all who helped make the camp a success.

C.N.R. CROSSINGS ARE IMPROVED

A Good Job Has Been Done at Simcoe and Charlotte Streets.

PAVEMENT LAID.

The city and the C. N. R. are to be congratulated on the greatly improved condition of the railway crossings at Charlotte and Simcoe streets. For years it seemed impossible to do anything to make them fairly passable for any length of time, but now motorists can find no fault with their condition. The Hunter strseet crossing is being put in the same good shape.

IN MEMORIAM.

HUDSON.—In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. William E. Hudson, who died August fourth, 1913.

"Yes, she sleeps, but not forever,
In a lone and silent grave;
Blessed promise she shall waken,
Jesus died the lost to save.
In the dawning of the morning,
When the troubled night is o'er,
All the buds in beauty blooming,
Will rejoice to see her more."

—Inserted by her Daughter Minnie.

IN MEMORIAM.

In ever loving memory of my dear daughter, Jeannie Watterson who passed away Aug. 4th, 1922:

Time may fade from year to year
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I love
From memory fade away.

As I loved her so I miss her,
In my memory she is near,
Loved, remembered, longed for always
Bringing many a silent tear.

TWO GERMAN PLANES READY FOR OCEAN HOP

Flight Will Be Made By Two Specially Built Junker Planes.

CARRY THREE MEN.

Expected Start Will Be Made From Dessau Within Ten Days.

DESSAU, Germany, August 5.—Its enthusiasm fired by the three American flights to Europe and especially by the Chamberlin and Levine flight to Kottbus, Germany has accepted America's challenge in the air.

The Junkers Airplane Company at Dessau to-day officially announced the impending flight of two all-metal monoplanes from Dessau to New York within a week or ten days. Each plane will carry three men and will hop off within the time specified, weather permitting.

This most difficult flight— more difficult even than the Chamberlin flight, because of the adverse wind conditions which have to be battled by a longer stay in the air and consequent use of more gasoline—will be participated in by two specially built Junkers planes, the Europa and the Bremen.

The flight is being backed by the newspapers of William Randolph Hearst, the American publisher; the North German Lloyd Steamship Company and the Darmstaedter and National Bank.

Correspondent Passenger.

In his desire to aid in the development of trans-Atlantic aviation as well as aid in the securing of better understanding between nations, Mr. Hearts has offered a total of $33000 toward making possible the flight. Fifteen thousand dollars is being paid outright for the privilege of sending a correspondent along in one of the planes as the first correspondent passenger in a trans-Atlantic Personnel Of Planes.

A second $15,000 is being offered as a prize for the first airplane which reaches the American continent from continental Europe. The remaining $3,000 is offered as a prize for the second airplane to reach the American continent from continental Europe.

The personnel of this first attempt at a dual flight across the Atlantic and the first attempt to fly to America from continental Europe since the ill-fated Nungesser-Coli flight, will be as follows:

The "Europa"—Pilot, Johann Ristics; navigator, Cornelius Edzard; and passenger, Hubert R. Knickerbocker.

The "Bremen"—August Loose, captain; Hermann Koehl, observer pilot; and Baron Behrenfriend Gunther Von Huenefeld, passenger.

The twin trans-Atlantic planes virtually are ready to take off now. The roar of their propellers in the trial endurance flights periodically interrupted final conferences which led to the Junkers' public announcement to-day that the flight would take place and that the sole newspaper rights to the stories of all concerned in the two planes would be the property of the Hearst newspapers alone.

ANCIENT ROAD FOUND IN ROME

Relics To Be Left Just Where They Were Uncovered.

VALUABLE FINDS.

ROME, Aug. 5.—Important archaeological discoveries in the area of the capital were made recently during the demolition of some municipal buildings. Traces of a road believed to be the original Clivus Capitolinus have been found on the slope of a hill where the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus once stood.

The discovery included building materials, pottery and other archaeological fragments dating from the sixth century.

The location of the road is expected to throw important light on the topography of the ancient city. All the objects found will be left on the spot where they were unearthed, according to a decision by the governor of the city.

Four boys pleaded guilty this morning to shooting crap on Sunday last in the Township of North Monaghan and were fined $5.00 and $5.65 costs each.

A local man changed his plea this morning from not guilty to guilty in the charge of non-support of his wife and family and was let go on suspended sentence, providing he pays the costs and gives a guarantee that he will pay his wife $12.00 a week.

Swiss Hotel Swept By Water Avalanche

GENEVA, August 5. — A mountain torrent whose waters were full of boulders, mud and trees, descended upon Venyutaux, near Montreux, yesterday, and swept through the Hotel Richelieu, gardens, and promenades into the Lake of Geneva, causing heavy damage.

The hotel was full of guests, including a number of Americans, when the torrent entered suddenly, driving them to the higher floors for safety. Trees hurled against them smashed the doors and windows of the basement, and the lower floor, containing salons ,dining and smoking rooms, was quickly flooded and covered with debris.

PRINCES ARRIVE AT BROCKVILLE

No Ceremonies Planned at Island City—Leave For Kingston.

LITTLE HAND-SHAKING.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 5. Canadian Press.' — The Prince of Wales and Prince George arrived here at 10.45 a.m., a couple of hours ahead of Premier Baldwin, and left almost immediately for golf at the country club.

At Smith's Falls and other points along the route from Ottawa crowds were gathered to see the royal train go by. Rain fell as the train arrived here but in a few moments it cleared away, the sun shone again and the royal brothers appeared in grey flannels; ready for the links.

They drove away preceded by motor cycle riders.

Premier Baldwin and party arrived in the second section of the train, and with the Princes, were guests of Mrs. G. T. Fulford at luncheon.

This afternoon, the party visits the Thousand Islands en route to Kingston.

The reception of the two princes at Brockville was purely informal. There were no addresses of welcome.

Presentations Limited.

TORONTO, August 5. Canadian Press. — Only a chosen few will be allowed to shake hands with the Prince of Wales at the civic reception to be tendered him on a visit to Toronto to-morrow according to the plans arranged by the civic authorities.

To save the prince from the handshaking ordeal a small stand will be erected for the Princes' party, and another for the members of the Council, and the Board of Education, and members of the Provincial Parliament.

BRITISH AIRMEN START AUG. 15

Go To Amsterdam To-day To Get Plane For Ottawa Flight.

PLAN RETURN TRIP.

LONDON, Aug. 5 (United Press).—On August 15th Leslie Hamilton, the "Aerial Gypsy," and Colonel F. M. Minchin, an Imperial airways pilot, who is regarded as the best flying navigator on the London-Paris route, hope to start from Baldonnel, near Dublin, on a flight to Ottawa.

The two airmen are flying to Amsterdam to-day for the machine in which they will attempt the flight.

Col. Minchin will fly the monoplane, which was constructed in Amsterdam, back to Croydon, and thence to Bristol, for tuning up the Bristol Jupiter engines. If the flight to the Canadian capital is successful, they will fly back to Europe in an attempt to break Clarence Chamberlin's long-distance record.

Marathon Motorist Arrives at Ottawa

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 5.—(Canadain Press.)—Chained to the steering wheel of his car, Jack Vance, long distance endurance driver from Los Angeles, arrived in Ottawa from Toronto at 7.30 last night, having made the journey via Prescott in six and a half hours.

Starting from Los Angeles on July 6, the marathon motorist has made 8,463 miles of a 25,000 mile trip he has undertaken under the auspices of the International Fire Chief's Association whose convention at Portland, Maine, he expects to attend from August 7 to 8.

His itinerary comprises all of the States of the Union as well as the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and possibly Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

NO CONFERENCE PREFERABLE TO GREAT FAILURE

British Papers Say Britain Alone Was Willing To Compromise.

POOR PREPARATION.

American Refusal To Concede Anything Blamed For Failure at Geneva.

LONDON, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press Cable).—It would have been better to have had no conference at all than that it should have failed.

The British delegates alone showed themselves prepared for compromise.

The conference was convened without sufficient preliminary spare work.

These are the three main points upon which opinion here is agreed, both by newspapers and by unofficial indications of diplomatic feeling in London with regard to the breaking up of the tri-partite naval conference at Geneva.

The majority of the papers represent the collapse as being due to American refusal to accept the British plan or to make any concession. Elsewhere, it is contended, that the failure was due to lack of preparation beforehand and allowing naval experts to handle a question which belongs to statesmen.

British Disappointed

LONDON, Aug. 5 (By H. Bailey, United Press Representative).—Lack of preparation rather than opposing policies is held responsible in official quarters here for the failure of the Geneva tri-partite conference, and the disposition to place the blame on the Americans is confided to a few newspapers of private opinion.

It is recognized that if a naval armament race does not intervene, there are hopes that the 1931 conference will be resumed under better conditions.

British disappointment especially in Government circles, is intense and there is no inclination to participate in a naval armament race, which would be too costly and not likely approved by public opinion here so long as British security was not menaced.

DRUG ADDICT DIES IN ROOM

Had Apparently Taken Overdose of Chloroform—Coroner Investigates.

FOUND BY LANDLADY.

TORONTO, Aug. 5. — A woman answering to the name of Currie was found dead in an attic room on Pembroke Street at 6 o'clock last evening. She is believed to have succumbed to an overdose of chloroform. She was about 35 years old. The body was removed to the Morgue. Coroner Dr. Burgess is investigating the case.

According to Mrs. Snell, who conducts a rooming house at the above address and who found the lifeless body, the Currie woman came there yesterday morning and engaged a room. She went out sometime after 8.30 a.m. and returned about half-past nine. About one o'clock Mrs. Snell heard her in her room. Three hours later she went upstairs and saw the woman lying on the bed sound asleep.

Becoming suspicious that there was something wrong when the woman did not come downstairs at 6 o'clock, Mrs. Snell went up to call her and found her dead. She immediately notified the police and P. C. White of No. 4 division visited the scene. He found eleven empty bottles in the room which had contained chloroform. The theory of the police is that the woman was a drug addict and took an overdose which proved fatal.

So far the only belongings the police can locate are the clothes she had on her and a large white apron which she carried with her when she engaged the room. A wound on the end of her nose had evidently healed but very recently. Mrs. Snell says that it was partially hidden beneath a heavy coat of powder yesterday morning.

Nine Youths Propose Marriage to Ileana One Offers Rumanian Princess "Cozy Home"

BUCHAREST, Roumania, August 5 (Associated Press. — Since Queen Marie announced that she would not object to Ileana marrying an American, provided she really loved him, the 18-year-old Princess has received nine proposals of matrimony from youths in different parts of the United States.

One swain in a rural district of Indiana promised not only to honour, love and obey Europe's prettiest Princess if she married him, but pledged to her his ten-acre farm, six cows, an automobile, two buggies, and a sleigh.

Another admirer, this one in New York State, wrote that he had no title, fortune, or fame to offer her, but would give her all his love and devotion, and in addition a cosy home.

A third American, who sought the royal hand and heart, said that, having seen Her Highness during her visit to the United States, he was sure she was just the girl for him, and that he believed he could make her happier than if she became a Queen.

Ileana, however, has rejected all these and other proposals, declaring she will not marry for at least five years. She is now President of the Young Women's Christian Association of Roumania, and plans to devote all her time to betterment of the welfare of the girls of her country. She desires also, now that her father is dead, to stay at her mother's side and give the Queen all the help and encouragement possible.

Although she has rejected the proposals, Ileana has nothing but friendly feelings for the American boys, she declared.

"I like them for their gallantry and chivalrous attitude toward womankind," she said to-day. "They were all just lovely to me when I was in America, especially the military cadets."

ENGLISHMAN SWIMS CHANNEL

E. H. Temme, of Cornhill, Crosses in 14 Hours, 27 Minutes.

FIRST ATTEMPT.

DOVER, England, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—E. H. Temme, an Englissh swimmer, succeeded today in the first attempt of the season to swim the English Channel. Taking off from Cape Griz Nez this morning, Temme landed two miles west of Dover.

Temme is captain of the Cornhill Swimming Club and has thrice won the Essex long distance championship. He is 22 years old, stands 5 feet 2½ inches, and weighs about 200 pounds.

He used a trudgeon stroke for the successful Channel swim and was escorted by the Boulogne tug Assace. The water was warm and the sea calm when he entered the Channel from Cape Gris Nez in the darkness.

By five o'clock he was five miles out, heading strongly for Dover. At 10.45 he was reported still in good condition and by one p.m. he had ploughed to within two and a half miles south of Admiralty Pier at Dover.

An hour later his steady stroke had gained another mile. Temme's time, as computed by representatives of Lloyd's, was fourteen hours, twenty-seven minutes. This has been beaten by Ernest Vierkoetter, Georges Mechel, and Norman Leslie Durham, all of whom made their successful attempts last year. Mechel hold the record of eleven hours five minutes.

Police and military reinforcements were needed to quiet the disturbance, which resulted from obstruction of a Hindu procession.

Man Risks Life Saving Canary

WINDSOR, Aug. 5. — While firemen fought flames which threatened his home at 307 Pitt street west at noon yesterday, L. A. Drouillard, 55 years old, entered through a dense smoke and rescued the family canary. The incident was witnessed by several hundred persons who had been attracted by the smoke.

The rescue was apparently just in time, for as Mr. Drouillard carried the cage containing the canary into the street the bird was showing signs of distress from the smoke.

The fire was confined to the upper part of the house. Its cause was undetermined.

CORONER FACES CRIMINAL CASE

Surrenders To Court and Is Given Bail—Negligence Charged.

CAR KILLED BOY.

TORONTO, August 5 (Canadian Press).—Surrendering himself to face a charge of criminal negligence, Dr. W. L. Bond, county coroner, voluntarily entered the County Court Building here to-day. He appeared before Magistrate Brunton, and after serving plea and election was released on bail of five thousand dollars until August 25.

The charge was laid in connection with an accident near Newmarket on July 24, when Dr. Bond's car struck the rear of a parked automobile and killed Ross Lavin, 14, Toronto, who was standing at the rear of the car, obscuring the tail light.

NEXT POULTRY CONGRESS TO BE HELD IN 1930

Board Decide To Hold Next Exhibition in London, England.

WILL TOUR DOMINION.

Many Matters Cleared Up at Final Meeting of Executors.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press). — Chairmen of the various committees met with the executive of the World's Poultry Congress yesterday afternoon, cleared up many matters arising from the week's session and exhibition, listened to reports on work of committees and heard a parting message from Edward Brown of London, England, President of the Congress just closed.

From all those who presented reports came expressions of appreciation for the assistance they had received from all Canada in the carrying out of the great international show.

Mr. Brown, in taking farewell of his confreres, stated the only difficulty he could foresee was that Canada had staged the 1927 Congress on such a magnificent scale, that any foreign nation would be terrified in inviting a future Congress.

"The success of the 1927 Congress is reverberating round the world," stated Mr. Brown, "we have been making history here—history in the advancement of the human race."

The next Congress in 1930 will be held in London, England.

Tour Dominion

This morning, the World's Poultry Congress trans-Canada train sets out from the Union Station. There will be 124 persons aboard; six in the private car occupied by the Hon. W R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, and 118 others in special sleepers. The first stop will be Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, where an honorary degree will be conferred on Mr. Brown by McGill University.

The tour will then proceed to the Maritimes, and after a day in Charlottetown, will turn westward, touching first at Winnipeg. The complete itinerary of the poultrymen has not been made known.

The tour will end at Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, where the party will be guests of the directorate.

BOY IS KILLED BY FALL IN BARN

Falls From Top of Load of Hay, Dislocating His Neck.

AT SAULT STE. MARIE.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Aug. 5. —One of life's tragedies fell heavily on the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kiney of Gore Bay when their little son, Scott, aged 9 years, fell from a load of hay that was being conveyed to the barn on their farm and was killed. It appears that the boy was standing against the front ladder of the hayrack when the top bar gave away, frightening the horses, and in the plunge they made forward the little fellow was hurled forward, falling in front of the wagon, and in some manner the neck was dislocated, supposedly by coming in contact with the axle.

BARN AND SHED ARE DESTROYED

Thomas Jones, of Orange Corners Suffers Severe Loss By Fire.

NO STOCK LOST.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Augfiust 5.—The barn, driving shed, and stable on the farm of Thomas Jones, on the Second Line of Emily, near Orange Corners, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin last night about 6.30. The season's crop of hay, a binder, and a plough were also burned. The total loss amounted to several thousand dollars, with some insurance carried.

Mr. Jones and his son were away helping a neighbour at the time, Mrs. Jones, her daughter, and some visitors had just finished supper, when the little girl, who had gone out into the orchard, saw smoke coming from the barn. She told her mother, who gave the alarm, and summoned a large number of neighbours, whose efforts were unavailing.

The house is only a short distance from the barn, but the wind carried the sparks away from it. No live stock was destroyed.

There are nearly twice as many married persons over 15 years of age as there are single ones. There were 43,000,000 married persons in the United States in 1920.

WAR BETWEEN THREE POWERS UNTHINKABLE, SAYS DELEGATE AT CLOSING OF GENEVA SESSION

Gibson Sees No Reason Why Agreement Should Not Be Reached Shortly.

ADOPT DECLARATION.

Suggest Direct Negotiations Between Governments For Reconciliation of Views.

GENEVA, Switzerland, August 5. —Canadian Press. — War between Great Britain, the United States and Japan, is unthinkable, declared Hugh Gibson, chief representative of the United States, at the closing session of the tripartite naval conference yesterday. Hence there is no reason, he added, why an agreement which has not been obtained at Geneva, should not be reached shortly as the result of direct negotiations between the governments for a reconciliation of the divergent views.

The burial ceremony of the conference, held in the presence of a large assemblage, was carried out without the employment of words of recrimination and as W. C. Bridge man, head of the British delegation, said: "We are not dispersing in a spirit of bitterness or despair."

When the conference adjourned sine die, after the adoption of a joint declaration suggesting direct negotiations between the governments, Mr. Bridgeman walked up the stairs of the hotel Des Bergues, in whose ball room the last act of the naval drama was played, to the private offices of Mr. Gibson, and shook his colleague warmly by the hand. This was hailed as an indication that the First Lord of the British Admiralty believed the differences between the United States and Great Britain, manifested at the conference, were nothing more serious than a slight family difference.

Admiral Saito, distinguished member of the Japanese delegation, joining in the thought of Mr. Gibson and Mr. Bridgeman, declared in a valedictory address that he for one declined to view the results of the conference as a rupture of negotiations He was convinced, he affirmed vigorously, that in some form or another, attempts to limit extravagance and competition in naval building already limited in practice by common sense, will continue and eventually succeed.

Summarize Viewpoints.

The joint declaration adoption of which involves automatic adjournment of the conference, represents an effort to summarize the viewpoints of the three delegations on the matters on which they agreed, and on those on which they disagreed. The declaration shows that the conference was wrecked on two points: first, that of total tonnage limitation for cruisers, on which the British and the Americans were unable to attain an accord; second, on the problem of so-called eight-inch gun cruisers.

The declaration emphasizes that the British while proposing limitation of the size of warships of all classes, opposed the principle of limitation by total tonnage alone. This opposition was based on the ground that the largest ship and the heaviest gun permissable must inevitabecome the standard.

The declaration shows that the British desired first, a strict limitation of the number of ten thousand ton, eight inch gun cruisers, and, secondly, the establishment of a secondary type of cruiser of a minimum displacement of 6000 tons, carrying guns of a maximum calibre of six inches. Furthermore it shows that the United States delegation insists on liberty of action to build, within the total tonnage allocation, the number and type of cruisers that the United States wanted.

Hold Conference in 1931.

It is suggested in the declaration that the second Washington conference to be held in August, 1931, to determine whether scientific development, justify modifications in the characteristics of warships, be advanced to an earlier date. This suggestion is made with the idea that any conclusions reached at the Washington Conference might go into effect before the capital ship construction programmes commence in November of that year. The declaration then registers the conviction that the obstacles encountered at Geneva should not be interpreted as terminating the effort to secure their limitation of naval armaments.

Then, incorporating the hopes previously expressed by Mr. Gibson, Mr. Bridgeman and Admiral Saito, the declaration insists that the extent of the agreement reached and the work achieved in the clarification of the respective positions will make it possible, for governments later to reconcile their divergent views and attain an agreement at an early date for the limitation of auxiliary naval vessels. This, it says, would not only admit of economy but promote a feeling of mutual confidence and good understanding while simultaneously safeguarding national security.

These expressions of good-will which characterized the final proceedings were partly the result of earnest Japanese counsel for moderation in the closing addresses. They were also partly the result of an appeal voiced at Tuesday night's meeting of the plenipotentiaries that nothing be allowed to creep into the final meeting which would endanger

GEORGE MERLE HANGED TO-DAY

Dies at Montreal For Murder of Fellow Countryman.

CALM TOWARD END.

MONTREAL, August 5. — Canadian Press. — George Merle, a native of France, was hanged in Bordeaux Jail here this morning for the murder of Andre Marelle, also a native of France, late last December.

The crime was committed following a quarrel over the affections of a woman.

In contrast to his conduct during the trial Merle was extraordinarily calm. Thirty seconds after he stepped from his cell to the scaffold the trap was sprung. Thirteen minutes later life was pronounced extinct by the prison doctors, and the body was cut down.

According to the prison officials, Merle took the news of his fate quietly when he learned yesterday that his reprieve had been refused by the authorities at Ottawa. He slept peacefully last night and attended mass early this morning. His only protest came yesterday, it was stated, when he heard tests being made of the trap in the prison yard.

As the prison bell commenced to toll Merle was marched out of his cell and submitted to the shackling of his hands without any outward sign. He was quiet, his face composed, and he even thrust out his hands for the strap to be placed around his wrists.

As he reached the scaffold Merle placed his head through the noose before the black cap had been placed on his head. It was withdrawn but a few minutes later as he was repeating prayers after Abbe Verschelder the prison chaplain, the trap was sprung, and his dying prayer was strangled on his lips.

GERMAN PLANE BREAKS RECORD

Stays in the Air 52 Hours and 23 Minutes Near Leipzig.

BEATS U. S. MARK.

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press)—Junker W-33 aeroplane, after being in the air in an endurance test since early Wednesday morning, shuttling between Dessau and Leipsic, came to earth at 10.13 this morning. Officials of the Junker Works claimed that the plane beat the U.S. endurance record of 51 hours 11 minutes 25 seconds set up by Clarence Chamberlin and Bert Acosta.

Unofficially, the take-off of the plane was given as 5.50 Wednesday morning. This would make the new endurance record, if confirmed, 52 hours, 23 minutes.

ROBT. F

OFFERS SPE

ED TO CHAIR.

BOSTON, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Although Gov. Fuller has refused to extend executive clemency to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, principals in a famous murder trial, the long battle to save the lives of the two men has not ended.

Yesterday while the minutes of the last week of life for the condemned men ticked away, it became known that the attorneys who had fought their case before the State Supreme Court and the Governor had retired, and that new counsel had been retained to take any furtner legal steps possible to cheat the electric chair.

Arthur D. Hill, Boston lawyer, who formerly was associated with Fred Moore of California in the Sacco Vanzetti defence, was selected as the new attorney. He refused to discuss reports that the United States district court or the United States Supreme Court would be approached in an effort to stay the hand of the executioner.

"I have been consulted with a view to seeing what steps of a legal nature, if any, can be taken in the circumstances," he said. "It is not possible at this time to make any further statement."

The retirement of William G. Thompson and Herbert E. Hermann, who have had charge of the defence in the proceedings before the Supreme Court looking to a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti was placed on the ground that new counsel would be "untrammeled by the committments of the past and to less disturbed than we by a sense of injustice."

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press.) — The body of Earl MacDonald, who with his companion James Birnie, was drowned while canoeing on the Winnipeg river, has been recovered. The decomposed remains were dragged from the river near the spot here the overturned canoe was found. The two youths left Malachi, Ont., on June 2nd, for a holiday in the Red Lake district.

STOLEN CATTLE FOUND IN SWAMP

Police Find 30 Animals on the Farm of Edward Hickland, at Beeton.

THINK RING ACTIVE.

BEETON, Ont., Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Provincial police officers at a late hour last night discovered hidden away in a dense swamp at the rear of the Edward Hickland farm, some thirty head of cattle, allegedly stolen from local farmers.

The officers who made the discovery picked out seven head of cattle which had been stolen two days before the murderous attack on Alex. Hodge on his farm here on the night of July 22. The seven cattle belong to Daniel O'Leary of Adjula Township. The officers managed to get six of the animals out of the swamp.

Police are of the opinion that previous to the killing of Daniel Forsythe, a wholesale cattle-stealing and vending business was carried on in the district by persons as yet unidentified.

A microscope which give a magnifying power of 3500 and will show the interior organs of a microbe, recently was exhibited to the Royal Society in London.

ACTION IS EXPECTED.

Communists Condemn Criticism Now That Their Position is Unstable.

MOSCOW, Aug. 5.—The preliminary bombardment against the Opposition is now thundering along the whole front and the zero hour for the attack that may expel Leon Trotsky and Gregory Zinovieff from the Central Committee of the Communist party is expected.

Yesterday Lenin's widow, Mme. Krupskaya, herself at one time a member of the Opposition and of the Society of Veteran Bolsheviki, published anti-Opposition broadsides in the Moscow Press. Mme. Krupskaya, though naturally overshadowed by her illustrious husband, was no unworthy consort to that extraordinary man.

The day after Lenin's death she delivered the most moving and most profound speech of that tragic period. Since then she has engaged in educational and organizational work, particularly in connection with the women's movement which has brought her into close contact with the peasant working masses.

In her speech before the plenary session there were three points of great interest. The first asserts — which I believe to be basically true— that the Opposition leaders have lost touch with mass sentiment and are following the will-o-the-wisp of the so-called revolutionary theory, while Michael Stalin and his associates in the Party Administration are better acquainted with the sweeping changes and developments in the mass opinion in the past two years, and are conducting this policy on lines that promote—whereas the Opposition policy would impede—the Soviet Union's natural growth.

Secondly, Mme. Krupskaya reviews the defiant attitude of the Opposition leaders during the first three days of the plenary session, thus justifying the view that they were rejecting a compromise and trying to force the issue.

Thirdly, Mme. Krupskaya, while admitting the value of the Opposition's criticisms two years ago — "when the situation was relatively stable"—condemns them to-day "in a moment of struggle when it is necessary to tighten the ranks to the utmost against the enemies around us."

Here is actually one of the most powerful trumps the Administration is playing against the Opposition. This is clearly shown in the vehement diatribe of the society of veteran Bolsheviki who flatly accuse M. Trotsky and his friends of defeatism and treachery in a moment of acute political danger. So strong is the emphasis laid on this point that one wonders whether after all the tremendous war scare propaganda that has swept the Soviet Union the past two months is not more nearly connected with the party controversy than is generally imagined, especially when it is remembered that the other powerful trump played by the Administration was the warning that the Opposition's success would be interpreted by Russia's enemies as a swing toward the Left and considerably increase the danger of war.

WOMEN OF SIOUX TRIBE ADOPT THE BOB.

OMAHA, Neb., August 4 (By NEA Service). — Bobbed hair, marcels, manicures, lipstick, and all the rest of the beauty parlour specialties are being adopted by women of the Sioux Indian tribe.

From the Sioux reservation has come Miss Mary Shangreau, full-blooded Indian girl, who is matron of the reservation school, to take a course in beauty culture so that she may go back and make modern flappers out of the straight-haired and unpainted Sioux girls.

For centuries the women had left all frivolity in dress and make-up to the Indian braves ,but the styles followed by their white sisters made them so envious that 150 students in the school petitioned authorities to allow them to bob their hair and use beauty aids. This was done, and now the potential flappers eagerly await the graduation of Miss Shangreau so she may give them everything from facials to permanent waves.

in any way the relations of friendship and render only more difficult the success of future pourparlers.

The fact remains however that despite the friendly phrases embodied in the final addresses and the official declaration the tripartite naval conference has failed. It is true that complete agreement was reached on the size of individual destroyers and submarines and on the size of the guns to be carried by these war craft but on the immense problem of the parley—that of cruisers—the delegates were said to have been as far from accord at the end of the conference as at the start.

CAVAN FARMER LOSES HEAVILY

Spontaneous Combustion Is blamed For Fire in Wilbert Wood's Barn.

LIVE STOCK BURNED.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 5.—Spontaneous combustion from wet hay was apparently the cause of the barn fire at the farm of Wilbert Wood, a short distance west of the village, on Thursday evening, the loss incurred including a valuable calf, eight choice pigs, and about two hundred hens, together with the hay crop, recently stored, and some machinery.

The fire broke out between six and seven o'clock, and made such rapid progress that nothing could be saved from the building. There was some insurance. The wet season has made it very difficult for farmers in this district to draw in their hay, the crop this summer being unusually heavy ;there is grave danger that a considerable quantity of what has been stored in the barns was not thoroughly dry when put in the mow.

BEAM WIRELESS IN USE SHORTLY

High Speed Circuit Being Developed Between New York and London.

LOW WAVE LENGTH.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. — Within a month a high speed directional, or "beam" system of wireless communication will be placed in commercial use between this city and London.

On the basis of tests being made daily in a comparatively short time it will render obsolete the laborious spelling out of words in the dot and dash signals of the Morse code.

Within three years officials of the corporation responsible, believe the system—first brought to public notice by the Marconi Company in England —will link the world's leading cities with radio communication on a facsimile basis.

This means that, with virtually complete secrecy, entire messages will be tossed across the Atlantic and photographically reproduced with a speed more than ten times greater than any heretofore achieved in transmitting trans-oceanic photographs.

In an operation requiring possibly as little as two or three minutes the same result will be attained as if a printed page of a newspaper were torn out and shipped to England by steamship.

Just as the ship would deliver the printed message only at the port for which it was intended, beam wireless for all practical purposes will throw its messages only to the receiving station for which it is meant.

250 Words a Minute

It will do so at a speed equivalent to 250 words a minute or more. When sending in code rather than facsimile there will be no listening in. Speed now available is so great that the human ear could make nothing of it. Only through mechanical means of recording reception and with the receiving apparatus placed in the comparatively narrow path of the beam, could messages be intercepted.

Radio engineers and scientists do not yet know the maximum speed possibilities of short wave, directional communication. The ultimate figure may be greatly in excess of the 250 words a minute now conservatively indicated.

Under the existing system using wave lengths of from 10,000 to 20,000 meters the maximum speed is about 150 words a minute while actual speed in commercial use is about half this figure.

At present a message for London is thrown to the world ,the impulses from the radio transmitter travelling simultaneously in all directions so that anyone with the proper receiving apparatus can pick them up. This is equivalent to shouting to a crowd a message intended for one person in it.

By use of an electrical reflector, the energy of a transmitter, instead of being distributed uniformly through the 360 degrees of a circle, will be concentrated in an angle of about fifteen degrees like a searchlight played upon a distant object.

Wave lengths of from fifteen to thirty metres will be used. Not only will the direction of the impulse be under control, but to some extent the distance travelled.

HUSBAND IS JEALOUS.

Wife Seeks Relief From Loneliness in Marrying Four Men.

KASHAW, Slovakia, Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press). — Olea Chiminetz blames her first husband's "shade" operating from the other world, for her four-fold bigamy.

The husband was jealous, Madame Chiminetz told the court, and forbade her to marry again. She sought relief from loneliness by marrying four men in succession. Each time, however, the voice of the dead first choice reproached her so threateningly that she fled from her new mate, going to another place where she thought she would be hidden, even from the psychic husband. The voice followed her, she testified, and in her flight she neglected to get divorces.

Madame Chiminetz was sentenced to five months in jail—one for each husband.

Photographs now can be satisfactorily developed on a fabric which permits washing and ironing.

Englishmen Are Great Betters

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press).—In England they'll bet on anything. Not merely on the outcome of a sporting event, but on whether a train will arrive on time or whether it will rain at noon.

When the total solar eclipse was approaching, betting odds on whether the weather would be clear fluctuated according to the weather forecast and finally settled at 7 to 2 against. Those who took the small end won.

The latest in wagers is a frantic betting over when a 120-foot chimney at Homerton, a London suburb, will fall. Shortly after the chimney cracked the odds were 2 to 1 that it would stand another week.

OBITUARY.

MRS. GEORGE EGGLETON.

STIRLING, Aug. 5.—Mrs. George Eggleton, after an illness of long duration, passed away on Saturday afternoon. The funeral was held at her late residence, Front street, on Monday afternoon, and the burial was in Stirling Cemetery. Beside her husband, one son, Bert, of Anson, and a daughter, Mrs. Valleau, of Bowmanville, she is mourned by two brothers, one of Buffalo and the other of Mount Forest, N. Y. The deceased was a devout member of St. Paul's United.

JAMES KETCHEN.

BURNBRAE, Aug. 5.—One by one the pioneers of the Burnbrae district pass away, and on Wednesday afternoon another link with the storied past was broken when the late James Ketchen was laid to rest in Burnbrae cemetery.

The deceased, who was in his 80th year, was born at lot 24, concession 7, Seymour, the farm on which he resided most of his life, and raised a large family. A number of years ago he rented his farm and moved to Havelock to be with some of his children there, but always kept in close touch with his many friends at Burnbrae, who now sincerely mourn the passing of one who was always a true friend in time of need. The late Mr. Ketchen was a man of kindly, agreeable and very jovial disposition and it can be truly said of him that he never quarrelled with a neighbor. The six gentlemen who bore him to his last resting place were all neighbors of his younger days and life-long friends. They were Messrs. Alex Hume, M. T. Stephens, James Crossen, Charles Bedford, Alex. Leeson and John Hay.

The funeral party proceeded from his late residence in Havelock to the Burnbrae cemetery, where the interment took place with service afterward in Burnbrae church. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Archer, Mr. Ketchen's pastor, the service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lougheed, of Havelock Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Mr. McKenzie, of Burnbrae. Mrs. G. V. Taylor and Mrs. Geeo. Craighead rendered a beautiful duet during the service.

Besides the sorrowing wife there remains a family of nine children, four boys, James of Havelock, Gilbert of Shaunavon, Sask., John and Alex. of Humbolt, Sask., and five daughters, Mrs. R. Matthews, Rawdon township, Mrs. Saylor, South Bend, Indiana, Mrs. Johnston, Trenton, Mrs. Butters and Mrs. Sarginson of Havelock.

MRS. E. K. WEST.

BONAR LAW, August 5. — The funeral of the late Mrs. E. K. West, who passed away in St. John's Hospital, Toronto, on Saturday, July 30, was held on Tuesday, August 2, from her late residence on the 12th Concession of Rawdon. At 1.30 o'clock, the funeral procession started from her home at the Maple Leaf Cheese Factory to St. Mark's Church, a few rods from her door. Twelve girls carried the floral tributes from the house to the church.

Rev. Mr. Byers officiated, assisted by Rev. Mr. Creegan and Rev. Mr. Payne. Mr. Byers chose as his text, "She is not dead, but sleepeth," which was very comforting to her many friends and relatives. The sermon was helpful and comforting. Mr. Jack Baker sang "Some day the silver cord will break."

Interment took place in Stirling Cemetery.

She leaves to mourn her loss a sorrowing husband, an aged father, two brothers, Clifford and Ward, also one sister, Miss Iva Leury, and a multitude of friends.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Ostrom, George Eastwood, Allen McComb, William Barbour, Harry Haslett, and Hiram Mumby.

Flower carriers were: Misses Grace Stiles, Edna Huff, Edna McKeown, Marjorie McKeown, Mabel Burkitt, Nellie Webb, Marguerite Reid, Kathlene McComb, Leita Mumby, Roma Mumby, Sylvia Lanette, and Karrie Martin.

I'm lame, they push me: little Lisa went,
And I am lonely.

BUGGY SMASHED BY AUTOMOBILE

Mount Pleasant People Badly Shaken in Accident on Middle Road.

MOUNT PLEASANT, August 5. — James Jackson, his daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Boate, with her daughter and niece, had a narrow escape from serious injury when the buggy in which they were riding was struck by a car driven by a man named Morton, of Omemee. The party had been visiting Mr. Jackson's brother, Thomas Jackson of Ida, and was near Henderson's corner, on the middle road, when the accident occurred.

The buggy was completely destroyed. The horse got free, but being blind, did not run very far. Mr. Morton took the occupants of the buggy home, and Dr. Earle of Omemee was called. He found the victims badly shaken up, but with no broken bones.

WILL DISCONTINUE SUNDAY MEETINGS

Long Caused Disquietude Among Supporters of Liberal Party.

LONDON, August 5 (Canadian Press Cable). — It is understood that the Liberal Party has decided that when political propaganda is renewed in the fall there shall be no more of the Sunday meetings which have long caused disquietude among some of the oldest and most influential of its supporters.

Sunday political meetings were started by John Burns, the famous Labourite, in his earliest days at Battersea. The holding by Socialists of Sunday meetings in Hyde Park has provoked a section of the younger Conservatives to start rival meetings there this summer, but it is doubtful if the enterprise receives the entire approval of the elders among Conservatives. For many years Tory organizations up and down the country held small gatherings in public houses, but the practice has now been almost entirely dropped.

Apropos also of Sunday observance, a great amount of agitation has been provoked by the decision at Southend to permit electric greyhound courses to operate on Sundays. It is stated that this is done for the benefit of the thousands of excursionists who regularly invade this seaside resort on the Sababth.

GORE'S LANDING.

GORE'S LANDING, August 5. — Rev. C. M. Crisall is busy making arrangements for the annual regatta to be held at Bewdley on August 10th. A large crowd is anticipated. Among the various sports is the racing of hydroplanes, which has become a very popular feature on Rice Lake this season. No one will want to miss the motor boat shingle scramble, which will provide exceptional excitement.

During the week-end a great number of tourists gathered around the lake, and all available accommodation was taken up.

The haying season is over in this locality, which was an extra good crop, although the heavy rains spoiled some, but no one has suffered. Fall wheat and other grains look very good, in some places is being harvested . Berries, currants, and other fruits are in abundance throughout this district.

Who was to blame?

The driver never intended to hit this chap. He just forgot for a moment that his brakes weren't so very good.

And of course the pedestrian couldn't know. He had taken chances before and got away with it . . . . but the pitcher went once too often to the well.

An Important Question

The question is, can't we (pedestrian and motorist alike) do something to avoid accidents?

Traffic on streets and highways isn't getting any lighter. Accidents will continue to pile up unless . . . . unless we obey the rules!

Let's be human enough to walk—and drive—safely. Let's give the other chap a chance. If we don't—

—some day we may be "the other chap."

CENSORSHIP HAS STRANGE RESULT

Guns, Etc., Are Painted Out On Theatre Posters in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Censorship of theatre posters in Montreal is conducted in a direct and primitive manner which results in startling displays at the entrance of the cheaper motion picture houses. If one object in a pictorial poster contravenes the censorship regulations, the entire sheet need not necessarily be discarded. The offending portion may be painted out, and the picture, thus mutilated, exposed to the unanalyzing eyes of the populace.

Thus a person strolling along St. Lawrence Boulevard may be confronted with a dramatic portrayal of a highly infuriated villain pointing a daub of green paint at an obviously horrified lady. Any amateur Sherlock can deduce that the gentleman is supposed to be pointing a revolver. Revolvers are not allowed in the proximity of ladies in Montreal, so in order to pacify the censors, the manager of the theatre had painted out the weapon.

Frequently the costumes of the "movie" heroines, as portrayed in the posters shock the sensibilities of the guardians of public morals. When this occurs the hardworked paintpot is again called into service and gowns are suitably lengthened and heightened—with little regard to color harmonization or the edicts of feminine fashion.

A display sheet in front of one of the picture palaces on "the Main" which recently puzzled many passersby depicted a gay party in a cabaret. Several of the dresses had been amplified with more prodigality than artistry, but the figure which provoked greatest astonishment was a young buck in evening attire who extended a handless arm into a large splotch of red, the while he leaned confidentially forward as if to whisper light nothings into a phantom ear.

It developed upon inquiry that in its pristine glory the display included a lady whose costume was too decollet to yield easily to artistic adaption. So with one bold stroke of the brush the theatre manager extinguished her entirely—and incidently amputated the hand of her gentleman friend which had been resting on her too-exposed shoulder.

Dice and women may not be associated—that is in the Montreal theatre posters. One frequently comes upon a display sheet upon which three or four very "sporty" looking males are bent intently over a blank table top, while a disapproving matron looks on from the background. One man has his right hand suggestively suspended in the air. But no dice are to be seen—oh dear, no!—the purifying paint brush has done its work.

A few years ago a church society became incensed over a particular poster and declared war, petitioning the city to ban all display pictures from the fronts of theatres. The local Theatre Managers' Association sprang to arms and succeeded in throttling the dire plot in its infancy.

Walking down St. Lawrence Boulevard, which is Montreal's "Bowery," one may be edified by sensational products of the poster designers' art, but one must be prepared for strange mutilations. Guns, girls and gambling, as pictured at the theatre entrances, conform to the literal word of the censorial edict.

JAZZ MUSIC USED TO TEACH TYPISTS

Vancouver Teacher Finds Music Great Aid To Scholars.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 5 (CP).—At the upper end of a long class-room a table phonograph whirls with raucous fervor into the opening bars of "Yes, Sir, She's My Baby." Two score young men and women yield themselves to the rhythmic pulsation of the music, yet, with their feet firmly planted on the floor. It is their fingers that spring into life. A strange, staccato accompaniment swells upon the air as 40 typewriters swing into action, proclaiming to the hurrying jazz that "now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party."

This is no terpsichorean festival, but a regular session of the typewriting class of the Vancouver night schools. No eager young couples swing down the floor, for the scene is laid in a class-room of the Commercial High School and the students seated at the typewriters are too intent upon acquiring mastery of the keys to think of foxtrot steps.

During the past two terms music has proved itself a very important aid in the teaching of typewriting, according to Miss Mary Jones, instructress of the typing class. Students pick up speed far more rapidly when practising to the strains of the phonograph than under the old methods. They are almost forced to keep time with the insidious beat of the music and so acquire certainty and precision of touch in an almost "painless" manner.

Typewriting is only one of half a hundred subjects, including commercial, technical and academic matters, listed in the curriculum of the night classes conducted by the Vancouver board of school trustees for the benefit of those who desire to learn while they work. While it is doubtful whether any of the other classes practise to froxtrots, the most modern methods of instruction are employed throughout the entire system. Enthusiasm prevails everywhere for the majority of these pupils have as the object of their study the increasing of their earning capacity. They realize that greater knowledge means more dollars. All of them are sacrificing a share of their scanty leisure time to this end and are eager to make the most of their opportunity.

At the beginning of last term more than 2,000 persons of all ages and classes enrolled, practically equal numbers taking commercial and technical courses. A wide range of subjects is included under the heading "technical," among the most popular being cabinet work, electrical engineering and radio construction. There are many special classes, such as those in cooking and dressmaking for young housewives and housewives-to-be.

These municipally conducted night classes are increasing in popularity with astonishing speed and W. K. Beech, M.A., director, expects an even larger enrollment this autumn.

RUM RUNNERS MEET REVERSE

Lose Boat and $75,000 Cargo To U. S. Officials—One Man Wounded.

RIVALS TIP OFF POLICE.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Aug. 5.—Local rum runners met with severe reverses when their rum running boat, the "Nyola," carrying a $75,000 cargo, was seized by United States Federal agents at the Goodyear slip, near the Hamburg turnpike and the city line at Buffalo. One man, Claude Anderson, of Buffalo, lies in the emergency hospital at Buffalo after he made an unsuccessful attempt to get away from his captors, as a result of a shot from the revolver of Agent Henry Durrant, who was holding the ten men caught, while his companion, Agent Wallace Caldwell phoned for a patrol wagon.

The rum runners left this port at midnight with one of the most valuable cargoes of the year, consisting of 500 cases of whiskey, 100 cases of Canadian ale, and one hundred cases of gin on the Nyola, their largest craft. One of Port Colborne's most promient runners stated that it was the biggest load they had sent over this year. The United States' prohibition forces were tipped off by members of another bootleggers gang in Buffalo, where there is a feud existing at the present time between two rival factions.

The two prohibition officers waited several hours before the 45-foot liquor-laden craft was sighted, the boat tied up on the north side of the slip and the prohibition agents waited until the men on the trucks started to unload it. Just as they had their third load in their arms the dry agents swooped down and placed the ten men under arrest.

Shot Man in the Leg.

Caldwell then went to telephone for the patrol wagon, leaving Durrant in charge of the men. A few seconds later the men made a dash at Durrant and according to his story, tried to beat him so that they could make their getaway. Durrant drew his revolver and the rum runners, the truck drivers and their assistants made a dash for liberty. Durrant stated that he first fired into the air and called to them to halt, but when they failed to do this he fired at the fleeing men. One of the bullets hit Anderson in the left leg. Seeing the uselessness of attempting to catch the other fleeing men the dry officer turned his attention to Anderson. The injured man was rushed to the Emergency Hospital. His condition is not considered serious.

The men who managed to make their getaway used automobiles which were parked a short distance from the scene of the landing. Following Caldwell's telephone call both Buffalo and Lackawanna police made a thorough serach of the surrounding district but were unable to find any trace of the escaped men.

A local rum runner stated last night that there has been intense rivalry existing between two rival bootlegging factions in Buffalo for some time and that the numerous seizures made in the past few weeks were no doubt due to the fact that each faction tipped off the dry agents whenever they learned that the other gang were to receive a consignment. Outside of the loss of their boat the Port Colborne rum runners do not lose any money by having the cargo seized as payment is made to them before the shipment is made.

Debate Subject, "Resolved, That Business Girl Is Poor Housewife."

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Brave, indeed, are they who take the affirmative in such a debate as this:

"Resolved, that the business girl makes a poor housewife."

This is the topic of a debate which occupied the attention of members of the Central United Church Young People's League, at its meeting in the church hall recently.

THEY NEED ATTENTION.

One condition that opens the way to traffic accidents could be removed if the regulations in regard to fast driving within the city limits were energetically enforced.

On many city streets away from the downtown section the legal limit at which intersections may be crossed is being violated repeatedly.

The police cannot be expected to detect all these infractions of the traffic laws, but they should be able to apprehend enough offenders to cause other drivers to respect the law.

On George street north, for example, car after car shoots across intersecting streets at dangerous speed, and children who happened to get on the roadway would have little chance of escaping these fast-moving machines, the drivers of which seem to believe that so long as cars entering from side streets must be stopped they are safe in speeding.

Appearance in Police Court of some of the most consistent of these law-breakers would have a wholesome effect.

A few minutes' attention to this matter by the police would provide the magistrate with a busy morning's work.

NOT MUCH CHANCE TO REST.

One of the speakers at a luncheon to Premier Baldwin the other day expressed the hope that the British Prime Minister would find both "rest and pleasure" in his tour of Canada.

Pleasure Mr. Baldwin may find, but it is doubtful if he will be able to obtain any rest, so insistent are the calls upon his time and so many the demands that his voice be heard.

Since his arrival in Canada the head of Britain's Government has been kept busy listening to and replying to addresses, and if the programme is maintained at this tempo for the rest of his tour, Mr. Baldwin will be a superman indeed if he does not go back to his responsible duties feeling that he has had nothing that resembled a holiday.

True, he has been showing a plentitude of energy and a happy faculty of discussing some new viewpoint in every speech, but it seems a pity that this statesman whose home duties are perhaps the heaviest that have to be carried by anybody in the Empire should not have a little time for rest during his triumphal tour of the Dominion.

THE PRINCE "ON THE AIR."

The magic of the radio is going to bring the Prince of Wales into the homes of millions of Americans and Canadians on Sunday, so that the people of those communities which are not to have a chance to welcome the heir to the Empire's throne in person will at least be able to hear his voice.

The ceremonies in connection with the official opening of the Peace Bridge are to be broadcast through a "hook-up" of the principal stations on the Continent, a service that will again demonstrate the importance of radio and its value as a means of making the world smaller.

An event that brings together the Prince of Wales, Prince George, Premier Baldwin, Premier Ferguson and Lieutenant-Governor Ross of Ontario, Vice-President Dawes, Secretary of State Kellogg and Governor Al.Smith of New York to unite in honouring the long period of uninterrupted friendship between the United States and Canada, ranks as one of the most important occasions on which the facilities of the broadcasting stations have been called into service, and there is no doubt that the speeches of these outstanding figures will be heard by millions of listeners on Sunday.

SUNDAY'S CEREMONIES.

The Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion will on Sunday carry out its annual ceremonies in connection with the decoration of the graves of former soldiers who are buried in Little Lake Cemetery, and it is hoped that there will be a very large attendance of ex-service men for this most important occasion.

In connection with these ceremonies The Examiner wishes to stress the fact that friends of all Peterborough soldiers who gave up their lives in the World War are invited to pay tribute to their memory by placing flowers on the cenotaph at the Canadian Legion headquarters.

In Toronto when memorial services are held the base of the cenotaph in the City Hall is buried beneath masses of flowers, placed there by loving relatives who have not forgotten the dear ones who have passed on.

For some reason or other, Peterborough people have been decidedly backward in similarly paying tribute to the memory of their war dead, and outside of wreaths placed thereon by the Canadian Legion, the Ladies' Auxiliary and perhaps half a dozen families, the cenotaph is allowed to go undecorated.

It is hoped that on Sunday that many people will honour the memory of Peterborough's unreturning brave by placing their floral tributes at the base of the cenotaph.

NAMES AND NAMES.

Governmental attempts in Italy to limit the liberty of parents in giving names to their children is one of the incidents liable to lead to revolution. Inanimate things in Italy, say the dispatches, belong to the masculine gender with the result that some appalling names have been inflicted upon helpless infants of both sexes and carried by them through childhood, youth and mature life to the grave. The proposed legislation in that country would never do for this land of freedom. Canadians may go on, if they wish, having their children attached to names that horse and dog owners would not insult their animals with. In some instances family prejudices or affection, or diplomacy are responsible for the perpetuation of names that should be chloroformed without compunction, and thrown upon the garbage heap without pity. It often happens that such names are used as a whiplash of ridicule regardless of the qualities and abilities of those who have to carry them. The bearers of these burdens frequently do not themselves display the discrimination their own suffering should teach them, but pass the stupid names on to their own posterity.

There are men and women courageous enough to give themselves new Christian names officially or informally when they don't like those they have. But the happiest way out for people who are thus handicapped, is to have tacked to them a nickname or abbreviation of their full name by schoolmates or youthful companions. These generally stick throughout life, and fit like a glove. For instance, "Scotty" isn't so bad for a fellow whose fond parents had him christened "Loch Lomond," and four other Christian names besides, after a song and a district they were fond of in their courting days. Then we have been told of a perfectly stunning girl who might sign half of her name, if she wanted to be correct, thus "Sunderland Tanner Sarah Bebecca," but who has been "Sunny" since she first went to kindergarten class and will be until she dies.

There are so many splendid names from which to select for children of any class, that one wonders how such a large number get the ludicrous appellations that they do. Perhaps there is need for a nation-wide campaign in the matter, but it would never do to have compulsory legislation as proposed in Italy. That would be interference with the freedom of the subject to an extent that no British Empire people would stand. Therefore, unborn generations of Canadians will have to patiently suffer handicaps and embarrassments unless this generation finds a way of voluntary securing for them assurance that at christening time they will get a reasonably fair deal.—Brantford Expositor.

MISCHIEVOUS PROPAGANDA.

If the views of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor are represented by the editorial articles which are appearing in its newly-established organ, The Canadian Unionist, that body is going to have a difficult time convincing the workers of Canada that their place is in affiliation with it rather than with existing international organizations, and it is going to have an equally difficult time obtaining that sympathy from the general public without which no labor organization can function successfully.

This publication celebrated its debut by lamenting the decision of the Canadian Government to close the offices of the Soviet Trade Mission in this country, in view of the disclosures made concerning the activities of similar agents in Great Britain, thus betraying a certain sympathy with the Communist movement for which the great mass of the public has no use. And it has signalized its second appearance by indulging in a belittlement of the recently-held celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, which it declares to have been "the celebration of sixty years of capitalist government in Canada" and other nonsense. Canada, it says, is "still a country in which the working-man builds palaces and lives in shacks, makes everything and owns next to nothing. . . . . The orgy of mafficking which has been indulged in is unwarranted and shameful, while poverty and distress, hunger and disease, rotten housing and bad sanitation are widespread in the country. It is characteristic of capitalists that they never miss an opportunity to pervert the natural and human enjoyment of a holiday into excesses of jubilation over incidents in the history of an outworn and mischievous economic system. For this purpose alone will they loosen the strings of the public purse and squander money like drunken sailors."

If these statements were not mischievous, they would be ludicrous for their distortion and unfairness. They are certainly libellous upon a country where the relationships between capital and labor are possibly the most harmonious and agreeable in all of the world, and where hundreds of thousands of dollars are being spent out of the public purse annually towards the relief of the workers and the provision for them of social advantages. Since the Canadian Unionist appears to be an admirer of Russia and Russian institutions, its editors should go there, investigate the condition of the workers and compare their lot with those of the men and women who participate in Canadian industry. If they made this journey, we wonder how many Russian workers they would find with good savings bank accounts, houses of their own, motor cars of their own, receiving incomes in many cases not attainable by men who belong to the so-called "middle class" and having every advantage for educating their families, participating in government, indulging in recreation and pleasure and, generally, leading a life of happiness and plenty.

Unless we are greatly mistaken, the views of The Canadian Unionist will be repudiated by very many members of the labor organizations of this country, who feel that, far from being the down-trodden slaves of capitalism, they are being very fairly dealt with, and that in Canada they have a greater opportunity to advance than is afforded by residence in possibly any other land on the face of the globe. They will be acceptable only to the extremists and agitators who flourish upon misrepresentation and false statement and Canada may consider itself extremely fortunate in harboring such a limited number of these individuals.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CELEBRATES ITS CENTENARY

One of Canada's quaintest towns is picturesque Goderich, Ont., which celebrates the centenary of its founding this year. Its layout suggests a cartwheel with the court-house in the centre as a hub and eight streets running out like spokes. Here also is seen one of the two remaining salt works. The production of salt was Goderich's first important industry, but it waned.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—There was no marked improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for grain in the Montreal market yesterday and the volume of business was small, consisting of a few loads of wheat.

Local buyers purchased several lots of 5,000 bushels each of Canadian Western sample oats at c.i.f. prices, but the domestic trade in other lines of grain was quiet and prices were unchanged.

The trade in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour continued quiet but the undertone was steady.

Demand for Millfeed

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for all lines of millfeed owing to the good demand and the limited supplies available. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of fresh eggs were advanced one cent per dozen and indications are that they will go higher in the near future. This was attributed to the scarcity of high grade stock. The receipts were 1,013 cases.

The butter market was without any new feature to note, business being still of a limited character and values were unchanged. The receipts were 1,584 cases.

The local and export demand for cheese continued dull, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 8,826 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Helped by corn markets strength based on pessimistic reports about the crop outlook, all grain prices went higher yesterday. Further uneasiness developed regarding black rust in wheat, owing to warmer weather northwest and evidence that some damage has been done. Wheat closed unsettled ⅝ to ⅞c net higher; corn ⅞c to 1⅛c up; oats showing ⅝c to 1⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Advices at hand showed that cutting would not become general in Canada for a considerable while yet and that in places stem rust is heavy. Besides, according to recent reports, black rust has spread through the eastern half of North Dakota and the outcome relative to late wheat elsewhere in the State is dependent upon weather in the next two weeks. Under such circumstances, the wheat market showed itself responsive to upturns in corn, but best prices for wheat were shaded somewhat by profit-taking as the day neared an end.

Oats, like corn, were affected by unfavorable crop comment, especially from the northwest, where a very uneven yield is looked for.

Despite weakness of hog values, provisions reflected upturns in the price of cotton.

A Thought For To-day

LET'S SMILE.

Earth is smiling now ,let's smile back and rejoice with the flowers and the trees and all the living things of earth. Nature can help us now to acquire the habit of smiling.

Smiling is an expression of gladness, of gratitude, that costs so little and means so much.

Isn't it better to model our faces with the lines that kindly laughter chisels than to wear a mask of indifference or have our poorest self revealed by the scowl and the sneer?

Why let the habitual growl and grumble disfigure, when smiling is a plastic treatment that enchances the countenance of youth and in maturity spiritualizes and beautifies the plainest of features.

It takes from 85 to 150 days for salmon eggs to hatch, the time depending upon the temperature of the water in which they are deposited.

WOMEN MAKE FLAG TO GIVE PRESIDENT

Silk Union Jack Will Be Taken To Rapid City on Good-will Visit.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Winnipeg women have sent a large silk hand-made Canadian flag, to be presented, as a gift from them, to President Coolidge, upon the arrival of the 175 citizens of this city who have gone on a good-will visit to President Coolidge, in the Blackhill district of South Dakota, at the express wish of President Coolidge. The party includes Mayor Ralph Webb, Premier Bracken and President Rumford, of the American Women's club.

The presentation of the handsome flag will take place immediately after the President has received them in Rapid City.

The study of crime is to be carried out in a new college started in San Francisco. The principal degree offered will be that of "Consulting Criminologist."

ELOQUENT ORATORS TO GIVE ADDRESSES

Educationalists From Many Countries Will Meet in Toronto.

TORONTO, Aug. 5. (C.P.)—Eloquent orators from the four corners of the earth will address the second biennial conference of the World Federation of Education Associations meeting in Toronto, August 7-12. Many addresses upon subjects of vital international import are listed in the programme.

Dr. S. N. Chaturvedi, of India, will speak on "The Use of the Periodical Press in the Classroom." Dr. Chaturvedi represents his government on the committee of experts of the International Committee of Intellectual Co-operation, and also the All-India Teachers' Federation. A world-famous rural economist, Dr. Jacob Lange of Denmark, will speak on "Danish Folk High Schools." The vexing problem of military training will be dealt with by E. J. Sainsbury, a leading British educationist.

Among the others who will address the 6,000 educationists will be Dr. M. Sawayanagi, president of the Imperial Japanese Education Association; Dr. W. W. Peter, former director of Council on Health Education, Shanghai, China; Dr. P. P. Claxton, former Commissioner of Education for the United States; Dr. P. W. Kuo, of Nanking, China; M. Lapierre, of France; H. Aisawa, Japan; Dr. A. Cavadas, Greece; G. D. Piroff, Deputy Minister of Education of Persia; Denes Janossey, representing the Ministry of Hungary; Dr. Bruno Koslowski, representing the Ministry of Education of Poland; Dr. Jiri Vranck, Czecho Slovakia; and Alfonso Prumedo, president of the University of Mexico. Such a list gives a slight idea of the international scope of the conference.

Gathering in Convocation Hall, University of Toronto, on the evening of Monday, August 8, the delegates will be welcomed in the name of Canada and of the city by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of Ontario; Premier Taschereau of Quebec; Sir Robert Falconer, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation. These speakers will be replied to by Miss E. R. Conway, J.P., past president of the National Union of Teachers; Dr. Clifton D. Gray, president of Bates College, Lewiston, Maine; Dr. Otto Tacke, of the Bund Kindergarten, Germany; and Hon. Hsiung Hsi-Ling, Pekin, China, ex-premier and president of the National Association of China.

A feature of the conference is the number of brilliant and distinguished women who will be in attendance. These will include Miss Sushama Tagore, president of the Women's Educational Society of India and niece of the famous poet, Rabindranath Tagore, who will speak on "The Universal Sisterhood"; Miss Cornelia Adair, president of the National Education Association of the United States; Dr. Laura Ulrich, of Illinois; Mlle. Susanne Ferriere, representing the International Union of Aid for Children, Geneva, Switzerland; and Madame Dreyfus-Barney, representing the International Council of Women, Paris.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL HAS PROUD RECORD

Miss Lillian Dawson is Actress, Model and Aviator.

MONTREAL, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—To be a film actress, a famous artist's model, and an air pilot by the time one is 14 years old is quite beyond the wildest dreams of the average girl, but little Miss Lillian Dawson, has a record of achievement which many an older member of her sex might envy.

Passing through Montreal with the other members of the Pilgrimage to Lourdes, she seemed just an unaffected little schoolgirl with bobbed blonde hair, simply dressed as befits her age, and quite as enthusiastic about flying and acting as in a former generation girls were about their dolls. She is an honorary pilot and member of the Pittsburgh Aero Club, and has been flying since she was three years of age, and at Roger's Field near Pittsburgh, it is almost an everyday sight to behold her in a little Waco or "Jenny" plane skimming the blue heights above. She expects to fly over Rome with Pinedo.

Miss Dawson has already played in education films. She will take part in the "Story of the Lady of Lourdes" film as Jeanne, the friend of Bernadette. Lillian Dawson won for herself the name of "America's Liberty Bond Baby," and served as model to Charles Dana Gibson, for his Liberty Bond Poster.

Bottomley Gets Record Fee For Articles; Weekly Dispatch Will Pay 1000 Pounds Each

LONDON, Aug. 5 (United Press).—What is regarded as a record price in British journalism is being paid to Horatio Bottomley, journalist and former Member of Parliament, who has just been released from prison, for twenty-seven articles he is contributing to Lord Rothmere's Weekly Dispatch.

The price is understood to be a thousand pounds for each article, although naturally the proprietors of the newspaper refuse to confirm or deny this. They admit, however, that the price is a record one.

This means that for five years in prison Bottomley receives 27,000 pounds, more than the British Prime Minister, at 5,000 pounds a year, earned during the same period.

Meanwhile hundreds of protests are being sent to Lord Rothmere by indignant readers, that Bottomley should be allowed to write for The Weekly Dispatch, and public indignation has been increased by the action of a film company in taking him round London and filming him returning to his old haunts. The film will be shown throughout the country.

The Health-system aid that ABBEY has made

GOOD health, as your doctor will tell you, depends very largely upon getting rid of poisonous body waste matter every day.

The new fine granule Abbey's — the morning health salt — makes a delicious, sparkling health beverage which stimulates the bowels and frees the body of the poisons which are the cause of nearly all illness. It is more pleasant, more effective and more economical than any health saline you have ever used.

All good drug stores sell the new fine granule Abbey's in a stylish new package of blue, grey and white.

ward morally, there is no failure. Success that means stagnation would be failure to the poet .

"Aspire," he says, "break bounds,
Endeavour to be good and better still
And best! Success is nought — endeavour's all."

"What is our failure here
But a triumph's evidence, for the fulness of the days."

"What I aspired to be and was not, comforts me.
A brute I might have been, but would not sink in the scale."

In the philosophy of Browning, there is something heroic and daring. He has no sympathy for the slacker, for the idle dreamer. For this reason, he is good company for the young. In the Statue and the Bust he says:

"Let a man contend to the uttermost
For his life's set prize, be it what it may."

"Be it what it may" is emphatic and inclusive.

"The sin I impute to each frustrate ghost," he says,
"Is—the unlit lamp and the ungirt loin."

Not all great poets are believers in a future life, but Browning felt compelled to accept the doctrine as the only solution of the problem of evil.

Otherwise this world were a hopeless chaos.

"There shall never be one lost good!
What was shall live as before;
What was shall be good,
With, for evil so much good more;
All we have willed or hoped or dreamed of good shall exist,
The high that proved too high, the heroic for earth too hard,
Are music sent up to God by the lover and the bard.
Enough that He heard it once; we shall hear it by and by."

I have been thinking that Browning might well be the patron saint of the Kiwanians. Your mission of goodwill and good cheer is congenial to the spirit of this great prophet. He believed in all-conquering love and you believe in all-victorious benevolence and kindness.

In closing, may I recommend to you the study of Browning's well-known "Rabbi Ben Ezra." It contains his philosophy of life. I have read it again and again, and never without interest and profit. Its message is a stimulant and a source of strength and encouragement.

"Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made;
Our times are in His hand
Who said, 'A whole I planned,
Youth shows but half; trust God; see all nor be afraid!"

Several vocal numbers were rendered by Mrs. Doig, soloist of St.

A vote of thanks was moved by Jack Marshall to the speaker and to the other participants in the splendid programme.

Tom Mark was the booster for the day. Prize-winners were Frank Dawson, Jack Marshall, and Art Moffat. Andrew's Church, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley.

POETRY TO-DAY FOR KIWANIANS

Rev. A. H. McConnachie Speaks on Works of Browning.

SPLENDID ADDRESS.

"Robert Browning," was the theme of a fine address given by Rev. A. H. McConnachie at the regular weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club today Browning is the voice of God to "was one of the greatest poets of his time."

"Some folk have little use for the poets. They are reckoned insipid or difficult or both, and are easily discarded for plain prose. If we will reject the great poets, we miss a great deal, for they are among the prophets. The voice of Tennyson or Browning is the voiec of God to many. In the most profound sense these are Christian poets and modern prophets.

One may freely admit that Browning is difficult. All great reading calls for brain exercise. It is easier to read a dime novel than to read a page of Emerson or Ruskin. If the body is strengthened by wrestling—why not the brain? It repays one an hundredfold to wrestle with Browning.

"I have said that he is a Christian poet. Of that there is not the slightest doubt. His philosophy of life is permeated by the Christian spirit.

He was a great believer in God as Love, and that all Love is of God.

"The loving worm within its clod
Were diviner than a loveless God."

Faith and Doubt are not really opposed in the poet's scheme of life. The one is a stepping-stone to the other. Faith is achieved through doubt. Progress of every kind is the result of conflict. Evil seems necessary to the attainment of the Good.

"Rather," he says, "I prize the doubt,
Low kinds exist without,
Finished and finite clods untroubled by a spark."

If there be a God He must be the infinite Good. Infinite evil is unthinkable. Evil is a negative and relative thing.. Goodness is positive, omnipotent and eternal. Because God is the ultimate good ,the poet believes in the final triumph of the Good:

"God's in His Heaven, All's right with the world."

For this reason, Browning is called an optimist. Love in God, Love in man must triumph. He writes as:

"One who never turned his back but marched forward,
Never doubted clouds would break,
Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph,
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better,
Sleep to wake."

Browning is a practical philosopher. He does not ignore the existence of pain and evil. They seem necessary now to our moral progress. With Paul he would say, "All things work together for our good."

"Put pain from the world, what room were left
For thanks to God or love to man?"

Browning is the poet of all lonely, hard-pressed fighters, who seem to be failures. If we are climbing up-

The winners in the war canoe race were given a close shave by the second canoe, while only the vigorous splashing of the pie-plate crew put them beyond the danger line.

The peppy fight put up in the tilting contest showed the winner to be much at home in a canoe, and the hotly contested outboard motor race left no doubt in the mind as to the true sporting spirit displayed by the competitors.

A float of evergreens on which were the members of the Columbia Orchestra, was majestically towed down from the wharf and anchored to the left of the judges' stand. Some snappy pieces were played at intervals by the band. Much credit is due to the committee and to all others who helped to make the programme such a success.

The judges for the races yesterday were: Messrs. W. H. Bradburn, Walter Oke, W. J. Thompson, J. K. Hughes, and G. McClelland.

The announcers were Dr. Long and G. McClelland, with Dr. McPherson as starter and Roy Dixon as clerk.

In the regatta committee are: Messrs. J. K. Hughes (chairman), Roy Dixon (secretary-treasurer), H. Bradburn, G. Eastwood, R. J. Breyfogle, Harry Porter, M. Halpine, J. Matthews, J. Coulthard, Alan Heiderman, J. Duffus, and W. Gordon.

The prizes were presented last evening in the Rendezvous Pavilion, where an exceedingly large crowd was gathered for the annual regatta dance.

The cups for the canoe sailing (six miles) were given by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., and the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., while the Kawartha Lakes championship cup and the Peterborough Canoe Company challenge cup were put up for the dinghy sailing races. Reginald Dixon carried off three cups. R. Breyfogle read out the names of the winners, and Mrs. W. H. Bradburn presented the prizes.

The following is the list of prize-winners and prizes (available):

Dinghy sailing—1, Reginald Dixon, cup; 2, Otto Gliddon, slicker.

The members of the regatta committee wish to thank the business men and all those who in any way co-operated with them in making the regatta such a qualified success.

CHEMONG PARK REGATTA USUAL GREAT SUCCESS

Spectators and Entries For Annual Event Are Numerous.

KEEN CONTESTS.

Reg. Dixon Wins Three Cups in Sailing Races—Dance in Evening.

Very charming indeed was the picture which Chemong Lake, the scene of activity for the annual regatta held at Chemong, presented yesterday, dotted with numerous canoes, skiffs, motor boats and launches. An especially picturesque sight was that afforded by the sailing vessels with the wind spreading their white sails to the fullest. Ideal weather conditions and a well-planned programme all pointed to a most pleasant afternoon's enjoyment of a schedule of water sports. Although the wind may have been a little stronger than was necessary, yet it added to the zest of the day's contests.

The attendance was extremely large including practically all the cottagers and a fair-sized crowd from Peterborough. The steamer "Empress" and "Lintonia" from Stoney Lake and Bobcaygeon, loaded to capacity with campers and tourists, arrived about one thirty, leaving on the return trip for the Upper Lakes at four o'clock.

Although splendid opportunities were open to contestants, the entries were not as numerous as might have been expected. The first few events were slow in getting started owing to the difficulty of rounding up those entering, but when once begun the enthusiasm of the contestants was not lacking and their aquatic skill was indeed a credit to them, and in some ways showed an increase over last year.

All the races were sharply contested.

NAVY AIRMAN WINS DEATH GAMBLE

The end of another thrilling aviation exploit is pictured here. The tiny Wright Apache biplane shown above, resting in a cabbage patch near Washington was landed safely here by Lieut. C. C. Champion, U. S. Navy flyer, after flames and an exploding motor had imperilled his life at an altitude of seven miles. At the left is Champion, still encased in the stuffy garb he wore as a protection against extreme cold. The sketch depicts just what happened. Champion had a parachute, but refrained from jumping because he wanted to save the instruments which recorded the height he had reachd. Fire swept about the wrecked motor at times during Champion's descent, but he blew it out by side-slipping.

PARLIAMENT HILL

Parliament Hill, dominated by the striking peace tower, was the scene of the first official function at Ottawa in connection with this week's visit of the Prince of Wales, Prince George and the Baldwins. At the head of the broad walk a platform had been erected, and there Premier King and Mayor Balharrie of Ottawa greeted the royal Princes and the British statesman. The above view shows the vast gathering of people waiting for the royal party to arrive.

The Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin have worked their way into the hearts of Canadians they have met, in that quiet unassuming way so characteristically theirs. Her smart black hat had a feather mount and rhinestone ornament and she wore a tuile boa and a string of pearls. Het parasol was of black, fringed with silver.

INVASION BY AIR ARMADA POSSIBLE

Progress of Ocean Flight Brings Danger of Attack By Airplane.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—"The next nine or ten years will see the development of airplanes and engines capable of crossing the ocean to our country with a useful military load," declared Sumner N. Blossom, editor of Popular Science Monthly, discussing today the possibility of a future invasion of the United States by air, and its consequences.

The recent flights across the Atlantic, and across the Pacific from San Francisco to Honolulu, Mr. Blossom pointed out, have brought forcibly home the fact that in the nine years since the war ended flying has progressed farther than in the dozen years before. At the same rate the present developments in flying will be as obsolete nine years from now as those when the war ended are obsolete today.

"The trans-oceanic flights," he said, "raise the question: If a few planes can cross the ocean why not thousands? It is easy enough to say that nobody will ever want to invade our shores. It is also foolish.

"What would happen if such an attack were made? The attack would come without warning. Possibly the first news of such an invasion would come from ships at sea, reporting by radio a huge flock of planes flying toward America. The enemy would rely upon engine power and luck, and allow for losing a quarter or more of his forces by storm or accident.

"Four thousand planes might well constitute this aerial armada. Two thousand would be multi-motored bombers, battleships of the air; monoplanes with a wingspread approaching 200 feet, engines delivering 2,000 horsepower, capable of flight at an altitude of 10,000 feet and a speed of 120 miles an hour. They would weigh perhaps 30,000 pounds when fully loaded ready for flight. That would make the weight per horsepower materially less than Lindbergh carried. Half the weight would be the plane itself. Another third would be fuel, 1,750 gallons of gasoline, weighing five and three-fourths pounds to the gallon, sufficient at a gas consumption of five miles to the gallon, to give a cruising range of 8,450 miles. If that seems absurd consider Lindbergh's mileage of more than nine miles to the gallon, carrying eight pounds more initial weight per horsepower.

"Five thousand pounds of bombs and crew would account for the rest of the weight. Allowing six men to the crew, there would be room for two tons or more of 'eggs.' Two thousand tons of high explosive bombs would be more than enough to destroy the essential nerve-centers of our nation. The enemy could lose three-fourths of his battle fleet on the way and still have munitions left sufficient to paralyze the heart of America.

"Flying in triangular formation, like a huge flock of geese, this bombing fleet would cover more than a hundred square miles of sky. Ahead of the bombers would be the scout cruisers of the air, a thousand two-seater observation planes. Each would carry 500 bombs charged with poison gas far deadlier than eanything yet used in war. And above the observation planes would be the third unit, the high-speed pursuit planes, swift single-seaters ready to go into action the instant our aerial defenders should appear.

"Draw a triangle on the map of the United States, with its angles at Boston, Minneapolis and Atlanta, and you have included in its area most of the nation's wealth, industries, important railroad centers, seaports, electric power sources and population. At this heart of America the enemy would strike with high explosive bombs and poison gas to destroy railroad terminals, industrial plants, water supplies, electric power systems, shipping and docks, telegraph and telephone centers and great financial institutions. In large cities like New York, tens of thousands might perish in the panic of the first gas alarm, and in the actual gas attack.

"A horrible picture? Yes. Not probable, but possible. It all depends upon America's own air defenses. Airmen are in substantial agreement that there is but one defense against aircraft, and that is aircraft."

STIRLING NEWS

STIRLING, Aug. 5.—The farmers are busy finishing their haying which has been prolonged on account of so much wet weather, and the quality of that being gathered now is not as good as the first of the season. Barley and fall wheat are being cut and some oats. The latter has ripened too fast lately on account of being struck by red rust. All the prospects for a great harvest of good grain may not be fully realized. The outlook here is however better than in districts to the east and west.

The Stirling contingent of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment returned on Tuesday evening from their ten days' outing in camp at Cobourg, somewhat bronzed due to their exposure. The orders of the day called for harder work than usual this year, but the spirits of the boys were none the less cheerful from what they had to endure.

TOURISTS' DAY GREAT SUCCESS

Annual Summer Festival at Havelock Attended By Many People.

GOOD SPORT PROGRAM.

HAVELOCK, Aug. 5.—Havelock's annual tourist day and summer festival was held on Wednesday, August 3, under ideal weather conditions. A good crowd was in attendance, and the gate receipts amounted to about $215.00.

The first part of the programme was a parade which started from the C.P.R. Station at 1.15 p.m., going west on Ottawa Street to Quebec Street and north on Quebec Street to George Street, and then east to the park, where the prizes were awarded as follows:

Best float—First prize, motor meter—Miss Madge Curtis. Second prize, inner tube—P. Pincombe (C.P.R. float).

Best decorated tourist car — First prize, smoked ham—Dr. Russell, Round Lake. Second prize, 25 lbs. flour—Jack Russell, Round Lake.

Best comic outfit—First, razor—L. Jack. Second, box cigars—T. W. Quinn and A. Caesar (as newly-weds).

Best decorated car—First, hand mirror—T. P. Lancaster. Second, rug—John Howe.

Best decorated Ford—Prize, 5-lb. pail lard—H. Wing.

Best clown—First, case pipe — J. Smallshaw. Second, running shoes—J. Little. Third, man's shirt—J. Falkner.

Sport Programme.

Following the parade a program of sports was arranged, the main features of which was a softball tournament for a handsome silver cup donated by the Havelock Amateur Athletic Association, the camps at Belmont Lake, Round Lake and Trent River competing for this trophy, and a Trent Valley League baseball game between Tweed and Havelock.

In the softball tournament the Round Lake and Trent River teams were the first to take the field, the game resulting in an easy victory for Trent River by a score of 13-0.

Trent River then played the Belmont Lake team, and was again victorious by a score of 8-1, thus winning the cup. The line-up was as follows:

Round Lake—Callis, p; Fairman, c; Barnett, 1b; Dr. Norval, 2b; Whitley, 3b; Carter, ss; Lomax, lf; Campney, cf; Baird, rf.

Trent River—Turnbull, p; Christie, c; Scrieber, 1b; Allan, 2b; Harrison, 3b; Thomas, ss; Wiseman, lf; M. Wight, cf; Muller, rf.

Belmont Lake: Hasenpflaug p; Leclair, c; Backus 1b; Fennell 2b; Barrie 3b; J. Davidson ss; Fry lf; Brether cf; Brisbon rf.

Trent River: Turnbull p; Christie c; Scrieber 1b; Allan 2b; Harrison, 3b; Thomas ss; Wiseman lf; M Wight cf; Muller rf.

The Havelock baseball team has another league game to its credit by a score of 8-4 as a result of the game with Tweed. Caesar pitched good ball for the locals and was given good support by the basemen and fielders. Each team made a run in the first innings. In the second Sexsmith made another for the locals and in the fifth they brought their total up to six, the runs being made by Sexsmith, Caesar Jack and Armstrong. In the sixth Caesar and Jack made two more.

The locals held the visitors to one run until the ninth when they made three.

MASQUERADE DRAWS VERY LARGE CROWD

Annual Dance at Juniper Island Is Great Success.

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 5.—The annual masquerade dance at Juniper Island maintained its reputation as the premier event of the season, although the number in costume was not nearly as large as last year. There were an unusually large number of spectators who enjoyed very much the fascinating spectacle of Indians, cats, bears, beautiful ladies of many lands, all fraternizing in friendly fashion.

The pavilion was decorated with greens and pennants, and made a picturesque setting for the numerous costumes. Although not quite up to last year's remarkable record, the costumes were extremely good, and the judges had a hard task in deciding on the winners. When the grand march began, it was led by Mrs. J. M. R. Fairbairn, who impersonated Queen Victoria as she appears in what is undoubtedly her most popular picture with her crown, lace veil and decorations, and wearing the blue ribbon of the Garter. It was a very clever impersonation and admirably carried out.

Among the outstanding costumes were the majestic Chinese mandarin with his small attendant; Felix the Cat; the Queen, of course; "Wine, Women and Song" (a most striking costume); the Arab shiek in his flowing robes and his lady in gorgeous embroidered cosminded one of the Highland men of the days of Bonnie Dundee; the Babylonian soldier, who was a commanding figure; the dazzling orange and black ballet girls, who merrily danced their way round the room; "a lost luggage" impersonation which was clever and must have been hot; the Punch and Judy show which was a trifle cumbersome in the crowded hall; a Christmas tree decorated in realistic fashion; a cinnamon bear; a pair of Kilkenny cats who fully lived up to the reputation given by tradition as they fought fiercely all the way round; the Japanese coolie, stoical and staunch; the parson, who reminded one of the type who flourished in the "Covered Waggon" days; an eighteenth century lady and gentleman, who reminded one of the days of the stately minuet and its successor, the gavotte; a Spanish couple were striking figures and also a large bull-frog who, unluckily, was late in arriving.

The only outstanding group was a sextette of toy soldiers in white and scarlet, who won much applause as they stiffly marched in pairs.

The judges were Mrs. Macdonald, Mrs. Amys, and Messrs. Turnbull and George MacLeod, who awarded the prizes as follows:

Best lady's costume, Miss Goad, as an Arab lady (bracelet); best gentleman's costume, Mr. Norton Buell, as a Japanese coolie (silver cigarette case); most original lady, Mrs. H. C. Wotherspoon, as Felix the Cat (bracelet); most original gentleman, Mr. Keith Russell as a pre-historic golfer (silver cigarette case); second most original lady, Mrs. J. M. R. Fairbairn, as Queen Victoria (bracelet); second most original gentleman, Mr. Stewart Allen, as a Babylonian soldier (cigarette case); best pair, Mrs. Tyler and Miss Margaret Strickland, as an eighteenth century couple (candlesticks); best group of fours to seven, the sextette of toy soldiers, Misses Mary and Helen Marquis, Eleanor MacPherson, and Messrs. Bernard Mulhern, Allan, Stevenson and Pat Hall.

Gordon K. Fraser acted as master of ceremonies and a Peterborough orchestra furnished excellent music. This season, for the first time, the masquerade lived up to its name as no one without a mask was allowed to enter the grand march. For many years the term "masquerade" was really a misnomer, but this year the committee made the rules known and in nearly every case they were observed.

Among the costumes were: Mrs. J. M. R. Fairbairn, Queen Victoria; Miss Mary Hewitt, East India Princess; Miss Fortier, A Comic Sheet; Miss Margaret Clarke, "Wine, Women and Song"; Mrs. Elsa May, Spanish Lady; Miss Muriel Strickland, Spanish Gentleman; Mrs. Wotherspoon, Felix the Cat; Mrs. Tylor, Gentleman of the Eighteenth Century; Miss Margaret Strickland, Lady of the Eighteenth Century; Miss Joan Hedley, Dutch Girl; Miss Gladys Heward, Dutch Boy; Mrs. E. L. Crawford, Christmas Tree; Miss Billy Mackenzie, Colored Boy; Miss Goad, Arab Lady; Miss Mary Mackenzie, Peter Pan; Miss Florence Mackenzie, "Cigarette," from "Under Two Flags"; Mrs. Kenneth Mackenzie, Pierrette; Mrs. Gordon Graham and Mrs. G. B. Jones, Ballet Dancers; Mrs. Bunting, Goddess of the Sun; Miss Maxwell Hamilton, Pierrette; Dr Perry Goldsmith, Gipsy in Yellow; J. C. Strickland, Gipsy; Major H. C. Wotherspoon and son, Dick, Chinese Mandarin and his Attendant; Ian and Gordon Wotherspoon, Kilkenny Cats; Stuart Allen, Babylonian Soldier; Norton Buell, Japanese Coolie; G. K. Fraser, Spanish Gipsy; Keith Russell, Pre-historic Golfer; E. L. Crawford, College Student; K. A. Mackenzie, Pierrot; Kenneth Macdonald, Mexican; Mr. Wilson, A Frog; A. Lavery, A Girl.

The history of Vienna dates back to the early days of the Christian era, when the Romans, as they spread their empire north and east, reached the banks of the Danube. They found at the place where Vienna now stands a Celtic settlement, which they converted into a fortified camp to command the Danube and protect the northern frontier of the empire.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"I've failed you, dear! I haven't made you happy—and I promised us both that I would," Bob said drearily, throwing himself back upon Faith's pillows and letting his arms drop laxly from their clasp of her body.

Faith had been crying, but that jerked her up short, made her seize his shoulders while her frightened voice pleaded: "Oh, Bob! Don't say that! Of course you've made me happy! Why, darling, I never knew what happiness was until I married you! Listen to me, Bob!"

"But—if you're happy, dear," his voice went on tiredly, "why do you cry so much? Why do the little things, the absurd, ever-ray little misunderstandings, wound you so terribly? You don't look happy—and it must be my fault. I'm sorry."

Faith drew away from him slowly, then sank down beside him, lying very straight and very still for a long minute before she spoke.

"I think, dear," she began at last, in a careful, slow voice that she unsuccessfully tried to keep from sounding sad, "that we are only going through the adjustment period that all married couples have to live through. A woman especially resents the slow—or sometimes quick—passing of romance. No wife wants to be a wife only; she wants to be her husband's mistress. And so all the little things, the tiny, insignificant things, that point out to her the gradual change in the quality of her husband's love hurt her intolerably at first—until she learns to accept marriage for what it is and make the best of it. Do you see, darling?"

Bob stirred and sighed deeply. "I suppose so, honey. But I'll be darned if I can see any difference in my love for you. I'm crazy about you, darling ——"

"But the casual touch of my hand no longer thrills you. I can kiss you while you're reading and you scarcely look up ——" To save her life she could not keep the tears out of her voice.

"But good grief, honey, a man can't play the lover every hour of his life at home," Bob protested. "It isn't normal for a man to be amorous all the time ——"

"Oh, Bob, there's no use talking if you thought I meant that! What I meant was—that with—Cherry you seem brighter, more interested, more eager. You don't take her for granted as you do me ——"

"What I take for granted, Faith," Bob interrupted her sternly, "is that you are my wife, that it is you I am working for, you will be the mother of my children. I married you—not Cherry, because I love you—not Cherry. And I'm not going to have you making us both miserable by being jealous of your sister. Now, kiss me, darling! Don't think any more! Contrary to the popular idea, I've found that women do far too much thinking! Kiss me!"

(To be continued.)

Husky, the herb preparation, is recommended and distributed by good drug stores everywhere.

FASHION NOTES.

ABOUT HOSIERY TENDENCIES

By HEDDA HOYT

(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, August 5.—(United Press).—Legs nowadays are conceded to be the main items of feminine attraction and therefore stockings also continue to hold our interest.

The vogue for wearing skin-toned stockings still continues as far as the majority of women is concerned. Smart women, however, are striving to introduce new stocking shades which conform more closely with gown shades. The stocking which contrasts too severely with the gown is no longer considered smart in some circles. We shall see evidences of harmonizing the tone of the stocking with the dress as Fall approaches. But where Summer is concerned, the majority of women remain nude-limoed.

Even now, however, the deeper beige tones and sunburned colors are more fashionable than the paler nude hosiery shades. Sunburnt shades in hosiery are particularly well liked with white or pastel shoes since they give the leg the effect of actually being a wholesome sunburned color.

A great many fashionable women began the Spring by wearing gunmetal or deep gray stockings with dark dresses. In this manner they harmonize stockings with the gown without exactly matching the two. Of course, dark frocks have been discarded during the Summer months and therefore light-hued stockings prevail again. However as Fall approaches we shall see not only gunmetal, and gray stockings but deep brown shades, golden browns and dusty beiges. One of the popular Fall hosiery shades is known as 'amber.' This is a golden beige shade which may be worn with brown, tan or black. Cocoa-tan is another shade of coming importance. This is a rather brownish tan which will harmonize with brown kid shoes and brown costumes. It is thought that some of the darker gray shades will be popular owing to the fact that they harmonize with blue costumes.

Evening Hosiery Shades.

The new shades introduced for evening verge on mauve tones. One might call them 'flesh mauve' shades although each individual tone has a name of its own. There's an evening stocking of mulberry mauve tone which is most attractive. Lighter than this is 'opal mauve' which can be worn with light gowns. Darker mauve tones will be worn for dressy afternoon wear. Mirage, a new grayish beige is another good afternoon hosiery shade for the fashionable.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Indian red is the color and chiffon the material of this summer evening frock made with an unusual arrangement of the ruffles on the skirt.

Very young children like bright colors, and so, psychologists will tell you, do a large number of people of mature years. It is the self-conscious young person of sixteen or eighteen or twenty to whom subdued tones make their strongest appeal. I remember how charmed I was by pastel tones when I was twenty. Nothing suited me better than the hazy, subdued colors to be found in a painting of Puvis de Chevannes. But now I confess I really prefer something stronger.

So it may be with races. Primitive folk, savages and barbarians make little use of any but the brighest, strongest colors. They are like very young children in more ways than one. Gradually they begin to feel the charm of softer tones. With their first sophistication comes a fondness for pastels. Later, as a race becomes more mature, and mellower itself, it may go back to bright colors again.

Perhaps the race to which we belong has not really got to the mature, mellow stage—but there really does seem to be a growing fondness for vibrant color. To be sure there was a passing fad for pastel tones this spring. But it was the younger women who chose the softer, more subdued of these pastels.

And one thing is certain—that women are much more willing to wear colors than they used to be—and to wear them in public places. From Paris comes word that Mrs. Earl Smith—Miss Vanderbilt before her marriage—has been wearing an entire costume of a rather bright periwinkle blue, with blue shoes to match.

Red reigns on—and if ever it may be said that we see red it is this summer when so many women include in their wardrobes gowns for day and evening of some one or another of the brighter shades of this color. I saw a charming new frock the other day of white georgette figured with bright red. It was trimmed with rag flowers made from the figured material and plain white.

Easy to make—those rag flowers which are still favored by the smart dressmakers. That is, they are easy to make if you have a pattern, and I'll gladly send you one together with a sketch showing how they were used on this red and white chiffon frock. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE.

THE HOSTESS.

The duty of the hostess is to make her guests have a good time. To do this she needs to learn their tastes. It is not necessary to entertain guests all the time. They like some quiet hours to rest, for being away from home is always somewhat of a strain. The cool verandah and the chance to look over magazines may be the greatest treat.

Those from the country when visiting in the city usually like to see the sights, while city people prefer the typical country atmosphere. People usually enjoy things which are opposite from what they have at home. These are interesting to them even though very stale to you.

An unmaried girl likes to meet some of the fine young men of your neighborhood. A new man acquaintance is always pleasing to a woman. Some of your friends would rather not be bothered meeting people while others like nothing better.

The food, the room, the programme for your guests should all be adapted to their delight. Above all things do not let your guests think they are a burden to you or you cannot spare the time or money to give them a good time. Of course no guest should impose on the hostess.

There is a sign of promise to all who are engaged in literary pursuits, for Americans are subject to influences that are most stimulating.

Correspondence of every sort is under a most favorable sway and love letters should be especially persuasive.

This is a fairly lucky wedding day if the ceremony is performed in the afternoon or evening, although trivial deceptions may be expected.

Theatres now come under a planetary rule that is of lucky import and among early plays more than one big hit is indicated.

This is not a fortunate sway for th navy, which will be the target for new criticism.

Some sort of an accident to a battleship again is foretold and much attention is likely to be directed to naval officers.

This is read as most a helpful day for ambitious persons and especially for for those who have reached a high goal.

Cogs Retain Lead in East Peterboro League Race

STRENGTHEN LEAGUE POSITION BY 5-3 WIN OVER CRESCENTS

Come From Behind To Tie 3-3 Count in Third Frame.

HURLERS GOOD.

Sharp Fielding By Walter Crary Gives the Crescents Setback.

With more than seven hundred fans looking on, Cognawagas strengthened their league position by getting a 5 to 3 decision over Crescents at Exhibition Park last evening. Cogs came from the rear in the third to tie the count at 3 to 3, and secored the extra tallies in the fifth. Crescents staged a vicious hiting rally in the seventh ,and had tied the score when the game was called on account of darkness.

But it was Walter Crary and not darkness that gave Crescents the setback. The Cogs' second baseman took seven chances—five of them difficult, with runners on the paths—without a slip, and he retired the side in the sixth. A less reliable infielder might easily have presented Crescents with several runs.

Both pitchers were good and while Crescents outhit Cogs by 8 to 6, it was a pair of passes, Cripps' fast work on the runways, and Wilson's double that broke the deadlock and decided the game.

Cogs now lead the parade with seven wins and three losses. Crescents and Raybestos are tied with five wins and four losses and Bethany with one win in eight starts hold the zero position. Cogs play in Bethany this evening, and Crescents and Raybestos meet at Exhibition Park Saturday afternoon. This game is bound to attract a big crowd to the racing program.

Jack LeBarr started the Crescents with an infield hit and was sacrificed by Joe Jones. Kenneally beat out a ground ball to Wilson, and LeBarr scored as Wilson threw out Ranger. Wilson's low throw gave Corbett the bag, and Kennelly counted. Scully fanned.

For Cogs, Williams walked; Crary popped to Vannest; Cripps was passed, and Rooke was safe on his slow roller, filling the bases. Wilson grounded to Billingsley, who caught Williams at the plate, and Kenneally doubled Wilson at first a fast piece of work.

Two were gone in the third when Kenneally slapped a hot one at Williams, the ball bounding over behind short. The runner stole second and was hit home by Ranger.

Cogs tied it up in their half. Vannest opening with a single to left. Williams forced Vannest, Scully to Ranger, and took second when Ranger threw badly to first in an effort to make it a double killing. Crary laid down a real bunt and made the bag. Cripps' double scored Williams and Crary went home on a wild pitch. Rooke hit to the box, Billingsley's throw going through the catcher allowing Crary to score. Rooke took second. On Wilson's hit into right, Rooke was caught at the plate on the throw-in from LeBarr. Prest fanned to end the frame.

In the fifth, Williams fanned and Crary flew out to F. Jones. Cripps and Rooke were passed and the former stole third, both runners counting on Wilson's drive into right.

Darkness due to heavy clouds was near at hand in the sixth and the last half was played with the wind sending sheets of dust across the diamond.

In the seventh, playing conditions became worst. Billingsley, LeBarr, J. Jones and Kenneally hit in a row, the latter scoring two, and Ranger was at bat when the game was called.

CHICAGO WINS FIFTH STRAIGHT

Retain Lead in National By Winning at Boston 5 to 4.

PHILLIES LOSE OUT.

NEW YORK, August 5 (Canadian Press).—Heathcote's triple in the eighth inning after Adams and English had walked, kept Chicago in first place yesterday, the Cubs nosing out Boston at Chicago 5 to 4 and giving Charley Root his 19th victory for the season. It was the fifth consecutive victory for the Cubs. Chicago hit Genewich opportunely, forcing his retirement in the fourth inning.

The Pirates drew half a game closer to the League leading Chicago Cubs by taking two games from Philadelphia at Pittsburgh, 8 to 5 and 7 to 3. The Cubs now lead by one full game.

Ray Gremer hurled the Pirates to victory in the second game and aided his own cause with two singles and a home run. The opener was a hard-hitting contest which the Corsairs snatched out of the fire with a four-run rally in the seventh inning.

The Giants observed the return of John McGraw from a scouting expedition by whipping the Reds at Cincinnati 4 to 1. Larry Benton went the distance in the box for New York and allowed but six safeties. Pete Donohue made his first start in a month for Cincinnati, but gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Timely hitting helped Brooklyn defeat the world champion Cardinals at St. Louis by 4 to 2. Clark started in the box for the Robins and was relieved in the seventh when a St. Louis rally threatened. Bob McGraw, formerly on the Brooklyn staff, was pounded for ten hits by his ex-team mates.

LIFE HISTORY OF WALTER JOHNSON

(BY BILLY EVANS.)

I doubt if baseball will ever produce another pitcher just like Walter Johnson. He possesses every attribute of greatness.

Sihce his first year in the American League, when as a raw recruit he led all the pitchers in point of effectiveness, his career has been one continuous record-breaking performance, even though records mean little or nothing to him.

Johnson has pitched more years, has taken part in more games, has won more victories, has scored more shut-outs, has struck out more batsmen, and has worked more consecutive scoreless innings than any other pitcher in the history of the American League.

I have been particularly fortunate in umpiring a great many games in which Johnson has established various record-breaking feats. Nothing offers a better method of comparison than observation, therefore I am in a position to pass fairly sound judgment on him.

While no one is thrilled by exactly the same sort of performance, it has always seemed to me that one of the outstanding feats of Johnson was accomplished in his second year in the majors. It was the shutting out of the New York team in three consecutive games in the same series.

Now for just a few personal reasons why I regard Johnson as the greatest pitcher I have seen in action during the past 25 years.

The speed of no modern pitcher consistently compares with the steady of "swift" that Johnson has constantly poured at the opposing batsmen. Nick Altrock ,comedian of the Washington club, is responsible for the coining of the word "swift" as applied to Johnson's speed. Nick insists that "swift" alone describes Walter's fast ball, the mere word "speed" falls short.

The Walter Johnson of the last ten years, however, is an entirely different pitcher from the Johnson who for the first ten years of his major league career won undying pitching fame by throwing the ball past the batters.

For those ten years Johnson would start the game with every bit of stuff he had on the first ball and he would continue to burn each succeeding pitch over the plate with that same dazzling speed, until his team would obtain for him a lead that appeared reasonably safe. Then, and only then, would he let down on his fast ball.

I recal a game that Johnson pitched against Detroit, in which he struck out ten men in the first five innings. His club got him a four-run lead in the last of the fifth. With a chance to break the modern record of 16 strike-outs, he eased up perceptibly, and my recollection is that he got only two men on strikes in the next four innings, making an even dozen whiffs for the day.

During the season of 1910, Johnson struck out 313 men. He won 25 games that year. I venture to say that in at least half of those victories, the moment his lead became reasonably certain, he cut down on his stuff and thus passed up during the season the opportuniay of adding at least 50 more strike-outs to his credit. Had he done so, he would have broken the record of Amos Rusie of 345 made in the National League and the American League best performance of 343 held by "Rube" Waddell.

Speed when used exclusively by a pitcher will finally exact its toll, and while Walter Johnson still has one of the best fast balls in the American League after 20 years of pitching, it has lost considerable of the "swift" that has always marked him as the most feared pitcher in the majors.

To-day, Johnson has a might fine curve ball. He has an excellent change of pace, and at times slips up a slow ball that completely upsets the batsman, for even after 20 years, rival hitters think first of Johnson's speed when facing him.

To-morrow: Another Johnson Story by Evans.

INDIAN DRAWS MAP TO SHOW WAY HOME

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 4.—Early last June officers dragged a nude Indian boy from the Rio Grande and put him in jail. They hadn't a thing against him except that he simply wouldn't wear clothes.

Nobody could understand the youth as he jabbered in a strange dialect, so there was no way of sending him home. Finally the boy got hold of pencil and paper, traced in rivers and mountains, showed the direction by picture of the sun, then put a mark where his home should be. It indicated that he is an Apache from the vicinity of Albuquerque, N. M. A search is being made for his relatives.

English Sculler Has First Workout

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press.)— Bert Barry, the English professional sculler here to row Major Goodsell for the latter's world title on Sept. 5, yesterday got his first workout on Burrard inlet by way of a forced swim. He was being rowed over the course with Goodsell and two other companions when their boat suddenly upset.

"You get a fine idea of the course this way," spluttered Goodsell. But Barry was down too deep to hear. The four were taken out of the water without further mishap.

LEAFS DEFEAT ROCHESTER 5-0

Prudhomme, Who Yields Only Eight Hits, Does Good Field Work.

EVEN SERIES.

MAPLE LEAF STADIUM, Aug. 5. —Toronto evened up the series with Rochester by winning the last game of the home stand in a hectic contest despite the lopside nature of the score 5 to 0. There were many protests against the work of Umpire McBride behind the plate and in the eighth Catcher Head was ejected for tapping the arbiter on the face with his glove when Alexander was at bat.

Prudhome pitced cleverly against his old team mates, particularly effective in the pinches, while his fielding was a feature.

Mamaux won his 18th game of the season by holding the Keys to four hits to apply the whitewash 5 to 0. Newark found three Reading pitchers for 17 hits.

Sylvester Johnson, who pitched a no-hit, no-run game Sunday against Buffalo, defeated the Bisons again at Syracuse by 6 to 2, allowing only six scattered hits.

BETHEL PROTESTS SOFTBALL FINAL

Menie Was Leading By Two Runs When Game Was Called.

BURNBRAE, Aug. 5. — Menie's quest for the softball championship received a no-decision verdict Tuesday evening when Bethel refused to concede the game after the umpire had called a halt in the latter part of the seventh owing to darkness. Menie were leading 19 to 17 at the time, with a Bethel man on third and one out. Umpire Whitty called the game as none of the players and few spectators could even see the ball. According to standard rules, which have governed all league games this year, the score should revert to the sixth inning, giving Menie a 19 to 12 victory. Bethel refused to recognize this, however, and declared no game, so that unless Menie wins a protest, for which they have good grounds, as Bethel were late in arriving, the game will be replayed at Stirling on Tuesday evening, Aug. 9. The Bethel team come to Menie this Friday evening.

Both sides played good ball with lots of heavy hitting and few errors, though some costly fumbles resulted from the uneven grounds. Carlisle led off Bethel's big second inning with a long fly, which went through F. Little's hands for four bases. Bethel batters failed to get any extra base hits off of Eagleson's delivery. He walked five and struck out two. K. Broadworth was hit often by the Menie boys, L. Little, F. Little and Shillinglaw getting triples. The latter had a perfect average with four hits and once to first on an error in five trips to the plate. He scored three, as did also F. Little. Broadworth had good control and only walked two, F. Little both times. Frank hit safely on his other three trips to the plate.

The Bethel outfielders were exceptionally good, only one error resulting in the outer pasture. Will Warren made a splendid catcher, and allowed no base stealing. H. Petherick was among the best of the Menie fielders and Frank Little did well after the disastrous second. The Menie battery worked well together, S. Little preventing several scores by acrobatic performances on high or wide balls.

A large crowd was present with supporters of both teams and at times the din was terrific.

Bethel—K. Broadworth, pitcher; Will Warren, catcher; M. Gibson, first base; A. Dodwell, second base; E. Broadworth, third base; A. Warren, short stop; G. Carlisle, left field; G. Broadworth, centre field; Walter Warren, right field.

Menie—E. Eagleson, pitcher; S. Little, catcher; L. Shillinglaw, first base; L. Little, second base; J. Rannie, third base; A. Linn, short stop; H. Petherick, left field; R. Walker, centre field; F. Little, right field.

FEATURELESS CARD.

Run Off at Second Day's Racing at Blue Bonnets.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—A featureless card was run off yesterday, the second day's racing at the Blue Bonnets track. A large crowd was in attendance, and, despite the absence of any outstanding event, some excellent racing was seen. For the most part the winners were well supported, although in the fifth and sixth races outsiders came home. The Freshman, owned by C. Simpson, secured the major portion of the purse in the fifth event when it defeated a smart lot of horses which included the heavily backed Great Rock and the consistent racer, Gourser, the Freshman secured the verdict over Alletache by a head, with Great Rock third. The customary investment yielded $24.85.

Eliza Jane obtained the decision by a length over Shepherd of the Hills in the sixth race, a mile run, and in so doing returned a dividend of $25.25 to its supporters.

To-day the running of the King's Plate will be a walkover, for the first time in Blue Bonnets track, the plate with a purse of 50 guineas and $1,000 added becomes a gift to Saguenay, which is the only horse entered.

TIGERS WIN SECOND GAME FROM YANKS

Make It Two Out of Three in Series By 6-2 Victory.

REUTHER HIT FREELY.

Red Sox Make It Two Straight By Defeating Chicago 2 to 1.

NEW YORK, August 5 (Canadian Press).—Detroit made it two out of three in the current series with the Yankees by a victory yesterday, 6 to 2. Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross star, yielding only five hits to the New York sluggers. Reuther suffered his third defeat of the season. He was hit freely, and knocked out in the ninth. Heilmann led the Bengal batting attack with a triple, a double, two singles and a base on balls in five times up.

The Red Sox made it two straight from Chicago and marked up their third successive victory by defeating the White Sox at Boston 2 to 1. The winning run came in the eighth from Hoffman's single, Walzer's sacrifice and Myers' grounder which seemed an easy catch but bounded high and went as a two-bagger. For five innings Jacobs held Boston hitless.

The Cleveland Indians blanked the Athletics at Philadelphia by a score of 3 to 0. Buckeye, reinstated Wednesday after a four-day suspension, held the Athletics to four scattered hits. Lefty Grove hurled well but was a victim of two baggers, the Indians making five off his delivery.

After Tom Sachary had held his former team-mates, the St. Louis Browns, to four hits at Washington and had turned in a five to one victory, Thurston hurled Washington to an 11 to 2 win in the second game of a double-header.

Thurston was touched for nine hits but he kept them scattered, thirteen Browns dying on bases.

Gaston yielded seventeen hits in the night cap.

McGraw Will Not Retire Until 1928

CINCINNATI, Aug. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, yesterday spiked renewed reports that he would retire from baseball at the end of the present season by declaring he would not quit until 1928.

It is not true that I will resign at the end of this season," McGraw said. "The fact is I will remain until my contract expires in 1928. After that I will give up the job and try to take it easy for the remainder of my days."

HYDRO WINS OPENING GAME

Defeats Clerks in First of Softball Semi-Final Series.

SCORE 16 TO 7.

CAMPBELLFORD August 5. — Before the largest crowd of the season the Hydro and Clerks played the first game in the semi-finals last night. Notwithstanding the beautiful crop of errors chargeable to both teams, and fairly well distributed among the players, the interest in the game was sustained throughout.

The Clerks introduced a pony battery, which had it been given the necessary support, might have emerged from the contest with more lustre than the fans, after the first few innings, seemed willing to force upon it.

The plate umpire came in for a little more than his usual share of abuse, both sides singing the same song, and the majority of the fans joining lustily in the chorus.

The Millionaires were well represented among the spectators and rumour has it that there are other teams they would sooner go up against in the final game than the Hydro outfit.

Outside of the excellent fielding of Saunders for the Hydros, last nights game was featureless. The score was 16-7 in favor of Hydro.

DETROIT, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—Records fell as swimmers from the East and Middle West splashed in the Detroit Boat Club's first outdoor meet to be held under electric light last night.

Johnny Weismuller of the Illinois A.C., accomplished his aim of several years, crashing the world's record of the 220 yard free style long course event, covering the distance in 2.01⅘, lowering the record of 2.13 3-5 held for thirteen years by Duke Kahanamoku of Honolulu.

George Kojox of New York, who has beaten Weismuller in backstroke swimming, knocked 23 seconds from the National Junior record in the 300-yard medley. His time was 4.34.

A FATHER'S VICTORY

A case has justbeen reported through the newspapers of a child who has been cured of infantile paralysis through treatments given him by his father. This child had been stricken with infantile paralysis when only six months old, it having occurred over twelve years ago, during one of the epidemics of this dread disease. The father carried him from one doctor to another, hoping and praying for some measure of help, but found nothing but discouragement. All the physicians he consulted told him there was no hope. However, he did not give up, and hearing about some of the new schools of physiotherapy, he decided to enter one of them and learn how to employ heat and electricity in an effort to bring back energy into his child's wasted muscles. He subsequently gave his boy treatments twice daily, using his hands for massaging in addition to the heat and electricity.

As the strength in his boy's limbs began to return, he taught him how to walk so that finally, the other day, the former hopelessly crippled child walked alone for one hour.

This is not only a triumph for physiotherapy, but shows how a father's love can be so deep as not to be thwarted by the opinions of the foremost "authorities."

Osteopaths, Chiropractors, Naturopaths, and other practitioners of the newer sciences of health have been doing wonderful work in the cure of infantile paralysis, and the father, in endeavoring to help his child, seized upon the discoveries of these new schools.

Most children who have had infantile paralysis can be taught to walk if the proper treatments are given to the muscles to improve their tone in the affected parts. If the child is first given a thorough fast, physiotherapy treatments will prove even more effective. Only today in my office I saw the effects of a twelve-day fast with the case of a partially paralyzed boy. I saw him take a few steps for the first time, and this was after he had lived on orange juice exclusively for twelve days, a treatment some of you might think would make him weaker. He is now able to hold his head up straight, his eyes no longer turn up in his head, and he has stopped the mouth-drooling which has been present ever since the paralysis started.

Mothers of paralyzed children must consider it their duty to take advantage of new discoveries in fasting, nutrition, and physiotherapy, which may bring about a complete cure in cases caused by infantile paralysis or spinal meningitis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: C. H. writes: "I am a widow fifty-eight years of age. Have always had splendid health, but recently my nose bleeds often and profusely. It nearly always starts when I am out walking."

ANSWER: You may be suffering from high blood-pressure, in which case your nose-bleeds are a relief to the excessive pressure, acting somewhat as the "blood-letting" treatment of a few years ago. Walking temporarily raises your blood-pressure and that may account for the fact that your nose bleeds more frequently when you are out walking.

QUESTION: Mrs. C. F. R. B. writes: "With reference to the menus published, are they suitable for a working man? You do not mention bread, only Melba toast, and we have been using a lot of bread and butter, thinking it is good for us. I suffer from acid stomach and waterbrash."

ANSWER: The menus I publish do not have to be followed exactly, as I intend them more as a course of instruction in proper food combinations. Many men who do hard work have written me they find that the food I recommend is thoroughly adequate for their needs. Acid stomach and waterbrash are often caused by using too much bread, so it will probably be well for you to stick to the Melba toast and leave out all other bread-stuffs for a while.

QUESTIIN: Lita writes: "Could you tell me how to increase the growth of my eyelashes?"

ANSWER: Pull out the weak eyelashes with your fingers, then keep the others clipped short for a while. This will encourage their growth.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

LET ME BE SAD

Let me be sad a little while—
The world's not always at the Spring,
The morning does not always smile,
The meadowlark forever sing.
There is a sweetness sorrow knows
That merrier moments never had;
We seek the shadows for repose—
Let me be sad.

The struggle has been hard and long—
Let me surrender for a time,
Let me be weak who must be strong,
And rest a little from the climb.
Bid all life's blaring bugles cease,
That made the battle fierce and glad,
And for one little hour of peace
Let me be sad.

Laughter is like a sparkling wine
That tires the taste—and even love,
Like cloudless skies that blaze and shine,
The fondest can grow weary of.
Seek not for songs that will delight,
Seek not for words to make me glad—
Oh, for a little while tonight,
Let me be sad.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"ROUGH HOUSE ROSIE."

Anyone who enjoyed "It," Elinor Glyn's sparkling story, dramatized for the silver sheet will be anxious to see Clara Bow, the inimitable heroine, in her latest vehicle, "Rough House Rosie," running at the Capitol Theatre for the last half of this week.

This is the sort of production that is intensely interesting from start to finish, mainly by reason of the charm of the little star with her magnetism and youth and prettiness. In real life, Clara Bow might be somewhat tiring, but the screen only served to delineate her attraction at the fullest. As Rosie, the enameller of green and jelly beans, who puts on a clever stunt at a cabaret show and makes an instant hit, she is immense. She cultivates the friendship of Arthur Russell, a member of the Four Hundred, who takes her to a party given by a Czecho-Slovakian princess, and here finds out that the veneer of polite society is very thin. She has been yearning to be a real lady, and has flouted her prize-fighter friend, Joe Hennessey, in her desire for aristocratic connections. Joe expects her at the ringside for his championship fight, but she goes to the party instead, and he is being sadly mauled when Rosie appears, during the final rounds, and Joe invigorated by her presence, makes a swift come-back, and gains the crown.

"Rough House Rosie" hasn't a very attractive title, but it is an extremely interesting picture, with the little star given plenty of scope for her peculiar type of portrayal. The episodes include many types of life, from the Coney Island menagerie of shows to the Princess' party, and back again to the pictures of a snappy prize fight.

The comedy is also especially good showing Hal. Roach's Rascals in a kids' birthday party picture that has plenty of laughs in its unfolding.

—Jeanette.

Newell W. Banks, American checker champion, is to make another attempt to wrest the world's championship from Robert Stewart of Scotland, in a series of matches to be played in the United States next fall or winter. A year ago the two competed in Glasgow and Stewart was the winner.

The distinction of being the first major league pitcher to hurl a no-hit game this season fell to Jesse Haines of the St. Louis Nationals.

Irish Hearts

By MOLLIE MALONE

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough of Killanmaul, Ireland, emigrates to America and is followed by Sheila Kildare, to whom he is bethrothed, and her father. Sheila becomes friends with the O'Shea family who live in the same tenement and meets Rory O'Shea, who is a professional boxer. Rory is about to retire from the ring but is matched with Campeau. He invites Sheila to go to Coney Island and she accepts although both her father and Murtough object.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"Maybe 'tis too busy he is to be blarneying with a lot of good-for-nothings," defended Sheila pointedly.

"He can't amount to much in the district if he doesn't belong," said Emmett. "The biggest an' the best men in the neighborhood belong to the West Side Club."

"An' if that's the truth then I'm sure that Rory O'Shea belongs," returned Sheila tartly, "for the O'Sheas are the best people living on the street."

With that parting shot Sheila left the two braggarts to their tea and whiskey and went to bed to dream of Killanmaul, the fortune teller at Knockbotherum Fair, her new home in America and a bit about the young man who did not boast as other men she had known and who talked so engagingly about the wonderful places to be visited in this great and awe inspiring city.

"I think I'll have to be meeting this Rory," commented Emmett Murtough sourly as Sheila passed into the inner room.

"He lives with his old man down the stairs," explained Old Tom. "Sheila met up with the mother at marketing an' so they become acquainted. Then she told them that I should be at work an' she says they will try to get me a job. But I told her that it must be something suited to my talents. I'll do no laboring work," he declared emphatically.

"Sure, an' 'tis beautiful ye are the day, Sheila."

"Now if ye only belonged to the Club," speculated Emmett.

"Take me up there an' I'll join it," promised Old Tom. "Sure an' 'tis Tom Kildare an' his son-in-law that should be running the ward, eh, Emmett," the older man laughed. "An' by the way, my boy, if Sheila has been taking a liking to this Rory, now, 'tis time ye began to speak to her seriously."

"But I can't be married until I've got my big chance an' made good," protested Emmett.

"Sure, that'll come to ye soon now, what with your connections," sympathized Kildare.

So these two impractical men talked of impossible successes with neither giving a thought to the needs of his own future or of the future of the girl whom each professed to love, one as the father, the other as a childhood lover.

It was a gay Sheila who awakened her father with snatches of song of the homeland the next morning. Quickly she straightened up the little apartment and before even Old Tom could question the food for the midday meal was steaming slowly in the kettles on the stove. And while the stewed meat was simmering in the pot Sheila spent a full hour in dressing. All the charm of her blossomed in her merrimeat and the girlish pride with which she decked herself out for the holiday. Even Old Tom complimented her as they sat down at the table.

"Sure, an' 'tis beautiful ye are the day, Sheila," he said with his old time gallantry and gentleness.

"Go on with yer blarney," laughed Sheila. "But 'tis good to know that ye appreciate yer daughter, so it is, Misther Kildare."

"Emmett will fall in love with ye all over again. I wouldn't wonder if he didn't set the day when he comes this afternoon."

"But I told him I was going out!"

"Well, he said before he left that he'd drop in on the way from his Club."

"I don't think Emmett is doing much to get on over here," said Sheila. "He doesn't seem to be able to settle down an' work hard the way other people do."

"Oh, the boy will be doing fine soon, never ye doubt it."

"We'll go down to the O'Sheas when we've finished an' I've put the things away." Old Tom Kildare had thrust his chair back and was filling his pipe. Sheila fetched a match and held its flame over the dudeen. "Oh, father, I don't want to marry Emmett; I don't want to marry any one yet. Just think how fine it would be if we could get a job an' we could live together an' put a bit away, too, for the rainy day when we'll be needing it. I'll take such good care of ye, Father, an' what with liniments fer yer arms an' back it won't be long before ye'll be as strong as ye were in the old days in Killanmaul," Sheila laughed to escape the tears that threatened, for in her heart she loved this careless father who was selfish only because he was careless.

"Ye'r a good girl, Sheila, darling, an' I hope 'tis a job that will suit my talents," and he was sincere in that.

It was a stylish Sheila Kildare who accompanied her father down the stairs and timidly rang the O'Shea doorbell. The girl had been quick to notice upon her arrival in New York the difference in her own dresses, made by her own hands, and those which Ninth Avenue Fashion decreed for the girls who lived in Hell's Kitchen. Ninth Avenue is not Fifth, but the garment makers are quick to copy, and bright frocks, even if the materials were not warranted for wear, can be purchased cheaply. To the girl from Killanmaul they were gorgeous. Sheila had not yet the courage to bob her hair, but with flesh colored silk stockings and snug slippers that hugged her little feet as no other shoes she had ever possessed, a smart coat and a close fitting hat, she might have lived in New York all of her life.

Mrs. O'Shea welcomed them and soon they were at home, complimenting the Tim O'Sheas on the little Tim O'Sheas (there were two) as comfortable as if they had known these kindly people forever. But there was no sign of Rory; and Sheila remarked that to herself.

"Tim, Mr. Kildare an' his daughter are only over a couple or three months or so an' 'tis a job that Mr. Kildare do be wanting. Couldn't ye fix him up now at one of the houses ye are building?"

"Are ye a carpenter or a mason by chance, Mr. Kildare?" asked Tim.

"No, but I'm sure he can learn if he's but given a chance," spoke up Sheila quickly.

"Well, that's a pretty long ways, fer the unions do be strict about letting a new man into them unless he's served his apprenticeship. Still an' all there's other work a strong man can do about a building job, an' ye don't look as if ye had a weak back, Mr. Kildare."

"I was always strong enough," replied Old Tom, flattered at Tim's remark, "but politics was my forte in the old country. The village depended upon me to tell them of what was going on, what with me reading the papers from Dublin every week."

"I notice the politicians don't do so much work here, either," remarked Tim O'Shea shrewdly.

"But I'll be glad to try out any job ye can give to me an' see if it fits in with my talents."

"Father means that he'll do his very best, Mr. O'Shea, an' 'tis mighty good of you to give him a chance."

"Well, come over to Brooklyn the morrow. Ye take the B. M. T. subway and get off at M Avenue. I'm laying the foundations for three houses there. We start to work at eight o'clock. 'Tis an eight hour day with half hour off for lunch, so we quit at half past four. But ye'll have to leave home a little before seven to make it on time."

"Seven in the morning," exclaimed Old Tom, but before his surprise could be noticed Sheila cried, "Never fear, I'll have ye up an' filled with a good breakfast in plenty of time."

Old Tom would have started to protest and grumble then, but the confusion that attended Rory's entrance prevented. Rory made much over his little niece and nephew, and neither would be satisfied until he had lifted them to the ceiling half a dozen times and had ended by handing them a bag of candy.

TWO SCHOOLS PLAN PICNIC

Others Invited By Members of Warsaw Sunday Schools.

WARSAW NEWS.

WARSAW, Aug. 5.—At a meeting of the committees from the United and the Presbyterian Sunday schools, it was decided to hold a union Sunday school picnic in Mr. George Brown's grove on Wednesday, August 10, to which the Warsaw Baptist, also Cottesloe and Bethel Sunday schools are invited.

The Women's Institute meeting on Thursday, August 11, will take the form of a picnic, to be held in Mr. Tucker's grove.

The showers on Monday were local. Warsaw did not have such heavy rains as there were in some nearby places. Near Indian River there were two very heavy showers, also at some places north.

Rust is showing on wheat and on oats. On top of the poor quality of hay harvested, the poor quality of grain is, at best, a little trying. More and more farmers are reporting the necessity of burning what had promised to be fields of good hay. Even a good cut from a twelve-acre field has to be destroyed.

Several have reported that wellformed apples have fallen from the trees. Much of the corn is picking up and looking quite well.

To look over the country it never looked more beautiful, and there is abundance of pasture, though, for some reason, it does not seem to supply milk constituents for the cows.

Black Rust Reports Send Wheat Higher

CHICAGO, August 5. — Canadian Press. — Influenced by black rust reports, coupled with warm weather in the northwest, wheat prices averaged a little higher early to-day. The gains however failed to hold well. Starting unchanged to 3-8c off wheat fluctuated nervously within fractional limits. Corn, oats and provisions were firmer, corn opening unchanged at ⅛c up, and later keeping near to the initial figures.

Opening prices were: Wheat, Sept., 138 3-8; December, 142 3-8; corn, September, 107¼; December, 109 7-8; oats September, 45 3-8; December, 48¼.

Mine Market Weaker With Amulet Leader

TORONTO August 5. Canadian Press. — A slightly weaker tendency developed in the price movements of the market of the Standard mining exchange to-day, though the majority of the downward movements were confined within narrow limits.

Area continued the active feature with some 130,000 shares changing hands. It sold off one point to 53. Amulet was prominent in the transactions and eased 2c to 4.46. Kirkland Lake issues were quieter, but generally firm. Kirkland Lake gained one cent to 1.62. Beaver was up one to 121 and Kirkland Hunton firm at 14. Lake Shore was the firmest feature of the dividend paying gold stocks selling up 25c to 20.50.

Oil Stocks Feature Toronto Trading To-day

TORONTO, Aug. 5.— (Canadian Press.)—Stocks of the oil section in the market of the Toronto stock exchange again monopolized the trading to-day. British American, with transactions amounting to more than 5,000 shares, advanced to the new high of 27½. It eased slightly at the noon close to 26 5-8, a gain of 3-8. Imperial Oil was active and strong at the opening, but weakened later to 48¾, a decline of 3-8. International Petroleum held firm at 31½, while McColl sold up 1-8 to 40.

International Nickel was the most active of the listed issues, and it was also a weak spot, dropping ¾ to 65½. Cosmos was usually active and firm at 26½. City Dairy gained 3 points to 141, while Industrial Alcohol was steady at 35. Massey-Harris eased 3-8 to 38¾.

Price Recovery Continues To-day

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (Canadian Press).—The recovery in stock prices which has been under way since Wednesday's opening break on the Coolidge statement, gained added momentum today by the reduction in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rates, with its implied stimulus to business.

Speculative activity centred largely in the industrial shares, many of which were bid up 2 to nearly 10 points to record high levels. Rails continued to lag behind, the drop of $20,000,000 in June earnings of Class 1 carriers and the wage increase to eastern engineers having a temporary depressing influence on speculation in that group.

Waves of realizing swept through the market at intervals, but they were fairly well absorbed. Houston Oil broke more than six points and weakness also cropped out in Baldwin, Mack Truck, Postum, and a few others. The selling of Manhattan Electrical Supply, whose recent sensational advance has been a feature of many sessions, presumably was inspired by the Stock Exchange investigation of recent transactions in that issue.

Public utilities gave one of the most impressive demonstrations of group strength, Brooklyn Union Gas standing out with an extreme gain of nine points. Peoples' Gas, Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Edison, Market Street Railway Prior Preferred, and American Express all reached new high ground. American Telephone was in brisk demand during the afternoon.

CHINA PAINTING

Mrs. Langley McCarthy Teaches Biscoffs' New and Beautiful Work in CHINA PAINTING

DR. LANGFELDT IS GIVEN AUTO

Presentation To Former Rector Here Made By Friends at Devil's Lake.

COMPLETE SURPRISE.

The many friends of Dr. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of the Church of the Advent Devil's Lake, and formerly of St. Luke's church, Peterborough, feeling that he was greatly handicapped in getting about by not having an automobile, proceeded to provide one so as to help him in the really splendid work that he has been doing. The raising of funds was quietly carried on during the past few weeks, and was consummated yesterday by the taking of the Doctor for a drive in a new Chevrolet coach, which, at the conclusion of the drive, was turned over to Dr. Langfeldt.

Dr. Langfeldt expressed his deep appreciation and assured those who had the matter in charge that the car would be a source of both pleasure and convenience, and would enable him to much more easily carry on the work of the parish. He also expressed himself as being deeply gratified at the kindly feeling shown by the gift, and extended the hope that he might be better able to perform his duties in and for the community.

OBJECTS TO NAME OF 'BUS SYSTEM

Business Man Points Out That Title of Company Is Not Appropriate.

With the near approach of what promises to be away out of the impasse in which local transportation has been involved for more than five months, a local business man remarks that consideration ought to be given to the choice of a more appropriate designation for the new system. To call an organization, operating an exclusive franchise in Peterborough, the Border Cities Transit Company is, according to this citizen, to perpetrate a decided incongruity and at the same time advertise what is in several respects a rival city. In considering the final details of the agreement he argues the City Council might well reflect on the pyschological result of having the name Peterborough included in the title of the incoming concern. Citizens might be disposed to support more loyally a "Peterborough Transportation System"— even though it were a branch of the parent concern, the Border Cities Transit Company—than one running directly under a name associated with cities many miles away.

OBITUARY

MRS. C. E. NEILL.

MONTREAL, August 5. — Canadian Press. — Mrs. C. E. Neill, wife of the general manaer of the Royal Bank of Canada, died here this afternoon.

J. A. BROWN.

PORT HOPE, Ont., August 5. — Within a few minutes after suffering a seizure of the heart, John Albert Brown, one of Port Hope's most prominent citizens and a leading business man, died at his home, Augusta Street, yesterday morning. News of Mr. Brown's death came as a distinct shock to Mr. Brown's friends and associates, as he had seemed in excellent health up to the time of his death.

Deceased was born in Port Hope Township, near Rossmount, 63 years ago. While still a young man he entered business for himself, purchasing large timber tracts throughout the township and contracting with steamship companies to supply their vessels with fuel. For many years he held the monopoly for the fuel for the passenger steamer Norseman, which made regular trips out of Port Hope sixty years ago.

A few yeras later, he rented the Port Hope-Bewdley gravel road from the commission which owned it, and for many years operated it as a toll road. Half a century ago he came to Port Hope and engaged in a variety of enterprises with marked success. In partnership with W. S. Bletcher he was for many years in the grain business, handling large quantities of grain, purchased at Port Hope, Gardenhill, Bondhead, Harwood, and other centres. When the partnership was dissolved a number of years later he carried on the business alone.

Port Hope at that time was one of the busiest ports on Lake Ontario, and, perceiving the possibilities in the shipping line, Mr. Brown with a partner, the late Captain Henning, purchased two 500-ton schooners, Maria Annette and Mary Ann Lydon. These vessels were operated by the partners for many years, carrying cargoes of grain, lumber, hay, coal, etc., to and from all ports of the Great Lakes.

In 1881 he founded a coal and wood business in Port Hope, which is at present being carried on. The late Mr. Brown was also extensively engaged in apple buying and export and other lines of business with great success.

At the time of his death Mr. Brown was probably the largest individual property owner in the town of Port Hope, owning large business blocks as well as several residences and small properties. In addition he owned at least four large farms.

In religion he was a Methodist. Although he took no active part in Provincial or Federal politics, he was a staunch Conservative throughout his life and a hard worker. He was a member of the Harbour Commission for many years and a director of the Port Hope Gas Board.

Surviving the late Mr. Brown are his wife, formerly Miss Jennie Walton, and two daughters, Mrs. Howard Wood and Mrs. Victor Hagerman, both of Toronto, Ontario.

LITTLE GIRL BREAKS JAW

Falls From Bicycle When Trying To Avoid Collision With Car.

AT STREET CORNER.

Ruth Reader, aged 11 years, had her jaw broken last night when attempting to turn her bicycle out of the path of a motor car which was turning the corner of McDonnel and George Streets.

Ruth, accompanied by her father on another bicycle, had been out for a ride, and was coming down George Street to the central part of the city. On approaching the corner of George and McDonnel Streets, the little girl saw a car, driven by James Austen of Florida, coming north. Thinking the car would make the turn and evidently losing control of her bicycle in the excitement, she ran against the side of the car, and then fell to the pavement, breaking her jaw and receiving some slight cuts about the head.

The injured girl was attended by Dr. Yelland and then taken to her home. Today she was taken to Nicholls Hospital for an X-ray of her jaw, and to have her teeth straightened by means of wire pressure. She was resting easier this afternoon.

DROVER ON BAIL IN BEETON CASE

Joseph McDermott Faces Charges of Perjury and Receiving.

HEARING AUGUST 19.

BARRIE, Ont., Aug. 5.—Bail in the sum of $3,000 was yesterday furnished for the release from custody of Joseph McDermott, Beeton cattle dealer whose sensational arrest took place on Wednesday, following disclosures at the Forsythe inquest. Half of the bail securities were furnished personally by accused, and the other $,000 by his brother, Joseph McDermott, and his partner in the cattle business, Charles Hammill.

Accused faces two charges, one of perjury and one of receiving stolen property. The perjury charge was the outcome of accused's sworn testimony that he did not know Dan Forsythe, the dead man, whereas four witnesses who followed testified that they had personally been introduced to Forsythe by accused. Following his release McDermott returned to Beeton with friends. His preliminary hearing is slated for Friday, August 19th.

ENTIRE FORCE IS CALLED OUT AFTER OUTRAGE

All Public Buildings and Subway Stations in New York Guarded.

COMMUNISTS BLAMED.

Friends of Sacco and Vanzetti Held Responsible For Bomb Explosions in Subways.

NEW YORK, August 6 (Canadian Press).—The entire New York Police Department, consisting of approximately 14,000 men, was mobilized at full strength to-day by Police Commissioner Warren, and a guard was thrown around all the public buildings and elevated stations. The action was taken following a double explosion in the subways shortly before midnight, which injured a score of persons, wrecked two stations, and shattered store fronts over a wide area.

Specific places, in addition to railroad terminals and public centres, ordered guarded by the Commissioner, were the City Hall, the Courthouse, the municipal buildings, the Stock Exchange, banks, the Public Library, and the Metropolitan Museum.

The bomb outrage was attributed by a traction official to sympathizers of Sacco and Vanzetti, Communists, under sentence of death.

Many People Hurt.

At least a score of persons were injured, two of them seriously, hundreds of trains outside the immediate area of danger were thrown into confusion in the dark, fume-filled tunnels, and window fronts for blocks in the streets above are shattered by the explosions.

The first demolished the northbound station of the Brooklyn, Manhattan Transit Company at 28th Street and Boardway, and the second ten minutes later, demolished the north-bound station of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company at 28th Street and Fourth Avenue.

While the police declined to assign a motive for the bombings, they believed the bombs had been placed to go off while the trains were in the stations, and had exploded prematurely. The Interborough superintendent said he was confident the explosions were set off in sympathy for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Merchandise Scattered.

Clothing, lingerie, and a varied assortment of merchandise was strewn about the streets by the force of the explosion. Windows in the buildings on both sides of Broadway were wrecked for two blocks, and guests in the Hotel Breslin were frightened by the building rocking. Five tons of debris were strewn about the station and tracks. They uncovered small pieces of metal. It was the greatest wreckage since the Wall Street explosion of 1920, when thirty-three were killed.

ATTEMPT AT BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, August 6 (Canadian Press). — An attempt was made to blow up the home of Mayor William Broening in North-West Baltimore by a bomb to-day. The house was set on fire and the firemen found another bomb inside the dwelling. No one was injured.

APPEAL BEING PREPARED.

BOSTON, Mass., August 6 (Canadian Press). — The last day of the week before that in which Nicola Sacco and Bartolemo Vanzetti must die saw their counsel perfecting plans for an appeal for a new trial based on what was described as newly discovered evidence. Action will be taken some time to-day at Dedham, Mass., where six years ago the now world-known radicals were found guilty of the double murder for which they are to go to the electric chair next Thursday.

Arthur D. Hill, now chief defence counsel, remained in strict seclusion working on a petition he hopes to file to-day, refusing to discuss its nature or where the papers would be submitted. The two prisoners had not given up hope. Sacco started his twenty-first day of hunger striking, while Vanzetti, who has eaten irregularly for three weeks, has not touched anything since Wednesday.

Dentist Held

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. —(Canadian Press). — Maurice L. Zigel, a 30 year old dentist, was held without bail to-day on his arraignment charged with suspicion of implication in the bombing of the 28th street station of the I. R. T. Subway shortly before midnight.

PETITION FILED.

DEDHAM, Mass., August 6 (Canadian Press). — A petition for a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was filed by Attorney Michael A. Mumeno wnth Assistant Clerk Everett in the Norfolk County Superior Court House here at 11.30 a.m. to-day.

STATISTCS.

There are 32 physicians and surgeons in regular practice in Peterborough, apart from medical men who are also Government officials, such as Dr. Norman R. Sutton, District Medical Officer of Health, and Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Director of the Provincial Board of Health Laboratories.

Over Million Trees Planted This Year

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—One million six hundred thousand trees have been planted by the Department of Lands and Forests during the present year, it was learned in the Department yesterday. This is a record figure, but plans are being made to nearly double it next year.

20-YEAR NAVY BUILDING PLAN TO BE SOUGHT

Geneva Parley Collapse Stirs Demand For U. S. Warcraft Strength.

BASED ON PACT.

Calls For Total of Thirty-five 10,000 Ton Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, August 6. — A ten or twenty year building programme designed to give the United States a Navy "second to none," probably will be recommended to the next Congress by the Navy Department, it was indicated yesterday.

With the collapse of the Geneva conference, officials now believe themselves justified in asking Congress to carry out, in part at least, the programme recommended by the Navy General Board last year.

Based on Pact.

This report was based entirely on the needs of the Navy under the five-five-three ratio adopted at the Washington Conference in 1922. The report recommended construction of the following vessels:

Seventeen 10,000-ton cruisers in addition to the eighteen now either built or under construction, making a total of thirty-five.

Eighteen destroyer leaders of about 2,500 tons each, or one for each destroyer division.

Sufficient submarines to replace those now obsolete or obsolescent.

Three or four aircraft carriers, totalling 69,000 tons, the amount allowed the United States under the Washington treaty.

Committed to Treaty.

Because of the tremendous financial outlay involved, it is considered unlikely President Coolidge will agree to ask Congress to carry out in full the recommendations of the Navy General Board. The Administration, however, has committed itself time and again to the 5-5-3 ratio, which means American naval parity with Great Britain, and this can never be realized unless the recommendations of the Navy General Board are carried out.

For that reason it is believed the President will agree to the authorization by Congress of a long-term building programme of ten or twenty years, which will eventually mean parity between the American and British fleets.

OTTAWA Ont., Aug 6. Canadian Press. — The United States was Canada's best customer during the twelve months ended June 30th last. In that period the total trade amounted to $1,190,369,152, representing an increase of $70,810,641, as compared with the previous twelve months.

Canada's total trade with the United Kingdom in the period under review recorded a decrease of $48,081,475, as compared with the 12 months ended June 30, 1926.

Imports amounted to $169,375,044, as compared with $163,284,418, in the previous year, while exports aggregated $461,676,887, as contrasted with $515,848,988 in the twelve months ended June 30, 1926

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 6.—Prices averaged lower on the Winnipeg grain exchange yesterday with Thursday's buyers liquidating their holdings and demand negligible. Exporters were sidetracking the local market and bear sentiment was further inspired by excellent crop conditions in the Canadian West. October wheat closed 7-8c down at $1.44 5-8 and December ⅞c lower at $1.41¼.

Oats and barley again attracted all the business on the coarse grain markets yesterday. The former dropped fractionally when demand eased up at the close, while barley advanced ½c. Flax declined 1 3-8c and rye 1¼c on a dull market.

FALLS FROM FENCE.

Wesley Redden Painfully Injured at Trent River on Thursday.

TRENT RIVER, Aug. 6.—Mr. Manley Redden met with a painful accident on Thursday afternoon. While climbing over a five foot wire fence, he lost his balance and fell backwards, injuring his head and shoulders. Medical aid was immediately summoned, but it is not known yet whether any bones are broken.

Says Has No Desire To Re-open Session

RAPID CITY, S.D., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press). — President Coolidge knows of no foundation for the rumor that he will call another conference on the limitation of naval armaments.

The question, of course, is one which must be left open, he said, as no one can forecast at this time, what suddenly might develop to make another conference advisable, but regarding his present intentions, they include no desire to re-open the Geneva discussion.

The opinion is held by Mr. Coolidge that, in spite of the failure of the Geneva conference, the most friendly feeling and cordial understanding continues to exist between the United States, Great Britain and Japan and he does not expect the break-up to have any serious effect on the peace of the world.

BORDER READY FOR CEREMONY

Prepared To Welcome Distinguised Guests From Two Nations.

FOR BRIDGE OPENING.

BUFFALO, August 6 (Canadian Press). — The Niagara frontier was to-day prepared to welcome the distinguished guests from the two nations coming here for the dedication to-morrow of the new International Peace Bridge across the Niagara River, commemorating the century of peace between Britain, the United States, and Canada. The round of social functions that were to furnish the brilliant preliminaries to the formal opening of the bridge began to-day with the arrival of Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg.

Vice-President Charles G. Dawes is due later to-day, as are Governor Aldred E. Smith, of New York, Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, and others. The Prince of Wales and the Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin will represent Great Britain, while Premier King and Premier Ferguson will represent Canada and Ontario.

The speeches of the Prince of Wales and others will be broadcast by radio throughout the Empire and the United States.

Interest in London

LONDON, Aug. 6 (British United Press).—Special significance is attached by the British press today to to tomorrow's dedication ceremony at the international Buffalo-Fort Erie Peace Bridge. It is realized that the occasion will afford the Prince of Wales, Prince George, and Premier Stanley Baldwin, who will participate in the ceremony with Secretary of State Kellogg and Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, of the United States, an opportunity for clearing up any misunderstandings between the two countries resulting from the unsatisfactory termination of the Geneva parleys, particularly as regards Great Britain's insistence on adequate cruiser strength for the defence of her trade routes.

The special correspondents of British newspapers in Canada are stressing the absolute loyalty of the Dominion to the Mother Country during the Princes' visit and newspaper opinion here is asking that Britain shall prove equally true to Canada.

Vandals Break Open Church Poor Boxes

ST. HERMAS, Que., Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press.—Vandals visited three churches in this district and robbed the poor boxes. At St. Hermans church the box had been emptied recently and it it is not believed they got very much. They emptied all the boxes in Saint Phillippe church, but it is not known how much was in them. They also robbed the Church of St. Anastasie at Lachute, where they obtained a considerable amount.

BYRD TO DELAY POLAR FLIGHT

Believed Due To Inability To Complete Arrangements For Financing Expedition.

FLIERS GO TO WORK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Commander Richard E. Byrd, leader of the first expedition to fly over the North Pole and conquerer of the Atlantic, will not attempt a flight to the South Pole until a year from September.

Inability to complete arrangements for the financing of the expedition, coupled with the wishes of his family, are said to have influenced his decision. Tentative plans to start the flight September 16 are now in the discard.

Edsel Ford, son of the multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer and an aviation enthusast, will, it was learned, defray half of the expedition's cost. The other half will be met through the sale of exclusive story rights to a newspaper, or to a syndicate.

Those who are to make the trip will not be idle during the long wait of a year. Lieutenant George O. Noville will, it was learned, leave next Wednesday for San Francisco, where he will re-enter the employ of a coast oil company.

Bert Acosta, pilot of the America, is preparing to enter a number of flying races during the year, including the National Air Derby, to be held at Spokane, Wash.

Bernt Balchen, relief pilot of the America, will leave for his home in Norway to visit his mother and two sisters, and later will supervise the building of the giant South Pole plane at the Holland factory of the Fokker Company.

Stonehenge Circle On Salisbury Plain Great War Camp Is To Be Preserved

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Prime Minister Baldwin, Ramsay MacDonald, Viscount Grey and other prominent persons have signed an appeal for $175,000 to purchase land on Salisbury Plain for the purpose of preserving the remains of the prehistoric structure at Stonehenge.

It is proposed to protect the immediate surroundings of the Stonehenge Circle from the erection of unsightly buildings.

Nine years ago, after the original owner was prevented by the Act for the Protection of Ancient Monuments from selling Stonehenge stones for transportation to the United States, it was presented to the nation. It is now proposed to pull down a huge airdrome erected nearby during the war, "so that posterity will see it against the sky in the lonely majesty before which our ancestors stood in awe throughout all our recorded history."

Stonehenge, the most imposing megalolithic monument in Britain, has long proved an enigma to scientists and a never-ending source of romance for novelists. Its name, a modification of a Saxon term, means "hanging stones." The Normans called the collection of stones "Choir Gaur," or the Giant's Temple. What the stones were originally used for has proved as great a puzzle as where they came from, for in the geological formations for miles around there is nothing resembling them.

Excavations and measurements have proved that originally they formed two concentric circles enclosing two ellipses. Of the outer circle, composed of the largest upright stones—the tallest being 22½ feet and 3 feet 4 inches thick—only seventeen remain. The inner circle, composed of smaller stones, is exactly 9 feet within the circumference of the outer.

Yesterday the Colonel, working in an adjourning field, not seeing the hired man about, went over and found him dead, with ribs and arms broken, and other injuries. He had apparently been trampled on by horses.

FILM OFFICIAL IS FOUND SHOT

Dead in Car at Hollywood Beside Dying Girl.

POLICE INVESTIGATE.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Betty Montague Cottlieb—Betty Montague to her friends—killed Hamilton W. Mannon, 37, film executive, and committed suicide rather than endure a rupture of their 18-months' association, police believed yesterday.

Mannon was found dead at the wheel of an automobile in the film colony early yesterday. Miss Montague was found beside him with a bullet through her temple. She died shortly afterward in the emergency hospital.

In Mannon's coat pocket police found a letter which they believed dispelled any mystery surrounding the double tragedy.

Mannon was identified at the hospital by Albert S. d'Agostino, president of the Teo-Art studios, and through papers found in his pockets. D'Agostino told detectives he knew the girl only as "Betty," and that Mannon had been acquainted with her for about a year.

Mannon came to Hollywood several years ago from New York.

He worked at the studio until late Thursday night, leaving with d'Agostino's permission in the latter's car.

TORONTO WELCOMES PRINCES AND BRITISH PRIME MINISTER; THOUSANDS HEAR RECEPTION

All Speeches Are Amplified For Large Crowds at City Hall.

NEW STATION OPENED.

Toronto's Famous Union Station In Use at Last—Many Functions Planned For Day.

TORONTO, Aug. 6. — (Canadian Press.)— Under the shadow of the Cenotaph and facing thousands who filled the streets leading to the City Hall, the Princes and the Prime Minister of Great Britain were welcomed to Toronto.

The Prince started, "Mr. Mayor, it a," when Toronto's Big Ben began to boom out eleven o'clock. Its deep notes made speaking impossible. The crowd laughed. H. R. H. grinned, made a little gesture of helplessness and stood waiting for the tolling to cease while the vast throng cheered him.

To-day's reception was perhaps the most public of the present tour. Everyone who wanted to could catch a glimpse of the party and many thousands heard all that was said at the reception through the amplifiers on the City Hall. It was a brisk, friendly reception with warmth and yet without delays. Premier Baldwin delighted the crowd by his reference to the increased circumference of Toronto and his own increased circumference since his visit of forty years ago.

Baldwin "Relaxes."

"I realize that I am in a new world of hustle when I find that I am to speak three times to-day," said Premier Baldwin. The Mayor had said that he, (the Premier) was enjoying a brief relaxation in Canada. "If that be a brief relaxation, I would like to see you at work in this country."

For several hours before the arrival the Royal train had laid on a siding about thirty miles from the city.

The Royal party was greeted on arrival by Lieut. Governor Ross and Premier Ferguson. The first act of the Prince was to open, with a golden key, the door to the new Union station and, with a pair of golden scissors, to cut the tape strung across the entrance. He then went in turn to the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific ticket offices and purchased Ticket No. 1. It was good between all stations. Premier Baldwin did not take his ticket. The party then left the Union station

At the City Hall the young ambassador of the Empire and his Royal brother and Premier Baldwin were acclaimed by a multitude that packed City Hall Square. The welcome, extended by Mayor Thomas Foster in the presence also of Cabinet Ministers and distinguished guests, occupied half an hour. The Royal couple and Premier Baldwin, with their parties, occupied a stand royally decorated, on the City Hall steps, while officials and guests packed a larger stand nearby.

Prince May Return.

The Prince expressed his great pleasure to be with his brother on Prince George's first visit to Toronto, in reply to the Mayor's address, and voiced his regret at being unable to be present for the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition three weeks hence.

He assured the Mayor that if time permitted he would revisit Toronto on his eastward journey.

Immediately the reception was over the Princes motored to Christie Street Hospital, where they were eagerly greeted by disabled veterans of the war. Immense crowds as before lined the streets and Toronto's full police reserves were called out to keep order.

The Princes had a private luncheon at Government House and then attended the Lieut. Governor's garden party, the third in their honor in a week.

Premier Baldwin, at a luncheon of the combined Canadian and Empire Clubs made the most important speech of the Canadian tour.

To-night the visitors are guests of the Toronto Government at a state dinner, while [illegible] ship stand a great [illegible] to welcome [illegible]

BOYS FOOT CUT BADLY BY GLASS

Emmett Creighton, 13, Steps On Broken Bottle On Street.

NINE STITCHES NEEDED.

Emmett Creighton, 13-year-old son of Jack Creighton, was badly cut as a result of broken glass thrown on the side of the road near his home.

The little fellow was running home with his sisters and brother when he tripped and fell over a large piece of glass, part of a bottle, lying on the road. A doctor was immediately called to the scene, and found several arteries cut in the boy's foot. The boy was rushed to the hospital, and after the flow of blood was stopped it was found necessary to put nine stitches in the foot.

It will be two or three weeks before the little fellow will be able to be around once more.

The Examner is informed by the Police Department that throwing of glass or similar material on the streets of the city is forbidden by a city by-law.

EXPLORERS STUDY ARCTIC WATERS

Members of Canadian Government Expedition Follow the Paths of Forefathers.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Historic waters of the far north, through which early Arctic explorers in search of the "north-west passage" worked their way, are being studied by members of the Canadian Government's annual expedition on board the S.S. Beothic. A wireless despatch to the North-West Territories and Yukon branch of the Department of the Interior states that the expedition, after touching at the post at Dundas Harbor, Devon Island, on August 3, proceeded to the west up Lancaster Sound, and on the 4th anchored off Beechey Island at the south-western end of Devon Island. A strong easterly gale was blowing at the time of the despatch, with rain and fog.

Lancaster Sound and Beechey Island are closely linked with the gallant but ill-fated expedition which, headed by Sir John Franklin, sailed from England in 1845 in search of a short north-west water route to Asia.

During the winter following 1845 his two ships, the Erebus and Terror, sailed up Lancaster Sound and wintered at Beechey Island. On the island there now stands a cenotaph erected to his memory and that of the members of his gallant band who died during that winter. Here also were left supplies by one of the expeditions sent out in search for the Franklin party in 1850-51.

The weather conditions experienced by the expedition in the Arctic have been very unpleasant, Mr. G. P. Mackenzie, the officer in charge of the expedition, reports that there has been only one sunny day since the ship left the Strait of Belle Isle: ice, snow, fog and high winds adding to the discomforts occasioned by the heavy ice. If conditions permit the Beothic will continue her cruise through Barrow Strait to Melville Sound, and possibly to Melville Island, before it returns to winter quarters at Pond Inlet on Baffin Island.

Friends of Sacco and Vanzetti Held Responsible For Bomb Explosions in Subways.

NEW YORK, August 6 (Canadian Press).—The entire New York Police Department, consisting of approximately 14,000 men, was mobilized at full strength to-day by Police Commissioner Warren, and a guard was thrown around all the public buildings and elevated stations. The action was taken following a double explosion in the subways shortly before midnight, which injured a score of persons, wrecked two stations, and shattered store fronts over a wide area.

Specific places, in addition to railroad terminals and public centres, ordered guarded by the Commissioner, were the City Hall, the Courthouse, the municipal buildings, the Stock Exchange, banks, the Public Library, and the Metropolitan Museum.

The bomb outrage was attributed by a traction official to sympathizers of Sacco and Vanzetti, Communists, under sentence of death.

Many People Hurt.

At least a score of persons were injured, two of them seriously, hundreds of trains outside the immediate area of danger were thrown into confusion in the dark, fume-filled tunnels, and window fronts for blocks in the streets above are shattered by the explosions.

The first demolished the northbound station of the Brooklyn, Manhattan Transit Company at 28th Street and Boardway, and the second ten minutes later, demolished the north-bound station of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company at 28th Street and Fourth Avenue.

While the police declined to assign a motive for the bombings, they believed the bombs had been placed to go off while the trains were in the stations, and had exploded prematurely. The Interborough superintendent said he was confident the explosions were set off in sympathy for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Merchandise Scattered.

Clothing, lingerie, and a varied assortment of merchandise was strewn about the streets by the force of the explosion. Windows in the buildings on both sides of Broadway were wrecked for two blocks, and guests in the Hotel Breslin were frightened by the building rocking. Five tons of debris were strewn about the station and tracks. They uncovered small pieces of metal. It was the greatest wreckage since the Wall Street explosion of 1920, when thirty-three were killed.

ATTEMPT AT BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, August 6 (Canadian Press). — An attempt was made to blow up the home of Mayor William Broening in North-West Baltimore by a bomb to-day. The house was set on fire and the firemen found another bomb inside the dwelling. No one was injured.

APPEAL BEING PREPARED.

BOSTON, Mass., August 6 (Canadian Press). — The last day of the week before that in which Nicola Sacco and Bartolemo Vanzetti must die saw their counsel perfecting plans for an appeal for a new trial based on what was described as newly discovered evidence. Action will be taken some time to-day at Dedham, Mass., where six years ago the now world-known radicals were found guilty of the double murder for which they are to go to the electric chair next Thursday.

Arthur D. Hill, now chief defence counsel, remained in strict seclusion working on a petition he hopes to file to-day, refusing to discuss its nature or where the papers would be submitted. The two prisoners had not given up hope . Sacco started his twenty-first day of hunger striking, while Vanzetti, who has eaten irregularly for three weeks, has not touched anything since Wednesday.

Dentist Held

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. —(Canadian Press). — Maurice L. Zigel, a 30 year old dentist, was held without bail to-day on his arraignment charged with suspicion of implication in the bombing of the 28th street station of the I. R. T. Subway shortly before midnight.

20-YEAR NAVY BUILDING PLAN TO BE SOUGHT

Geneva Parley Collapse Stirs Demand For U. S. Warcraft Strength.

BASED ON PACT.

Calls For Total of Thirty-five 10,000 Ton Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, August 6. — A ten or twenty year building programme designed to give the United States a Navy "second to none," probably will be recommended to the next Congress by the Navy Department, it was indicated yesterday.

With the collapse of the Geneva conference, officials now believe themselves justified in asking Congress to carry out, in part at least, the programme recommended by the Navy General Board last year.

Based on Pact.

This report was based entirely on the needs of the Navy under the five-five-three ratio adopted at the Washington Conference in 1922. The report recommended construction of the following vessels:

Seventeen 10,000-ton cruisers in addition to the eighteen now either built or under construction, making a total of thirty-five.

Eighteen destroyer leaders of about 2,500 tons each, or one for each destroyer division.

Sufficient submarines to replace those now obsolete or obsolescent.

Three or four aircraft carriers, totalling 69,000 tons, the amount allowed the United States under the Washington treaty.

Committed to Treaty.

Because of the tremendous financial outlay involved, it is considered unlikely President Coolidge will agree to ask Congress to carry out in full the recommendations of the Navy General Board. The Administration, however, has committed itself time and again to the 5-5-3 ratio, which means American naval parity with Great Britain, and this can never be realized unless the recommendations of the Navy General Board are carried out.

For that reason it is believed the President will agree to the authorization by Congress of a long-term building programme of ten or twenty years, which will eventually mean parity between the American and British fleets.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 6.—Prices averaged lower on the Winnipeg grain exchange yesterday with Thursday's buyers liquidating their holdings and demand negligible. Exporters were sidetracking the local market and bear sentiment was further inspired by excellent crop conditions in the Canadian West. October wheat closed 7-8c down at $1.44 5-8 and December ⅞c lower at $1.41¾.

Oats and barley again attracted all the business on the coarse grain markets yesterday. The former dropped fractionally when demand eased up at the close, while barley advanced ½c. Flax declined 1 3-8c and rye 1¼c on a dull market.

Says Has No Desire To Re-open Session

RAPID CITY, S.D., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press). — President Coolidge knows of no foundation for the rumor that he will call another conference on the limitation of naval armaments.

The question, of course, is one which must be left open, he said, as no one can forecast at this time, what suddenly might develop to make another conference advisable, but regarding his present intentions, they include no desire to re-open the Geneva discussion.

The opinion is held by Mr. Coolidge that, in spite of the failure of the Geneva conference, the most friendly feeling and cordial understanding continues to exist between the United States, Great Britain and Japan and he does not expect the break-up to have any serious effect on the peace of the world.

BORDER READY FOR CEREMONY

Prepared To Welcome Distinguised Guests From Two Nations.

FOR BRIDGE OPENING.

BUFFALO, August 6 (Canadian Press). — The Niagara frontier was to-day prepared to welcome the distinguished guests from the two nations coming here for the dedication to-morrow of the new International Peace Bridge across the Niagara River, commemorating the century of peace between Britain, the United States, and Canada. The round of social functions that were to furnish the brilliant preliminaries to the formal opening of the bridge began to-day with the arrival of Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg.

Vice-President Charles G. Dawes is due later to-day, as are Governor Aldred E. Smith, of New York, Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, and others. The Prince of Wales and the Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin will represent Great Britain, while Premier King and Premier Ferguson will represent Canada and Ontario.

The speeches of the Prince of Wales and others will be broadcast by radio throughout the Empire and the United States.

Interest in London

LONDON, Aug. 6 (British United Press).—Special significance is attached by the British press today to to tomorrow's dedication ceremony at the international Buffalo-Fort Erie Peace Bridge. It is realized that the occasion will afford the Prince of Wales, Prince George, and Premier Stanley Baldwin, who will participate in the ceremony with Secretary of State Kellogg and Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, of the United States, an opportunity for clearing up any misunderstandings between the two countries resulting from the unsatisfactory termination of the Geneva parleys, particularly as regards Great Britain's insistence on adequate cruiser strength for the defence of her trade routes.

The special correspondents of British newspapers in Canada are stressing the absolute loyalty of the Dominion to the Mother Country during the Princes' visit and newspaper opinion here is asking that Britain shall prove equally true to Canada.

BYRD TO DELAY POLAR FLIGHT

Believed Due To Inability To Complete Arrangements For Financing Expedition.

FLIERS GO TO WORK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Commander Richard E. Byrd, leader of the first expedition to fly over the North Pole and conquerer of the Atlantic, will not attempt a flight to the South Pole until a year from September.

Inability to complete arrangements for the financing of the expedition, coupled with the wishes of his family, are said to have influenced his decision. Tentative plans to start the flight September 16 are now in the discard.

Edsel Ford, son of the multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer and an aviation enthusast, will, it was learned, defray half of the expedition's cost. The other half will be met through the sale of exclusive story rights to a newspaper, or to a syndicate.

Those who are to make the trip will not be idle during the long wait of a year. Lieutenant George O. Noville will, it was learned, leave next Wednesday for San Francisco, where he will re-enter the employ of a coast oil company.

Bert Acosta, pilot of the America, is preparing to enter a number of flying races during the year, including the National Air Derby, to be held at Spokane, Wash.

Bernt Balchen, relief pilot of the America, will leave for his home in Norway to visit his mother and two sisters, and later will supervise the building of the giant South Pole plane at the Holland factory of the Fokker Company.

Stonehenge Circle On Salisbury Plain Great War Camp Is To Be Preserved

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Prime Minister Baldwin, Ramsay MacDonald, Viscount Grey and other prominent persons have signed an appeal for $175,000 to purchase land on Salisbury Plain for the purpose of preserving the remains of the prehistoric structure at Stonehenge.

It is proposed to protect the immediate surroundings of the Stonehenge Circle from the erection of unsightly buildings.

Nine years ago, after the original owner was prevented by the Act for the Protection of Ancient Monuments from selling Stonehenge stones for transportation to the United States, it was presented to the nation. It is now proposed to pull down a huge airdrome erected nearby during the war, "so that posterity will see it against the sky in the lonely majesty before which our ancestors stood in awe throughout all our recorded history."

Stonehenge, the most imposing megalolithic monument in Britain, has long proved an enigma to scientists and a never-ending source of romance for novelists. Its name, a modification of a Saxon term, means "hanging stones." The Normans called the collection of stones "Choir Gaur," or the Giant's Temple. What the stones were originally used for has proved as great a puzzle as where they came from, for in the geological formations for miles around there is nothing resembling them.

Excavations and measurements have proved that originally they formed two concentric circles enclosing two ellipses. Of the outer circle, composed of the largest upright stones—the tallest being 22½ feet and 3 feet 4 inches thick—only seventeen remain. The inner circle, composed of smaller stones, is exactly 9 feet within the circumference of the outer.

FILM OFFICIAL IS FOUND SHOT

POLICE INVESTIGATE.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Betty Montague Gottlieb—Betty Montague to her friends—killed Hamilton W. Mannon, 32 film executive, and committed suicide rather than endure a rupture of their 18-months' association, police believed yesterday.

Mannon was found dead at the wheel of an automobile in the film colony early yesterday. Miss Montague was found beside him with a bullet through her temple. She died shortly afterward in the emergency hospital.

In Mannon's coat pocket police found a letter which they believed dispelled any mystery surrounding the double tragedy.

Mannon was identified at the hospital by Albert S. d'Agostino, president of the Teo-Art studios, and through papers found in his pockets. D'Agostino told detectives he knew th girl only as "Betty," and that Mannon had been acquainted with her for about a year.

Mannon came to Hollywood several years ago from New York.

He worked at the studio until late Thursday night, leaving with d'Agostino's permission in the latter's car.

TORONTO WELCOMES PRINCES AND BRITISH PRIME MINISTER; THOUSANDS HEAR RECEPTION

All Speeches Are Amplified For Large Crowds at City Hall.

NEW STATION OPENED.

Toronto's Famous Union Station In Use at Last—Many Functions Planned For Day.

TORONTO, Aug. 6. — (Canadian Press.)— Under the shadow of the Cenotaph and facing thousands who filled the streets leading to the City Hall, the Princes and the Prime Minister of Great Britain were welcomed to Toronto.

The Prince started, "Mr. Mayor, it a," when Toronto's Big Ben began to boom out eleven o'clock. Its deep notes made speaking impossible. The crowd laughed. H. R. H. grinned, made a little gesture of helplessness and stood waiting for the tolling to cease while the vast throng cheered him.

To-day's reception was perhaps the most public of the present tour. Everyone who wanted to could catch a glimpse of the party and many thousands heard all that was said at the reception through the amplifiers on the City Hall. It was a brisk, friendly reception with warmth and yet without delays. Premier Baldwin delighted the crowd by his reference to the increased circumference of Toronto and his own increased circumference since his visit of forty years ago.

Baldwin "Relaxes."

"I realize that I am in a new world of hustle when I find that I am to speak three times to-day," said Premier Baldwin. The Mayor had said that he, (the Premier) was enjoying a brief relaxation in Canada. "If that be a brief relaxation, I would like to see you at work in this country."

For several hours before the arrival the Royal train had laid on a siding about thirty miles from the city.

The Royal party was greeted on arrival by Lieut. Governor Ross and Premier Ferguson. The first act of the Prince was to open, with a golden key, the door to the new Union station and, with a pair of golden scissors, to cut the tape strung across the entrance. He then went in turn to the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific ticket offices and purchased Ticket No. 1. It was good between all stations. Premier Baldwin did not take his ticket. The party then left the Union station.

At the City Hall the young ambassador of the Empire and his Royal brother and Premier Baldwin were acclaimed by a multitude that packed City Hall Square. The welcome, extended by Mayor Thomas Foster in the presence also of Cabinet Ministers and distinguished guests, occupied half an hour. The Royal couple and Premier Baldwin, with their parties, occupied a stand royally decorated, on the City Hall steps, while officials and guests packed a larger stand nearby.

Prince May Return.

The Prince expressed his great pleasure to be with his brother on Prince George's first visit to Toronto, in reply to the Mayor's address, and voiced his regret at being unable to be present for the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition three weeks hence.

He assured the Mayor that if time permitted he would revisit Toronto on his eastward journey.

Immediately the reception was over the Princes motored to Christie Street Hospital, where they were eagerly greeted by disabled veterans of the war. Immense crowds as before lined the streets and Toronto's full police reserves were called out to keep order.

The Princes had a private luncheon at Government House and then attended the Lieut. Governor's garden party, the third in their honor in a week.

Premier Baldwin at a luncheon of the combined Canadian and Empire Clubs made the third important speech of the Canadian tour.

To-night the visitors are guests of the Ontario Government at a State dinner, while to-morrow morning they attend a great open air service for veterans in Exhibition Park.

Up to now the couple's movements have been included, where necessary, in the Buckingham Palace circular.

BOYS FOOT CUT BADLY BY GLASS

Emmett Creighton, 13, Steps On Broken Bottle On Street.

NINE STITCHES NEEDED.

Emmett Creighton, 13-year-old son of Jack Creighton, was badly cut as a result of broken glass thrown on the side of the road near his home.

The little fellow was runnng home with his sisters and brother when he tripped and fell over a large piece of glass, part of a bottle, lying on the road. A doctor was immediately called to the scene, and found several arteries cut in the boy's foot. The boy was rushed to the hospital, and after the flow of blood was stopped it was found necessary to put nine stitches in the foot.

It will be two or three weeks before the little fellow will be able to be around once more.

The Examner is informed by the Police Department that throwing of glass or similar material on the streets of the city is forbidden by a city by-law.

EXPLORERS STUDY ARCTIC WATERS

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Historic waters of the far north, through which early Arctic explorers in search of the "north-west passage" worked their way, are being studied by members of the Canadian Government's annual expedition on board the S.S. Beothic. A wireless despatch to the North-West Territories and Yukon branch of the Department of the Interior states that the expedition, after touching at the post at Dundas Harbor, Devon Island, on August 3, proceeded to the west up Lancaster Sound, and on the 4th anchored off Beechey Island at the south-western end of Devon Island. A strong easterly gale was blowing at the time of the despatch, with rain and fog.

Lancaster Sound and Beechey Island are closely linked with the gallant but ill-fated expedition which, headed by Sir John Franklin, sailed from England in 1845 in search of a short north-west water route to Asia.

During the winter following 1845 his two ships, the Erebus and Terror, sailed up Lancaster Sound and wintered at Beechey Island. On the island there now stands a cenotaph erected to his memory and that of the members of his gallant band who died during that winter. Here also were left supplies by one of the expeditions sent out to search for the Franklin party in 1850-51.

The weather conditions experienced by the expedition in the Arctic have been very unpleasant. Mr. G. P. Mackenzie, the officer in charge of the expedition, reports that there has been only one sunny day since the ship left the Strait of Belle Isle, rain, snow, fog and high winds adding to the discomforts occasioned by the heavy ice. If conditions permit the Beothic will continue its cruise through Barrow Strait to Melville Sound, and possibly to Melville Island, before it returns to unload provisions at Pond Inlet off Baffin Island.

NEW SYSTEM ENDS DISPUTE

Shipbuilders Agree On Sliding Wage Scale Based on Prosperity.

LONDON, Aug. 6. —(By United Press). —A new idea for settling wage disputes in industry has been evolved by the reply of the shipbuilding employers to a demand from their workers for an increase of 10 shillings a week. In its present state this industry cannot afford to pay higher wages, but the employees are willing to co-operate with the worker's union in fixing an index by which wages will rise or fall automatically in accordance with their ability to pay.

The Union in question is now considering the proposal and if adopted it is likely that other similar depressed industries will follow suit.

HOPE DWINDLES AS FATAL HOUR DRAWS NEARER

Make Final Desperate Effort To Save Sacco and Vanzetti.

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT.

Execution is Widely Denounced By the Press in Europe.

BOSTON, Aug. 6. — The state of Massachusetts yesterday proceeded with its plans for executing Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti early next Thursday morning.

Few were optimistic enough to believe that desperate last-minute efforts to save the anarchists whose case has stirred the world, would succeed after the failure of every legal recourse for nearly seven years.

Sacco and Vanzetti were in the death cells at the Charlestown State Prison, which was under heavy police guard.

Officials said they felt reasonably sure no violence would result, despite the world-wide agitation which has been caused by the belief that the men were convicted, not because they murdered a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree, but because of their political beliefs.

Nevertheless, police had the prison well surrounded to keep the morbidly curious and others at a distance.

Homes Guarded.

Judge Webster Thayer, who presided at the trial, and Governor Alvan T. Fuller, who refused Wednesday night to intervene in the case, were being guarded. Their homes and many public buildings were under surveillance.

Warden William Hendry, of the prison, already has sent for Robert Elliott, official executioner for Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Unless the unexpected happens, Sacco and Vanzetti will be led to the death chamber shortly after midnight Wednesday. Celestino Madeiros convicted of another murder, will precede them. Madeiros attempted to save their lives by a confession absolving them of the South Braintree murders, but it was not credited.

After Madeiros has been strapped in the electric chair and put to death, Sacco and Vanzetti will follow in order.

Desperate Efforts.

Meanwhile, the defence was casting about for some desperate means of stopping the executions.

It was believed Arthur D. Hill, newly appointed head of defence counsel, would file a motion with the county court at Dedham, asking that the death sentence and verdict of guilty be set aside on the ground of new evidence, consisting of affidavits charging prejudice of state witnesses.

No court is in session at Dedham, but a hearing would not be necessary to file the papers.

Hill would not confirm or deny the statements of others defence leaders that he planned such action.

Near Outside World.

Ironically enough Sacco and Vanzetti, in their cells, actually are nearer the outside world than they have been at any time since entering the state prison.

The three narrow cells which they occupy with Madeiros, are separated from the sidewalk of Rutherford Avenue by scarcely a dozen feet.

Ordinarily, a pedestrian walking along the avenue can place his hand on the death house wall.

Because of the enormous interest that the case has aroused, however, two blocks of the avenue have now been closed to the public and police guards keep the curious at a distance.

Still Fasts.

Prison officials reported yesterday that the governor's decision had no appreciable effect on the two men to whom it meant death. Sacco continued to refuse food yesterday on the twentieth day of his hunger strike, which, barring the unexpected, will be cut short on the 26th day by the electric chair.

Vanzetti, who broke his fast several days ago, appeared to have definitely resumed his hunger strike, Deputy Warden James Hogsett said. With his comrade he refused breakfast, as he had ignored all other meals brought to his cell since the governor's decision was announced.

Appeal to Coolidge.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 6. — The Sacco-Vanzetti emergency committee, of Buffalo, has wired President Coolidge to intercede to prevent the execution of the two men. The committee's wire read:

"In behalf of thousands of people of this city who believe Sacco and Vanzetti innocent, we respectfully urge that you intercede to prevent what we would regard as a judicial murder."

Condemned In Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Only a few of the French papers, which gave considerable prominence to the Sacco-Vanzetti decision, commented editorially upon it, but those that did described Governor Fuller's action as "inhuman, barbarous and even monstrous."

Boycott Urged.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 6.—European boycott of American goods was urged yesterday by the Swedish Sacco-Vanzetti committee as a means of preventing the execution of the Italians in Massachusetts August 9.

The committee telegraphed the suggestion to the International Labor headquarters in Paris.

Execution day for Sacco and Vanzetti will be the occasion of enormous street demonstrations here in front of the United States Legation.

Names of 40,000 men and women members of 45 clubs in New York have been listed in a club directory just published.

About $1,350,000,000 is paid to insurance beneficiaries in the United States each year.

TORY CONVENTION SURPASSES HOPES

Meeting of Overwhelming Magnitude at Winnipeg is Indicated.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 6.—Organization of a central board to handle plans for the Conservative convention in Winnipeg October 11, was completed at a meeting of the convention committee Wednesday. Information at hand indicated the convention would be one of overwhelming magnitude. The political strength of the party in Manitoba is being drawn upon for committee work. Members of the Legislature and presidents of various branches of the party in Winnipeg and district were added to the original nine appointed last April.

The committee appointed C. V. Lindsay as secretary and Malcolm McLean as assistant to handle detail work. J. A. Banfield, convenor of the committee, reported that reservations for the convention already were pouring into Winnipeg hotels. Leading hotels have advised they have 75 to 100 reservations each.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Conservative members for greater Winnipeg, elected at the recent Provincial election, will be included on the general committee now making arrangements for the coming Dominion Conservative convention to be held in Winnipeg on October 11th.

Delegates will be chosen from among the local Conservative members and officials hope to have the names of all Manitoba delegates sent to Ottawa before September 1st.

The original committee consisted of nine members, but by the additions agreed upon this number will be more than doubled.

GREAT GATHERING OF EDUCATIONISTS

Diverse Programmes of Entertainment Are Arranged By Canadian Teachers.

TORONTO, Aug. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Toronto teachers, who are the hosts to the educational army which congregates in the city for the week of August 7-12 for the second biennial conference of the World Federation of Educational Associations, are preparing to entertain the visitors on a large scale. Pageants, concerts, garden parties, excursions and church services are being arranged under capable direction, so that the 6,000 delegates, representing 40 countries, will derive much entertainment from the conference, as well as aid in their chosen work.

On four stages rising one above the other in the Coliseum of the Canadian National Exhibition 1,400 persons will present the most spectacular feature of this section of the programme—a symbolic pageant entitled "The Heart of the World." The pageant will be presented on the evening of Aug. 9.

Through the mediums of music, dancing and costuming, the performers will give a colorful picture of the development of the world from savagery to civilization through the influence of education. The pageant will include many national airs, folk songs and folk dances, and will terminate with a magnificent finale ensemble representing the world in harmony through the power of the child. The chorus numbers will be rendered by a chorus of 60 soloists, chorus of 300 international groups, chorus of 600 from the Canadian National Exhibition chorus and a chorus of 350 children.

In the Convocation Hall, University of Toronto, Vesper service on the afternoon of August 7 will bring the delegates together for the first time. They will be addressed by Rev. H. J. Cody, D.D., L.D., rector of St. Paul's Church, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the University, and formerly Minister of Education for Ontario. The singing will be led by a teacher's choir.

At noon, Tuesday, Aug. 9, the Toronto Board of Education will entertain the official and overseas delegates, including probably 500 from Great Britain, at a luncheon.

Wednesday will be excursion day, the official and overseas delegates being the guests of the Prime Minister and Government of Ontario on a trip to Niagara Falls and the Niagara fruit belt, while all other delegates will visit the Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, through the courtesy of the principal and staff of the O.A.C. Abundance of time will be allowed at the Falls for sightseeing and for visits to adjacent spots of historical interest.

British and other delegates from abroad will be afforded an excellent opportunity to study Canadian art on Thursday afternoon when they will attend a garden party at the Art Gallery of Toronto, as a special exhibition of Canadian pictures is being arranged for the occasion by the Ontario Society of Artists.

Of course, there will be many other special features, including semi-public functions and luncheons for organizations and groups. Canadian teachers, and particularly those of Toronto, are sparing no effort to provide an interesting week for their visitors from all parts of the globe.

International in its scope, the conference will take up many educational subjects of wide public interest, including military training, sports, international history, international correspondence of school children, the country school and music and art. The relation of home and school will be studied and the importance of educational and vocational guidance. As the leading educationalists of the world will be present, many brilliant addresses are expected. While most of the discussion will be carried on in English or French, a staff of interpreters will be on hand, and it is probable that a score of languages will be called into service.

Augustus O. Thomas, President of the World Federation and Commissioner of Education for the State of Maine, will preside throughout the conference.

66th Year of the C.N.E. — Celebrating Canada's 60th Birthday

JOHN I. RIDDELL, President — JOHN G. KENT, Managing Director

OBITUARY.

JAMES EVOY.

HAVELOCK, August 6. — The death occurred at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, on July 30th, of Mr. James Evoy of Riverdale, and father of Mrs. Jay Bedford of town.

The deceased, who was in his 66th year, was the last of a family of seven brothers ,and one of the oldest Toronto families.

He leaves to mourn his loss four doughters Mrs. T. J. Burns of Wyandotte, Mich.; Mrs. J. Bedford of Havelock; Mrs. Stott and Mrs. Crawford of Toronto, and four sons, Jas. and John, of Toronto, Basil of New York and Garfield of Detroit, and also a large number of intimate friends and acquaintances.

The remains were interred in the family plot at Mount Hope cemetery on Tuesday, August 2nd.

JAMES KETCHEN, SR.

HAVELOCK, Aug. 6.—On Monday afternoon about four o'clock, James Ketchen Sr., in his 79th year, died at his home after an illness of several months. He was born at Burnbrae, where he lived until he moved to Havelock twenty years ago. Last March he and his wife celebrated the 60th anniversary of their marriage and at that time he was in poor health and has been gradually getting weaker, being confined to his bed for some weeks before his decease.

He was a most estimable citizen and was most highly respected by all.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence on Union Street to Burnbrae, where services were conducted by Rev. G. E. Lougheed of town assisted by Rev. Mr. McKenzie, pastor of Burnbrae Church.

Mr Lougheed spoke very feelingly of the deceased, who was noted for his cheerful and kindly disposition. The message on "The Christian's View of Death" was very comforting and was based on two texts: John 9, verse 31, "Who appeared in glory and spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem," and II. Timothy 4, verse 6: "For I am now ready to be offered and the time of my departure is at hand."

The word "decease" in the first text, Mr. Lougheed said, meant "exodus," and the word "departure" in the second meant the unmooring or setting the ship free from its imprisonment, and death was the soul and body parting and was not a break in existence. Our bodies are in a state of repair and decay. Then comes old age and decay cames faster and the repair does not keep pace with the decay and the death of the body is the result. Death is not the end of life, but life is the end of life. God is not like a child that builds a house of cards to blow it down again. The cry of the agnostic is different, namely:

The lamps of hope are burning low
From whence we are and where we go
I cannot tell, I do not know.

The life beyond, he continued, will be a promotion. This corruptible must put on incorruption; this mortal must put on immortality.

The life beyond is also full of the happiest consequences. To be absent from the body and to be present with the Lord. Here, Death overhangs, judgment threatens, and disabilities face us; but yonder, no death, no sting, no tears and no disabilities.

In closing, Mr. Lougheed said: Death is the crown of life, Death is a conquest, a victory, and Christ is the Victor. Death is not defeat for Christians never die.

Tis but a little while
And He shall come again,
Who died that we might live;
Who lives that we with Him might reign.
Then, O my Lord prepare
My soul for that great day,
O wash me in thy precious blood
And take my sins away.

The surviving members of the family are his wife; four sons, Gilbert of Shanauvan, Sask.; Alexander and John of Watson, Sask.; and James of Havelock; five daughters, Mrs. Robert Matthews of Rawdon, Mrs. Charles Saylor of South Bend, Ind., Mrs. Harry Johnson of Trenton, and Mrs. Francis Butters and Mrs. Thomas Sarginson of Havelock. Those from out of town who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seabrooks, Mrs. H. Johnston and sons, Leslie and Maynard, and daughter, Thelma, of Trenton; Mrs. Robert Matthews of Rawdon; Mrs. John Reynolds of Lasswade; Mr. James Crossen of Wassaw, Mich.; Mrs. George Whitton and family of Deseronto; Mrs. Southert of Toledo, Ohio; Mr. John Lowry of Frankford; Mr. Robert Whitton of Brighton; Mrs. Charles Saylor of South Bend, Ind., and Mr. Gilbert Ketchen of Shanauvon, Sask.

The deceased was in his 28th year and had been in ill health for over five years. The service at the Maple Grove Cemetery, where the interment took place, was conducted by Rev. G. E. Lougheed.

The deceased lady, who was in her 58th year, was born in Campbellford, and has resided here continuously. She was a member of St. John's United church, where she had a large circle of friends. One sister, Mrs. Peter Shapter, of Campbellford, and two brothers, J. B. Palliser, of Hayter, Alberta, and C. W. Palliser, of town, survive to mourn the loss of an affectionate sister.

TO INVESTIGATE FISH INDUSTRY IN MARITIMES

Will Determine What Action Could Be Taken To Enlarge Market.

APPOINT COMMISSION.

Chief Object is to Secure Better Prices For Inland Fishermen.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—A commission will be appointed by the Federal Government to investigate all phases of the fishing industry in the Maritimes, it was announced yesterday. One of the chief objects of the commission will be to determine what action could be taken to enlarge the market for fish and thus secure for the inshore fishermen better prices which would adequately remunerate them for their daily services.

A few weeks ago a number of Catholic priests who are pastors at the fishing centres in Eastern Nova Scotia and Cape Breton made representations to the Department of Marine and Fisheries directing attention to the difficulties being experienced during the present season and suggesting action along certain lines to ameliorate them. This action was followed shortly afterwards by a mass meeting of fishermen at Canso at which a number of resolutions, dealing with the present conditions of the fishing industry and suggesting possible remedies, were passed. These have been submitted to the Department of Marine and Fisheries. In addition to these, representations have been made respecting some unsatisfactory conditions of the fishing industry in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. All of these representations have been the subject of conferences during the past few days, participated in by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the Minister of National Defence and the Postmaster General. They also had the benefit of the advice of Hon. J. E. Sinclair of Prince Edward Island, who has been here recently.

Absence Of Market.

The chief difficulty at present and throughout the entire season so far, in the opinion of the Department of Marine and Fisheries is the absence of a sufficiently lucrative market to absorb the total catch to the end of assisting in this respect, the department some few weeks ago sent two experts to Great Britain with a view to determining the extent to which an additional market for Canadian fishery products can be obtained there. These returned a few days ago and while they have not submitted a final report, it is understood that they have come back favourably impressed with the possibilities disclosed by their investigations in London and other large consuming centres in Britain. The immediate need is and the immediate remedy lies in the obtaining of wider markets for Canadian fishery products.

In the representations made by and on behalf of the fishermen, more particularly those of Canso, N.S., the necessity for a more rigid inspection of the fish offered to the market was stressed. These representations have been met by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries by the appointment of a competent inspector at Canso, whose duty it will be to see to it that all fish offered to the market shall be superior in quality.

Investigate All Phases.

In the representations made on behalf of the Inshore fishermen, the desirability of a thorough investigation by Royal Commission or otherwise, of all phases of the fishing industry, has been emphasized. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries as well as the ministers from the Maritime provinces, view the request with favour, and they have accordingly decided upon the appointment of a commission that will be representative of all branches of the industry in the Maritime provinces. This commission will it is understood be entrusted especially with the task of determining such action as may be possible to enlarge the market for fish and thus secure for the inshore fishermen prices that will adequately remunerate them for their daily service.

The commission will also, among other things fully investigate the extent to which assisting in the transportation of fish from different points along the shores to a point where the same may be more profitably marketed, is of general value to the industry. It is further understood that the appointment of a commission will in no way interrupt or interfere with the activities of the department in carrying on scientific research at the Atlantic fisheries station at Halifax and developing a programme of conveying useful and practical instruction to the fishermen and others engaged in the industry.

The Northumberland Regiment was there in the evening and added much to the pleasantness of the outing.

OPPOSE RACING ON THE SABBATH

Proposal To Hold Greyhound Racing on Sundays Met With Hostility.

LONDON, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press Cable.—The proposal to hold greyhound racing in Southend on Sundays has aroused the opposition of practically everybody except the directors of the local company controlling this sport in Southend. The Mayor and Corporation are entirely hostile and so is Sir William Gentle, chairman of the Greyhound Racing Association.

Perhaps the most influential expression of unfavorable opinion is that from the Bookmakers' Protection Association, "who are strongly opposed to their members betting on Sundays, as ample means are provided during week-days to ply their trade."

Home Office officials say they have no power to prohibit the meeting, the legality of which would be for a court to settle.

Southend's racing directors declare that a Sunday meeting is by way of experiment to discover the popularity or otherwise of the new sport.

A Tribute to Ven. Archdeacon J. C. Davidson

"He was more than the Rector of St. John's, just as St. John's Is More Than An Anglican Parish Church."

Ven. Archdeacon J. C. Davidson's pastorate of thirty-one years in Peterboro stands out in the public memory as the most salient and significant epoch in the history of St. John's parish, which has rounded out this year the splendid cycle of its first century.

Even-handed tribute has been paid during the centenary celebration to those men who by their effort and example contributed most largely to the upbuilding of St. John's church, but as this anniversary recedes from its meridian, which was marked by the visit and attendance of His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada, reflection tends to emphasize the stewardship and personality of Archdeacon Davidson and prompts on this occasion an acknowledgment of his citizenship, incidentally of his ministry, and especially of his influence in this community through his performance of duty to church and state.

The thirty-one years which Archdeacon Davidson devoted to St. John's parish spanned the most active period of his life, and carried him from the full tide of early manhood to those first gray ebbing years that drift inevitably out into the impenetrable mists. Young people whom he prepared for Confirmation were past middle life when he moved on to a larger field; choir boys had become parents; the couples he first married brought him grandchildren for baptism, and many of the adults of his first congregation at St. John's were in the grave when his pastorate ended.

Time had hurried along with the multiplying routine ministrations of the Rector, the attentions of the shepherd to his flock, and with them were the church services on Sundays, and week-day devotions during Lent and Advent, at Easter and Christmas and other special occasions, and his sermons, for thirty one years.

These duties together with parochial visits indicate not only the scope and quality of Archdeacon Davidson's relations with his people, but also their continuity, almost their permanence. His influence was cast upon virtually two generations, and there are those outside the Anglican church who believe that his influence permeated the whole community, and in its cumulative effect helped materially in fostering that fine spirit of goodwill and confidence which flowered on Dominion Day in Peterborough's magnificent celebration of the diamond jubilee of Confederation.

St. John's Esteemed.

Presumably, St. John's church has always been accorded a hight place in the general esteem of the people of Peterborough. Its patriarchal age, its natural beauty, its dignity as of a temple set on a hill, its long and intimate associations with this community, all these factors estatished a tradition which was peculiarly St. John's. The younger people of the city know it, however, as the expression of the ministry of Archdeacon Davidson, a ministry which is attested, for example, by the type of Christian men it produced.

It may be an extravagant assertion to predict that, even as a tree is known by its friut, so is the good layman the mark and guage of his minister. Both are the product of the one doctrine. Beyond that, however, in the more personal sense the concepts and ideals of the pulpit are often reflected in the pew. The pastor who occasionally interjects his own dark gospel of doubt and fear and hate into Christ's gospel of faith and hope and love is bound to produce too many unlovely hybrids in his congregation, their minds and hearts blemished by his warped and twisted tenets and opinions.

The preaching of Rev. J. C. Davidson during his long pastorate never debased with unpleasant and ultimately unprofitable aberrations the doctrine which he had been commissioned to teach. And memory urges, whether correctly or not, that a thought in Holy Writ to which he recurred with evident preference was: "Owe no man anything, but to love one another. For he that loveth his neighbor hath fulfilled the law." Perhaps, however, he favored a similar but more explicit injunction: "Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the King."

Certainly Archdeacon Davidson's friends believe that he had set before him the Pauline example of impersonality in the pulpit—"For if I preach the gospel it is no glory to me, for a necessity lieth upon me." The rector of St. John's was a simple expounder not a mystifying orator. His talent was hardly oratory, although he was frequently impressive and always adequate. Among the preachers whom Peterborough has heard he would probably be placed down in the ruck, but weighed in the balance of enduring deeds he ranks out in front and not because of his long incumbency at St. John's so much as for the practical Christianity of his everyday life reaching out in so many and varied contacts.

Archdeacon Davidson was more than the rector of St. John's just as St. John's is more than an Anglican parish church. And he toiled the harder and extended his interests the farther because he probably realized that special place which St. John's has attained in the affections of all the people, and was conscious of the undefined, unspoken responsibility to the community which that position and respect demanded of himself.

A Tradition of St. John's.

If St. John's has been historically esteemed in a special way it may be due to the tradition of following a middle course in the religious affairs of this community. This idea of a middle course may be nothing more than a popular notion gleaned from casual observation of St. John's interpretation and practice of the admonition: "Render to God the things that are God's". Illustration is unnecessary, but it may be remarked that the pulpit of St. John's church has not been given to extreme declarations and to identifying itself with militant pseudo-religious movements and associations that involve a church and the cause of religion, to their loss, in social and political commotion and recrimination which a prudent far-seeing churchman would anticipate and avoid. No one procaimed this tradition and policy, if indeed it be a policy, but the fact is that the way of St. John's has been a "via media". Pastor and people have followed it seemingly in full agreement, and as a result St. John's has experienced no embarrassments in its public and neighborly relations. In its pulpit abode charity, counsel and understanding; moderation of opinion, mildness; a spirit of Christian sweetness that is fixed in the public mind as the chief characteristic of the church, its "genius loci."

And so foreign to the custom of St. John's was any deviation from its simple dignity and decorum that one hesitates even to allude to the fact that his people never heard from Archdeacon Davidson any pulpit hokum spun out of some convenient, flexible text to titillate the curiosity and hazy faith of novelty-seeking, vagrant church-goers. The message and mission of St. John's were not impaired during the administration of Archdeacon Davidson. Rather were they signally enchanced by his sincerity of purpose and fidelity to duty as pastor, his deep sense of public service as a citizen and his fine sympathies, likewise his reticences as a gentleman.

Three Members Recalled.

Mention was made of men St. John's produced. Three of them are immediately recalled. Ferman R. Yokome, for years Editor of The Examiner, Harry Rush and Dr. Halliday. Every person who knew them will salute their memories as men of honor and sterling citizenship. And how alike in their essential characteristics were these three casually chosen witnesses. Primarily they were men of goodwill and their influence alone must have been of incalculable extent and effect in this community. Unassuming and unselfish they were gentle natures whom enmities, bitterness and strife made unhappy. And because they were loyal churchmen they practiced in their daily lives, year on to year, the inclusive commandmant of loving their neighbours.

These Christian gentlemen were parishioners of Archdeacon Davidson's. (One is strongly inclined to say they were typical of the men of St. John's). They were his friends and supporters, too, but the fact one likes to stress is that for thirty-one years they participated with him in the services of the church, they listened to and must have been affected and guided by the Davidson sermons.

Changes and Amelioration

One of the impressions from the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation a month ago was a recognition of the improvement in the community life of our own town. Of course we have grown to city stature and with that physical expansion we are becoming urbane, complaisant. Life is not as harsh and crude as it was sixty years ago, although our grandfathers had their good points, too. At any rate there seems to be more of a spirit of forbearance among the citizens and deeper mutual respect.

May it be repeated without laboring the point that these were qualities which glowed in the characters of those men of St. John's, Halliday, Rush and Yokome. Their influence radiated in separate and different quarters, and linked with it of course was the influence of other citizens of the same stamp and mold.

Such then vaguely was the spirit, the sentiment of St. John's, and if Archdeacon Davidson personified it to the general public it was because he was a sympathetic medium and interpreter, and after that because of his many interests and engagements in the city's affairs.

* * *

Just a few brief glimpses of him as he used to be among us in club life, civic activities, and in some strange places whither duty had drawn him. One night at a dinner (was it a Board of Trade festivity?) when the coffee had been served and the toasts were at hand, and men were lighting their cigars and cigarettes, Archdeacon Davidson produced his own pipe, a straight one like Mr. Stanley Baldwin's, perhaps even a cherry-wood, such as the British Prime Minister is reputed to prefer, filled it with his own tobacco and puffed away in unmistakable contentment. And if you, too, were a smoker, as were nearly all the men there, you warmed toward the Rector of St. John's in that affinity which the incense of good tobacco induced among its devotees. Such an incident pointed to the fact that Archdeacon Davidson liked to be with men.

* * *

Another glimpse of him indicates that he was not only companionable and congenial with laymen of all kinds, but that he had a broad vein of humor beneath his customary pastoral reserve. This night he was Major J. C. Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th Regiment, at a dinner in the officers' mess at the Armouries. The scene is somewhat blurred in restrospect but somehow the figures of Major Davidson and Major Louis M. Hayes, Chaplain and Adjutant respectively become clearer. At any rate the Chaplain scored a memorable hit with his fellow officers and their guests by singing a satiric, unheroic parody on an old melancholy song entitled, "Just Before the Battle Mother" with a refrain which ran somethink like this:

Mother I may be found among the missing
But never never among the slain.

The Archdeacon's grave tragicomic phrasing and expression raised a gale of laughter around the table. Yes, the Major delighted in the Rangers, because it was a regiment but especially for the associations and fellowship of the barracks and camp.

* * *

Flash this episodic film forward to August 22nd, 1914, a sparkling Saturday morning the dew still glinting from the grass tips at Central Park, and Peterborough's first infantry contingent drawn up for a brief service of farewell. Ex-Mayor W. H. Buller was there to speak for the citizens. The officers, all set for Valcartier, Flanders and France, in charge of that gallant company were Lt.-Col. E. B. Clegg, Major George W. Bennett, Major Joseph Mills and Lieut. Chas. H. Ackerman. St. John's men were numerous in that vanguard of volunteers. And it was Major Davidson who dedicated them and their loyalty and prayed for their cause and their own safety. That parting wrenched his emotions, as he saw old comrades stride off with a smile perhaps to death. Many of them were dead when Major Davidson's long peace time experience with his regiment at home culminated with his going overseas as Chaplain of the 93rd Battalion recruited from this city and county.

* * *

Glance next into a lawyer's office. An unfortunate girl, more sinned against than sinning, had been sentenced to the Reformatory. Archdeacon Davidson felt so keenly the injustice of this committal that he consulted the city's most prominent lawyer as to appealing to the county judge, then His Honor C. A. Weller.

"You'll need about $75 for expenses", the lawyer informed him.

"Very well, if you think we have any chance of succeeding", was the Archdeacon's swift reply.

It was not the kind of case this lawyer's more responsible practice brought him. Besides his contacts with the Rector of St. John's were only occasional.

Some time later when Judge Weller had quashed the police court conviction and ordered that the girl be sent to an asylum, Archdeacon Davidson returned to the lawyer's office to pay the costs of the case.

"You're not gettin ganything out of this, Canon," said the lawyer, "and I'm not going to take one cent."

That happened in the pre-Rotarian days when, however, the "underprivileged" were not utterly without friends. It suggests a phase of his character and his work here which only by chance comes to light:

That best portion of a good
man's life,
His little, nameless unremembered acts
Of kindness and of love.

Archdeacon Davidson did not court the rich and influential. His sympathy went out to those who most needed it, and he had a special care for the poor and friendless. Of him it could be said: "He healeth the broken of heart and bindeth up their bruises." And in that office his most conspicuous ministration was that January daybreka when two Slavs, Tom Konek and Mike Barri, were hanged at the court house for the murder of a Bulgarian laborer at the quarry near Havelock. An irregular streak of red flushed the horizon twilight beyond Armour's hill. Sub-zero frost outdoors penetrating almost to the heart accentuated the comfort of the clanging radiators that rent the awful silence of the big empty rooms.

Archdeacon Davidson had been an early visitor with the condemned men, and in the weeks preceding that hour, even until late their last night, had prepared their minds for eternity. He was repeating The Lord's Prayer with them on the scaffold as the trap was sprung. Only those who were with him that day realize the exaction of that ordeal on his spirited, unflinching temperament, and understood the consolation and comfort he gave those two unfortunate foreigners. But the whole city was conscious of a debt of gratitude to the Rector of St. John's for the Christian compassion and inspiration he shared with them when the public's pity could not reach them.

So much for reminiscence, but enough surely to freshen our memory of Archdeacon Davidson and the part he played as citizen over a period of thirty-one years. He served his church, parish and community zealously, wisely and well, and it is the sincere wish of his friends that when the slippered years claim him, as certainly they will, he may, in Peterborough if possible, enjoy the rest he has richly earned.

Meanwhile he goes about the diocese visiting the parishes, the missions and distant outposts of the Church of England in this part of the province. Knowing the manner of man he was, especially the churchman he was in this city, his friends understand the wisdom of his Bishop's assignment of him to this larger sphere. They are moreover happy in the thought that wherever Archdeacon Davidson goes there will be the influence of a sound churchman, a zealous Canadian and a man of deep and broad sympathy and charity. The spirit of Old St. John's, glowing brightly as ever as it lights the way into its second century, will be likewise reflected farther afield from the personality and priesthood of Archdeacon J. C. Davidson.

THE BEST MEDICINE SHE EVER USED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Highly Praised by a Quebec Lady.

Mrs. David Logan, Thetford Mines West, Que., gives unstinted praise to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the good they have done in her family. Mrs. Logan says: "I have been a user of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for many years, as occasion required, and have always found them a most reliable medicine. My husband who was recovering from an attack of typhoid fever and was in a very weak condition took the pills and through them gained health and strength. My daughter was in a run-down condition and was forced to discontinue work. Again Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were resorted to and she was soon restored to excellent health. Then my eldest boy had an operation performed for adenoids, which left him in a weakened condition. Once more Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were tried, and he was soon in excellent health. So I can truly say that more than satisfaction has been obtained by the use of this medicine. The pilsl have done more good in my home than hundreds of dollars worth of more expensive medicines."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills assist digestion correct the lassitude the palpitation of the heart, shaky nerves, and the pallor of the face and lips that are the results of thin, impure blood.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OVERCOMING EVIL WITH GOOD

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for August 7. Overcoming Evil With Good. Text: I Sam. 26; 7-14, 17, 21.

(By Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Editor of The Congregationalist.)

The story of Saul's jealous hatred and pursuit of David, if it is touched here and there with one's compassion for a great hearted man in the grip of an insane obsession or with almost uncontrollable gusts of passion, is brightened by glimpses of David's magnanimity.

It is in these experiences that we have David at his best. The man who could, under such circumstances of danger to his own life, refrain from enmity and regard the attacks upon himself with such courage and complacency reveals qualities of character and strength of soul that are truly noble no matter what less worthy things may have marred his life. Probably David in that unscientific age sensed the fact that Saul in his fits of jealousy was not himself.

Abishai is Average Man.

Anishai in our lesson represents the normal spirit of man in the presence of enmity and strife. He was moved with no larger considerations of vision or of magnanimity of soul. With crude and prosaic calculation he urged David to let him kill Saul in the moment of opportunity, boasting of the fact that he could strike him to the earth with his spear at one stroke without the need of striking him a second time. Here was the plain man of blood, a stranger to higher considerations, throughtless and coldly brutal. To such men the world has given all too much power.

David, though a man of blood, had finer feelings and nobler moods. There was in him something of a playful spirit. He found a certain satisfaction in stealing away Saul's spear and in taking the cruse of water that had been at his head. Perhaps also in this there was something more than the satisfaction of a nimble-footed and nimble-witted man. He may have had the deeper purpose of revealing his magnanimity and of seeking to turn from himself and from Saul the evils of jealousy and hate.

Temporarily at least, David's magnanimity was not without result. There is a burst of almost pathetic repentance on Saul's part:

"Then said Saul, I have sinned: return, my son David; for I will no more do thee harm, because my life was precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I have played the fool and have erred exceedingly."

Well would it have been for Saul if that repentant mood had continued dominant in his life, but his jealousy and insane passion were to triumph despite his better nature.

David Ahead of His Time.

The course of David in these things, and the high ideal that the writer of Israel emphasizes in recording these things in the narrative, are all the more remarkable when one considers the time out of which these stories come. It was not a period when men were given to finer sensibilities or spiritual perceptions.

Abishai rather than David was typical of the age. It is in things such as this in the record that one must see revealed the moral and spiritual quality of the Old Testament. You must read these narratives with a view to their high lights to understand the rich idealism that they have given to the world and the way in which they have pointed the souls of men toward the higher and better ways in life.

Text: I Samuel 26:7-14, 17, 21.

So David and Abishai came to the people by night: and, behold, Saul lay sleeping within the trench, and his spear stuck in the ground at his bolster: but Abner and the people lay round about him.

The said Abishai to David, God hath delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day: now, therefore, let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear, even to the earth at once, and I will not smite him the second time.

And David said to Abishai, Destroy him not: for who can stretch forth his hand against the Lord's anointed, and be guiltless?

David said furthermore, As the Lord liveth, the Lord shall smite him; or his day shall come to die; or he shall descend into battle, and perish.

The Lord forbid that I should stretch forth mine hand against the Lord's anointed: but, I pray thee, take thou now the spear that is at his bolster, and the cruse of water, and let us go.

So David took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster; and they gat them away, and no man saw it, nor knew it, neither awaked; for they were all asleep; because a deep sleep from the Lord was fallen upon them.

Then David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of a hill afar off; a great space being between them:

And David cried to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, Answerest thou not, Abner? Then Abner answered and said, Who art thou that criest to the king?

And Saul knew David's voice, and said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king.

Then said Saul, I have sinned: return, my son David; for I will no more do thee harm, because my soul was precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 1927.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

It is singularly appropriate that the unveiling by the Prince of Wales of the statue in memory of Sir Wilfrid Laurier should take place during the year of Canada's Diamond Jubilee, at a time when the thoughts of Canadians go back in gratitude to those whose services to this country contributed most to our present prosperity.

Of these Sir Wilfrid is numbered by political foe as well as by political friend as among the greatest, and the tributes that were paid by the distinguished speakers at Ottawa this week are echoed in all parts of the Dominion.

Particularly impressive were the words of Sir Robert Borden, who for eighteen years led the forces opposed politically to Sir Wilfrid, who who in the midst of political warfare was always a personal friend of the great French-Canadian statesman.

"To me," remarked Sir Robert, "the House of Commons never seemed the same after his gracious presence moved no more among us."

In a sentence Canada's war-time Premier expressed the sense of loss felt not only by the members of Canada's Houses of Parliament but by the people of this country generally when Sir Wilfrid passed on.

MR. BALDWIN'S SPEECHES.

Canadian newspapers are giving much space to the triumphal tour of the Princes and the Baldwins, and in this connection The Examiner hopes that the reports of the addresses of Premier Baldwin are being read by Canadians generally.

In his every speech the British Prime Minister is giving us a chance to see British problems in their real light, an opportunity to understand and appreciate even more than we have done hitherto the British people themselves.

In the language of a business man, Mr. Baldwin has been picturing Britain to us, conveying in his every sentence a message of vital importance.

Only a comparative handful of Canadians will have the opportunity of hearing the British Prime Minister, but they can all read the reports of his speeches, and they all should, for nothing more likely to give the people of this country a better understanding of the Motherland and its problems has been uttered than the straightforward addresses of Mr. Baldwin.

To read them is to know and love Britain the better, and the value of his visit in this regard is becoming more evident as the journey through Canada progresses.

EXHIBITION TICKETS.

The attention of citizens of Peterborough and the district is called to the fact that for a short period strip tickets for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are to be placed on sale, affording an opportunity to secure admission to Peterborough's big fair for 25c instead of for the 35c charged later on.

These tickets will be sold at four for one dollar, and as this is, of course, the most economical way in which to buy them, there should be a ready sale.

Preparations for the Exhibition are gathering speed with the big event a little over a month away, and there is every reason for confidence on the part of the Directors that in every department, including revenue and attendance, all previous records will be shattered.

The reputation of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has become so firmly established that over a wide district people mark down in their diaries as a matter of course a visit or two to Peterborough during Exhibition week, while exhibitors from far and near always include the local Exhibition in their programme for the autumn.

The opportunity to secure admission tickets at 25c each should be eagerly snapped up as the strips will only be on sale for a short time.

THE END OF A LONG BATTLE.

The Toronto Trades and Labour Council has sent a telegram to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, protesting against his refusal to grant a new trial to Sacco and Vanzetti, the two Italians convicted six years ago of murder.

Most people, however, will be inclined to think that the Governor who had all the evidence before him was more likely to arrive at a correct conclusion than an outside body, particularly in view of the fact that his decision was also reached by an impartial commission appointed to consider the case.

Ever since these two men were convicted, on July 4, 1921, labour and socialistic organizations have fought to save them from execution, and the battle has been carried on by one appeal after another in a manner that would have been impossible under Canadian laws.

The prisoners were known to have strong anarchical views, and the fight to keep the death sentence from being carried out was based on the assertion that the jury was intimidated and the presiding judge prejudiced because of the political beliefs of the accused.

Had they held normal political views doubtless Sacco and Vanzetti would have been allowed to die years ago, but their Red-bias has saved them up to now.

Apparently, however, the fight has been lost, and the law will at long last claim their lives next week.

THE NEW COMPETITION.

Change is a law of life, and there never was a time in which the pace at which it operates was as swift as it is today.

"Competition is the life of trade," we used to say. Not only is competition more intense than it ever was, but it has entered on a new phase which is quite different from what it used to be. "The old competition," says a magazine writer, "was mostly a matter of price-cutting. The new competition is something very different, and much more baffling than was the old. It is competition not merely from those in the same line of business, as of old, but a bitter battle for every dollar the consumer has in his pocket, and for every dollar he expects to have for months to come, thanks to installment selling. Radio in competition with vacuum cleaners, automobiles in competition with oriental rugs, kitchen cabinets in competition with electric refrigerators, books in competition with movies."

And then there is another form of competition that affects us all—competition for our time. Says the same writer: "iPeople cannot be at home reading books and magazines, and at the same time be at the movies, or out motoring, or playing golf or bridge. They cannot be using gasoline and oil and wearing out automobile tires if they spend their summer evenings on the porch listening to or dancing to the radio."

And from his survey of present-day conditions the writer draws the lesson for the business man that he should be always taking account of the rapid change which business is undergoing, looking far ahead and being ready with new methods, new products, to keep ahead of ever-changing demand.

But we were thinking as we read, of the lesson there is in it for the individual—for us as employees. Our savings and our time are our capital—our most precious assets. How carefully we should weigh the demands made on them—on our time no less than our savings—so that they may be always invested in worthwhile things. The temptation to spend them both freely, even recklessly, was never so strong. Alluring inducements are being offered at every turn. It takes real determination and good judgment to spend sparingly, wisely. And for us, no less than for the man of business, the object is that we should be ready for and equal to whatever changes the future may bring!—The Blue Bell.

FLAWS IN DEMOCRACY.

Noting the abandonment of proportional representation in certain countries, The Christian Science Monitor says that the popular concept of democracy has changed from its former enthusiastic and uncritical basis. Once it was believed that universal suffrage would introduce a new era of peace and good government among men.

"Experience has somewhat shattered these buoyant hopes. It has shown that what matters is not so much the method of election as the capacity of the people to think wisely and intelligently for themselves. The worship of popular opinion, the dogma of the demagogue that the people can do no wrong, has proved as fatal as the worship of the autocrat, the dogma of the courtier that the king can do no wrong. Nation after nation, in Europe and Asia alike, after building its hopes on popular government in its most theoretical perfection, has found that the mere system of democracy has been unable to give it either order or peace or adequate government, because the people have been unable to understand the issues at stake or to return representatives who were competent to rise above prejudice and faction. In such cases either autocracy has returned, as in Italy, Greece and Spain, or chaos has continued, as in China."

One might find an instance of this delusion and disillusion in the history of the first Reform Bill in Great Britain and what followed. Both fears and hopes were exaggerated. The Tories of that day filled the air with the most dismal predictions of the downfall of the throne and other British insetitutions. The ardent advocates of reform looked for a Utopia; and the people were excited to the verge of rebellion. Neither prophecy was fulfilled. The change rather strengthened than weakened British institutions. On the other hand, many abuses remained and the poverty and distress of the workers was portrayed vividly by Carlyle and by Dickens in "Hard Times." Yet the Reform Bill was not useless. The progress of reform from that time to the present has been much more rapid than in the eighteenth century or the early years of the nineteenth. Parliament by a more widely diffused representation has been brought face to face with the realities of life to an extent formerly unknown.

No doubt the people may be misled, as a king or an autocracy may be, and worship of the democracy is as irrational as worship of a monarch. But, on the whole, the democratic system has yielded far better results than any other. The thing that needs to be constantly emphasized is the necessity of educating the democracy. The granting of the franchise alone is not enough. Political parties ought to declare that they want not only the votes of the people, but their thought and judgment. The whole body of voters should be regarded as if present at a great convention, always consulting and exchanging ideas, and contributing to the sum of political thought.

However dissatisfied they may be with the working of democracy, British and American people are not likely to exchange them for the tyranny of Bolshevism or Fascism. The better way is to be patient and persevering, and to let dissatisfaction take the form of efforts at improvement, not of reaction or revolution.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The fact that the proposed new issue of $1,000 bills may be printed in light grey leaves us unmoved. We don't expect to see any of them anyway.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Ont., August 6. — With total cattle receipts at the Union Stock Yards for the week at 3,763 head the prices for beef grades remained fairly steady. Choice cattle were rather scarce. The bulk of the receipts for Tuesday and Wednesday was composed of rough underfinished stock, the bulk of which was sold to the abattoirs at what might be considered low prices, if the dressing percentage of the beef was not considered.

Any choice butcher steers were quickly picked up at from $8.25 to $8.75, with an odd one at $9.00 to $9.25. Good steers brought from $7.50 to $8.00; choice butcher heifers from $8.00 to $8.50; good $7.50 to $7.75; medium cattle $7.00 to $7.25. Common steers and heifers mostly low grade quality sold from $16.00 to $16.50, with some of the poorest steers around $5.50 to $5.75.

Bay beeves were in good demand, the choicest selling up to $12.50, choice at $11.00 to $12.00; good, $9.00 to $10.00, and medium $8.00 to $8.50.

Fat cows were in good demand, the choice bringing $6.25 to $6.75, and common as low as $4.25 to $4.75. From $5.00 to $5.50 was paid for choice light butcher hulls.

There were 2,503 sheep and lambs received during the week. Choice lambs sold at $15.00 and $13.00 for for bucks; good lambs, 14c to 14½c. Choice yearling sheep brought 9c to 10c; good, 8c to 8½c.

With receipts of 1,472 calves the trading in these was good, the fancy selling at 12½c, choice 12c, and good 10c to 11c; grocers, 4c to 5c.

A total of 2,166 hogs was received and were sold at firm prices. On Tuesday they advanced 25c, selling on a basis of $11.40 for selects weighed off cars, $10.50 f.o.b.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—The trade in cash grain in the domestic market yesterday was inactive, there being little demand from either exporters or local buyers but the tone was steady.

The demand for Spring wheat grades of flour was fair and values were unchanged. Prince for old crop Winter wheat grades were well maintained under a quiet inquiry.

The undertone to the millfeed market was again strong and higher values are expected owing to the good demand and the small supplies available. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm with a small trade passing.

The egg market was decidedly more active yesterday than it has been of late under a good demand from local buyers. Prices for all grades were steady. The receipts wre 1,976 cases.

Butter Trade Strong

A feature of the butter trade yesterday was the much stronger feeling that developed and prices scored an advance of ¼c per pound. This was attributed to the stronger cable advices and the improvement in the local demand. The receipts were 5,036 packages.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press) — Predictions of a bumper wheat crop in Western Canada were current yesterday and did a good deal to offset six black rust reports. The wheat market closed easy, ⅞ to 1 and ¼c net lower, with corn showing 1⅛ to 1⅛c gain; oats at 1⅛ to 1⅛c advance and provisions varying from ⅓ decline to a rise of 15c.

Corn and oats scored sharp upturns in price. Corn was affected by the bullish tenor of crop reports from everywhere except the southwest. The chief complaint being that the crop is two to four weeks late. Oats soared on account of unfavorable threshing returns becoming widespread.

Provisions averaged higher as a result of strength both in hog values and in corn.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 1,500; best weighty steers $13; grassers and short fed stalesteers predominating at $10.50 down to $8; most grass cows $6 to $7.25; sausage bulls largely $7 downward; few $7.25; vealers $14 to $15.

A Thought For To-day

PUSHING THROUGH.

Rushing breathless and panting like fury to reach some success, getting all worn out and losing sight of the tranquil beauties of life, is not living—it is only existing.

If, after you have achieved or arrived, you are all worn out, it makes no difference to you whether you achieve or arrive.

Picking up a lot of little happiness on your way through life, even thought you never become an outstanding financial figure, beats arriving or achieving and then finding yourself all out of health.

Nine times out of a possible ten those who arrive or achieve end up with nothing but money and plenty of poor health. They have seen only the ugly things of life. They know an oak from a pine, an owl from a peacock, a blossoming orchard from a bunch of palms, but this is about all. They arrive or achieve, but they see little pleasure on the way.

Or, better still, taken when you feel the headache coming on, a ZUTOO tablet will ward it off—nip it in the bud.

GOLD IN CANADA.

Gold Has Been Found in Eight Provinces of the Dominion.

Gold has been found in every province of Canada except Prince Edward Isalnd. The first recorded discovery was made in 1824 on the Gilbert River, 50 miles south of Quebec City. Placer mining operations commenced here in 1847, and intermittent operations have been carried on ever since. Placer discoveries were made in Ontario, in British Columbia, and in the Yukon Territory at much later dates. Lode mining for gold began at Tangier river, Nova Scotia, in 1858. Last year the total production of gold in Canada was 1,729,000 ounces, valued at $35,749,000. Approximately 85 per cent. of this production was obtained from mines in Northern Ontario, and 14 per cent from British Columbia.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith woke the next morning with the blessed feeling of "God's in His heaven; all's right with the world." And Bob was especially lover-like. He rose early, prepared a rose-scented bath for her, and carried her to it, swung high in his arms. And while she bathed he went into the little scrap of back yard and picked a bunch of flamboyant nasturtiums which she later found in a tumbler of water before her breakfast plate.

And he marched her to the door with him, his arm close about her shoulders, when he was ready to leave for the office. A curt, employer-like command sent Cherry, rather sulkily, to the car parked in the driveway.

"Here's a check for a hundred, sweet," Bob told Faith in a low voice, as he tucked a folded bit of paper into her hand. "Buy yourself that dress I was telling you about for the Pruitt party. And you'd better get yourself a dress-up hat to go with it. If that's not enough, don't skimp. I'll give you more at lunch to-day."

"I'm lunching with you?" Faith's voice trembled with happiness.

"Of course you are! You just try to stand me up!" Bob gibed, stooping to kiss her—a hard, long kiss, not the quick, husbandly peck that his good-bye sometimes was.

"Ain't he the sweetest thing?" Mrs. Lundy applauded.

Faith, smiling and flushing in her happiness, agreed that he was.

She had not realized, until she was actually in the shopping district, how closely she had stayed at home, how "out of things" she had let herself be since her marriage. It was a sheer delight to sit like a young queen—or like a beloved wife with a generous husband—while attentive salesgirls brought lovely, misty dresses for her approval. And it was Bob's choice that she bought after all—a dream of a chiffon frock—a vivid blending of orange and crimson that brought out the warmest tints in her creamy skin and coppery glints in her brown hair. In the nasturtium dress she looked very tall and very slender, like a proud princess.

She was fortunate in finding a picture hat that matched the deeper nasturtium shade to perfection. She had never owned so becoming a hat or so perfect a dress, and her almost ecstatic happiness over her purchases shone in her eyes, made even her skin luminous, when she arrived at Bob's offices at one o'clock. She had expected Bob to retain his lover-like mood all morning. But it was a different Bob who greeted her hastily, then asked her to wait until he was free. Cherry came tripping out of his private office, a little frown of businesslike concentration between her silken, copper-colored eyebrows, her note book in her hand.

"Oh, hello, Faith!" she greeted her sister abstractedly. "Oh, Bob," she turned to call back into the private office. "Ask Mr. Apperson whether he wants this estimate figured on both bungalows or just the one with the tile roof. We're awfully busy to-day," she added briskly to Faith. "I hope you won't mind waiting a few minutes."

Faith said nothing. The busy clicking of Cherry's typewriter keys was like a devil's tattoo upon her heart.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

SUNDAY, AUGUST 7, 1927

Early risers probably will not benefit today, for according to astrology adverse influences are strong in the morning.

The planetary rule is favorable to serious thought and to mental receptiveness and should benefit the churches.

Widespread interest in religion and philosophy is foretold and a spiritual awakening is prophesied.

From now to the end of the year reactionary influences will be strong, the seers prophesy, and in the United States life is to be less hazardous in many ways than it has been in recent years.

The planetary forces probably will encourage introspection and a desire to organize personal affairs in a systematic manner.

This is an auspicious direction of the stars for men of positive nature, for they will be inspired to plan wisely for the future.

Governors and all who are entrusted with public business should benefit.

The aspects today appear to foreshadow for certain states successful campaign for the reduction of crime and the stimulation of high ideals.

This configuration is believed to cause civic consciousness and a desire to work for the general good. It is most favorable for appeals in behalf of charities or philanthropies.

Missionary work is to centre in big cities where the inhabitants of the under world will be helped wisely.

The stars appear to augur success for conservative policies in political as well as business matters.

Appreciation of public service will be shown by voters, the seers prophesy, and re-election will be attained by high officials.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of gain through inheritance and success in high ambitions.

Children born on this day may be impulsive and difficult to guide, but they probably will be rarely lucky all through life.

MONDAY, AUGUST 8, 1927

Astrologers read this as rather an unimportant day in planetary direction, but the influences are good.

While this rule prevails there is likely to be an excess of energy and a degree of optimism that promises success.

The stars prosage for men and women who are prominent a continuance of good luck, which keeps them in high places.

This is held to be a favorable day for giving presents or for doing favors that are meant to be reciprocated.

Response to initiative meant to interest capital or brains should be hearty, while this rule prevails.

Parents are believed to be easily persuaded toward large generosities for the benefit of their children under this planetary rule. This should be an auspicious day for suggesting a European tour or a new automobile.

Education continues subject to conditions making for big increase of students in colleges and universities.

Special training for new professions as well as old ones will be required as never before, the seers announce.

Speculation in food stuffs and other staples will cause wild flurries in the markets, astrologers insist, and they repeat the warning to be careful regarding money risks.

Wheat and other grains are to be subject to influences that cause uncertainty and fluctuations in price, if the stars are wisely read.

The high cost of living is to climb instead of dropping, the seers warn, but they foretell much extravagance in the cities.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a very prosperous year in which new homes or changed surroundings are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be keen, alert and determined, but inclined to controversies. They should be fortunate all through their careers.

Women of Switzerland are planning to hold a national exposition for women's work in Berne next year.

SHORT WAVE CIRCUITS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Radio listeners in the British Isles and in far-off Dominions of the British Empire may hear the speeches of the Prince of Wales, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and others at the celebration to be held on the International Peace Bridge Sunday afternoon if the short-wave broadcasters, 2XAF and 2XAG, of the General Electric Company at Schenetcady, N.Y., prove effective.

Rice, manager of broadcasting, announced yesterday that the ceremonies, beginning at 3 p.m., would be transmitted on 32.77 and 22 metre waves, in addition to the broadcasts by WGY on the 395-metre wave operating simultaneously with WGZ and a chain. Recent tests with these short-wave transmitters have demonstrated that the Antipodes and European points can be reached continuously by one or the other.

"Radio station owners in Australia and South Africa," said Mr. Rice, "as well as the British Broadcasting Company, have been notified that the program will be carried on short-wave stations in Sydney, Melbourne and Perth, Australia; Auckland, New Zealand, and Johannesburg, South Africa.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Turquoise blue jacket sweater striped with beige and a beige hat striped with turquoise are worn with a beige crepe de chine pleated skirt.

By all means buy a sweater, two sweaters—four or five of them if you can afford them. But buy them with care, considering each as a definite part of some particular summer costume or ensemble. Any sort of sweater, just chosen at random to wear with this frock or that when you feel a trifle chilly in your light summer clothes. That sort of thing won't do at all.

The up-to-date sweater is a definite part of a sweater costume. Don't forget that—and sweater costumes are now worn by the best-dressed women at summer resorts here and abroad.

For example—a short finely pleated skirt of white crepe de chine with an inch wide band of red at the edge of the hem—white stockings with white oxfords trimmed with narrow pipings of red kid—a white silk kerchief with a stripe of red around the edge, tied in a knot at the left shoulder—and a light-weight white pull-on sweater with narrow red cuffs and a large monogram in red above the waistline at the front.

Or flesh-colored pleated silk skirt, with flesh-colored stockings and shoes, worn with a turquoise-colored sweater and a nude-colored felt hat with a band of turquoise.
